And the kynge and Jehoiada gaue it to worckemē that wrought vpon the house of the Lorde/ and hyred Masons & carpenters to redresse the house of the Lorde/ and lodyd they artifycers in yron and brasse/to repayre the house of the Lorde. And the worckemen wrought & the worcke mended thorow their handes: and they made the house of God as it ought to be/and strengthed it. And when they had fynyshed it/ they brought the rest of the moneye to the kynge and Jehoiada/ & therwyth were made vessels for the house of the Lorde: euen vessels to mynystre with all and to serue for burntofferynges as ladelles and vessels of goulde and syluer. And they offered burntofferynges in the house of the Lorde contynually all the dayes of Jehoiada. And Jehoiada waxed olde and full of yeres and dyed. [a] An hundred and thirtye yere olde was he when he dyed. And they buryed him in the citie of Dauid amōge the kynges because he had done good in Israel/ and on God and on his house. And after the deeth of Jehoiada/ came the Lordes of Juda & made obeysaunce to the kynge. And then he herkened vnto them. And so they lefte the house of the Lorde God of their fathers/ and serued groues and Images. And then came there wrath vpō Juda & Jerusalem/ for thys their trespaces sake. Notwythstandynge yet God sent Prophetes to thē/ to bryng thē agayne vnto the Lorde. And they testifyed vnto them But they wolde not heare.

And the spirite of God came vpon Zacharyah the sonne of Jehoiada the preste/ and he stept vp aboue the people and sayde to them. Thus sayth God: why transgresse ye the cōmaundementes of ꝑ Lorde? ye shall therfore not prospere/ but as ye haue forsakē hym/ so shall he forsake you* Wherupō they cōspired agaynst him and stoned him wyth stones/ at the commaundement of the kynge: euen in ꝑ courte of ꝑ house of ꝑ Lorde. And so Joas the kynge remēbred not the kyndenes which Jehoiada his father had done to him/ but slue his sonne. And whē he dyed/ he sayde: ꝑ Lorde se and require a reconynge.

And when the yere was out/ the host of ꝑ Syriens came agaynst hym: and they came to Juda and Jerusalem/ and destroyed all the Lordes of the people frō amonge the people and sent all the spoyle of them vnto ꝑ kynge to Damasco. And though the armie of Syria came with a smalle companye of men/ yet ꝑ Lorde deliuered a very great hoste into their handes/ because they had forsaken the Lorde God of their fathers. And therto they serued Joas accordynge.

And as sone as they were departed from hym/ though they left hym in great diseases: yet hys awne seruauntes conspired agaynst him for the bloude of the childrē of Jehoiada the preste/ & slue him on his beed. And when he was deed/ they buryed hym in the cytye of Dauid: but not in the sepulchres of ꝑ kinges And these are they ꝑ conspired agaynst hym: Zabad the sonne of Samaath an Ammonite and Jehosabad ꝑ sonne of Simrith a Moabite. And hys sonnes and the summe of the tare that came to him/ and the foundacio of the house of God/ are writtē in the storie of ꝑ booke of kynges. And Amaziah hys sonne raygned in his steade.

But there came a man of God to hym and sayde: kynge/ let not the armye of Israel go with the: for the Lorde is not with Israel nether wt any of the house of Ephraim. Or elles yf thou neades wylt/ then go & do it/ & make thy selfe stronge to battell: & thou shalt se/ ỹ God shall make ỹ fall before thine enemyes. For God hath power to helpe or to cast doune And Amaziah sayde agayne to ỹ mā of God/ what shall we do then/ for the hundred talēts which I haue geuē vnto the hoste of Israel? And the man of God sayde: the Lorde is able to geue the moche moare then that.

And then Amaziah seuered the armie that was come to hym out of Ephraim / to go whome agayne. Wherfore they were exceadynge wrothe with Juda/ & returned to their awne whome in great angre.

And Amaziah toke herte & caryed out his hoste & wēt to saltdale.* Where he slue of the iiij. Reg. xiiij. b childrē of Seir ten thousande. And other ten thousande ỹ chyldrē of Juda toke alyue/ and caried thē vnto the toppe of a rocke & cast thē downe frō the toppe of the rocke/ that they al to burst: but ỹ mē of ỹ armie which Amaziah had turned backe & wolde not let go with his D people to battell/ ranne vpō ỹ cities of Juda from Samaria vnto Bethhoron & slue thre thousande of them and wanne moche spoyle.

And it chaunced/ after that Amaziah was come from the slaughter of ỹ Edomitꝛ/ & had brought the Gods of the children of Seir/ he set thē vp to be his Gods/ & bowed hym selfe before thē & burned cense vnto thē. Wherfore ỹ Lord was wroth wt Amaziah & sent to him a prophete/ & sayde to him: why seke st thou ỹ Gods of ỹ people which were not able to delyuer their awne people out of thyne handꝛ? E And as ỹ prophete spake to him/ he saide to ỹ prophete: haue men made the of the kynges councell? cease/ leste thou be beaten. And the prophete ceased & sayde: I am sure that God hath takē counsell to destroye ỹ/ because thou hast done this/ & obeyest not my councell.

Then Amaziah kyng of Juda toke aduise & sent to Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz ỹ sonne of Jehu kynge of Israel & sayde: come/ & let vs se ether other. And Joas kynge of Israel sent agayne to Amaziah king of Juda sayīg: iiij. Reg. xiiij. c. a thistell in Libanon sent to a Cedar tree of Libanon sayinge: *geue thy daughter to my sonne to wife. But there came ỹ wilde beastꝛ F of Libanon & troade downe ỹ thistell. Thou thinkest: se/ I haue beatē ỹ Edomitꝛ/ therfore thyne hert aryseth to glorifye thy selfe. Now byde at home: what neadeth ỹ to prouoke to euell/ that thou perishe and Juda with the.

But Amaziah rested not: for it came of God/ euē to delyuer thē into ỹ handꝛ of their enemyes: & that be cause they had sought the Gods of the Edomites. And Joas kynge of Israel came vp: & they saw ether other/ both he & Amaziah kynge of Juda at Bethsames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israel/ & fled euery mā to hys tent. And Joas kynge of Israel toke Amaziah kynge of Juda ỹ sonne of Jehoas ỹ sonne of* Ohoziah at Bethsames: & brought hym to Jerusalē/ & tare the walle of Jerusalē frō the gate of Ephraim vnto the corner gate/ foure hundred cubytes lōge. And he toke all the goulde & syluer & all the Iuelles that were founde in the house of God wyth Obed Edom & the treasure of the kynges house and hostages/ and returned to Samaria.

Ahaz was.xx.yere olde when he be- A ganne to raygne/and raygned.xvi iij.Reg.xvi.a. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd not that pleased the Lorde/ as dyd hys father Dauid:but walked in ỹ wayes of the kynges of Israel/and made therto Baals of metall.And he offered cense in the valeye of ỹ childrẽ of Hennon/and burnt his childrẽ in fyre after the abhominacyon of the nacyons which ỹ Lord cast out before ỹ childrẽ of Israel.And he offered burnt cense in hilaulters and on moũtaynes & vnder euery grene tre.

Wherfore ỹ Lorde his God delyuered him into the hand of the kynge of the Syriens: whych bet him & caryed awaye a great multitude of his captiue in to Damascon. And therto he was delyuered into the hande of the kynge of Israel which slue of his a myghtye slaughter.For Phakeh ỹ sonne of Romeliah slue in Juda an hundred & twẽtye thousand in one daye/ & all fyghtynge men: a that because they had forsaken ỹ Lorde God of their fathers.And Zechri a myghtye man in mouñt Ephraim slue Maaliah the kynges sonne/ & Asricam the Lorde stuarde of houshold/ and Elcanah that was next to the kynge.And the B chyldren of Israel toke prysoners of theire brethren two hundred thousand wyues/sonnes & daughters/ & therto caryed awaye moche spoyle of the/and brought it to Samaria.

But there was a prophete of the Lordes named Obed which went out to ỹ Host that came to Samaria & sayde to the:se/because ỹ Lorde God of youre fathers was wroth wt Juda/he deliuered the into youre handes. And ye haue slayne the with cruelnesse ỹ reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem & to make them bondemen and bondwemen. What other thynge do ye (ye vnhappye) then offende ỹ Lorde youre God. But now heare me/& delyuer the captyues agayne which ye haue taken of youre brethren: for the great wrath of the Lorde is vpon you.

And certayne of the heedes of ỹ chyldren of Ephraim/as Azariah ỹ sonne of Johanan Barachiah ỹ sonne of Meshimeloth/Jehezekiah the sonne of Selum & Amasa ỹ sonne of Hadalai stode vp agaynst them that came fro warre/ and sayde vnto them:ye shall not ¶ bringe in the captiues hyther. For where we haue offended the Lorde all readye/ye entende to adde more to oure synnes & trespace. For oure trespace is great all readye/ & there is fearce wrath vpo Israel. And vpon ỹ the me of armes lefte the captyues & the spoyle before the Lordes & all the congregacyon.

And there arose certayne apoynted therto by name/& toke the prysoners & clothed all ỹ were naked amonge the/of ỹ spoyle/& arayed the & shoed the & gaue the to eate & to drynke & anoynted the/ & caryed all that were feble of them vpon asses & brought the to Jericho ỹ citie of Paulme trees fast by their brethre: and then returned to Samaria agayne.

And at that same tyme kynge Ahaz sent vnto the kynges of Assur to haue helpe. And the Edomites came yet agayne & slue of Juda & caryed awaye some captyues. And the Philistins inuaded ỹ cities in ỹ lowe countrey and the south of Juda:and toke Bethshames/ Aialon/Gaderoth & Socoh with the townes longynge therto/& Thimna with ỹ townes of the same. & Gimso with her townes/& dwelt therin. For the Lorde brought Juda lowe/ because of Ahaz kynge of Juda which made Juda naked & transgressed agaynst ỹ Lorde. And ¶ thiglath palneser kynge of Assur came vpo him and besieged him/but preuayled not ¶ agaynst him. For Ahaz toke awaye out of ỹ house of the Lorde & out of the kynges house & out of the Lordes houses/& gaue vnto the kinge of Assur/though it holpe him not. And therto in the very tyme of his tribulacion did kynge Ahaz trespace yet moare agaynst the Lorde. For he offered vnto the Gods of them of Damasco which bette him & sayd/ because the Gods of the Syriens healpe the/therfore will I offer to the/ that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruccion & the destruccion of all Israel. And Ahaz geathered to gether the vessels of the house of God and brake the/ & shut vp the dores of the house of the Lorde/& made him aulters in all corners of Jerusale. And in all ỹ cities of Juda eyther by citie he made hylaulters to burne incense vnto other Gods/& angred ỹ Lord God of his fathers. The rest of his actes & all his wayes bothe first & last are writte in the boke of the kinges of Juda & Israel. ¶ Hezekiah restoreth vnto the tẽple of ỹ Lorde all the thynges ỹ had not bene regarded of hys predecessoures.

¶ The.xxix.Chapter.

HEzekiah begane to raygne whe he was .xxv. yere olde/ & raygned .xxix. yere in Jerusale. And his mothers name was Abiah the daughter of Zachariah. And he dyd that was right in the syght of the Lorde in all poyntes as did Dauid his father. He opened the dores of ỹ house of the Lorde in ỹ fyrst yere & fyrst moneth of his raigne/& he repaired the. And he brought in the prestes & the Leuites & geathered the to gether in to ỹ eest strete: & sayde vnto the. Heare me ye Leuites:purifye youre selues & halow the house of the Lorde God of youre fathers/ & bringe out ỹ fylthinesse out of the holy place. For oure fathers haue trespaced & done euelfauoredly in ỹ eyes of ỹ Lord oure God: & haue forsake him/and turned awaye theire faces fro ỹ habitacio of ỹ Lorde & turned to their backes. And belyde ỹ they haue shut vp ỹ dores of ỹ porche & quenched ỹ lapes & haue nether burned ce nor offered burntoffrynges in ỹ holy place vnto ỹ God of Israel.

Wherfore ỹ wrath of ỹ Lord fell on Juda & Jerusale: & he shatered the & made them so thynne that men hisse at it/eue as ye se with youre eyes. For se/ oure fathers were ouerthrowe with the swerde & oure sonnes/oure daughters & oure wiues were caried awaye captiue for ỹ same cause. Now haue I in my hert to stryke a couenaunt wt the Lorde God of Israel: ỹ his wrath may cease. Now therfore my sonnes be not neclygent:for ỹ Lorde hath chosen you to stande before him/and for to minister and burne offerynges to him.

¶ Then ỹ Leuites arose: Mahath ỹ sonne of Amasai & Joel ỹ sonne of Azariah beynge of the chyldren of ỹ Cahathites: & the sonnes of Merari/Kis the sonne of Abdi & Azariah the sonne of Jehaleel: & of ỹ Gersonites/Joah the sonne

And they geathered their brethrē & purifyed thē selues/ & then wēt at ꝑ cōmaūdemēt of the kyng by the worde of the Lord/ for to clense the house of the Lorde. And the preastꝫ wēt into ꝑ house of ꝑ Lorde to clense it/ & brought out all the vnclennesse that they founde in ꝑ tēple of ꝑ Lord/ & in ꝑ courte of the house of the Lorde. And the Leuites toke
D it & caried it out in to the broke Cedrō. They begāne the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth to purifye/ & came the eight daye to the porche of the Lord: so ꝑ they had purged the house of the Lorde in eight dayes and the .xvi. daye of the fyrst moneth they made an ende.

And then they wēt in to Hezekiah ꝑ kyng & sayde: we haue clensed all the house of the Lord/ & the aulter of burntoffrynꝫ wythall his vessels/ & ꝑ shewbreede table with all his apparell: & therto all the vessels which kyng Ahaz dyd cast a syde when he raygned & trāsgressed/ them we haue repayred & sanctifyed:
E & se/ they are before the aulter of the Lorde.
* Or/ Jehezekiah. And* Hezekiah the kyng rose erlye & geathered the Lordes of the cytye & went vp to the house of the Lorde. And there were brought seuē oxen/ seuē rammes/ seuē lambes & seuē kyddes to be a synneofferynge for the kyngdom/ for the sanctuarye & for Juda. And he cōmaunded the preastes ꝑ sonnes of Aaron to offer them on the aulter of the Lorde.

And they slue ꝑ oxē: & ꝑ preastꝫ receaued ꝑ bloude & sprynkled it on ꝑ aulter: and they slue the rammes & sprynkled the bloude vpō the aulter: & they slue the lambes & sprinkled ꝑ bloud vpō ꝑ aulter. And then they brought forth the kyddes of ꝑ synneofferyng before ꝑ kyng & ꝑ cōgregaciō which put their hādes vpon thē. And the preastes slue thē & offered the bloude of thē vpō the aulter/ to make sa-
F tisfaccion for all Israel: for the kynge sayde: ꝑ the burntoffryng & ꝑ synneoffryng shulde serue for all Israel. And they set the Leuites in the house of the Lord wt cymbales/ psalteries & harpes accordyng to ꝑ cōmaundemēt of Dauid & of Gad the kynges seer of visiōs & of Nathan the prophete. For so was the cōmaundemēt of the Lorde thorow the hāde of his prophetes. And so the Leuites stode with the instrumentes of Dauid/ and the preastes wt trompettes. And Hezekiah cōmaunded to offer the buntofferyng vpon the aulter. And whē the burntofferyng beganne/ ꝑ songe of ꝑ Lorde beganne/ & the trompettes with the instrumentes of Dauid kyng of Israel. And all ꝑ cōgregacion bowed thē selues/ and the syngers sange/ & the trōpettes blew/ & cōtinued vntyll ꝑ burntofferyng was fynesshed.

And whē they had made an ende of ꝑ burntofferyng/ ꝑ kyng & all ꝑ were wt him kneled downe & bowed thē selues & gaue prayse & thanckes. And Hezekiah the kyng & ꝑ lordꝫ bade ꝑ Leuites to prayse ꝑ Lord wt ꝑ wordꝫ of Dauid & of Asaph ꝑ seer of bysions. And the Leuites praysed ꝑ they reioyced agayne/ and the other stowped & bowed them selues.
G

And Hezekiah answered & sayd: now ꝑ ye haue fylled youre hādes to ꝑ Lord/ go to and bryng in ꝑ sacrefyces & thankofferyngꝫ in to ꝑ house of ꝑ Lord. And ꝑ cōgregaciō brought in the sacrefyces & thankofferynges/ & all ꝑ were wyllyng brought burntoffrynges. And ꝑ nūbre of ꝑ burntoffrynges which ꝑ cōgregacion brought in was .lxx. oxē & an hūdred rāmes & two hūdred lambes: & all for burntoffrynges to the Lord. And besyde ꝑ they dedicated sixe hūdred oxē & thre thousand sheepe.

But the preastes were to few/ & were not able to flaye all ꝑ burntoffrynges. Wherfore their brethrē the Leuites holpe them tyll the worke was ended/ & vntill the preastes were sanctifyed. For the Leuitꝫ were purer herted to sanctifie thē selues then the preastes. And therto ꝑ burntoffrynges were manye wt the fatte of the peaceofferynges & the drynckofferynges ꝑ belonged to the burntofferyngꝫ. And so the seruyce pertaynynge to the house of ꝑ Lord wēt forward. And Hezekiah reioyced & all the people/ ꝑ God had made ꝑ folcke so readye: for the thynge was sodenly done.

¶ The .xxx. Chapter.

AND Hezekiah sent to all Israel & Juda: & therto wrote letters to Ephraim & Manasseh/ ꝑ they shulde come to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem/ to offer passouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the kyng helde a councell with his Lordes and all the cōgregacyon at Jerusalem to kepe the feast of passouer in ꝑ seconde moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at ꝑ time: for there were not preastes ynowe sanctifyed/ nether was ꝑ people geathered to geather to Jerusalē. And ꝑ thyng pleased the kyng & all the cōgregacion. And they decreed ꝑ it shulde be proclaymed thorow out all Israel frō Berlabe to Dan/ ꝑ they shulde come & holde ꝑ feast of passouer vnto ꝑ Lord God of Israel at Jerusalem: for they had not often done it/ as it is writtē how they shuld.

which he hath sanctified for euer / and serue
the Lorde youre God / that hys wrath maye turne frō you. For yf ye turne vnto ỹ Lorde/then youre brethē & youre childrē shall fynde cōpassion in the presence of thē that holde thē captyue/ that they maye come agayne vnto this lande: for the Lorde youre God is full of mercye and compassyō/ & wyll not turne hys face from you/ yf ye turne agayne to him.

And the postes went from cytie to cytye thorou oute the lande of Ephraim and Manasseh & euē vnto Zabulō. But they laughed them to schorne & mocked thē. Neuertheles yet dyuerse of Asser / Manasseh and of Zabu lon meakened thē selues & came to Jerusalem. And therto the hād of God was in Juda/to make thē of one accorde to do the cōmaundement of the kyng & the capitaynes/ whych was accordyng to ỹ worde of the Lord. And so there assembled to Jerusalē moch people & a myghtie great congregacion/ to holde the feast of swete breade in the seconde moneth.

And they arose and put awaye ỹ aulters
C ỹ were in Jerusalem. And therto all the incense they dyd awaye & cast thē into ỹ broke Cedron. And they slue passeouer ỹ fourtene daye of the second moneth. And the preastes & Leuites sanctifyed thē selues for shame/& brought in ỹ burntofferynges into ỹ house of the Lorde. And they stode in their stādyng after their maner accordynge to the lawe of Moses ỹ mā of God. And ỹ preastes sprynkled the bloude receauynge it of the handes of ỹ Leuites. And because there were many in the cōgregacion ỹ were not sanctifyed: and therfore dyd ỹ Leuites sley passeouer for all ỹ were not cleane to sanctifye thē to ỹ Lord.

There was very moche people oute of Ephraim/ Manasseh/ Jsakar and Zabulon ỹ were not cleane/ and therfore dyd eate passeouer otherwyse then wrytynge specyfyeth.
But Hezekiah prayed for thē & sayd: ỹ good Lorde be mercyfull to all ỹ sett their hertes to seke the God ỹ is the Lorde God of their fathers/ though they do it not accordynge to D the clennesse of the holy place. And the Lord heard Hezekiah & healed the people. And so the childrē of Jsrael that were founde at Jerusalem/ helde the feast of swete breade seuē dayes with great gladnesse/ and the Leuites and the preastes praysed the Lorde daye by daye with lowde instrumentes.

And Hezekiah spake hertely vnto ỹ Leui-tes that had good vnderstādyng of the Lord.
And they dyd eate that feast seuē dayes long & offered peaceofferynges & thanked ỹ Lord God of their fathers. And the hoale assemble toke councell to kepe seuē dayes moo: & they helde those seuē dayes wt gladnesse. For Hezekiah kyng of Juda gaue for heaueoffrynges to ỹ cōgregaciō a thousand oxen & seuē thou sand shepe. And ỹ Lords gaue to ỹ cōgrega-cyon for heaueoffrynges a thousand oxen & ten thousand shepe. And the preastes sanctifyed them selues/ that they were ynowe.

And all the cōgregacion of Juda with the preastes & Leuites / & all the congregacyon that came out of Jsrael and the straungers/both that came out of the lande of Jsrael and ỹ dwelt in Juda/ reioysed: & there was great ioye in Jerusalē. For sence the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng of Jsrael it happened not so in Jerusalē. And the preasts & the Leuites arose & blessed the people/ and their voyce was hearde / & their prayer went vp vnto his holy dwellyng place heauen.

¶ After Hezekiah had called agayne the people vnto ỹ waye of the Lorde/ he ordeyneth the preastes/ vnto whō he cōmaundeth to geue tythes.

¶ The. xxxi. Chapter.

AND whē they had finesshed all this:
then all Jsrael that were founde in the cyties of Juda / went oute and brake the Jmages & cut downe the A groues/ and all to brake the hylaulters and ỹ other aulters thorow out all Juda & Beniamin/ Ephraim and Manasseh/ vntyll they had made an ende of thē. And afterwarde all the childrē of Jsrael returned euery man to his possessyon in their awne cyties.

And Hezekiah set ỹ preastes and the Le-uites in their ordre to wayte by course/ euery mā accordīng to his office whither preaste or Leuite: for ỹ burntoffrings & peaceoffrings/& to ministre & to thanke and to praye in the gates of the lodge of the Lord. And the kyng gaue a porcyon of his substaunce for burntoffrynges at morynng & euē/ & for burntofferynges on ỹ Saboth dayes & new mones & other solempne feasts/ accordyng* as it is wrytte in the lawe of the Lorde. And he bade ỹ people ỹ dwelt in Jerusalē to geue ỹ parte * Num. xxviij & of the preastes & Leuites / ỹ they myght be B mayntened in the lawe of the Lorde. And as sone as the worde came abroade the childrē of Jsrael brought aboundāce of fyrst frutes of corne/ wyne/ oyle & honye / & of all maner of frutes of ỹ feld: & the tythes of all maner of thyngs brought they in plēteously. And ỹ childrē of Jsrael and Juda that dwelte in ỹ cyties of Juda/ they also brought in ỹ tythes of oxen & shepe / & tythes of dedycate thyngs which

which were dedicated to the Lord their God/ and put thē on heapes. In the thirde moneth they beganne to laye the heapes/ & fynesshed them the seuenth.

And whē Hezekiah and the Lordes came & saw the heapes/ they blessed the Lorde and his people Israel. And Hezekiah questioned with the preastes & the Leuites concernyng the heapes. And Azariah the cheke preaste of the house of Sadock answered him and sayde sense they beganne to bryng the heaue offerynges into the house of the Lorde/ we haue eaten and had ynough/ and yet lefte aboundaunce/ for the Lorde hath blessed his people and therof is this heape lefte. And Hezekiah bade dresse vp ỳ store houses aboute ỳ house of the Lorde. And so they dyd/ and caryed in the heaue offerynges and the tythes and the dedycat gyftes euen of fydelyte.

Ouer which Chonaniah ỳ Leuite had ỳ rule wt Semei his brother next to hī. And Jehiel/ Asariah/ Nahath/ Asael/ Jerimoth Josabad/ Eliel/ Jesmachiah/ Mahath and Bananiah were ouer seares ordeyned by Chonaniah and Semei his brother/ at the appoyntement of Hezekiah the kyng/ and Asariah the ruler of ỳ house of God. And Chore ỳ sonne of Jemma the Leuite porter of the East dore had the ouersyght of the frewyll offerynges of God/ to geue heaue offrynges vnto the Lorde/ and was ouer thynges most holy. And vnder him were Eden/ Miniamin/ Jesua/ Semeiah/ Amariah and Sechemiah in the cyties of the preastes of their fydelyte/ to geue to their brethren their porcyons/ as well to the small as to the great.

And to the males also that were rekened from thre yere and aboue amonge all that wēt in to the house of the Lord daye by daye/ to do seruyce and to wayte by course. And to the preastes that were rekened in the housholdes of their fathers from twentie yere & aboue/ to wayte when their courses came. And to them that were rekened thorow out all their babes/ wyues/ sonnes and daughters thorow out all the congregacion. For to the fydelytie of thē dyd men comitt their santified gyftes. And therto amonge the chyldrē of Aaron the preastes were men named by name in the feldes of the suburbes of all their cyties/ cytie by cytie/ for to geue porcions to all the males of the preastes/ and to all that were rekened amonge the Leuites.

And of this maner dyd Hezekiah thorow out all Juda/ and dyd that was good/ ryghte and truthe/ before the Lorde his God. And in all the worckes ỳ he beganne in the seruyce of the house of God/ to seke his God after the lawe and commaundement/ that dyd he with all his herte/ and prospered.

Sennaherib/ which shulde haue be seaged Jerusalē is stryken of the Aungell. Hezekiah dyeth after whō succeadeth Manasseh.

The .xxxij. Chapter.

After these deades & truthe/ Sennaherib kyng of Assur came & entred in to Juda & pytched agaynst the stroge cyties & thought to draw thē to him. And when Hezekiah saw ỳ Sennaherib was come and that he was purposed to fyght agaynst Jerusalē: he toke councell wt his capitaynes & men of might/ to stoppe the water of the fountaynes ỳ were without the cytie: & they were content to helpe hym. And so there geathered moche people to geather & stopte all the welles & the broke that ranne thorow the myddes of the lande/ entendynge ỳ the kyngs of Assur shulde not fynde moche water when they came. And he wēt to lustelye & built vp the walle where it was broke/ and made towres aboue vpon/ & yet another wall without/ and repayred Melo the cytye of Dauid/ and made many dartes & shildes. A iiij. Reg. xviij. c

And he sett Capitaynes of warre ouer the people & geathered thē to geather into ỳ large strete of the gate of the citie & spake ientelye to them/ saying. Plucke vp youre hertes and be strong: Be not afrayed or in any wyse discouraged for drede of the kyng of Assur/ & of ỳ great multitude ỳ is with him: * for there is one greater with vs then wt him. With him is an arme of flesh: But with vs is ỳ Lorde oure God for to helpe vs and to fyght oure batayles. And ỳ people were well couraged with the wordes of Hezekiah kyng of Juda. B iiij. Reg. vi. c

After ỳ Sēnaherib kyng of Assur sent of his seruaunts to Jerusalē (he hym self lyinge before Lachis & all his kyngdom wt him) vnto Hezekiah kyng of Juda & vnto all Juda ỳ were at Jerusalē sayīg. Thus sayth Sēnaherib kyng of Assur: * where in do ye trust/ or ye ỳ are be seged in Jerusalē? Hezekiah deceaueth you/ to delyuer you to deeth/ hōgre/ & thyrst/ sayīg: the Lord oure God shall ryde vs out of the hāde of the kyng of Assur. Is it not that Hezekiah ỳ put downe his hyaulters & his other aulters/ & cōmaunded Juda and Jerusalem sayinge: before one aulter ye shall bowe youre selues & vpon ỳ offer also. C iiij. Reg. xviij. c

Moreouer haue ye not hearde what I & my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes: were the Gods of the people of other lands able to saue their lādes out of my hād: which of all the Gods of those nacyons that my fathers destroyed was it/ that coulde delyuer his people out of myne hand/ that youre God shuld be able to deliuer you out of myne hande: Wherfore now lett not Hezekiah deceaue you ether perswade you of thys facyon/ nor yet beleue hym. For as no God D

amonge so manye nacyons & kyngdomes/ was able to ryddehys people out of myne hãde & the hãdes of my fathers: euẽ so moche lesse shall youre God kepe you oute of myne hãde. And yet moare dyd his seruaũt̃ speake agaynst the Lord God & agaynst his seruaũt Hezekiah. And therto he wrote a letter to raile on ỹ Lord God of Israel & spake therin sayīg: as the Gods of the nacyons of other landes haue not delyuered their people out of myne hande / no moare shall the God of Hezekiah delyuer hys people out of myne hande. And they cryed wyth a lowde voyce in the iewes speache vnto ỹ people of Jerusalem ỹ were on the walles / to feare them and to dysmaye them / that they myght haue taken the cytye.

But Hezekiah the kyng and the prophete Jsaiah sonne of Amoz prayed concernyng ỹ thynge & cryed vp to heauen. And the Lorde sent an angell & destroyed all the mẽ of warre and the Lord̃s & capytaynes of the hoste of the kyng of Assur / ỹ he turned his face with shame towarde his awne lande. And whẽ he was come in to the house of his God / he was there ouerthrowen vỽ the swerde euẽ by thẽ that issued oute of hys bowelles. And so the Lorde saued Hezekiah & the enhabyters at Jerusalem out of the handes of Sennaherib kynge of Assur & of all other / & mayntened thẽ on all sydes. In so moche that manye brought presentes vnto the Lorde to Jerusalem and precioule gyftes to Hezekiah kyng of Juda: so that he was magnified in ỹ sight of all nacyons from thence forth.

F *In those dayes Hezekiah was sycke vnto iiij. Reg. xx. a. the deeth and besought the Lorde: whych an-Jsai. xxxviij. a swered him & shewed him a wonderfull myracle: But Hezekiah dyd not accordīg to the curtesye shewed him / for his hert arose: and therfore came there wrath vpon hym & vpon Juda and Jerusalẽ. Not withstãdyng Hezekiah mekened him selfe for ỹ a rysyng of hys herte / bothe he and the enhabyters of Jerusalem. Wherfore the wrath of the Lord fell not vpon them in the dayes of Hezekiah.

And Hezekiah had exceadynge moche rychesse & honoure. And he geathered him treasure of syluer / gouide / precioule stones / spices / shildes & of all maner pleasaũt Juelles: & made store houses for the frutes of corne / wyne & oyle: & stables for all maner of beaG stes / and foldes for shepe. And he made hym townes because he had catell of shepe & oxen great aboundance. For God had geuen hym substaunce exceadyng moche. And the sayde Hezekiah stopped the vpper water sprynges of Gihon & brought them downe to the west syde of ỹ cytie of Dauid. And Hezekiah prospered in all his worckes. But when the Ambassadoures of the Lordes of Babylon were sent to him to enquyre of the wonder ỹ chaũced in the land / God lefte him: to tempte hym ỹ all that was in his hert myght be knowen.

The rest of the dedes of Hezekiah and his goodnesse are writtẽ in the bisyon of Jsaiah the prophete the sonne of Amoz in ỹ boke of ỹ kinges of Juda and Jsrael. And then Hezekiah layde him to rest with hys fathers / and they buryed him in the hyest sepulchre of the sonnes of Dauid: and Juda & the enhabiters of Jerusalẽ dyd him worshippe at his deeth. And Manasseh his sonne raigned ī his steade.

¶ Manasseh is taken presoner / and after he cometh oute he destroyeth the Jdoles. He dyeth / and after him succeadeth Amon. After Amõ was kylled of his awne people / Josiah his sonne raygneth for him.

¶ The. xxxiij. Chapter.

Manasseh was. xij. yere olde whẽ he A iiij. Reg. xxi. a. was made kyng / & raigned. lv. yere in Jerusalẽ. And he dyd wickedlye in the syght of the Lord / lyke vnto the abhominacions of the hethen which the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Jsrael. For he wẽt to & buylt agayne the hylaulters which Hezekiah his father had brokẽ downe. And he rered vp aulters vnto Baals & made groues & bowed him selfe vnto all the hoste of heauẽ and serued them. And he buylt aulters in the house of the Lorde: Of which ỹ Lorde had layde * in Jerusalẽ shall my name be for iij. Reg. viij. b. euer. And he made aulters vnto all the hoste of heauen in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde. And he burnt his chyldren in fyre in the valey of the sonnes of Hennon. And he obserued dysmalle dayes & occupyed wytchcrafte and sorsery / and mayntened workers with spirites & sears of fortunes: & wrought moche euell in the syght of ỹ Lord / to angre him with all.

And he put the kerued Jmage of an Jdole B which he had made / in the house of God. Of which house God sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne / in this house here in Jerusalẽ whych Jhaue chosen out of all ỹ tribes / * Jwyll put my name for euer / & no moare bryng ỹ feate of Jsrael frõ of the land which ij. Reg. vij. b. Jhaue ordeyned for youre fathers. Jf so be iij. Reg. viij. b they shalbe dyligent to doo all Jhaue commaunded by Moses in all the lawe ordinaũces and maners. But Manasseh made Juda and the enhabiters of Jerusalem to erre and to do worse then the heathẽ which the Lorde destroyed before the chyldren of Jsrael. And when the Lorde spake to Manasseh & to hys people / they attended not to him.

Assur/which toke Manasseh in an holde and bounde hym w̄ chaynes & caryed hym to Babilon. And when he was in trybulacyon he besought the Lorde his God/& humbled hym selfe exceadynglye before the God of hys fathers/& made intercessyon to hym: & he was entreated of him and hearde hys prayer and brought him agayne to Jerusalem into hys kyngdō. And then Manasseh knewe how ꝑ the Lorde was the very God.

C After ꝑ he buylt a wall without the cytye of Dauid on ꝑ west syde of Gihon in ꝑ broke & so forth to fysh gate & roūde aboute Ophel & brought it vp of a very great heyght/& put capitaynes of warre in all the stronge cities of Juda. And he toke awaye straunge Gods & the Idole out of the house of God/& all the aulters that he had buylt in the mount of the house of God & in Jerusalem/& cast thē out of the cytie. And he made an aulter vnto the Lord & sacrefyced theron peaceofferynges & thankofferynges/& charged Juda to serue ꝑ Lord God of Israel. Neuertheless ꝑ people dyd offer styll in the hylaulters/how be it vnto the Lorde their God onlye.

D The rest of the actes of Manasseh and his prayer vnto his God/& the wordꝭ of the sears of vysions ꝑ spake to him in the name of the Lorde God of Israel/are writtē amonge the deades of the kyngꝭ of Israel. And his prayer & how that he was heard/& all hys synne & trespace/& the places where he made hy aulters & set vp groues & kerued Imagꝭ before he was mekened/are writtē amōge ꝑ deades of the sears of vysions. And when Manasseh was layde to rest w̄ his fathers/they buryed him in his awne house: and Amon hys sonne raigned in his rowme. Amon was .xxij. yere olde/when he beganne to raigne/& raygned two yere in Jerusalē. And he dyd ꝑ displeased the Lord lyke vnto Manasseh his father/for Amō sacrificed to all ꝑ kerued Imagꝭ which Manasseh his father made/& serued them/& mekened not hī selfe before the Lord as Manasseh his father had mekened himselfe: But Amon trespaced greatly. Wherfore his awne seruauntes conspired agaynst hym and slue him in his awne house. And the people of the land slue all ꝑ had conspired agaynst kynge Amon. And therto ꝑ people of the lāde made Josiah his sonne kyng in his rowme.

C Josiah destroyeth the Idoles & restoreth the tēple: in which is founde the boke of the lawe. He sendeth to Holdah the prophetisse for councell.

The .xxxiiij. Chapter.

A 4ij. Reg. xxi. a. JOsiah was made Kynge when he was .viij. yere olde/& he raigned in Jerusalē .xxxi. yere. And he dyd ꝑ pleased the Lord/& walked in the wayes of Dauid his father bowing neither to the ryght hande or to the lefte. In so moche ꝑ the eight yere of his raigne/whē he was yet a lad/he begāne to seke after the God of Dauid his father. And in ꝑ twelueth yere he beganne to pourge Juda & Jerusalē of hy aulters/groues/kerued Images/and Images of metall: so ꝑ they brake downe the aulters of Baals euē in his presence/& the ydoles that were vpon thē/he caused to be destroyed. And the groues/kerued Images/and Images of metall he brake & made dust of thē/& strawed it vpon the graues of thē that had offered to thē. And he burnt the bones of ꝑ preastꝭ vpō the aulters/& clensed Juda and Jerusalem. B And euē so dyd he in the cyties of Manasseh/ Ephraim/Simeō & of Nephthali therto. And in ꝑ wyldernesses of thē roūde about he plucked a sonder the aulters & the groues and did beate thē & stampe them to powder/and bete downe the ydoles thorow out all the lande of Israel: & then returned to Jerusalē agayne.

And in the .xviij. yere of his raigne whē he had purged ꝑ lād & ꝑ tēple/he sent Saphan the sonne of Azaliah/and Maasiah ꝑ gouernoure of the cytie and Joah ꝑ sonne of Joahaz the recorder/to repayre the house of the Lorde his God. And when they came to Helkiah the hye preaste/men deliuered thē ꝑ money that was brought in to ꝑ house of God/ which the Leuitꝭ that kept the enteries had geathered of ꝑ hādꝭ of Manasseh & Ephraim & of all ꝑ yet remayned in Israel & of all Juda & Bēiamin & of ꝑ enhabiters of Jerusalē. And they put it in the hādꝭ of ꝑ workemen that had the ouersyght of the house of ꝑ Lord. which gaue it to ꝑ labourers that wrought on the house of the Lord/to repayre & mende it/& to masons and carpenters to bye hewed stone & timbre for to make couplꝭ & beamꝭ for ꝑ houses which ꝑ kingꝭ of Judah had destroied: C And ꝑ men wrought in ꝑ worcke of fidelite.

And the ouer sears of thē to courage them forwarde/were Jahath & Obadiah Leuites of the chyldrē of Merari: and Secharia and Mesulam of the childrē of the Cahathites/& as manye other of ꝑ Leuites as coulde skille of instrumētes of Musick. And ouer ꝑ bearers of burthens & ouer all that wrought/in whatsoeuer workemanshipe it were/were there scribes/officers & porters of ꝑ Leuitꝭ.

And as they brought out ꝑ money ꝑ was brought into the house/Helkiah the preaste foūde the boke of the lawe of the Lord geuē by Moses. And Helkiah answered and sayd to Saphan the scrybe: I haue founde ꝑ boke of the lawe in the house of the Lorde/& gaue the boke to Saphan. And Saphan caryed the boke to the kyng/and brought the kynge worde agayne/saying: all ꝑ was cōmitted to thy seruauntes/that do they. And they haue D powred powred out the money that was founde in ỹ house of the Lorde and haue delyuered in to the hãdes of the ouer seers of ỹ workemen. And then Saphan ỹ scribe shewed ỹ kyng/ saying: Helkiah the preaste hath geuen me a boke/ and he read it before the kyng.

And whẽ the kyng had hearde the wordes of the lawe/ he tare his clothes/ & cõmaũded Helkiah and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan and Abadon the sonne of Micah & the sayde Saphan the scribe & Asaia a seruaunt of the kynges/ saying: go & enquire of the Lord for me & for thẽ ỹ are lefte in Israel and Juda/ cõcernyng the wordes of the boke ỹ is foũde. For great is the wrath of the Lord ỹ is fallẽ vpon vs/ because oure fathers kept not the worde of the Lord/ to do after all ỹ is writtẽ in this boke.

And Helkiah w thẽ that pertayned to the kyng went to Holdah a prophetisse wyfe of Selum ỹ sonne of Thekohath the sonne of Hasarah keper of the wardrope (which prophetisse dwelt in Jerusalẽ in ỹ secõde warde) & they comuned so w her. And she sayde vnto thẽ: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel/ tell ye ỹ man ỹ sent you to me. Euẽ thus sayth ỹ Lorde: se/ I will bryng euell vpõ this place and vpon the enhabiters therof/ euen all the curses ỹ are writen in the boke which they haue reade before the kyng of Juda/ because they haue forsakẽ me and haue offered vnto other Gods to angre me w all maner workes of their hãdes/ therfore is my wrath set on fyre aga ynst thys place & shall not be quenched.

And as for the kynge of Juda which sent you to enquire of the Lorde/ so shall ye saye vnto him: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel cõcernyng the wordes which thou hast hearde Because thyne hert dyd melt and thou dydest meke thy selfe before God whẽ thou heardest his wordes agaynst this place and agaynst the enhabiters therof: & humbledest thy selfe before me/ and tarest thy clothes and wepest before me/ ỹ haue I hearde also sayth ỹ Lord. Beholde I wyll take ỹ to thy fathers & thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace/ and thyne eyes shall not se all the myscheue that I will bryng vpõ this place & vpõ ỹ enhabyters of ỹ same.* And they brought the kyng worde agayne. Then the Kynge sent & geathered to geather all the elders of Juda and Jerusalẽ. And the kyng went vp in to the house of the Lorde/ & all the men of Juda and the enhabiters of Jerusalẽ & the Preastes & Leuites & all the people great and smalle: & reade all the wordes of the boke of the couenaũt that was founde in the house of the Lorde. And ỹ Kyng stode at his standynge & made a couenaunt before the Lorde/ to folowe the Lord and to kepe his cõmaundementes/ his wytnesses and his statutes with all his herte and w all his soule & to fulfyll the wordes of the appoyntmẽt wrytten in the sayde boke.

And he made to come forth all ỹ were foũde in Jerusalem and Beniamin/ & the enhabyters of Jerusalẽ promeled to kepe the couenaunt of ỹ God which was the God of their fathers. And Josiah put awaye all maner of abhominacyons out of all landes ỹ pertayned to the chyldrẽ of Israel/ and brought all ỹ were foũde in Israel to serue ỹ Lord their God. And they turned not a syde frõ after the Lord God of their fathers as lõg as he lyued.

¶ The .xxxv. Chapter.

AND Josiah held the feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde in Jerusalẽ/ and they slue passeouer in the .xiiij. daye of the fyrst moneth. And he set the preastes in their offyces & ayded them in the seruyce of the house of the Lorde. And he sayde to the Leuites that taught thorow out all Israel and were sanctifyed vnto the Lorde: put the holy arcke in the house which Salomon ỹ sonne of Dauid kyng of Israel did builde/ ye neade not to beare it vpõ youre shoulders. Wherfore now serue the Lorde youre God & his people Israel. And prepare youre selues by youre auncient housholdes & companyes/ accordyng to the wrytynge of Dauid Kynge of Israel/ and the wrytyng of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordyng to ỹ deuysions of ỹ aunciẽt houshouldes of youre brethrẽ the chyldren of of the people/ and after the deuysyon of the auncient housholdes of the Leuites/ & kyll passouer/ sanctifye & prepare youre brethrẽ that they may do accordynge to the worde of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

A iiij. Reg. xxiij c
ij. Esdr. i. a.

And Josiah gaue to the comen people in lambes & kyddes/ for passeouer offerynges only/ vnto all ỹ were present .xxx. thousande by tale/ & thre thousand orẽ/ euẽ of the kyngs substaunce. And his Lords gaue wyllyngly both vnto the people & also vnto the preastes & vnto the Leuites. Helkiah/ Zacharias & Jehiel/ rulers of the house of God/ gaue vnto the preasts for passeouer offerynges two thousand & fyue hundred lambes & kyddes/ & thre hũdred oxen. And Conaniah with Semeiah and Nathaneel his brethren/ and Hasabiah and Jaiel and Josabad Lordes of the Leuites/ gaue vnto the Leuites fyue thousande passeouer offerynges/ & fyue hundred oxen.

And so the seruice went forwarde: and the preasts stode in their places/ & ỹ Leuites in their cõpanies at the kynges cõmaundemẽt. And they slue passeouer: & ỹ preasts sprinckled the blonde receauynge it of the Leuites/

And now O oure God/what shall we saye after this: for we haue forsakẽ thy cõmaundemẽtes/which thou hast cõmaunded by thy seruauntes the Prophetes / and sayde : The lande vnto which ye go to possesse it is an vncleane land thorow ꝑ fylthines of the people of the landes / in their abhominacyõs wherwith they haue made it full of vnclennes on D uery syde.* Therfore shall ye not geue youre daughters vnto their sonnes / and their daughters shall ye not take vnto your sonns and seke not their peace and welth for euer/ that ye maye be stronge/and enioye the good in the lande / and that ye and youre chyldren maye haue ꝑ inheritaũce of it for euermore.

And after all thys that is come vpon vs (because of oure euell deades & greate trespace)thou oure God hast spared oure wyckednesses/and hast geuen vs a delyueraunce as it is come to passe this daye.

As for vs/we haue turned backe/ & haue let go thy commaundementes/to make contracte wt the people of these abhominacions. ¶ After Nehemiah had obtayned letters of Arthaxerses he cometh to Jerusalem/ & buyldeth the walles.

In

IN ỹ moneth Nisan in the twētieth yeare of kynge Arthaxerles/when the wyne stode before hym/ I toke vp ỹ wyne/ & gaue it vnto ỹ king & I was heuy in his presence. Then sayd ỹ king vnto me: why lokest thou so sadly? Thou art not sicke/ that is not the matter/ but thou art heuy herted. Neuertheles I was sore afrayed & sayde vnto the kynge: God saue the kyngs life for euer/ shulde I not loke sadly? the citie of my fathers buryall lyeth waste & the gats therof are consumed with fyre. Then sayde ỹ kynge vnto me: what is thē thy requeste? then made I my prayer to ỹ God of heauē/ & sayde vnto the kynge: yf it please ỹ kynge/ & yf thy seruaūt be fauoured in thy sighte. I be seke ỹ sende me in to Juda vnto the cytye of my fathers buryall/ that I maye buylde it.

B And the kynge sayde vnto me/ & so dyd the quene ỹ sat by him: how longe shall thy iourney cōtinue/ & whē wilt thou come agayne? And it pleased ỹ kynge to sende me/ and I set him a tyme/ & sayde vnto ỹ kynge: yf it please the kynge/ let him geue me letters to ỹ capitaynes beyonde the water/ ỹ they maye conueye me ouer/ till I come into Juda: & letters vnto Asaph the Lorde of the kynges wood/ ỹ he maye geue me wood for beames to ỹ gats of the palace/ which are harde on the house & harde on the walles of the cytye/ and for the house that I shall entre in to. And the kynge gaue me accordynge to ỹ good hande of God vpon me: And when I came to the captaynes beyonde the water/ I gaue them the kynges letters. And the kynge sent captaynes and horsmen wyth me.

But when Sanabalat the Horonite and Tobiah the seruaūt of ỹ Ammonites hearde ỹ/ it greued thē sore/ ỹ there was come a mā which soughte the welth of the childrē of Israel. And when I came to Jerusalē/ and had C bene there thre dayes/ I gat me vp in ỹ night season/ & a fewe men wyth me: for I tolde no man what God had geuē me in my hert to do at Jerusalem: and there was not one beast wt me/ saue it that I rode vpon. And I rode by nyghte vnto the valley porte before the Dragon well/ and to the Dongeporte/ and considered the walles of Jerusalē that were brokē downe/ and the portes therof consumed with the fyre. And I wēt ouer vnto the wellporte/ and to the kynges condyte/ and there was no rowme for my beast/ that it coulde go vnder me. Then wēte I on in the nyghte by ỹ broke syde/ & considered the wall/ and turned back and came home agayne to the valley porte.

And the rulers knewe not whither I wēte or what I dyd: for hither to had I not tolde ỹ Jewes & the prestes/ the councelers and the D rulers/ & ỹ other ỹ laboured in ỹ worcke. And I sayde vnto them: ye se the myserye ỹ we are in/ how Jerusalē lyeth waste/ & how ỹ gates therof are brēt with fyre/ come let vs buylde vp ỹ walles of Jerusalē/ ỹ we be no more a rebuke. And I tolde thē of the good hande of my God whych was vpō me: and the kynges wordes that he had spokē vnto me. And they sayde: then let vs get vp/ & buylde: and their handes were strengthed to good.

But when Sanabalat ỹ Horonite/ and Tobiah the seruaunt of the Ammonites/ and Gesem the Arabian herde it/ they laughed vs to skorne/ & despised vs/ & sayde: what is this that ye do? Wyll ye fall awaye agayne from the kynge? Then answered I thē/ and sayde: the God of heauen he it is that causeth vs to prospere: & we be his seruauntes. Let vs get vp and buylde. As for you/ ye haue no porciō nor right, nor remembraunce in Jerusalem.

But from the Horsgate forth buylded the G prestes/ euery one ouer agaynst hys house. After thē buylded Zadok the sonne of Emer ouer agaynst hys house. After hym buylded Semeiah the sonne of Sechaniah ỹ keper of the eastgate. After him buylded Hananiah the sonne of Selemiah/ & Hanun the sonne of Zalaph the fyrte/ ỹ other peace. After him builded Mosolam the sonne of Barachiah ouer agaynst hys chest. After hym buylded Melchiah the goldsmythes sonne/ vntill the house of the Nethinims/ & of the merchaūtes ouer agaynst the coūcell gate/ & to the parler in the corner. And betwene the parlour of the corner vnto the Shepegate buylded ỹ goldsmythes and the merchauntes.

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

BUt when Sanabalat heard that A we builded the wall/ he was wroth & toke greate indignaciō & mocked the Jewes & sayde before hys brethren and the hoste of Samaria: what do the impotent Jewes? shall they be thus suffred? shall they offre? shal they perfourme it in one daye? shall they make ỹ stones whole agayne ỹ are brought to dust/ & brent? And Tobiah the Ammonite beside him saide: let thē builde on/ yf a fore go vp/ he shall breake downe their stonye wall. Heare O thou oure God/ how we are despised/ turne their shame vpon their awne heade/ ỹ thou mayest geue them ouer in to despisynge in ỹ lande of their captiuite. Couer not their wickednesse/ & put not out their sinne frō thy presence: for they haue prouoked the buylders. Yet buylded we the wall/ and ioyned it whole together/ vnto the halfe heygth. And the people were well mynded to laboure.

But when Sanabalat/ & Tobiah/ & the B Arabians/ & Ammonites/ & Asdodits hearde ỹ the walles of Jerusalē were made vp/ and that they had begonne to stoppe vp ỹ gappes they were very wroth/ & cōspired al to gether to come & fight agaynst Jerusalē/ & to make an hinderaūce therin. Neuertheles we made our prayer vnto oure God/ & set watchmen vpō the wall daye & nyght ouer agaynst thē. And Juda sayde: the strength of the bearers is to feble/ & ther is to moch dust/ we are not able to buylde on the wall. And oure aduersaryes thought: they shall not knowe nether se/ tyll we come in the myddes amonge thē/ & slaye thē/ and hynder the worcke. But when the Jewes ỹ dwelt besyde thē/ came out of al the places where they dwelt aboute vs/ and tolde vs as good as ten tymes/ then set I the people after their kinreds with their swerds/ speares & bowes beneth in the lowe places

oure enemyes hearde ꝯ we had gottē worde of it/ God broughte their coūcell to noughte/ and we turned all agayne to the wall / euery one vnto his laboure. And frō that time forth it came to passe/ ꝯ the halfe parte of the yōge men dyd the laboure/ & the other halfe parte helde the speares/ shyldes/ bowes/ and brestplates: and the rulers stode behynde all the house of Juda/ which buylded on the wall/ & bare burthens / from those that laded them. With one hande did they the worke/ and with the other helde they their weapen. And euery one that buylded/ had hys swerde guirde by hys syde/ and so buylded they. And the trompetters stode beside me.

And I sayde vnto the pryncipall men/ and rulers/ and to the other people: the worcke is greate & large/ & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place now ye heare the noyse of ꝯ trōpet / resorte ye thither vnto vs* Oure God shal fight for vs/ & we will be labouringe in ꝯ worcke. And the halfe parte of thē helde ꝯ speares frō ꝯ morninge spринge/ till ꝯ starres came forth. And a tꝯ same tyme sayde I vnto the people: euery one abyde with hys seruaunt at Jerusalem/ that in the night season we maye geue attendaunce to the watch/ and to laboure on the daye tyme. As for me and my brethren/ & my seruauntes/ and the men of the watch behynde me/ we put neuer of oure clothes/ so moch as to washe oure selues.

Exo. xiiij. c.

¶ The people are vexed with hongre. Nehemiah forbydeth Usurye. He requyreth not the lyuyng of a captayne.

¶ The .v. Chapter.

AND there arose a greate cōplaynte of ꝯ people/ & of their wiues agaynst their brethren the Jewes. And ther were some ꝯ sayde: oure sonnes & dauhters are to many/ let vs take corne for thē & eate/ ꝯ we maye lyue. Some sayde: let vs set oure landes/ vyneyardes and houses to pledge/ & take vp corne in ꝯ darth. But some sayde: let vs borowe money of the kinges tribute for oure landes & vyneyardes. Now are oure brethrens bodyes as oure awne bodies and their children as oure children: els shulde we subdue oure sonnes and daughters vnto bondage / and some of oure daughters are subdued allready/ * and no strength is there in oure handes/ & other men shall haue oure landes and vyneyardes.

* After ꝯ hebrue Some reade: & we haue not wherwyth to redeame them.

But when I heard their complaynte and soch wordes/ it displeased me sore/ and I aduysed so in my mynde/ that I rebuked ꝯ counceilers / and the rulers/ and sayde vnto them: *wyll ye requyre vsury one of another? And I brought a greate congregaciō agaynst thē and sayde vnto them: we (after oure abilyte) haue boughte oure brethrē the Jewes/ which were solde vnto the Heythen. And wyll ye sell youre brethren/ whō we haue boughte vnto vs? Then held they their peace/ and coulde fynde nothynge to answere.

And I sayde: It is not good that ye do. Ought ye not to walke in the feare of God/ because of the rebuke of the Heythen oure enemyes? I and my brethrē/ & my seruauntes haue lent them money and corne: but as for vsury/ iet vs leaue it. Therfore this same daye se that ye restore them their landes agayne/ their vyneyardes/ oyle gardens and houses/ and the hundred parte of ꝯ money of ꝯ corne/ wyne and oyle that ye haue wonne of them. Then sayde they: we wyll restore thē agayne and wyll requyre nothynge of them/ and wil do as thou hast spoken. And I called ꝯ prestes/ and toke an ooth of them/ that they shulde do so. And I shoke my lappe / and sayde: God shake out euery man after the same maner from hys house and laboure/ that mayntayneth not thys worde: euen thus be he shaken out/ and voyde. And all the congregacyon sayde: Amen/ and praysed the Lorde. And the people dyd so.

And from the tyme forth that it was committed vnto me to be a captayne in the lande of Juda / namely from the twentyeth yeare vnto the two and thyrtyeth yeare of kynge Arthaxerles (that is twelue yeare) I and my brethrē lyued not of soch sustenaūce as was geuen to a captayne: for the olde captaynes that were before me / had bene chargeable vnto the people/ and had taken of them bred and wyne/ and forty sycles of syluer: yee and their seruauntes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I/ and that because of ꝯ feare of God. I laboured also in the worke vpō the wall/ and boughte no lande. And all my seruaūtes came thither to gether vnto ꝯ worke. Moreouer there were at my table an hundred and fyfty of the Jewes & rulers/ which came vnto me/ from amonge the Heythen/ that are aboute vs. And there was prepared me daylye an ore/ and syx chosen shepe/ and byrdes/ and euer once in ten dayes a greate summe of wyne. Yet requyred not I the lyuynge of a captayne for the bondage was greuous vnto the people.* Thynke vpō me my God vnto the best/ accordynge to all that I haue done for thys people.

Sanabalat & Gelem sent vnto me / sayinge
* After ỹ Grec. Some reade. In Ceph arim. come & let vs mete together* in the vyllages vpon the playne of ỹ citie Ono. Neuertheles they thoughte to do me euell. Notwythstandinge I sent messengers vnto them / sayinge: I haue a greate busyn̄ to do / I cannot come downe. The worcke shulde stande styll / yf I were negligent / & came downe to you. Howbeit they sent vnto me as good as foure tym̄ after ỹ same maner. And I gaue the same answere. Then sent Sanabalat hys seruaunt
B vnto me the fyfth tyme / wyth an open letter in his hande / wherin was wrytten: it is tolde the Heythen / & Gesem hath sayde it / ỹ thou & ỹ Iewes thinke to rebell: for ỹ which cause thou buyldest the wall / & wylt be their kyng in these matters / and hast ordeyned the Prophetes to preach of the at Jerusalem / and to saye: He is kynge of Juda.

Now shall this come to the kynges eares: come now therfore / & let vs take our coūcell together. Neuertheles I sent vnto him saying there is no soche thynge done as thou sayist: thou hast fayned it out of thyne awne hert. For they were all mīded to make vs afrayed
C & thoughte: they shall withdrawe their hand̄ fro ỹ worke / ỹ they shall not laboure. Howbeit I strengthed my hande the more. And I came vnto the house of Semaiah the sonne of Delaiah the sonne of Mehetabeel / and he had shut him selfe within / & saide: let vs come together in to the house of God / euē vnto the myddes of the tēple / & shutte the dores of the tēple: for they wyll come to slaye the / yee euē in ỹ night will they come to put the to death. But I sayd: shuld any soch mā as I flye? Who is that / being as I am / that wyll go in to the tēple / to saue his life? I will not go in.

For I perceaued / ỹ God had not sent him: Yet spake he prophecie vpō me / neuertheles Tobiah & Sanabalat had hired him for money. Therfore toke he ỹ money / ỹ throughe feare I shuld so do / & sinne: ỹ they might haue an euel reporte of me / to blaspheme me. Wy
D God thinke thou vpō Tobiah & Sanabalat accordynge vnto these their workes / & of the Prophet Noadiah & of the other Prophetes / that wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynished on the fiue and twentye daye of ỹ moneth* Elul / in two and fyftye dayes. And when all oure enemyes heard therof / all the Heithen ỹ were aboute vs / were afrayed / & their courage fayled thē: for they perceaued / that thys worke came of God. And at the same tyme were there many of the chefe of Juda / whose letters wēte vnto Tobiah / & frō Tobiah vnto thē (for ther were many in Juda that were swore vnto hym: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechaniah ỹ sonne of Arah / and his sonne Jehohanan had the daughter of Mosolam the sonne of Barachiah & they spake good of hym before me / and tolde hym my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters / to put me in feare.

* Elul is compared to oure Juli with part of August ioyned therto / it was their fyrst mone in order.

And Adaiah the sonne of Jeroham/ ꝑ sonne of Phalaliel/the sonne of Amazi/ ꝑ sonne of Zachary/the sonne of Phashur the sonne of Melchiah and hys brethren/ chefe amonge the fathers: of whō there were two hundreth and two and fortie. And Amasai the sonne of Asarael the sonne of Ahasai ꝑ sonne of Mosolamoth/the sonne of Emer: and his brethrē were valiaunt men/of whom there were an hundreth & eight & twentye. And their ouersear was Zabdiel the sonne of Hagdolim.

C 1. Par. 9. b. Of the Leuites: Semeiah the sonne of Hasub/ the sonne of Azerikam/the sonne of Hasabiah the sonne of Boni: and Sabathai and Josabad of the chefe of the Leuytes/in the outwarde busynes of the house of God. And Mathaniah the sonne of Micha/ the sonne of Zabdi/ the sonne of Asaph/whych was the pryncipall to begynne the thankesgeuinge vnto prayer. And bakbukiah the seconde amonge hys brethren/ and Abda the sonne of Sammua/the sonne of Galal/the sonne of Jduthun. All the Leuytes in the holy citie were two hundreth and foure & foure score. *And the porters Acub and Talmon/ 1. Par. 9. c. and their brethrē that kepte the portes/were an hundreth and two and seuentye. As for ꝑ relydue of Israel/the prestes and Leuites/ they were in al the cities of Juda/euery one in his inheritaunce.

And the Nethinims dwelt in Ophel: and Ziha and Galpha belonged vnto the Nethinims. The ouersear of the Leuites at Jerusalem/was Uzi the sonne of Baani/ ꝑ sonne of Hasabiah/ the sonne of Mathaniah/ the sonne of Micha.

D Of the childrē of Asaph there were syngers aboute the busynes in ꝑ house of God: for it was the kynges cōmaundement concerninge them/that the syngers shulde deale faithfully euery daye as accordinge was.

And Pathaiah the sonne of Meselabel of the childrē of Zarah the sonne of Juda next te the kynge in all matters concernynge the people and their byllages/ thorow oute all their regyons. And the childrē of Juda that were without in the townes of their lande/ dwelt some at Kariath Arbe/and in the byllages therof/and at Dibon/and in the byllages therof: and at Cabzeel/ & in the byllages therof: & at Jesua/ Moladah/ Bethphalet/ Hazersual/Berlabe and in their byllages: & at Sikelag and Moconah/and in their byllages: And at Enremon/Zarah/ Jerimuth/ Zonoah/ Odollam and in their byllages: At Lachis/ and in the feldes therof: At Azekah/ and in the byllages therof: and dwelt from Berlabe vnto the valley of Hennom.

The childrē of Ben Jamin of Gaba/dwelt at Machmas/Aia/ Bethel and in their byllages. And at Anathoth/Nob/Ananiah/ Hazor/Ramah/Gethaim/Hadid/Zeboim/ Nabalath/Lod/Ono & in the carpēters valley. And certayne of the Leuites that had porcions in Juda/dwelt in Ben Jamin.

¶ The. xij. Chapter.

THese are the prestes and Leuites A that wente vp with Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel & with Jesua: Saraiah/Jeremy/Esdras/Amariah/Meluch/Hatus/Sechaniah/Rehum Merimoth/Ado/Genthoi/Abiah/Miamin/ Maadiah/Bilgah/Semaiah/Joiarib/Jadaiah/ Salu/ Amok/ Helkiah & Jadaiah. These were the heades amonge the prestes and their brethren in the tyme of Jesua. The Leuites were these: Jesua/ Bennui/ Cadmiel/ Sarabiah/ Juda & Mathaniah ouer the offyce of thankesgeuynge/they and their brethren: Bacbukiah and Uni and their brethren/were aboute them in the watches.

Jesua begat Joakim. Joakim begat Eliasib. Eliasib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan. Jonathan begat Jadua. And in the tyme of Joakim were these the chefe fathers amonge the prestes: vnder Saraiah Maraiah/ vnder Jeremy Hananiah/ vnder Esdras Mosolam/ vnder Amariah Jehoanan/ vnder Milico Jonathan/ vnder Sebaniah Joseph/vnder Harim Edna/vnder Maraioth Helcai/vnder Idia Zachary/ vnder Genthō Mosolā/ vnder Abia Zechri/vnder Miniamin & Moadia Peltai/ vnder Bilgah Samua/ vnder Semeiah Jehonathan/ vnder Joiarib Mathnai/vnder Jadaiah Uzi/vnder Selai Kelai/vnder Amok Eber/vnder Hel-chiah Halabiah/vnder Jadaiah Nathanael.

B And in the tyme of Eliasib. Joiada/Johanan & Jadua/were the cheke fathers amõge the Leuites/and the prestes wrytten vnder ỹ raygne of Darius the Persian. The chyldren of Leui ỹ principall fathers were written in the Cronicles/vntyll the tyme of Jonathan the sonne of Eliasib. And these were ỹ cheke amonge the Leuites/Halabiah/ Serebiah and Jesua the sonne of Cadmiel/and their brethren ouer agaynst them/ to geue prayse and thankes/acordynge as Dauid ỹ man of God had ordeyned it/one watch ouer agaynst another. Mathania/Balbukiah/ Obadiah/Mololam/Talmon & Abub were porters in the watch at ỹ thresholdes of the gates. These were in the tyme of Joiakim the sonne of Jesua the sonne of Josedec/and in the tyme of Nehemiah the captayne and of the preste Eldras the scrybe.

And in the dedycacyon of the wall at Jerusalem/were the Leuites soughte out of al their places/ that they myghte be broughte to Jerusalem/to kepe the dedicacion & gladnesse/with thankesgeuinges/with synginge with Cymbales/Psalteries and harpes. And the chyldren of the syngers geathered them selues together frõ ỹ playne countre aboute Jerusalem/and from the byllages of Nethophathi/and from the house of Galgal/& out of the feldes of Geba and Asmaueth: for the syngers had buylded them byllages aboute Jerusalem. And the prestes and Leuites purifyed them selues/ and clensed the people/ the gates and the wall.

C And I caused the princes of Juda to go vp vpõ ỹ wall/& appoynted two greate queers of thankesgeuynge/which wente on ỹ right hande of the wall towarde the Donggate/& after them wente Hosaiah/and halfe of the princes of Juda/& Asaria/Eldras/Mosolã Juda/Ben Jamin/Semeiah and Jeremy: and certayne of the prestes chyldren with trõpettes/namely Zachary the sonne of Jonathan/ the sonne of Semeiah/ the sonne of Mathaniah / the sonne of Michaiah / the sonne of Zecur/the sonne of Asaph/and hys brethren/Semeiah/Asarael/Melalai/Galalai/Maai/ Nathanael and Juda and Hanani/with the musicall instrumentes of Dauid the man of God.

And Eldras the Scrybe before them/towarde the Wellgate/& they wente vp ouer agaynst them vpon the steppes of the cytye of Dauid at the goynge vp of the wall to the house of Dauid/ vnto the Watergate Eastwarde.

The other queer of thankesgeuynge wẽt ouer agaynst them/and I after thẽ/and the halfe parte of the people vpon the wall/towarde the Fornacegate vpwarde/vntyll the brode wall/ and to the porte of Ephraim/& to the Oldgate/and to the Fyshgate/and to the tower of Hananeel/ and to the tower of Meah/vntyll the Shepegate. And in ỹ prese longate stode they styll/and so stode the two D queers of thankesgeuynge of the house of God/and I and the halfe of the rulers wyth me/and the prestes/namely Eliakim/Maasiah/Miniamin/Michaiah/ Elioenai/Zacharyy/Hananiah/with trõpettes/and Maasiah/Semeiah/Elearsar/Uzsi/Jehohanan/ Melchiah/Elam and Ser. And the syngers sange loude/& Jestahiah was the ouerseer.

And the same daye were there greate sacrifyces offred/ & they reioyced: for God had geuẽ them greate gladnesse/so that both the wyues & chyldren were ioyfull/ & the myrth of Jerusalem was herde farre of.

At the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treasure chestes (wherin were ỹ Heueofferynges/ the fyrstlynges and the tythes) that they shulde geather them out of ỹ feldes aboute the cyties/ to destribute them vnto the prestes and Leuites acordinge to ỹ lawe: for Juda was glad of the prestes/ and Leuites/that they stode and wayted vpon ỹ offyce of their God/and the offyce of the purifycaciõ. And the syngers and porters stode after the commaundement of Dauid and of Salomon his sonne: *for in the tyme of Dauid and Asaph/were the chefe syngers founded/and the songes of prayse and thankesgeuynge vnto God. In the tyme of Zorobabel and Nehemiah/dyd all Israel/geue porciõs vnto the singers and porters/euery daye his porcion/& they gaue thynges halowed vnto the Leuites/& the Leuites gaue thynges ỹ were sanctifyed/vnto the children of Aaron. i. But in all thys was not I at Jerusalem:
foz in ỹ two & thirtieth yeare of Artharerses kynge of Babilon/ came I vnto the kynge/and after certayne dayes optayned I lycence of the kynge to come to Jerusalē. And I gat

¶ Kyng Ahasuerus/which is called Artharexres maketh a royall feast / wherunto the quene Vasthi wyll not come: for which cause she is deuorced.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

IN the tyme of Ahasuerus which raygned fro India vnto Ethiophia/ouer an hundreth & seuen & twētye landes/ what tyme as he sate on hys seate royall in the castell of Susan in the thirde yeare of his raygne/ he made a feast vnto all his princes & seruauntes/namely vnto the mightie men of Persia & Media/to the capitaynes & rulers of hys countrees/that he might shewe the noble riches of his kingdome/and the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse/many dayes longe/ euen an hundreth and foure score dayes.

And when these dayes were expyred/the kynge made a feast vnto all the people that were in ỹ castell of Susan/both vnto greate & small/seuen dayes longe in the courte of ỹ gardē by ỹ kynges palace: where there hanged whyte/reed & yalow clothes/fastened wt coardes of lynnen & scarlet in siluer rynges/ vpon pylers of Marble stone.

The bēches were of goulde & syluer made vpon a pauement of grene/ whith / yalowe & black Marble. And the drinke was caried in vessels of goulde/& there was euer chaūge of vessell. And the kinges wine was moch acordinge to the power of the kynge. And no man was appoynted what he shulde drinke: for the kinge had cōmaunded all the officers of his house/that euery one shulde do as it liked him. And the quene Vasthi made a feast also for the wemen in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seuenth daye when the king was mery of the wyne/he cōmaunded Mehuman/Bartha/Harbona/Bagatha/ Abagatha/Zathar and Carcas/the seuen chamberlaynes (that dyd seruyce in ỹ presence of kynge Ahasuerus(to fetch the quene Vasthi with the crowne regal)that he might shewe ỹ people & princes her fairnesse: for she was bewtyfull. But the quene Vasthi wolde not come at the kynges worde by hys chamberlaynes. Then was the kynge very wroth/& his indignacion kyndled in him.

And the kynge spake to the wyse men that had vnderstandinge in the ordinaunces of ỹ lande for the kinges matters must be hādled before all soch as haue knowlege of ỹ lawe and iudgemēt: and the nexte vnto him were/ Carsena/Sethar/Admatha/Tharsis/ Mares/Marsana & Mamucan/the seuen princes of the Persians/& Meedes/which sawe the kynges face/and sat aboue in the kyngdome/ What lawe shulde be executed vpō the quene Vasthi/because she dyd not acordinge to ỹ worde of the kinge by his chāberlaynes. Then sayde Mamucan before the kynge & the princes: the quene Vasthi hath not onely done euell agaynst ỹ kinge but also agaynst all the princes & all the people in all ỹ landes of kynge Ahasuerus for this dede of ỹ quene shall come abrode vnto all wemen/so ỹ they shall despyse their husbandes before their eyes/and shall saye: the kinge Ahasuerus cōmaunded Vasthi the quene to come before him/but she wolde not. And so shall the princesses in Perlia & Media saye likewise vnto all ỹ kinges princes/when they heare of this dede of the quene/thus shall there aryse despytefulnes and wrath ynough. If it please the kynge/ let there go a commaundement from him/and let it be wrytten acordynge to the lawe of the Persians & Medians (& not to be trāsgressed) ỹ Vasthi come no more before kynge Ahasuerus/& let ỹ kynge geue ỹ kingdome vnto another ỹ is better then she.

And that this wrytinge of ỹ kinge which shalbe made / be publysshed throwe out all his empyre (which is greate (that all wyues maye holde their husbādes in honoure/both amonge greate and smal.

This pleased the kynge and the prynces/ and the kynge dyd acordinge to the worde of Mamucan. Then were there letters sent forth in to all the kynges landes/in to euery lande acordinge to the wrytynge therof/and to euery people after their language/ that euery mā shulde be lorde in his awne house. And thys caused he be spoken after the language of hys people.

¶ After the quene put awaye/certen goodly young damoselles are searched oute. Edilla otherwyse called Esther/pleaseth the kyng/and is made quene. Mardocheus openeth vnto the kyng those that wolde betraye hym.

¶ The.ij. Chapter.

AFter these actes when the displeasure of king Ahasuerus was layed he thoughte vpō Vasthi/ what she had done/ and what was cōcluded concerninge her. Then sayde the kynges seruauntes: Let there be fayre younge virgins sought for the kynge/and let the kynge appoynte ouerseers in all the landes of his empyre / that they maye bringe together all fayre younge byrgyns vnto the castell of Susan to the wemens buyldinge/vnder the hande of Hagei the kynges chamberlayne/ that kepeth the wemen/ and let hym geue them their apparell. And loke which damsell pleaseth ỹ kinge/let her be quene in Vasthis steade.

steade. This pleased the kynge/and he dyd so.

In the castell of Sulan there was a Iewe/whose name was Mardocheus/ ỹ sonne of Iair, the sonne of Semei/ ỹ sonne of Cis ỹ sonne of Jemini/which was caried awaye
t.Reg.xxiiij.e. from Jerusalem/*whan Jechoniah ỹ kynge of Juda was led awaye/ (whom Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babilō caryed awaye) and he norished Hadasah (that is Esther) hys vncles daughter: for she had nether father nor mother/ and she was a fayre and beuty-B full damsell. And when her father and mother dyed/ Mardocheus receaued her as hys awne daughter.

Now when the kynges cōmaundemēt and cōmissyon was publyshed/ & many damsels were brought together vnto the castell of Sulan vnder ỹ hande of Hagei/ Esther was takē also vnto ỹ kynges house vnder ỹ hande of Hagei ỹ keper of the wemē/ & the damsell pleased him/ & she founde grace in his sighte And he caused her oyntment to be geuen her/ and her gyftes/ & gaue her .vij. notable gētyl wemen of the kynges house/ & arayed both her & her gentyll wemē very rychelye in the house of the wemen. But Esther shewed not her people nor her kynred: for Mardocheus had charged her/ ỹ she shulde not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery daye before the courte of the wemens buyldinge/ ỹ he might knowe how Esther dyd/ and what shulde become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of euery damsell came that she shulde come to ỹ kinge Ahasuerus/ after that she had bene twelue monethes in the deckynge of the wemen (for their deckynge must haue so moch tyme/ namely sixe monethes wyth Balme & Myrre/ & sixe monethes wyth good spyces/ so were the wemē beutifyed) then wente there one dāsell vnto ỹ kynge/ & what so euer she requyred/ ỹ must be geuen her to go wyth her out of the wemēs buyldinge vnto ỹ kyngs palace. And when one came in the euenynge/ ỹ same wēt
C frō him on the morow into ỹ seconde house of wemen/ vnder the hande of Salagas ỹ kings chāberlayne/ which kepte the cōcubins. And she must come vnto ỹ kinge nomore/ except it pleased the kynge/ and that he caused her to be called by name.

Now when the tyme came of Esther the daughter of Abihail Mardocheus vncle (whō he had receaued as hys awne daughter) that she shulde come to the kynge/ she desyred nothinge but what Hagei the kinges chamberlayne the keper of the wemen sayde.

And Esther founde fauoure in the syghte of all them that loked vpon her. And Esther was taken vnto kynge Ahasuerus in to the house royall/ in the tenth moneth whych is called Tebeth/ in the seuenth yeare of hys raigne.

And the kynge loued Esther aboue all the wemen/ and she founde grace and mercy in his syghte before all the virgyns: and he set the quenes croune vpon hir head/ and made D her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kinge made a great feast vnto all hys prynces and seruauntes (whych feast was because of Esther) and let the landes be in quyetnes/ and gaue royall gyftes.

And whan the virgyns were geathered together the seconde tyme/ Mardocheus sat in ỹ kinges gate. And as yet had not Esther shewed her kynred and her people/ accordinge as Mardocheus had bydden her: for Esther dyd after the worde of Mardocheus/ like as whē he was her tutoure. At the same tyme whyle Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate/ two of the kynges chamberlaynes Bagathan and Thares which kepte the doze/ were wroth/ & sought to laye their handes on ỹ kynge Ahasuerus: wherof Mordocheus gat knowledge/ and tolde it vnto quene Esther/ & Esther certyfyed the kynge therof in Mardocheus name. And when inquisycion was made/ it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was wrytten in the Cronycles before the kynge.

¶ Haman the Macedonian/ after he was exalted/ obtayned of the kyng that all the Jewes shulde be put to deeth/ because Mardocheus had not done hym worshyp/ as other had.

¶ The .iij. Chapter.

A Fter these actes dyd the kynge promote Haman ỹ sonne of Amadatha the Agagite/ and set hym hye/ & set his seate aboue al the princes that A were with him. And all the kynges seruaūts that were in the gate/ bowed their knees/ and dyd reuerēce vnto Haman: for the kynge had so commaunded. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee/ and worshipped him not. Then the kynges seruauntes whych were in the kynges gate/ sayde vnto Mardocheus: why trāsgressest thou the kynges cōmaundemēt? And when they spake this daylye vnto hym/ B & he folowed thē not/ they tolde Haman/ that they myghte se whether Mardocheus maters wolde endure: for he had tolde thē/ that he was a Iewe. And whē Haman sawe/ that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto hym/ nor worshypped hym/ he was full of indignacyon & thought it to lyttell to laye handes onely on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him ỹ nacio of Mardocheus/ but he sought to destroye all the Iewes the nacion of Mardocheus/ that were in the whole empyre of Ahasuerus.

Haman Sapor
Nāgmissenus

In the fyrst moneth (that is the moneth Nisan) in the twelueth yeare of kynge Ahasuerus they cast Phur (ꝑ is a lott) before Hamā/on what daye & what moneth this shuld be done: & it went oute the twelueth moneth that is the moneth Adar. And Haman sayde vnto kinge Ahasuerus: There is a people scattered abrode and dispersed amōge all people in all the landꝛ of thyne empire/ & their lawe is cōtrary vnto al people/ & they do not after the kynges lawes/ nether is it the kingꝛ profet to suffre thē after this maner. If it please the kynge/ let him wryte/ that they maye be destroyed/ & so will I weye downe ten thousande talentes of syluer/ vnder the handes of the workmen/ to be brought into the kinges chamber. Then toke the kynge his ringe frō hys hande/ & gaue it vnto Haman the sonne of Amadatha the Agagite the Jewes enemie And the kynge sayde vnto Haman: Let the syluer be geuen the/ and that people also/ to do with all what pleaseth the.

Then were the kynges scrybes called on the thirtenth daye of the fyrst moneth/ and there was written (acordynge as Haman cō maunded) vnto the kynges prynces and to the captiues euery where in the landes/ and to the rulars of euery people in ꝑ countreyes on euery syde/ acordynge to the wrytynge of euery nacyon/ and after their language in the name of kynge Ahasuerus/ and sealed with the kynges rynge. And the wryttinges were sent by postes in to all the kynges landes/ to rote out/ to kyll/ and to destroye all Jewes/ both yonge and olde/ chyldren and wemen in one daye (namely vpon the thyrtenth daye of the twelueth moneth/ whych is the moneth Adar) and to spoyle their goodes.

Thys was the summe of the wrytinge/ ꝑ there shulde be a cōmaundement geuen in all landes/ to be publisshed vnto all people/ that they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes wente in all the haste acordynge to the kynges commaundement. And in the castell of Susan was the commaundement deuysed. And the kynge and Haman sate and dranke. But the cytye of Susan was disquieted.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

When Mardocheus perceaued all that was done/ he rēte his clothes and put on sack cloth/ and asshes/ and wente out in to the myddes of the citie/ and cried loude and lamētably/ and came before the kinges gate: for there might no man entre within the kynges gatē/ that had sack cloth on. And in all landes and places/ as farre as the kynges worde and commaundement extended/ there was greate lamentacyon amonge the [a] Jewes and many fasted/ wepte/ mourned/ and laye in sack clothes and in asshes. So Esthers damsels/ and her chamberlaynes/ came and tolde it her. Then was the quene exceadingly astonyed. And she sent rayment/ that Mardocheus shulde put them on/ and laye the sack clothe from hym. But Mardocheus wolde not take them. Then called Esther Hathath one of the kynges chamberlaynes (whych stode before her) and gaue hym a commaundement vnto Mardocheus/ that he myght knowe what it were/ and wherfore he dyd so. So Hathath wēte forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of the cytye/ whych was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde him of all ꝑ had happened vnto him/ and of the summe of syluer that Hamā had promysed to weye doune in the kynges chāber because of the Jewes for to destroye them (and he gaue him the coppye of the cōmaundement/ that was deuysed at Susan to destroye them/ that he myghte shewe it vnto Esther/ and to speake to her & charge her/ that she shulde go in to the kinge and make her prayer and supplicacion vnto hym for her people.

And whē Hathath came in/ & tolde Esther the wordes of Mardocheus/ Esther spake vnto Hathath/ and cōmaunded hym to saye vnto Mardocheus: all the kynges seruauntes/ and the people in the landes of the kyng knowe/ that whosoeuer cōmeth within the courte vnto the kynge/ whether it be man or woman/ which is not called/ the cōmaundement is that the same shall dye immedyatly/ excepte the kynge holde out the gouldē scepter vnto hym/ that he maye lyue. As for me/ I haue not bene called to come in to ꝑ kinge now this thirtie dayes.

And when Mardocheus was certified of Esthers wordꝛ/ Mardocheus bad saye agayne vnto Esther: thinke not to saue thine awne life/ whyle thou art in ꝑ kinges house before all Jewes: for yf thou holdest thy peace at this tyme/ then shall ꝑ Jewes haue helpe and delyueraunce out of another place/ and thou and thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to ꝑ kyngdome/ for this tymes sake? Esther bad/ geue Mardocheus this answer: Go thou thy waye then/ & geather together all the Jewes ꝑ are founde at Susan/ and fast ye for me/ ꝑ ye eate not & drinke not in thre dayes/ nether daye nor nighte. I and my dāsels will fast lykewyse/ & so wyll I go in to the kynge cōtrary to the cōmaundemēt: yf I perishe/ I perishe. So Mardocheus wente his waye/ & dyd all that Esther had cōmaunded him.

¶Esther entreth in to the kyng and byddeth him and Haman to a feast. Hamā prepareth a gallouse for Mardocheus.

¶The.v. Chapter.

A ANd on the thirde daye put Esther on her royall apparell/& stode in ỹ courte of the kyngs palace within ouer agaynst the kynges house. And the kynge sate vpon hys royall seate in the kynges palace ouer agaynst the gate of the house. And when the kynge sawe Esther the quene standynge in ỹ courte/she founde grace in his syghte. And the kynge helde out the golden scepter in hys hande towarde
B Esther. So Esther stepte forth/& touched the toppe of the scepter. Then sayde the kynge vnto her: What wilt thou quene Esther? and what requyrest thou? aske euen the halfe of ỹ empyre/& it shall be geuē the. Esther sayde If it please ỹ kinge/let ỹ kinge & Haman come this daye vnto ỹ banket ỹ I haue prepared. The kynge sayde: cause Haman to make haste/that he maye do as Esther hath sayde.

Now when the kynge & Haman came to ỹ banket ỹ Esther had prepared/ỹ kyng sayde vnto Esther at the banckett of wyne Esther/ what is thy peticyō? and it shalbe geuen the. And what requyrest thou? If it be euen the halfe of the empyre/it shalbe done.

C Then answered Esther and sayde: my petition & desyre is/yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kynge/& yf it please ỹ kinge to geue me my petition/and to fulfyll my request/then let the kynge & Haman come to the bancket ỹ I shall prepare for thē/and so will I do to morow as the kinge hath sayde.

Then went Haman forth the same daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And when he sawe Mardocheus in the kynges gate/ỹ he stode not vp and kneled before hym/he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Neuertheles he refrayned him selfe: and whē he came home/he sent/and called for his frendes/ and Zares hys wyfe/& tolde thē of the glory of his riches/& the multitude of his children all to gether how ỹ kinge had promoted him so greatly/and how that he was takē aboue the prynces and seruaūtes of the kynge. Ha-D mā sayde moreouer: Yee & Esther the quene let no man come with the kinge vnto ỹ banket ỹ she had prepared/excepte me/& tomorow am I bidden vnto her also with ỹ kinge. But in all thys am I not satisfyed as longe as I se Mardocheus the Iewe syttinge at ỹ kynges gate. Then sayde Zares hys wyfe & all hys frendes vnto hym: Let them make a galowes of fyfty cubites hie/and tomorow speake thou vnto the kinge/ỹ Mardocheus maye be hanged theron/yf thou cōmest merely with the kynge vnto the banckct. Hamā was well content wyth all/and caused a galowes to be prepared.

¶The kyng turneth ouer the Chronycles & fyndeth the sydeyne of Mardocheus: & then to the cōfusyō of Hamā/cōmaūdeth Mardocheus to be had in honoure.

¶The.vi. Chapter. A

THe same night could not ỹ kinge slepe/and he cōmaunded to bringe the Cronycles and storyes: whych when they were red before ỹ kinge they happened on ỹ place where it was written/how Mardocheus had tolde/that the kynges two chāberlaynes (whych kepte the threshold) sought: to laye handes on kynge Ahasuerus. And the kynge sayde: what worshippe & good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then sayde the kynges seruaūtes B that ministred vnto him. There is nothynge done for hym. And the kynge sayde: Who is in the courte? (for Haman was gone in to ỹ courte without before the kyngs house/that he myght speake vnto the kynge to hange Mardocheus on ỹ tre/that he had prepared for him.) And ỹ kinges seruaūtes sayde vnto him: beholde/Haman standeth in the courte. The kynge sayde: let him come in. And when Haman came in/the kynge sayde vnto hym: what shall be done vnto the man/ whom the kynge wolde fayne bringe vnto worshyppe? But Haman thought in hys hert: Whom shulde the kynge els be glad to bringe vnto worshyppe/but me? And Haman sayde vnto the kynge: Let the man vnto whom the kynge wolde be glad to do worshyppe/ be broughte hyther/ that he maye be arayed wyth the royall garmentes whych the kynge vseth to weare: and the horse that the kynge rydeth vpō/and that the crowne royall maye be set vpon hys heed. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnder the hande of one of the kynges prynces/ that he maye araye the man withall (whō the kinge wolde fayne hououre) and cary hym vpō the horse thorow the strete of the citie/& cause it to be proclamed before him: thus shall it be done to euery mā/whom the kinge wolde fayne honoure. C

The kynge sayde: make haste/and take as thou hast sayde/the rayment and the horse: & do euen so with Mardocheus the Iewe that sytteth before ỹ kynges gate/& let nothinge fayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment and the horse/& arayed him/and brought hym on horsbacke thorow the streate of the citie/and proclamed before hym: Euen thus shall it be done vnto euery man whom the kinge is disposed to honoure. D
And Mardocheus came agayne to ỹ kynges gate/but Haman gat him home in all ỹ haste mourninge with bare heade/and tolde Zares his wyfe & all his frendes/euery thynge that had happened him. Then sayde his wise men & Zares his wyfe vnto him: If it be Mardocheus of the sede of the Jewes/ before whom thou hast begonne to fall/ thou canst do nothynge vnto hym/ but shalt fall before hym. ¶Whyle they were yet talkinge with him/ came the kynges chamberlaynes/ and caused Haman to make haste to come vnto the bãcket that Esther had prepared.

¶ The quene biddeth the king and Hamã agayne/ and prayeth for her selfe and her people. She accuseth Haman: and he is hãged on the gallouse/ which he had prepared for Mardocheus.

AND when the kynge and Hamã came to ỹ banckет that quene Esther had prepared/ ỹ kynge sayde vnto Esther on the seconde daye at the bancket of wyne: what is thy petitiõ quene Esther/ that it maye be geuen the? And what requyrest thou? Yee/ aske euen halfe of ỹ empyre/ & it shall be done. Esther the quene answered and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy syghte (O kynge) & yf it please the kynge then graunte me my lyfe at my desyre & my people for my petitiõs sake: for we are sold I & my people bothe to be destroied/ to be slaine & to perisshe. And wolde God we were solde to be bondmen and bondwemen/ then wolde I holde my tõge/ * so shulde not the enemye be so hye to the kynges harme. The kynge Ahasuerus spake and sayde vnto quene Esther: what is he that? Or where is he that darre presume in his mynde to do soch a thinge after that maner? Esther sayde: the enemye and aduersary is this wicked Haman.

* Some reade. although the enemye shulde not recompẽce the kynges harm.

¶ As for Hamã/ he was exceadingly afraied before the kinge & the quene. And the kynge arose from the bãcket and from the wyne in hys displeasure and wente in to the palace garden. And Haman stode vp/ and besoughte quene Esther for hys lyfe: for he sawe that there was a mischefe prepared for hym of the kynge allready.

And when the kynge came agayne out of the palace garden into the parler where they had eaten/ Haman had layed hym vpon the bed that Esther sat vpon. Then sayde ỹ kinge wyll he force the quene also beside* me in ỹ house? As sone as that worde wẽte out of the kynges mouth/ they* couered Hamans face. And Harbonah one of the chamberlaynes ỹ stode before the kynge/ sayde. Beholde/ there standeth a galowes in Hamans house fyftie cubytes hye/ whych he had made for Mardocheus/ that spake good for the kynge. The kynge sayde: hange hym theron. So they hanged Haman on the galowes that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath pacyfyed.

* Or/ in my presence.

* To couer hys face/ is/ to shewe him worthye of deeth.

¶ After the deeth of Haman is Mardocheus exalted: & then are ther comfortable letters sent vnto ỹ Jewes.

¶ The.viij. Chapter.

THe same daye dyd kynge Ahasuerus geue the house of Haman the Jewes enemye/ vnto quene Esther. And Mardocheus came before ỹ kynge: for Esther tolde how that he belõged vnto her. And the kynge put of hys fynger rynge/ which he had takẽ from Haman/ and gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Esther set Mardocheus ouer the house of Hamã. And Esther spake yet moze before the kynge/ and fell downe at hys fete/ & besought hym/ that he wolde put awaye the wyckednes of Haman the Agagite/ and his deuice that he had ymagined agaynst the Jewes. And the kyng helde out the goulden scepter vnto Esther. Then rose Esther/ & stode before the kynge/ and sayde: yf it pleale the kynge/ & yf I haue founde grace in his sight/ & yf it be cõueniẽt for the kynge/ & yf it be accepted in his sight then let it be wrytten/ that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the sonne of Hamadatha the Agagite/ maye be called agayne: whych letters he wrote/ to destroye the Jewes in all the kynges landes. For how can I se ỹ euell that shall happen vnto my people? & how cã I loke vpon the destruccion of my kynred?

Then sayde the kynge Ahasuerus vnto quene Esther/ and to Mardocheus the Jewe: Beholde/ I haue geuen Esther the house of Haman/ and him haue they hanged vpon a tre/ because he layed hande vpon the Jewes. Wryte ye now therfore for the Jewes/ as it lyketh you in the kynges name/ & seale it with the kynges rynge (for the wrytinges that were wrytten in the kynges name/ and sealed wyth the kynges rynge/ durst no man dysanulle.) Then were the kynges scrybes called at the same tyme in the thirde moneth/ that is the moneth Siuan/ on the thre and twentyeth daye.

And it was wrytten (as Mardocheus cõmaunded (vnto the Jewes and to the prynces/ to the Debytyes and captaynes in the landes from India vntyll Ethiopia/ namely an hundred and seuen and twentye landes/ vnto euery one accordynge to the wrytynge therof/ vnto euery people after their speche/ and to the Jewes accordynge to their wrytinge and language.

And it was wrytten in the kynge Ahasuerus name/ and sealed with the kinges ringe. And by postes that rode vpon swyfte ponge Mules/ sent he the wrytynges/ wher in the kynge graunted the Jewes (in what cytyes so euer they were) to geather them selues to gether/ and to stande for their lyfe/ and for to rote to rote oute/to slaye / and to destroye all the power of the people & lande that wolde trouble them/with chyldren and wemen / and to spoyle their good vpō one daye in all ỹ lādes of kynge Ahasuerus namely vpon the thyrteenth daye of the twelueth moneth/which is the moneth Adar.

The summe of the wrytynge was / how there was a cōmaundemēt geuē in all landes to be publisshed vnto all ỹ people / that the Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that daye to auenge them selues on their enemyes. And the postes that rode vpon the Mules/ made haste with all spede/accordyng to ỹ kynges worde:and the commaundement was deuysed in the castell of Susan.

As for Mardocheus/he went oute frō the kynge in royall apparell of yelow & whyte/ and with a greate crowne of goulde/beynge arayed with a garment of lynnē and purple/ and the cytie of Susan reioysed & was glad: but vnto the Jewes there was come lyght & gladnesse/and ioye & worshyppe. And in all landes and cyties/ into what places soeuer the kynges worde and commaundemēt reached/there was ioye and myrth/prosperite & good dayes amonge the Jewes: in somoch that many of the people in the lande became of the Jewes belefe/ for ỹ feare of ỹ Jewes came vpon them.

¶ At the cōmaundement of the kynge the Jewes put their aduersaries to deeth. The sonnes of Haman are hanged. The Jewes kepe a feast daye in remembraunce of their delyueraunce.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

A IN the twelueth moneth / that is the moneth Adar / vpon the thyrteenth daye, which the kinges worde and cōmaundement had appoynted/that it shulde be done/euen vpō the same daye that the enemyes shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppressed them/ it turned contrary wyse / euen that the Jewes shulde subdue their enemyes. Then geathered the Jewes together in their cyties within all ỹ landes of kynge Ahasuerus / to laye hande on soch as wolde do them euell/ and no man coulde withstand them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes/and prynces and Debities/ and officers of the kynge promoted the Jewes: for the feare of Mardocheus came vpon them. For Mardocheus was greate in the kynges house/ & the reporte of hym was noysed in all lādes/how he increased & grewe.

B Thus the Jewes smote all their enemies with a sore slaughter/and slewe & destroyed/ and dyd after their wyll vnto soch as were their aduersaries. And at the castell of Susan slewe the Jewes and destroyed fyue hundreth men: & slewe Pharsandatha/ Delphō/ Aspha tha / Phorata / Adalia / Aridatha/ Pharmastha/Arisai/Aridai/Vaizatha/ the ten sonnes of Haman the sonne of Hamadatha ỹ enemye of the Jewes:but on his goods they layed no handes. At the same tyme was the kynge certyfyed of the nombre of those that were slayne at ỹ castell of Susan. And ¶ the kynge sayde vnto quene Esther: The Jewes haue slayne & destroyed fyue hundreth men at ỹ castell of Susan/ & the ten sonnes of Haman: What shall they do in the other landes of the kynge? What is thy peticyon/ that it maye be geuen the? & what requyrest thou more to be done? Esther sayd: If it please the kynge/let him suffre the Jewes to morow also to do accordyng vnto this dayes cōmaundemēt/ that they maye hange Hamās ten sonnes vpon the tre. And the kyng charged to do so/ & the cōmaundemēt was deuysed at Susan/ & Hamans ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes geathered thē selues together at Susan/ vpō the fourteenth daye of the moneth Adar/and slewe thre hundreth men at Susan / but on their goodes they layed no handes.

As for the other Jewes in ỹ kynges lādes/ they came together/ & * stode for their lyues/ & gat rest from their enemyes: and slewe of their enemyes fyue & seuētye thousand/how beit they layed no handes on their goodes. This was done on the thirteenth daye of the moneth Adar/ & on the fourteenth daye of the same moneth rested they / whych daye they ordeyned to be a daye of feastyng & gladnesse But the Jewes at Susan were come together both on the thyrteenth daye & on ỹ fourteenth/ & on the fyfteenth daye they rested/and the same daye ordeyned they to be a daye of feastynge & gladnes. Therfore the Jewes ỹ dwelt in the villages and vnwalled townes/ ordeyned the fourteenth daye of the moneth Adar/to be a daye of feastyng and gladnes/ and one sent gyftes vnto another.

* Loke in the next chapter before at the letter d.

And Mardocheus wrote these actes / and sent the wrytyngs vnto all the Jewes ỹ were C in al the landes of kynge Ahasuerus / both nye & farre/that they shulde yearly receaue & holde the fourteenth & fyftenth daye of the moneth Adar/as the dayes wherin ỹ Jewes cam to rest frō their enemies/ & as a moneth wherin their payne was turned to ioye/ and their sorowe into prosperite:that they shulde obserue the same as dayes of wealth & gladnes/and one to sende gyftes vnto another/ & to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes receaued it that they had begonne to do / and that Mardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Haman ỹ sonne of Hamadatha all the Jewes enemye/had deuyed to destroye all the Jewes / & caused to cast Phur (that is Lot) for to put them in feare/& to brynge them to naughte: and how Hester wente and spake to the Kynge / that thorow letters his wycked deuyce (which he ymagined agaynst the Jewes) might be turned vpon his awne heede/ and how he & hys sonnes were hanged on the tre. For ỹ which cause they called this daye Phurim after the

* That is/ Lot. name of *Phur/accordyng to all the wordes of this wrytyng: and what they them selues had sene/and what had happened vnto them.

And the Jewes set it vp/ and toke it vpon them and their sede/& vpō all soch as ioyned them selues vnto them / that they wolde not mysse to obserue these two dayes yearly/accordynge as they were wrytten and appoynted/how that these dayes are not to be forgot
G ten/but to be kepte of chylders chyldrē amōge all kynredes in all landes & cytyes. They are the dayes of Phurim/which are not to be ouerslipte amonge the Jewes/ & the memoryall of them oughte not to perysshe from their sede.

And quene Hester the daughter of Abihail & Mardocheus the Jewe wrote wyth all auctorite/to confirme this seconde wrytyng of Phurim/and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundreth & seuē & twenty landes of the empyre of Ahasuerus / wyth frendly and faythfull wordes / to confirme these dayes of Phurim / in their tyme appoynted / accordynge as Mardocheus the Jewe and Hester the quene had ordeyned cōcernynge them: lyke as they vpō their soule and vpon their sede had confirmed the actes Hest.ix.c. of the * fastynges and of hir cōplaynte. And Hester cōmaunded to stablish these actes of this Phurim/and to wryte them in a boke.

¶ The glorie and noblenes of Ahasuerus: and Authorite of Mardocheus.

AND the kynge Ahasuerus layed tribute vpon the lande/ and vpon the Jles of the see. As for all ỹ worke of his power and auctorite/ & the greate worshippe of Mardocheus / whych the kynge gaue him/beholde/it is wrytte̅ in the Cronycles of the kynges of Media and Persia. For Mardocheus the Jewe was the seconde nexte vnto kynge Ahasuerus / and greate amōge the Jewes/& accepted amōge the multitude of his brethren / as one that seketh ỹ welth of his people/ and speaketh the best for all his sede.

The boke of Job.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

IN the lāde of Hus there was a man called Job: an innocent & vertuous man/soch one as feared God & eschued euell. This mā had .vij. sonnes/ and .iij. daughters. Hys substaunce was .vij. M. shepe. iij. M. camels .v. C. youck of oxen .v. C. she asses / and a very greate housholde: so that he was one of the most principall men amonge all them of the east countre. And his sonnes went / & made banchettes: one daye in one house / another daye in another/ & sent for their .iij. systers to eate & drincke with them. So when they had passed ouer ỹ tyme of their banchettyng rounde aboute/Job sent for them / & clensed them agayne/and gat vp early/& offered for euery one a brentoffrynge. For Job thought thus: peraduenture my sonnes haue done some offence/and haue bene vnthankfull to God in their hertes. And thus dyd Job euery
B daye. Now vpō a tyme/when ỹ a* seruaūtes of God b cam & stode before the Lord/Sathan a By the seruauntes of God here/vnderstāde/not onely angelles/by whō he ordereth the course & workes of the worlde: but also the godly & chosen/whom he continually careth and prouydeth for. Job.ij.a.

b * Cam & stode before the lorde. Thynck not that God some tyme apeareth to the angelles/and sometyme not/for the good aungelles do all waysse se the face of God: Nether commeneth God ether with the aungelles or with the deuell with bodely speache but the holy ghoost in the scriptures speaketh many thynges vnto vs accordynge to oure fealynge/and vseth a maner of speakynge familyar to vs/ attrybutynge appearyng speakyng enquiryng and answerynge to God and to aungelles/which thynge mā onely vseth/to thyntēt that we therby maye the easelyar perceaue his meanynge. The commynge of the aungelles here is no nother thyng than to geue accountes of the office inioyned them: which they geue/ knowyng that God seyth wyth what trust they dyd it: and to geue thanckes/and wayte for their reward. They came (sayth Origen) honouryng magnifying/prayseing/ geuynge thanckes. Of Sathan also wryteth he thus. He cam/nether with goyng to/or cōmynge in/but he cam in thought/councell/& most wycked desyre to accuse the ryght welle before God. His thought and desyre are take̅ as a cōmyng. The deuyll then is counted to haue come into the syght of God/not that the most wycked cam in deade in the syght of the good God/but because his cruell & most wycked thoughtes cam into the syght of God. And thus euen now a dayes also cometh the deuyll with them in to the syght of God / in that he dayly accuseth/fyndeth faute/vexeth/persecuteth & troubleth the godly.

than cam also amonge them. And the Lorde sayde vnto Sathan: From whence cōmest thou? Sathan answered the Lorde/ & sayd: I haue gone aboute the lande and walcked thorow it.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Sathan: hast thou not cōsydered my seruaunt Job/ how ỹ he is an innocent and vertuous mā: loch one as feareth God/ and eschueth euell / and that there is none lyke him in the lande? Sathā answered/ and sayde vnto the Lorde: Dothe Job feare God for nought? hast thou not pre serued him/ his house/ and all his substaunce on euery syde? hast thou not blessed the worckes of his handes? Is not his possessyon encreased in the lande? But laye thyne hande vpon him a lytle/ touche once all that he hathe/ and (I holde) he shall curse the to thy face. And the Lorde sayd vnto Sathan: lo all that he hath / be in thy power: only vpon hym self se that thou laye not thyne hande. Then went Sathan forth from the Lorde.

¶ Now vpō a certayne daye whē his sonnes and daughters were eatynge/ and drinckīng wyne in their eldest brothers house / there came a messenger vnto Job/ & sayde: Whyle the oxen were a plowynge/ & the Asses going in the pasture besyde them: the Sabees cam in violently/ and toke thē all awaye: ye they haue slayne thy seruaūtes with the swearde/ and I only ranne my waye/ to tell the.

And whyle he was yet speakynge/ there came another/ and sayde: The fyre of God is fallen from heauen / it hath consumed/ and brent vp all thy shepe and seruauntes: and I only ranne my waye/ to tell the. In ỹ meane season whyle he was yet speakynge / there cam another/ and sayde: ¶ The Caldees made thre armies/ & fell in vpon thy camels/ which they haue caried awaye / yee and slayne thy seruauntes with the swearde: and I only am gottē awaye/ to tell the: Whyle he was speakynge/ there came yet another/ & sayde: Thy D sonnes and daughters were eatyng & drynckynge wyne in their eldest brothers house/ & sodenly there came a mightie greate wynde out of the South / & smote the .iiij. corners of the house: which fell vpon thy chyldren/ so that they are deed: and I am gotten awaye alone/ to tell the.

Then Job stode vp/ and rente hys clothes shaued his heade/ fell doune vpō the grounde/ worshipped/ and sayde: Naked came I out of my mothers wombe / & naked shall I turne thyther agayne. The Lorde gaue / and the Lorde hath taken awaye * now blessed be ỹ name of the Lorde. In all these thynges dyd Job not offende/ *ner murmured folyshly agaynst God.

* The Greke & Origen adde herunto. As it hath pleased the the Lorde so is it done.

* The Greke addeth with his lyppes.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

IT happened also vpō a tyme/ that when the seruauntes of God cam & stode before the Lorde/ Sathan came amōge them/ & stode before him. a* And the Lorde sayde vnto Sathan: From whence commest thou? Sathan answered and sayde: I haue gone aboute the lande/ and walcked thorow it.

a* God is here described alwynge & demaundyng/ not that he vnto whō all thinges are knowē should therby learne any thinge: but that the deceates & ranckour of Sathā which alwayes lyeth in wayte/ might be vnto vs the better knowen/ to thintent ỹ we shulde walke the more warely.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Sathan: hast thou not consydered my seruaunt Job/ how that he is an innocent and vertuous mā soch one as feareth God/ and eschueth euell / and that there is none lyke him in the land? But thou mouedest me agaynst hym / to punysh him: yet is it in vayne/ for he contynueth still in his godlynesse. Sathā answered ỹ Lorde/ and sayde: Skynne for skynne? yee a man will geue all ỹ euer he hath/ for his lyfe. But laye thyne hande vpon him/ touche him once vpō the bone and flesh/ and (I holde) he shall curse the to thy face. Then sayde the Lorde vnto Sathan: lo/ there hast thou him in thy power/ but spare his lyfe.

So went Sathan forth from the Lorde/ and smote Job with maruelous sore byles/ from the sole of the fote vnto hys crowne: so that he sat vpon the grounde in the asshes/ and scraped of the fylth of hys sores wyth a pot sherde.

Then sayd his wyfe vnto him: Dooste thou C contynue in thy pefectnes? curse God/ and dye. But Job sayde vnto her: Thou speakest lyke a folysh woman. Seynge we haue receaued prosperite at the hande of God/ wher fore shulde we not be content with aduersyte also? In all these thynges / dyd not Job synne with his lyppes.

Now when Jobs frendes herde of all the trouble / that happened vnto hym / there came thre of them/ euery one from hys awne place: namely / Eliphas the Thamanite/ Baldad the Suhite / and Zophar the Naamathite.

For they were agreed together to come/ D to shewe their compassyon vpon him/ and to comforte hym. So when they lyfte vp their eyes a farre of/ they knewe him not.

Then they cryed/ and wepte: then euery one of them rente hys clothes/ and sprynckled dust vpon their heades in the ayre. They sat them doune by him also vpō the grounde vij. dayes and .vij. nightes. Neither was there eny of them that spake one worde vnto hym/ for they sawe that hys payne was very greate.

¶ The wordes of Job/ wherin he declareth that thys present lyfe is myserable: & that the deeth of the rygh tewes is ioyouse and fortunable

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

AFter this opened Job hys mouth/ and/ a curled his daye/ and sayde: lost be that daye/ wherin I was borne: and the nyght/ in the whych it was sayde: there is a mā chylde conceaued The same daye be turned to darckneſſe/ and not regarded of God from aboue/ nether be shyned vpō with lyght: but be couered with darckneſſe/ and the shadowe of death. Lett the dymme cloude fall vpon it/ and let it be lapped in with sorowe. Let the darck stormе ouercome that nyght/ lett it not be reckened amōge the dayes of the yeare/ ner counted in the monethes. Desyred be that nyght/ & discōmended: let b thē that curse the daye/ euē thole ẏ be ready to rayse vp mourninge geue it also their curſſe. Lett the starres be dymme thorow darckneſſe of it. Let it loke for lyght/ but let it se none/ nether the rysyng vp of the fayre morning: because it shut not vp the wombe that bare me/ ner hyd these sorowes fro myne eyes.

Alas/ why dyed I not in the byrth? Why dyd not I perysh/ as sone as I came oute of my mothers wombe? Why set they me vpon their knees? Why gaue they me suck wyth their brestes? Then shulde I now haue lyen styll/ I shulde haue slepte/ & bene at rest: like as the kynges and lordes of the erth/ which buylde them selues specyall places: As the prynces ẏ haue greate substaunce of gould/ and their houses full of syluer. O that I vtterly had no beynge/ or were as a thynge borne out of tyme (that is put aſyde) ether as yonge chyldren/ which neuer sawe the light There must the wycked ceaſſe from their tyranny/ there soch as are ouerlaboured be at rest: there are those lett out fre/ whych haue bene in prison/ so that they heare nomore the voyce of the oppressoure: There are small and greate: the bonde man/ and he that is fre from his master.

Wherfore is the lyght geuen to him that is in misery? and lyfe vnto them/ that haue heuy hertes? Whych longe for death/ yf it come not: & search for it moare then for treasure which also wolde be exceding glad/ & reioyce yf they founde their graue. That shuld be ioye to ẏ man whose waye is hyd */ which God kepeth backe from him. For my syghes come before I eate/ & my roaringes fall out like flowyng water. For ẏ thyng ẏ I feared/ is come vpon me: and the thynge that I was afrayed of/ is happened vnto me? Was I not happy? Had I not quyetneſſe? Was I not in rest? And now cōmeth soch mysery vpō me.

THen answered Eliphas the Themanyte and sayd vnto him: Yf we beginne to cōmen with the peraduenture thou wylt be dyscontent/ but who can withholde him self from speakynge? Beholde/ thou hast bene a teacher of many/ and hast comforted the weery handes.

b* Shall mā be moare iuste &c. Of this prynciple will Elyphaces reason thus agaynst Job. yf God wolde destroye an innocent/ it shulde foiowe that mā were moare ryghtwelle and pure than God/ but this is impossible/ for the contrarye is shewed vnto me by reuelacyon.

c* Beholde their is no truſt &c. He laboureth in confirmynge that which he had before propounded. The summe of the reason is/ Aungelles are not purer than God/ ergo not men.

d* Dignitye/ sygnifyeth here whatsoeuer they haue wherin they excell other/ whether it be rychesse or honoure/ power or connynge &c. For none of these shall redeame them from deeth.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ The ende of a fole. The tyghtwelnes of God. The Lorde chasteneth his/ and delyuereth them agayne.

Name-

AName me one els/yf thou cãst fynde eny: yee loke aboute the/vpon eny of the holy men. As for the folysh man/ displeasure kylleth hym and anger slayeth the ignorant. I haue sene my selfe/ when the folish was depe roted/ that hys bewty was sodenly destroyed / that his chyldren were without prosperite or health: that they were slayne in the dore / and no man to delyuer them: that his haruest was eaten vp of the hungrye: that the weapened man had spoyled it/ and that the thurstie had droncke vp his ryches. It is not the earth ẏ bringeth forth trauayle/ nether cõmeth sorow out of ẏ grounde: but it is mã/ that is borne vnto mysery/ lyke as the byrde for to fle.

B But now wyll I speake of the Lorde/ and talke of God: whych doth thynges / that are vnsearcheable/ and marueles without nombre: Which geueth rayne vpõ the earth / and poureth water vpon all thynges: which settet vp them of lowe degre/ and sendeth prosperite/ to those that are in heuynesse: which destroyeth the deuyces of the sotyll / so that they are not able to performe ẏ thinges that they take in hande: whych compaseth the wyse in their awne craftynesse / and ouerthroweth the counceil of the wycked: In soa* He delyuereth the ꝑce. This sentence propounded after the maner of a Prophecye/ sygnifyeth all one wyth that of Paul. i. Cor. x. c God is faythfull which shall not suffre you to be tempted aboue youre strengthe / but shall in the myddes of the temptacyon make a waye to escape oute.

And so he delyuereth the poore from the swearde/ from their mouth/ and frõ the hãde of the cruell/ that ẏ poore maye haue hope/ and that the mouth of the oppressoure maye be stopped.

Beholde/ happye is the man/ whom God punysheth: therfore/ despyse not thou ẏ chastenynge of the Almyghty. For though he make a woũd/ he geueth a medicine agayne: though he smyte / hys hande maketh whole agayne.

Elyphas meaneth: he hath verely wrapt the in many mischeues/ but whe the seuenth cometh/ & when it shall seame to him that ẏ offence is sufficiẽtly punished & that thou hast left thyne impacyencye (for that layeth he to Job/ thoughe vniustly) then wyll he prosper the ẅ so great a* He delyuereth the oute of lyre troubles/ so ẏ in the seuenth there can no harme touche the. In the myddest of honger he saueth the from death: and when it is warre / from the power of the swearde.

He shall kepe the from the perlous tonge so that when trouble commeth / thou shalt not nede to feare. In destruccion & derth thou shalt be mery/ & shalt not be afrayed for the beastes of the earth: But the castels in the lande shall be confederate with the / and the beastes of the felde shall geue the peace.

Yee thou shalt know/ that thy dwellynge place shalbe in rest: thou shalt beholde thy substaunce/ & be nomore punyshed for synne Thou shalt se also/ that thy sede shall encrease/ and that thy posterite shalbe as the grasse vpon the erth. Thou shalt come to thy graue in a fayre age / lyke as the corne sheues are brought in to ẏ barne in due season. Lo/ this is ẏ matter/ as we oure selues haue proued by experience. Therfore now that thou hearest it/ take better hede to thy self.

C Job answereth/ that his ẏ payne is moare grenouse. then his faute/ yet not withstãding he delyteth therin

C The. vi. Chapter.

Job answered/ and sayde: O ẏ my misery were weyed/ & my punishment layed in the balaunces: for then shulde it be heuyer / then the sande of the see. This is the cause / that my wordes are so soroufull.

a* The Arrowes of the almyghtye after some mennes opinion/ are the sorenesse of his iudgment & his wrath: after some other/ they are ẏ trouble whych the lawe mouethin
B the hertes of men/ while they therby are styred to hate thẽ selues / and so are healthfully killed: as it is sayd Psal. xxxvij. a Some agayne expounde them to be the crosse of mysery and wretchednes wherin God had now wrapped hym. For the Sayntes (saye they) receaue their crosse of the hãd of God. The same wyll/ that this sentence be a increasyng & amplyfying of that/ which his aduersarye had fearcely layde

For a* the arowes of the almyghty are in me/ whose indignacion hath dronckẽ vp my spyrete/ and the terryble feares of God fyght agaynst me. Doth the wylde asse roare whẽ he hath grasse? Or cryeth the oxe/ when he hath fodder ynough? That which is vnsauery/ shalt it be eaten with oute salte/ or is there any taste in ẏ whyte of an egge.: The thynge that some tyme I myght not awaye withall/ are now my meate for very sorow. O that I myght haue my desyre: O that God wolde graunte me the thyng/ that I longe for: That he wolde begynne & smyte me: that he wolde let his hãd go/ & hew me downe. Then shulde I haue some cõforte: yee I wolde desyre him in my payne/ that he shulde not spare / for I wyll not be agaynst ẏ wordes of ẏ holy one.

What power haue I to endure? Or/ what is myne end/ that my soule myght be pacient? Is my strength the strength of stones? Or/ is my flesshe made of brasse? Is it not so that ther is in me no helpe: & b* that my substaũce is taken from me. He that is in tribulacyon ought to be cõforted of his neyghbour: * but the feare of the Lord is cleane awaye: Myne awne brethren passe ouer by me as the water broke/ that hastely runneth thorow the valleyes. But they that feare the hore frost/ the snowe shall fall vpon them.

When their tyme cõmeth / they shalbe destroyed and perysshe: and when they be set on fyre/ agaynst him. Eliphas in the begynnyng of the fourth Chapter had sayde/ that the plage was came vpõ him & had touched him. With this (saye they) meateth he nowe. Beholde it not onely toucheth me / but woundeth me with Arrowes / and those venoumed with venoume/ hapely with the gall of dragõs/ with which touchyng/ both my blond wareth woode/ and all my spyrete is supped vp. Moreouer God hathe not onely throwẽ these dartes vpon me/ but also his dreadefull feares/ that is/ whatsoeuer he hathe that is terryble/ layeth he on me.

b* That my substaunce is taken frõ me. The Chald interpr. hathe. Wysdome is departed from me / and that/ after Rab. Mos. the wysdome of dysclynge iudging & trying of thynges. As thoughe he shuld saye/ so soare is my greefe/ sythe my helpe is taken from me/ that I am not permytted to breathe so longe/ tyll I maye call to remembraunce what is most acceptable to God. Some reade. Is not all the strength of myne inforcemẽt gone from me.

c* But the feare of the Lorde &c. As thoughe he sayd. But alas/ now a dayes/ ther is no feare of the Lorde leaft: and therfore it is no maruell/ yf charitie also which is ioyned to the feare of God/ be not in vse.

kynde/they shalbe remoued out of their place/ for ỳ pathes that they go in/are croked: they haste after vayne thynges/and shall perysh. Consydre the pathes of Theman/& ỳ wayes of Saba/wherin they haue put their trust. Confounded are they/that put eny confidence in them: for when they cam to opteyne ỳ D thynges ỳ they loked for/they were brought to confusion.

Euen so are ye also come vnto me: but now that ye se my mysery/ye are afrayed. Dyd I desyre you/to come hyther? Or/to geue me eny of youre substaunce? To delyuer me frō the enemyes hande/or to saue me from the power of the myghtie? Teach me and I will holde my tonge: and yf I do erre/shewe me wherin.

Wherfore blame ye then the wordes/ỳ are well and truly spoken? which of you can reproue them? Sauyng only that ye are cotyll to check mens sayinges/and can speake many wordes in the wynde. Ye fall vpon the fatherlesse/& go about to ouerthrowe youre awne frende. Wherfore loke not only vpon me/but vpon youre selues: whether I lye/ or no. Turne into youre awne selues (I praye you) be indifferent iudges/and cōsydre myne vngyltynesse: whether there be eny vnrygh-tuousnesse in my tonge/or vayne wordes in my mouth.

¶ The.vij. Chapter.

IS not the lyfe of man vpon earth a very batayll? Are not hys dayes lyke ỳ dayes of an hyred seruaūte? For lyke as a bonde seruaunt desyreth the shadowe/& as an hyrelynge wolde fayne haue an ende of his worcke: Euen so haue I laboured whole monethes longe (but in vayne) and many a carefull nyght haue I tolde. When I layed me downe to slepe/I sayde: O whē shall I ryse? Agayne/I longed sore for the night. Thus am I full of sorowe/ tyll it be darcke. My flesche is clothed wyth wormes/fylthynesse and dust: my skynne is wythered/and crompled together: my dayes B passe ouer more spedely/then a weeuer can weeue out his webbe: and are gone/or I am a warre. O remembre/that my lyfe is but a wynde/and that myne eye shall nomore se ỳ pleasures therof/yee & that none other mās eye shall se me eny more. For yf thou fasten thyne eyes vpon me/I come to naught lyke as a cloude is consumed & banished awaye/ euen so he that goeth downe to hell/cōmeth nomore vp/ner turneth agayne into hys house/nether shall his place knowe him eny more.

C Therfore I wyll not spare my mouth/but will speake in the trouble of my spryte/in ỳ bytternesse of my mynde will I talke. Am I a see or a whalfysh/that thou kepest me so in preson? When I thynke: my bedd shall comforte me. I shall haue some refreshynge by talckinge by my self vpon my couche: Then troublest thou me wyth dreames/& makest me so afrayed thorow vysions/that my soule wysheth rather to be strangled/& my bones to be deed.

& I can se no remedy/I shall lyue nomore: D Spare me then/for my dayes are but vayne What is man/that thou hast him in soch reputacion/and settest somoch by him? Thou takest diligent care for him/& sodenly doest thou trye him

Why goest thou not fro me/ner lettest me alone/so longe tyll I swalow downe my spetle? I haue offended/what shall I do vnto the/O thou preseruer of men? Why hast thou made me to stande in thy waye/& am so heuy a burden vnto my self? Why doest thou not forgeue me my synne? Wherfore takest thou not awaye my wyckednesse. Beholde/ now must I slepe in the dust: & yet thou seekest me to morow in ỳ mornyng/I shalbe gone.

¶ The.viij. Chapter.

THen answered Baldad the Suhite/& sayde: How longe wylt thou A talke of soch thynges? how longe shall thy mouth speake so proude wordes? Doth God peruerte the thyng that is iustfull? Or/doth the Almyghtye destroye the thynge that is ryght? When thy sonnes synned agaynst him/dyd not he punish them for their wyckednesse? If thou woldest now resorte vnto God by tymes/and make thyne humble prayer to the Almyghtye: yf thou woldest lyue a pure and a godly lyfe: shulde he not wake vp vnto the immediatly/& geue the/the bewtie of rightuousnesse agayne? In so moch/that wherein soeuer thou haddest lytle afore/thou shuldest now haue greate aboundaunce. Enquere of them that haue B bene before the/search dylygently amonge thy forefathers: Namely/that we are but of yester daye/and consydre not/that oure dayes vpon earth are but a very shadowe. They shall shewe the/they shall tell the/yee they wyll gladly confesse the same.

Maye a ryshe be grene wythout moystnesse? maye ỳ grasse growe wythout water? No: but (or euer it be shot forth/and or euer it be gathered) it withereth/before eny other herbe. Euen so goeth it with all them/that forget God: and euen thus also shall the ypocrytes hope come to naught. His confydence C shalbe destroyed/for he trusteth in a spyders webbe.

webbe. He leaneth him vpō his house/but he shall not stande: he holdeth him fast by it/yet shall he not endure. Oft tyme a thynge doth florysh/and men thynke that it maye abyde ye Sonne shynynge: it shuteth forth ye braunches in his garden/it taketh many rotes/ in so moch that it is lyke an house of stones.

D But yf it be taken out of his place/euery mā denyeth it/saying: I knowe the not. Lo/ thus is it wt him/that reioyseth in his awne doynges: and as for other/ they growe oute of the earth.

Beholde/God wyll not cast awaye a vertuous man/ nether wyll he helpe the vngodly. Thy mouth shall he fyll wt laughynge/& thy lyppes wyth gladnesse. They that hate the/shalbe confounded/ and the dwellynges of the vngodly shall come to naught.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

AIob answered/& sayd: As for that/ I knowe it is so of a treuth/that a man compared vnto God/can not be iustified. If he wyll argue with him/he shall not be able to answere him vn to one amonge a thousande. He is wyse of hert/and myghtie in strēgth. Who euer prospered/ that toke parte agaynst hym? a* He translateth the mountaynes/or euer they be aware/& ouerthroweth them in hys wrath. He remoueth the earth out of her place/that her pylers shake wyth all. He commaundeth the Sonne/ and it ryseth not: he closeth vp ye starres/as it were vnder a sygnet. He hym selfe alone spredeth out the heauens/ and goeth vpon the waues of the see. He maketh the baynes of heauen/the Orions/ the.vij. starres and the secrete places of the south. He doth greate thynges/soch as are vnsearcheable/yee and wonders without nombre.

If he cam by me/ I myght not loke vpon him: yf he went his waye/ I shulde not perceaue it. If he be hasty to take eny thynge awaye/who will make him restore it agayne? Who wyll saye vnto hym: what doest thou? He is God/whose wrath no man maye withstande: but the proudest of all must stoupe vnder him. How shulde I then answere him? or what wordes shulde I fynde out agaynst him? Yee though I be rightuous/ yet wyll I not geue him one worde agayne/but mekely submytte my self to my iudge. All be it ye I call vpon him/and he heare me/ yet am I not sure/ ye he hath herde my voyce: he troubleth me so with the tempest/ and woundeth me out of measure without a cause. He wyll not let my spyrete be in rest/ but fylleth me with bytternesse.

a* God translateth the mountaynes/not only these of ye erth/ but also the arrogāt & proude tyrauntes/& the great realmes of the worlde/ which by a borowed speache are often times in the Scripture sygnyfyed by mountaynes & hylles. So trāslated he Pharao. Exodi.xiiij.g. & kynge Senacherib. Esaie. xxxvij.g

If men wyll speake of strength/ he is the strongest of all: yf men wyll speake of ryghtuousnes/ who darre be my recorde. b* If I will iustifye my self/ my awne mouth shall cōdemne me: yf I wyll put forth my selfe for a perfecte man/he shall proue me a wycked doer: For that I shulde be an innocēt/my cōscyence knoweth it not/ yee I my selfe am weery of my lyfe.

This one thyng wyll I saye: He destroyeth both the ryghteous & vngodly. And though he slaye sodenly wyth the scourge/ yet laugheth he at the punyshment of the innocent. As for the worlde/he geueth it ouer in to the power of the wycked/ soch as the rulers be/ wherof all landes are full. Is it not so? where is there eny/but he is soch one?

My dayes haue bene more swyfte then a runner: they are gone sodenly/and haue sene no good thynge. They are passed awaye/as the shippes that be good vnder sayle/and as the Aegle that hasteth to the praye. When I am purposed to forget my complaynynges to chaunge my countenaunce/ & to cōforte my selfe: then am I afrayed of all my workes/ for I knowe/ thou fauourest not an euell doer. If I be then a wycked one/why haue I laboured in vayne? Though I washed my selfe with snowe water/& made myne handes neuer so clene/yet shuldest thou dyppe me in the myer/and myne awne clothes shulde defyle me. For he that I must geue answere vnto/and with whom I go to lawe/is not a mā as I am. Nether is there eny dayesman to reproue both the partes/ or to laye his hande betwixte vs. Let him take his rod awaye fro me/yee let him make me no more afrayed of him/and then shall I answere him wythout eny feare. For as longe as I am in soch fearfulnesse/I can make no answere: And why? it greueth my soule to lyue.

b* Here is it good to se that Job presumeth not of his awne ryghtwesnes/ but playnely cōfesseth hym selfe vnryghtwes & a synner before god/ although before the worlde he had lyued blamelesse. God loketh on the herte though men looke but onelyon ye outward apperāce. His aduersaryes thought that he shulde neuer haue had soche a crosse layde on hym/ in lesse then he had also outwardly & openly lyued in wyckednesse. Yet answereth Job in dyuerse places that he therin was not culpable/ & therfore accuseth as it were after the maner of men/the iudgemēt of God/ concernynge soch as are outwardly ryghtwes: & studious to lyue vertuously: namely soche as lyue without blame amonge men/ & that bothe entende & do well to all men/ and yet are wrapped in many myseries and wretchednes often tyme ouer cruell. And herin lyeth the cheke of the cōtrauersy betwyxt Job and his aduersaryes/that Job defendeth hym selfe not to haue deserued his punnishment by his outwarde lyuynge: where as his aduersaryes armed onely with manly and fleashly wytt/thought God to be vnryghtwes/yf he wolde so greuously punnishe him that had not bene an outwarde synner agaynst him. Job/ his conscyence bearynge hym wytnesse/ had lyued innocently and streyghtly/ and hurt no man/had alwayse feared God/& worshypped him onely/ his chyldren also had he nourtred to the feare of God/ and coulde of no man be accused of wyckednes. yet wytnesseth he iustly here (as all the godly do) that he was not vtterly with oute synne/ for other wyse had he bene a lyar. i. Johñ. i. If we saye/ we haue no synne/ we deceaue our selues/and trueth is not in vs. Wherfore in the places where he sayth that he hathe not deserued his punnyshmēt/and that shulde seame to shew him blamelesse knowe/that he speaketh of hys outwarde maner of lyuinge/ not of the inwarde thoughtes and desyers of the heart/wherin he was vndouted an offender.

¶ Job is weery of his lyfe/& setteth out his fragilitie before God. He desyreth tyme to repēt. A descripcō of deeth.

Neuer-

NEuertheleſſe/now will I put forth my wordes: I wyll ſpeake out of ye very heuyneſſe of my ſoule/ & wyll ſaye vnto God: O do not cõdemne me/but ſhewe me the cauſe / wherfore thou iudgeſt me on this maner. Thinckeſt thou it well done/to oppreſſe me/to caſt me of(being a worke of thy handes) and to manteyne the councell of the vngodly? Haſt thou fleſchy eyes then/or doeſt thou loke as man loketh? Are thy dayes as the dayes of man / and thy yeares as mãs yeres? that thou makeſt ſoch inquiſycion for my wickedneſſe/& ſearcheſt out my ſynne? where as(notwithſtandynge) thou knoweſt that I am no wycked perſon/ and that there is no man able to delyuer me out of thyne hande / Thy handes haue made me/& faſhoned me alltogether roũde about/ wilt thou then deſtroye me ſodenly? O remẽbre(I beſeke the) how that thou madeſt me of the moulde of the earth / and ſhalt bringe me to earth agayne.

Haſt thou not milked me/as it were milck: and turned me to cruddes lyke chefe? Thou haſt couered me wyth ſkynne and fleſh / and ioyned me together wyth bones & ſynowes. Thou haſt graũted me lyfe/ & done me good: and the diligent hede that thou tokeſt vpon me/hath preſerued my ſpyrete.

Though thou hydeſt theſe thynges in thine hert yet am I ſure/ that thou remẽbreſt thẽ all. Wherfore dideſt thou kepe me/ when I ſynned/and haſt not clenſed me fro myne offence? If I do wickedly / wo is me therfore: If I be ryghteous/yet darre I not lyft vp my heade: ſo full am I of confuſyon / & ſe myne awne myſery.

Thou hunteſt me out(beynge in heuyneſſe) as it were a Lyon / and troubleſt me oute of meaſure. Thou bringeſt freſh wytneſſes agaynſt me/thy wrath increaſeſt thou vpõ me/ very many are ye plages ye I am in. Wherfore haſt thou brought me oute of my mothers wombe? O that I had peryſched / & ye no eye had ſene me. If they had caried me to my graue/as ſone as I was borne/then ſhulde I be now/as though I had neuer bene.

Shall not my ſhort lyfe come ſoone to an ende? O holde the fro me/let me alone/that I maye eaſe my ſelf a lytle afore I go thyther/ from whence I ſhall not turne agayne. Namely/to that lande of darckneſſe & ſhadowe of death: yee into that darck clowdy lande & deadly ſhadowe/where as is no ordre/but terrible feare as in the darckneſſe.

¶ Job is vniuſtly reprehended of Sophar. God is incomprehenſyble. He is mercyfull to the repentaunte.

¶ The .xi. Chapter.

THen anſwered Sophar the Naamathite/and ſayd: Shulde not he that maketh many wordes/be anſwered? Shulde he that bableth moch/be cõmended therin? Shulde men geue eare vnto ye only? Thou wylt laugh other men to ſcorne / and ſhall no body mocke the agayne? Wylt thou ſaye vnto God: The thing that I take in hande is perfecte/& I am clene in thy ſyght? O that God wolde ſpeake / and open his lippes agaynſt the / that he myght ſhewe the(out of his ſecrete wyſdome) how manyfolde hys Lawe is: then ſhuldeſt thou knowe/that God had forgotten the/ becauſe of thy ſynnes.

His length exceadeth the lenght of the erth/ & his bredth ye bredth of the ſee. Though he turne all thynges vp ſyde downe/cloſe them in/or thruſt them together/who darre check hym therfore?

For it is he that knoweth the vanyte of men: he ſeyth their wyckedneſſe alſo / ſhulde he not then cõſidre it? A vayne body exalteth hym ſelfe/& the ſonne of man is lyke a wyld aſſes foale. If thou haddeſt now a right hert/ and lyfteſt vp thyne handes towarde hym: yf thou woldeſt put awaye the wyckedneſſe which thou haſt in hande/ſo that no vngodlyneſſe dwelt in thy houſe: Then myghteſt thou lyft vp thy face wythout ſhame/ then ſhuldeſt thou be ſure/& haue no nede to feare

Then ſhuldeſt thou forget thy myſery/and thyncke nomore vpon it/then vpon the waters that runne by. Then ſhuld thy lyfe be as cleare as the noone daye / and ſpringe forth as the morninge. C The. xiij. Chapter.

A LO/ all this haue I sene with myne eye/ heard with myne eare/ & vnderstand it. Loke what ye knowe/ that same do I knowe also/ nether am I inferior vnto you. Neuertheles I am purposed to talke with the almyghtie/ & my desyre is to comen with God. As for you/ ye are worckmasters of lyes/ & vnprofytable Phisiciās all to gether. Wolde God ye kepte youre tonge/ that ye myght be takē for wyse men. Therfore heare my wordes/ & ponder the sentence of my lyppes. Will ye make answere for God wyth lyes/ and mayntayne hym with disceate? Will ye accepte the person of God/ & intreate for hym? Shall that helpe you/ when he calleth you to rekoning. Thynke ye to begyle him/ as a man is begyled? He shall punysh you/ & reproue you/ yf ye do secretly accepte any personne. Shall he not make you afrayed/ when he sheweth hym selfe? Shall not hys terrible feare fall vpon you? youre remembraūce shalbe lyke vnto the dust/ & youre pryde shalbe turned to claye. Holde youre tonges now/ and let me speake/ for there is come thinge come into my mynde. *a Wherfore do I beare my flesh in my teth/ & myne soule in myne hādes? Lo/ there is nether comforte nor hope for me/ yf he will slaye me. But yf I shewe & reproue myne awne wayes in his syght/ he is euē the same/ that maketh me whole: & why? there maye no hypocrite come before hym. Heare my wordes/ & ponder my sayinges wt youre eares. *b Beholde/ now haue I prepared my iudgement/ & knowe that I shalbe founde ryghtwes. What is he/ that will go to lawe with me? For yf I holde my tōge/ I shall dye. Neuertheles graunte me two thinges/ and then will I not hyde my selfe from the.

Withdrawe thyne hande frō me/ & let not the fearfull drede of the make me afrayed. And then sende for me to the lawe/ ỹ I maye answere for my selfe: or els/ let me speake/ & geue thou the answere. How greate are my mysdedes & synnes? Let me knowe my trāsgressions & offences. *c Wherfore hydest thou thy face/ and holdest me for thyne enemye? Wilt thou be so cruel & extreme vnto a flyg leafe/ & folowe vpon drye stubble? ỹ thou layest so sharpely to my charge/ & wilt bterly vndo me/ for ỹ synnes of my youth? Thou hast put my fote in the stockes: thou lokest narowly vnto all my pathes/ & marckest the steppes of my fete: where as I (notwithstanding) must consume lyke as a foule carion/ and as a cloth that is moth eaten.

B *a. Wherfore &c. These both are prouerbyally spoken/ of them that offer their lyues to Jeoparby/ and spare not thē selues. For he spareth not hi selfe that teareth his flesshe with his teeth: & agayne he that beareth his soule in his hande/ carryeth it as a thynge ready to be solde/ euē as though he wolde streyght leaue it/ & cast it of.

*b Beholde &c. this is his meaning. The summe of my contēcyon was this/ thus dyd I order and defend my cause agaynst youre reasons: that my hope is to be iustified. Armed with this fayth/ I come without feare vnto iudgemēt He wil not pronounce him vnrightwes that so vnfaynedly hath trusted to his mercye. Hipocrit/ they nyer they are to iudgement the moare the feare: I thenyer I am to deth the more strōg is my hope.

*c. Wherfore hydest thou my face. What the hydinge of hys face meaneth loke Deute. xxxi. d.

C Job describeth the lyfe of a man/ and prophesieth of the resurrecyon. Hope sustayneth the godly/ tyll they obtayne that they loke for.

C The. xiiij. Chapter.

MAn that is borne of a womā/ hath but a shorte tyme to lyue/ & is full of diuerse miseries. He cōmeth vp & falleth awaye lyke a floure. He flyeth as it were a shadowe/ & neuer cōtinueth in one state. Thynkest thou it now well done/ to open thyne eyes vpō soche one/ and to bringe me before the in iudgemēt? Who can make it cleane/ that commeth of an vncleane thinge? No body. The dayes of man are shorte/ the nombre of his monethes are knowne only vnto the. Thou hast apoynted him his boūdes/ he can not go beyonde thē.

Go from him/that he maye rest a lytle: vntyll his daye come/which he loketh for/lyke as an hyrelynge doth.

If a tre be cut downe/there is some hope yet/that it wyll sprout and shute forth the
B braunches agayne: For though a rote be waxen olde & deed in the grounde/ yet when the stocke getteth the sent of water/ it wyll budde/& bringe forth bowes/lyke as whē it was fyrst planted. But as for man/when he is deed/perysshed & consumed awaye/ what becommeth of him? The floudes when they be dryed vp/ & the ryuers when they be emptie/are filled agayne thorow the flowynge waters of the see: but when man slepeth/ he ryseth not agayne/vntill the heauen perish: he shall not wake vp ner ryse out of his slepe

C O that thou woldest kepe me/ and hyde me in ỹ hell/vntyll thy wrath were stylled: & to appoynte me a tyme/wherin thou myghtest a* God remembreth a mā whē he healpeth him. Jere. xv. c a* remembre me. Maye a deed mā lyue agayne? All the dayes of this my pilgremage am I lokyng/whē my chaūginge shall come If thou woldest but call me/I shulde obeye the: only despyse not ỹ worke of thyne awne handes.

D For thou hast nombred all my goynges/ yet be not thou to extreame vpō my synnes. Thou hast sealed vp myne offence/as it were in a bagg: but be mercyfull vnto my wyckednesse. The mountaynes fall awaye at ỹ last/the rockes are remoued out of their place/the waters pearse thorow the very stones by lytle & lytle/the floudes washe awaye ỹ grauell & earth: Euen so destroyest thou the hope of mā in lyke maner. Thou preuaylest agaynst him/so that he passeth awaye: thou chaungest his estate/ & puttest him frō the. Whether his childrē come to worshippe or no/he can not tell: And yf they be mē of lowe degre/he knoweth not. While he lyueth/his flesh must haue trauayle: & whyle the soule is in him/he must be in sorowe.

¶ Eliphas reprehēdeth Job because he ascribeth wysdome & pureues to him selfe. He describeth the curse ỹ falleth on the wycked/rekenyng Job to be one of that nombre.

¶ The. xb. Chapter.

Then answered Eliphas ỹ Themanite/& sayde: * Shulde a wyse mā answer as the scyence of ỹ winde/ & fyll his bely wyth the wynde of the east? Thou reprouest with wordes/ that are nothinge worth: & speakest the thinges/ which can do no good. As for shame/ thou hast set it alyde/ els woldest thou not make so many wordes before God: but thy wyckednesse teacheth thy mouth/ & so thou hast chosen the a craftie tonge. Thyne awne mouth condemneth the/and not I: yee thyne awne lyppes shape the an answere. Art thou the fyrst man/ that euer was borne? Or/ wast thou made before the hilles? hast thou herde the secrete cōcell of God/that all wysdome is to lytle for the? What knowest thou/that we knowe not? What vnderstandest thou/ but we can the same? With vs are olde and aged men/yee soch as haue lyued lōger then thy forefathers.

* That is/ Shulde a wyse man speake vayne wordes/ & shulde he hym selfe be vayne & puft vp with vnprofytable & tryflynge doctrine. The east wynde dryeth vp all thynges/ & therfore by a bely filled with Thynckest thou it a small thynge of the consolacions of God? and are they with the a* lyinge worde. Why doth thyne herte make the so proude? Why standest thou so greatly in thyne awne conceate? Where vnto loke thyne eyes/that thy minde is so puft vp agaynst God & lettest soch wordes go out of thy mouth? What is man/ that he shulde be cleane? what hath he (which is borne of a woman) wherby he myght be knowne to be ryghtuous? Beholde ther is no trust to hys sanctes: yee ỹ very[a]* heauēs are not cleane in his syght. How moch more then an abhominable and vyle man/which [b]* dryncketh wickednesse like water? I will tell the/heare me: I wyll shewe the a thynge/that I know: which wyse men haue tolde/& hath not bene hyd from their fathers: vnto whom only the lande was geuen/that no straunger shulde come amonge them.

The vngodly despayreth all the dayes of his lyfe/& the nōbre of a tyrauntes yeres is vnknowne. A fearfull sounde is euer in hys eares/& when it is peace/ yet feareth he destruccio̅: He beleueth neuer to be delyuered out of darcknesse/the swearde is alwaye before his eyes. Whē he goeth forth to get hys lyuing/he thinckethplanely/that ỹ daye of darcknesse is at hande. Sorow and carefulnesse make him afrayed/& cōpasse him roūde aboute/lyke as it were a kynge wt his hoost redy to ỹ battayll. For he hath stretched out his hande agaynst God/ & armed hym selfe agaynst the Almyghtie. He runneth proudly vpon him/and with a stryffnecke fyghteth he agaynst him: where as he coureth hys face with fatnesse/and maketh his body wellyckynge. Therfore shall his dwelling be in desolate cyties/and in houses which noma̅ inhabiteth/but are become heapes of stones.

He shall not be rich/nether shall his substaunce continue/ner encrease vpon earth. He shall neuer come out of darcknesse/ the flame shall drye vp his braunches/ with the blast of the mouth of God shall he be taken awaye. He wyll nether applye hym selfe to faythfulnes ner treuth/so sore is he disceaued with vanite.

He shall perysh/afore his tyme be worne out/& his hande shall not be grene. He shall be pluckte of as an vntymely grape frō the vyne/& shall let his floure fall/ as the olyue doth

B it/is sygnifyed by a borowed speache/a stomacke or herte/ out of which proceadeth soche false doctryne as dyeth vp the mynde of the soule in trifling out the truethy.

* Some reade/Secret. The whole sentence doth Rabmose thus expoūde. God can yet cōforth the agayne in this lyfe/& regardest thou so lytell his comforthes & takest them for a lye: Other/ thus: Seame the comforthes of men of grauitye bydad & Sophar vnworthye; for the/ & seme they to the lyes.

a. Under the name of the heuens vnderstādeth he the aungelles.

b* To dryncke wyckednesse lyke water/is/ to be fylled with wyckednes: it is a maner of speaking of the Hebrues/ so to dryncke shorefulnes signifyeth to be fylled therwith/after as in ỹ. xxiiij a doth. For the congregacion of ypocrites is vnfrutefull/& the fyre shall cõsume the hou ses of soch/ as are gredy to receaue gyftes. He cõceaueth trauayle/ he beareth myschefe/& his body bringeth forth disceate.

AIob answered/and sayde: I haue oft tymes herde soch things. Miserable geuers of cõforte are ye/ all the sorte of you. Shall not thy bayne wordes come yet to an ende? Or/hast thou yet eny more to saye? I coude speake/ as ye do also. But wolde God/ that youre soule were in my soules steade: then shulde I heape vp wordes agaynst you/ and shake my heade at you. I shulde cõforte you wyth my mouth/and release youre payne with the talkyng of my lyppes. But what shall I do? For all my wordes/my sorow wyll not ceasse: B and though I holde my tonge/yet will it not departe fro me. And now that I am full of payne/and all that I haue destroyed (wherof my wyncles beare wytnesse) there standeth vp a dyssembler to make me answere wyth lyes to my face. He is angrye at me/ he hateth me/& gnasheth vpon me with his teth. Myne enemy skouleth vpõ me w̃ hys eyes.

a* To open their mouthes/ sygnifyeth to threatten with most extreame & cruell punishment/ & to reproue with shamefull and spytefull wordes/ as in the Psal.xxij.c.

They haue a* opened their mouthes wyde vpon me/and smytten me vpon the cheke despytefully/they haue eased thẽ selues for thyr myne aduersite. God hath geuen me ouer to the vngodly/& deliuered me into the handes of the wycked. I was somtyme in wealth/ but sodenly he hath brought me to nought. He hath taken me by the neck/he hath rente me/& set me/ as it were a marck for hym to shute at. He hath cõpased me rounde aboute w̃ his dartes/ he hath wounded my loynes/ and not spared. My bowels hath he poured vpõ the groũd. He hath geuẽ me one woũde vpon another/ and is fallen vpon me lyke a giaunte. I haue sowed a sack cloth vpon my skynne/& lye with my strength in the dust.

b* O erth couer not my bloude/ that is/ as Rabi Abrahã Ezra expoundeth it: hyde not my bloude so but that it be auenged/ let not the auengement therof be vnknowẽ/ but open vnto all mens eyes: as was the auengemẽt of Dathan and Abiram/whom the erth swalowed Num.xvi.c ye maye also expounde it thus/ hyde not my bloude/ but let it testifye and wytnes myne innocencye/ as dyd the bloud of Abell/ of whõ were cadeth his bloude cryed from the erth. Se.iij.b

My face is swollẽ with wepyng/& myne eyes are waxen dymne. Howbeit there is no wyckednesse in my handes/ and my prayer is cleane. b* O earth/couer not my bloud/ & let my cryenge synde no rowme. For lo/ my witnesse is in heauẽ/& he that knoweth me/ is aboue in ỹ heygth. My frendes laugh me to scorne/ but myne eye poureth out teares vnto God. Though a body myght pleate w̃ God/as one man doth with another/yet the nombre of my yeares are come/ and I must go the waye/from whence I shall not turne agayne.

¶The.xvij.Chapter.

MY breth fayleth/my dayes are shortened. I am harde at deathes dore. I haue disceaued no mã/yet must myne eye cõtinue in heuynesse. O deliuer me/and set me by the: who shall then be able to thrust my handes together? Thou hast withholden their hertes frõ vnderstandynge/ therfore shall they not be sett vp on hye. He promyseth hys frendes parte of hys good/but his awne chyldren spẽde it. He hath made me as it were a bywordẽ of the comon people. I am hys gestynge stocke amonge thẽ. My countenaunce is heuy for very anger/& the membres of my body are become lyke a shadow. Vertuous men therfore shall well consydre this/& the innocent shall take ¶ parte agaynst the ypocrite.

The ryghteous wyll kepe his waye/ & he that hath cleane hãdes/wyll euer be strõger & stronger. As for you/turne you/ & get you hence/ for I can not se one wyse mã amõge you. My dayes are past/ my thoughtes are vanyshed awaye/ whych haue vexed myne herte/chaunginge the nyght in to daye/ and D ỹ light into darcknes. Though I tary neuer so moch/yet ỹ graue is my house/and I must make my bed in the darcke. I call corrupciõ my father/& the wormes call I my mother & my syster. What helpeth then my longe taryenge? Or/who wyll fulfyll ỹ thynge/that I loke for? All that I haue/ shall go downe in to the pytt/and lye with me in the dust.

¶The.xviij.Chapter.

A Then answered Baldad ỹ Suhite/ and sayde: when wyll* ye make an ende of youre wordes? Marcke well/& consydre/ we wyll speake also. Wherfore are we counted as beastes/ and reputed so vyle in youre syght? Why destroyest thou thy selfe with anger? Shall ỹ earth be forsaken/ or the stones remoued oute of their place because of the? Shall B not the lyght of the vngodly be put oute? yee ỹ flame of his fyre shall not burne. The lyght shalbe darcke in his dwellynge/& hys candle shalbe put out w̃ him. His presumptuous goinges shall be kepte in/& his awne councell shall cast him downe. For his fete shalbe taken in the nett/ and he shall walke in ỹ snare. His fote shalbe holdẽ in ỹ gilder/ and the thrustie shall catch him. The snare is layed for him in the grounde/and a pitfall in the waye.

* Thou Job & so che as thou.

Fearfulnesse shall make him afrayed on euery syde/ that he shall not knowe/ where to get out. Honger shalbe his substaunce/& myschefe shall hange vpon hym. He shall eate the strength of his skynne/ a* the fyrst borne of death shall eate hys membres. All his comforte & hope shalbe roted out of his dwellynge / very fearfulnesse shall bringe him to the kynge. b* Other men shall dwell in his house (which now is none of his) and brymstone shalbe scatered vpon his habitacion. Hys rotes shalbe dryed vp beneth/and aboue shall his haruest be cutt downe. Hys remembraunce shall perish from the earth/ & his name shall not be prayed in the stretes: he shalbe dryuen from the lyght into darcknesse/and be cast cleane out of the world. He shall nether haue chyldren nor kynskolckes amonge his people/no/ ner eny posterite in his countre: young & olde shalbe astonished at his death. Soch are now the dwellynges of the wycked/and this the place of him that knoweth not God.

a* That is/ an horryble and soddayne deeth. Some reade the prince of deeth.

b* Other/ shall dwell: that is to saye his wyfe with oute him.

Iob answered/& sayde: how longe will ye vexe my mynde/& trouble me with wordes? Lo/ ten tymes haue ye reproued me: are ye not ashamed/for to laugh me so to scorne? yf I go wrõge/I go wrõge to my selfe. But yf ye will enhaunce your selues agaynst me/& accuse me to be a wicked personne because of ỹ shame ỹ is come vpõ me: knowe this then/ ỹ it is God/which hath hãdled me so violẽtly & hath compased me aboute with his scourges. Beholde/though I crye/yet violence is done vnto me/I can not be herde: Though I cõplane/there is none to geue sentence vpõ me. He hath hedged vp my path/ I can not get awaye, he hath set darcknesse in my gate. He hath spoyled me of myne honoure/and takẽ the a* crowne awaye fro my head. He hath destroyed me on euery syde/ and I am vndone: My hope hath he taken awaye fro me/as it were a tre plucte vp by ỹ rote. His wrath is kindled agaynst me/he taketh me/ as though I were his enemy.

His men of warre came together/ which made their waye ouer me/ and beleged my dwellynge rounde aboute. He hath put my brethren farre awaye fro me/& soch as were of myne acquauntance/are become straũgers vnto me. Myne awne kynskolks haue forsakẽ me/& my frẽdes haue put me out of remẽbraunce. The seruauntes & maydẽs of myne awne house take me for a straũger/ & I am be come as an aleaunt in their syght. When I call vpon my seruaũt/he geueth me no answere: no though I praye him with my mouth. Myne awne wyfe maye not abyde my breth/ I am faynte to speake fayre vnto the chyldren of myne awne body. Yee ỹ very derte fooles despyse me/ & whẽ I am gone from them/they speake euell vpon me. All soch as were my most familiers/abhorre me: & they whom I loued best/ are turned against me. My bone hãgeth to my skynne/ & my flesh is awaye/only there is left me the skynne aboute my teth. Haue pyte vpõ me/ haue pyte vpõ me (O ye my frendes) for the hande of the Lorde hath touched me. Why do ye persecute me b* as God/and c* are not satisfyed of my flesshe?

a* Rabi Abraham vnderdandeth by the crowne/ the dignitye that cometh to the ryche by the meanes of their ryches: for all men haue the ryche in honour: although some vnderstande therby his chyldren/ as in the prouer. The crowne of olde men are their chyldres chyldre. Other some/ vnderstande the dignitie that came vnto him of his wysdom & cũnynge. So Job meanynge is/ that of a worshipfull & ryche man/ he is become pore & despyted.

b* The Hebrues reade as they do/ meaning the cruell which are not satisfyed wyth his flesshe: for he wolde he not that his frynds shulde cõtemne him.

c* Are not satisfyed of my flesshe. To eate & be satisfied of a mãnes flesshe/is a borowed speache take both in the good and euell parte. In the good parte it signifyeth to loue/ to iudge frendly/& then at the length to fall to prayenge. In the euell parte/it is cruelly and beastly to misfaye/& (as it were) to teare with spitefull and haynouse wordes.

O that my wordes were written/O that they were put in a boke: wolde God they weere grauẽ wt an yron penne in leade or in stone. For I am sure/ ỹ my redemer lyueth/ & that I shall ryse out of ỹ earth in ỹ latter daye: that I shall be clothed agayne wt thys skynne/& se God in my flesh. Yee I my selfe shall beholde him/ not with other but wyth these same eyes. My reynes are consumed within me/ when ye saye: Why do not we persecute him? we haue founde an occasion agaynst him. But bewarre of the swearde/ for the swearde wylbe auenged of wyckednesse: and be sure/that there is a iudgment.

¶ The .xx. Chapter.

Then answered Sophar the Naamathite/and sayde: For the same cause do my thoughtes cõpell me to answere. And why? my mynde is tossed here and there. I haue sufficyently herde thy checking and reproke/therfore am I purposed to make answere after myne vnderstandyng. Knowest thou not this/ namely: that from the begynnynge (euer sence the creacion of man vpon earth) the prayse of ỹ vngodly hath bene shorte/ and that the ioye of ypocrites continued but the twynckelyng of an eye? Though he be magnifyed vp to ỹ heauen/so that his heade reacheth vnto the cloudes: yet he perisheth at ỹ last lyke dongе: In somoch that they which haue sene hym/ saye: Where is he? He vanyssheth as a dreame/so that he can no more be founde/& passeth awaye as a vysyon in the nyght. So ỹ the eye which sawe him before/getteth now no syght of him/and his place knoweth him nomore. His chyldren go a begynge/ their handes bringe them to sorow & heuynesse.

Frõ his youth his bones are full of vyce/ which shall lye downe wyth hym in ỹ earth. When wyckednesse is swete in his mouth/ he hydeth it vnder his tonge. That he fauoureth/that wyll he not forsake/ but kepeth it close in his throte. The meate ỹ he eateth/ shalbe turned to the poyson of serpentes/ within withyn his body. The ryches that he deuoureth / shall he perbreake agayne / for God shall drawe thē out of his bely. a*he shall sucke ỹ serpētes heed / & ỹ adders tonge shall slaye him: so that he shall nomore se the ryuers & brokes of hony & butter: But laboure shall he / & yet haue nothinge to eate. Greate trauayle shall he make for ryches / but he shall not entoye thē. And why? he hath oppressed the poore / and not helped them: houses hath he spoyled / and not buylded them. Hys bely coude neuerbe filled / therfore shall he perish in his coueteousnesse. He deuoured so gredely / that he left nothyng behinde / therfore his goodes shall not prosperе. Though he had plenteousnesse of euery thynge / yet was he poore / and therfore he is but a wretch on euery syde.

a * He shall sucke the serpētes heed / that is / he shalbe subiect to all cursednesse & suffer all maner sorowe. It is soche a maner of speache as is before in the .xv. b. of dyuchyng wyckednesse.

For though ỹ wicked haue neuer somoch to fill his bely / yet God shall sende his wrath vpon him / and cause hys battayll to raygne ouer him: so ỹ yf he fle the yron weapens / he shall be shott with ỹ stele bowe. The arowe shall be takē forth / and go out at his backe / and a glistering swearde thorow the gall of him / feare shall come vpō him. b* There shall no darcknes be able to hyde hī. And vnkindled fyre shall consume him / and loke what remayneth in hys house / it shall be destroyed. The heauen shall declare his wickednesse / & the earth shall take parte agaynst him. The substaunce that he hath in his house / shalbe taken awaye and perysh / in the daye of the Lordes wrath. This is the porcyon that the wicked shall haue of God / and the heretage that he maye loke for of the Lorde.

b * That is / he cānot hyde him frō perrelles.

¶ The .xxi. Chapter.

Job answered / and sayd: O heare my wordes / & amende your selues. Suffre me a lytle / that I maye speake also / and then laugh my wordes to scorne / yf ye wyll. Is it with a mā / that I make this disputacyon? Which yf it were so / shulde not my spyrete be then in sore trouble? Marck me well / be abasshed / and laye youre hande vpon youre mouth. For whē I ponder & cōsyder this / I am afrayed / and my flesh is smytten with feare. Wherfore do wicked men lyue in health and prosperite / come to their olde age / and increase in ryches? Their chylders chyldren lyue in their sight / & their generacyon before their eyes. Their houses are safe frō all feare / for the rodd of God doth not smyte them. Their bullocke gendreth / & that not oute of tyme: their cowe calueth / and is not vnfrutefull.

They sende forth their chyldrē by flockes / and their sonnes lede ỹ daunce. They beare with them tabrettes and harpes / and haue instrumentes of musyck at their pleasure. They spende their dayes in welthynesse: but sodēly they go downe to hell. They saye vnto God: go from vs / we desyre not the knowledge of thy wayes. What maner of felowe is the Almightie / that we shulde serue him? What profyt shulde we haue / to submytte oure selues vnto hym? Lo / there is vtterly no goodnesse in thē / therfore will not I haue to do with the councell of ỹ vngodly. How oft shall the cādle of the wicked be put out? how oft cōmeth their destruccion vpon thē? O what sorowe shall God geue thē for their parte in his wrath? Yee they shall be euē as chaff before the wynde / and as dust that the storme carieth awaye.

And though God saue their chyldrē from soch sorowe / yet wyll he so rewarde thē selues / that they shall know it. Their awne destruccion and misery shall they se with their eyes / & drincke of the fearfull wrath of the Almighty. For what careth he / what be come of his housholde after hys death? whose monethes passe awaye swyfter then an arowe. In as moch thē as God hath the hyest power of all / who can teach him eny knowlege? One dyeth now when he is mightye & at his best / rich / & in prosperite: euē whē hys *bowels are at ỹ fattest / & his bones full of mary. An other dyeth in sorowe & heuynesse / and neuer had good dayes. Now slepe they both a lyke in the earth / & the wormes couer them. But I knowe what ye thynke / yee & what ye ymagin agaynst me vnrightuously For ye saye: where is the Princes palace? where is the dwellynge of the vngodly: Aske eny mā that goeth by the waye / & (yf ye will not regarde their tokens & dedes) he shall tell you / that the wicked is kepte vnto the daye of destruccyon / and that the vngodly shalbe brought forth in the daye of wrath. Who darre reproue him for his wayes to his face? who rewardeth him for the vngraciousnesse that he doth? Yet shall he be brought to hys graue / and watch amonge the heape of the deed. Then shall he be layne to be buryed amonge the stones by the broke syde. All men must folowe hym / & there are innumerable gone before hym. O how vayne is the comforte ỹ ye geue me? Are not youre answeres cleane contrary to ryght and treuth?

¶ The .xxij. Chapter.

So Eliphas the Themanite gaue answere / & sayde: May a man be compared vnto God in wysdome / though he seme to him selfe / for to be lyke him? What pleasure hath God in ỹ thou art rightuous? Or what doth it profite him/ ỹ thy wayes are perfect? Is he afrayed to reproue the/ & to steppe forth wt the in to iudgment? Cõmeth not this for ỹ great wickednesse/ & for thyne vngracious dedꝛ which are innumerable? Thou hast takẽ ỹ pledge from thy brethrẽ for nought/ & robbed ỹ naked of their clothing: To soch as were weery/ hast thou geuẽ no water to drincke/ thou

B hast withdrawẽ bred frõ ỹ hũgrye: Shulde soch one then as vseth violẽce/ wronge & oppression (doinge all thinge of partialite/ and hauinge respecte of personnes) dwell in the lande? Thou hast sent wyddowes awaye emptie & oppressed the poore fatherlesse.

Therfore art thou cõpased aboute wyth snares on euery syde/ & sodẽly vexed wt feare Shuldest thou thẽse no darcknesse? Shulde not ỹ water floude runne ouer the? Now because ỹ God is hyer then the heauẽs/ & because thou seyst ỹ the starres are so hye/ wilt thou therfore saye: Tush/ how shulde God knowe? Doth his dompnion reach beyonde the cloudes? Tush/ the cloudes couer hym ỹ he maye not se/ for he dwelleth in heauen.
C Well/ thou wilt kepe ỹ olde waye/ that all wicked men haue gone: both olde & yonge/ whose foundaciõ is a rũninge water/ which saye vnto God: go frõ vs/ & after this maner: Tush/ what will the Almightie do vnto vs? where as he (not withstandyng) fylleth their houses wt al good. Which meanynge of the vngodly be farre fro me. For with ioye shall the godly/ and with gladnesse shall the innocent se/ that their increase shall be hewen downe/ and their posterye consumed with fyre.

Therfore reconcile the vnto God/ & be content/ so shall all thinges prospere wt ỹ rightwell. Receaue the lawe at his mouth/ & laye vp his wordꝛ in thyne herte. For yf thou wilt
D turne to ỹ Almightie/ thou shalt stande fast/ & all vnrightuousnesse shall be farre frõ thy dwellynge: He shall geue the an haruest/ which in plenty & aboundaũce shall exceade the dust of the earth/ and the golde of Ophir lyke ryuer stones. Yee the Almightye hys awne selfe shalbe thine haruest/ & the heape of thy money. Then shalt thou haue thy delyte in the Almightie/ & lyft vp thy face vnto God. Then shalt thou make thy prayer vnto him/ & he shall heare the/ & thou shalt kepe thy promyses. Then/ loke what thou takest in hand/ he shall make it to prospere wt the/ and the lyght shall shyne in thy wayes. For who so humbleth hym selfe/ hym shall he set vp: and who so loketh mekely/ shalbe healed. If thou be innocẽt/ he shall saue the: and thorow the vngyltynesse of thyne hãdes shalt thou be delyuered.

Job affirmeth that he bothe knoweth and feareth the power and sentence of the iudge/ & sayth that he hath walked in his ryghtwelnesse.

C The .xxiij. Chapter.

IOb answered/ & sayd: My saying A is yet this daye in bitternes/ & my hãde heuy amonge my gronyngꝛ.
O that I myght fe him and fynde him: O that I myght come before his seate/ to pleate my cause before him/ & to fyll my mouth wt argumẽtes: That I might know/ what answere he wolde geue me: & that I might vnderstande/ what he wolde saye vnto me. Wyll he pleate agaynst me with hys greate power & strẽgth/ or will he leane him B selfe vtterly vpon me? Oh no/ let him not do so wt me. But lett hym geue me lyke power to go to ỹ lawe/ then am I sure to wynne my matter For though I go before/ I fynde him not: If I come behynde/ I can get no knowledge of him: Yf I go on the left syde to prõdre his worckes/ I can not atteyne vnto them Agayne/ yf I go on the right syde/ he hydeth him selfe/ that I can not se hym. But as for my waye, he knoweth it: & tryeth me as the golde in the fyre.

Neuertheles my fete kepe his path/ hys hye strete haue I holden/ and not gone oute of it. I haue not forsaken the cõmaundemẽt C of his lippes/ but loke what he charged me with his mouth/ that haue I shutt vp in my herte. It is he hĩ selfe alone/ who wyll turne him back? He doth as him listeth/ and bryngeth to passe what he will. He rewardeth me in to my bosome/ & many other thynges mo doth he/ as he maye by his power. Thys is D ỹ cause/ that I shrincke at his presence/ for ỹ when I consydre him/ I am afrayed of hym. For in so moch as he is God/ he maketh my herte soft: and seynge that he is Almightye/ he putteth me in feare. Thus can not I gett out of darcknesse/ the cloude hath so couered my face.

C Job describeth the wyckednes of men/ & sheweth what curse belongeth to the wycked.

C The .xxiiij. Chapter.

WOnsyderynge then that there is A no tyme hyd from the Almyghtie/ how happeneth it/ that they which knowe hym/ wyll not regarde his dayes? For some men there be/ that remoue other mens landemarkes: that robbe them of their catell/ and kepe the same for their awne: that dryue awaye ỹ asse of the fatherlesse: that take the wyddowes oxe for a pledge: that thrust the poore oute of the waye/ and oppresse the symple of the worlde together. Beholde/ the wylde asses in the deserte goo by tymes/ as their maner is/ to spoyle: Yee the very wylderneße mynistreth foode for their childrẽ. They reape the corne felde B that

that is not their awne: & gather the grapes out of his vinyarde / whō they haue oppreſſed by vyolence. They are the cauſe that ſo many men are naked and bare/hauynge no clothes to couer them and kepe them from colde: So that when the ſhowers in ỹ moūtaynes haue rayned vpon them/ & they be all wett/they haue none other ſuccoure/but to kepe them amonge the rockes.

They ſpoyle the ſuckinge fatherleſſe chyldrē/and put the pooze in preſon: In ſomoch that they let thē go naked without clothing/ and yet the hungrie beare the ſheeues. The pooze are fayne to labour in their oyle milles/yee and to treade in their wyne preſſes/ & yet to ſuffre thyrſt. The whole cytie cryeth vnto the Lorde with ſyghyng/ the ſoules of ỹ ſlayne make their complaynte: But God deſtroyeth them not for all this / where as they (not withſtandynge) are rebellious and diſobediēt enemyes: which ſeke not his light and waye/ner turne agayne in to hys path.

Tymely in the morynge do they aryſe / to murthur the ſymple and pooze/ & in ỹ nyght they go a ſtealynge. C

The eye of the vngodly is lyke the aduouterer/ ỹ wayteth for the darckneſſe/ & ſayeth thus in hym ſelfe: Tuſh/there ſhall no man ſe me/ & ſo he diſgyſeth his face. In ỹ nyght ceaſon they ſearch the houſes / and hyde thē ſelues in the daye tyme/but will not knowe ỹ light. For as ſoone as the daye breaketh / the ſhadowe of death cōmeth vpon thē / and they go in horrible darckneſſe. The vngodly is very ſwyft: O ỹ his portiō alſo vpō erth were ſwyfter then ỹ runnyng water/which ſuffreth not ỹ ſhipmā to beholde the fayre & pleaſaūt vyneyardz. O ỹ they (for ỹ wickednеſſe which they haue done) were drawen to ỹ hell/ſoner thē ſnowe melteth at the heate.

O that all cōpaſſion vpō thē were forgottē: that their daynties were wormes; that they were cleane put out of remēbraūce/ & vtterly hewē downe lyke an vnfrutefull tre. For they manteyne the barē/ & make thē ỹ they can not beare/ & vnto wyddowes they do no good. They plucke downe ỹ mightie w their power/ & when they them ſelues are gotten vp/they are neuer without feare/as lōge as they lyue. And though they myght be ſafe/ yet they wyll not receaue it / for their eyes loke vpō their awne wayes. They are exalted for a lytle / but ſhortly are they gone/ brought to extreme pouerte / & takē out of the waye: yee & vtterly plucte of/ as ỹ eares of corne. Is it not ſo? Who wyll thē reproue me as a lyar / & ſaye that my wordes are nothynge worth?

The. xxb. Chapter.

THen anſwered Baldad the Suhite & ſayde: Power & feare ys w him aboue/ ỹ maketh peace / ſyttynge in his highneſſe/whoſe men of warre are innumerable/and whoſe lyght aryſeth ouer all. But how maye a mā cōpared vnto God/be iuſtifyed? Or/ how can he be cleane/that is borne of a womā? Behold/ the Moone ſhyneth nothing in cōpariſon to him/and ỹ ſtarres are vncleane in his ſight. How moch more then mā/ ỹ is but corruptiō: & ỹ ſonne of mā/which is but a worme? B

Job ſheweth that man can not helpe God/and proueth it by his myracles.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

JOb anſwered/ & ſayd: O how helpeſt thou ỹ weake? what cōforte geueſt thou vnto hym ỹ hath no ſtrength? Where is ỹ councell ỹ thou ſhuldeſt geue him/which hath no wyſdome? Wilt thou ſo ſhewe thyne excellent ryghtuouſnes? Before whom haſt thou ſpoken thoſe wordes? Who made the breth to come out of ỹ mouth? The giauntes & worthies ỹ are ſlayne/ & lye vnder the worlde w their cōpanions: yee & all they which dwell beneth in the hell are not hyd frō hym/ and ỹ very deſtruccio it ſelfe can not be kepte out of his ſyght. He ſtretcheth out ỹ north ouer the emptie/ & hāgeth the earth vpō nothing. He byndeth the water in his cloudes/ ỹ they fall not downe together. He holdeth back his ſtoule/that it can not be ſene/ & ſpredeth his cloudes before it. B

He hath cōpaſed the waters w certayne bounds, vntyll the daye & night come to an ende. The very pyllers of *heauē tremble & quake at his reprofe. He ſtilleth ỹ ſee with his power/ & thorowe hys wyſdome hath he ſet forth the worlde. With his ſprete hath he garniſhed the heauēs/ & with his hāde hath he wounded the rebellious ſerpent. This is now a ſhorte ſumme of his doynges. But who is able ſufficiētly to rehearce his worckes: Who can perceaue and vnderſtande ỹ thonder of his power. D

*heauē & erth haue properly no pyllers ner any thynge to leayne to ỹ ſhulde ſuſtayne and bere them vp/ as it appereth of the erth/ aboue in this chapter: but Job taketh his ſymilitude of oure erthly buyldinges. becauſe his hearers ſhuld ſo the ſoner vnderſtande him.

The conſtantnes and parfectnes of Job/ & the part of the vnfaythfull with God.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

AND Job proceaded & wente forth in his cōmunicacion/ ſaying: As truly as God lyueth (which hath taken awaye my power fro me) & the Almightye/that hath vexed my mynde: My lippes ſhall talke of no vanite/and my tonge ſhall ſpeake no dyſceate / whyle my breth is in me/ & as longe as the winde (that God hath geuen me) is in my noſtrels. A

God forbidde/ ỹ I ſhulde graunte youre

My ryghtwes dealynge kepe I fast/ which I wyll not forsake: my hert shall not reproue me of my dayes a* .Therfore myne enemy shalbe founde as the vngodly/ & he ỹ taketh parte agaynst me/ as ỹ vnrighteous ¶What hope hath ỹ ypocrite/though he haue greate good / and though God geue him ryches after his hertꝭ desyre? Doth God heare him the soner/ whē he crieth vnto him in his necessite? Hath he soch pleasure and delyte in the Almightie/ ỹ he darre alwaye call vpō God? I wyll teach you in the name of God: and the thinge that I haue of the Almightie/ will I not kepe from you. Behold/ ye sāde in youre awne conceate/ as though ye knew all thynges. Wherfore then do ye go aboute with soch vayne wordes/ sayinge: This is ỹ porcion that the wycked shall haue of God/ & the heretage that Tyrauntes shall receaue of the Almightie. If he get many childrē/ they shall perish with the swearde/ & his posterite shall haue scarcenesse of bred. Loke whō he leaueth behinde him/ they shall dye & be buried/ and no man shall haue pite of his wyddowes. Though he haue as moche money as the dust of the erth/ & raymēt as ready as the claye/ he maye well prepare it: but the godly shall put it vpon hym/ & the innocēt shall deale out ỹ money. His house shall endure as the moth/ and as a boothe that the watch mā maketh. When the rich mā dyeth/ he carieth nothynge with him: he is gone in the twynclinge of an eye. Destruccion taketh holde vpon him as a water floude / & ỹ tēpest stealeth him awaye in ỹ night season. A vehement winde carieth him hence / & departeth: a storme plucketh him oute of hys place. It rusheth in vpon him / and spareth him not/ he maye not escape from the power therof. Then clappe men their hādes at him/ yee & ieast of hī/ whē they loke vpō his place.

a* Understād/ mylle spent. He meaneth that he will not suffre that his cōscyence be fauty/ and that he wyll not haue an euell conscience for mysse spendyng of his lyfe tyme / in which he had lyued moste innocētly.

¶Job sheweth that the wysdome of God is vnsearchable.

¶The.xxviij.Chapter.

THere are places where syluer is molten / & where golde is tryed: where yron is dygged oute of the grounde/ & stones resolued to metall. The darcknes shall once come to an ende/ he can seke out ỹ groūde of all thingꝭ: the stones/ the darcke/ & ỹ horrible shadow. With the ryuer of water parteth he a sunder the straunge people / ỹ knoweth no good neyghbourheade: soch as are rude/ vnmanerly & boystours. He bringeth foode out of ỹ erth/ & that which is vnder/ consumeth he wt fyre. There is founde a place / whose stones are cleane Saphirs/ & where ỹ clottes of ỹ earth are golde. There is a waye also ỹ the byrdes knowe not/ that no vulturs eye hath sene: wherin ỹ proude & hye mynded walke not/ & where no lyon cōmeth. There putteth he his hande vpō the stony rockes/ and ouerthroweth the moūtaynes. Riuers flowe out of the rockes/ & loke what is pleasaunt/ his eye seyth it. Out of droppes bryngeth he greate floudes together/ & the thinge that is hyd bringeth he to lyght. How cōmeth a mā then by wysdome? Where is the place ỹ men kynde vnderstanding? Verely no mā can tell how worthy a thynge she is / nether is she founde in the lande of the lyuinge. The depe sayeth: she is not in me. The see sayeth: she is not with me. She can not be gotten for ỹ most fyne golde/ nether maye ỹ pryce of her be bought with eny moneye. No wedges of golde of Ophir / no precious Onix stones/ no Saphirs maye be cōpared vnto her. No/ nether golde ner Christall / nether swete odours ner golden plate. There is nothing so worthy/ or so excellent/ as once to be named vnto her: for perfecte wysdome goeth farre beyonde them all. The Topas that cōmeth out of Inde/ maye in no wyse be lickened vnto her: yee no maner of apparell how pleasaunt and fayre soeuer it be.

From whēce then cōmeth wysdome? and where is the place of vnderstandynge? She is hyd from the eyes of all men/ yee & frō the fowles of ỹ ayre. Destruccion & death saye: we haue herde tell of her wt oure eares. But God seyth her waye/ and knoweth her place. For he beholdeth the endes of the worlde and loketh vpō all that is vnder heauen. When he weyed the wyndes/ & measured ỹ waters: when he set the rayne in ordre/ and gaue the mightie floudes a lawe? Then dyd he se her/ then declared he her/ prepared her & knewe her. And vnto man he sayde: Beholde/ to feare the Lorde/ is wysdome: & to forsake euell, is vnderstandynge.

¶The.xxix.Chapter.

MOreouer Job proceaded and went forth in his communycacyon/ sayinge: O that I were as I was in ỹ monethes by past / and in the dayes when God preserued me: when hys lyght shyned vpon my head: when I wente after the same light & shynynge euē thorowe the darcknesse. As it stode with me/ when I was welthy & had ynough: when God prospered my house: whē the Almightie was with me: when my housholde folckes stode aboute me: whē my wayes ranne ouer with butter/ and when the stony rockes gaue me ryuers of oyle of oyle: when I wente thorow the citie vnto the gate/and whē they set me a chayre in the strete: whē the young men (as soone as they sawe me) hyd them selues / & when the aged arose/and stode vp vnto me: when the Prynces left of their talking/& layed their hande to their mouth: when the myghty kepte styll their voyce/and when their tonges cleued to the rofe of their mouthes. ¶When all they ỹ hearde me/called me happye: and when all they that sawe me/wyssheo me good. For I delyuered the poore when he cryed / and the fatherlesse that wanted helpe. He that shuld haue bene lost / gaue me a good worde/ and the wyddowes herte prayfed me. And why? I put vpon me*-ryghtuousnes / which couered me as a garmēt / and equyte was my crowne. I was an eye vnto the blinde/and a fote to ỹ lame/I was a father vnto ỹ poore/ and when I knew not their cause/I sought it out diligently. I brake the chaftes of the vnryghtuous / and plucte the spoyle out of their teth.

a. This ryghtwelnes is no nother thyng thā to lyue iustly amōgst mē/ hurtyng no mā & geuyng vnto euery mā that whych belongeth vnto hym Gene. xxx. c. & Psal xv. a Therfore/I thought verely/that I shulde haue dyed in my nest: & that my dayes shulde haue bene as many as the sondes of the see. ¶ For my rote was spred out by ỹ water syde/ & the dew laye vpō my corne. Myne honour encreased more and more/and my bowe was euer the stronger in my hand. Vnto me men gaue eare/me they regarded/& with sylence they tarped for my councell. If I had spokē/ they wolde haue it none other wayes / my wordes were so well taken amonge them. They wayted for me/as the earth doth for ỹ rayne: and gaped vpon me / as the grounde doth to receaue the b*latter shower. ¶When I laughed / they knew well it was not earnest: and this testymony of my countenaūce pleased them nothing at all. ¶When I agreed vnto their waye/I was the chefe/and sat as a Kynge amonge his seruauntes: Or as one that comforteth soche as be in heuynesse.

b*By ỹ latter shower is vnderstand holesome doctryne which causeth iustice & iudgemēt to spring.

¶ The greate dispysynge of men and curse of God that Job sustayneth.

¶ The .xxx. Chapter.

But now they that are myne inferiours and younger then I / haue me in derysyon: yee euen they/whose fathers I wold haue thought scorne to haue set with the dogges of my catell. The power & strēgth of their handes might do me no good/and as for their age/it is spēt and past awaye without any profyt. For very misery and honger/they wente aboute in the wyldernesse lyke wretches and beggers/ pluckyng vp herbes from amonge the bushes/& the Junipers rote was their meate. And when they were dryuen forth/men cried after them / as it had bene after a theefe.

Their dwellynge was beſyde foule brokes/ & yee in the caues & dennes of the earth. Vpon the dreye heeth wente they aboute cryinge/ & in the brome hylles they gathered thē to gether. They were the chyldren of fooles & bylaynes/which are deed awaye frō the world. Now am I their songe / & am become their iesting stock: they abhorre me/they flee farre fro me/ & stayne my face with spetle. For the Lorde hath opened his quyuer/he hath hytt me/& put a brydle in my mouth. Vpon my right hande they rose to gether agaynst me/ they haue hurte my fete/made a waye to destroye me/& my path haue they clene marred. It was so ealy for them to do me harme/ that they neded no man to helpe them. They fell vpō me / as it had bene the breakyng in of waters / & came in by heapes to destroye me. Fearfulnesse is turned agaynst me.

Myne honoure vanysheth awaye more swyftly then wynde/& my prosperite departeth hēce lyke as it were a cloude. Therfore is my mynde poured full of heuynesse/ & the dayes of trouble haue takē holde vpon me. My bones are pearsed thorow in the nyght season/& my synewes take no rest. With all their power haue they chaūged my garmēt/ & gyrded me therwith/as it were w a coate. I am euē as it were claye/& am become like asshes and dust. When I crye vnto the/ thou doest not heare me: & though I stande before the/yet thou regardest me not. Thou art become myne enemye/ & w thy bysolent hande thou takest part agaynst me. In tymes past thou dydest set me vp on hye/as it were aboue the wynde/but now hast thou geuē me a very sore fall. Sure I am/ ỹ thou wylt delyuer me vnto death: where as a lodgynge is prepared for all men lyuynge. Now vse not mē to do vyolēce vnto thē/ that are destroyed all ready: but where hurte is done/ there vse they to helpe. Dyd not I wepe in the tyme of trouble? Had not my soule compassyon vpō the poore? Yet neuertheles where as I loked for good/euell happened vnto me: and where as I wayted for lyght / there came darcknesse. My bowels seeth within me/ & take no rest/ for the dayes of my trouble are come vp on me. Mekely & lowly came I in/ yee & without any displeasure: I stode vp in the congregacyon/and cōmuned with them. But now I am a companyon of dragons/ & a felowe of Estriches. My skynne vpon me is turned to black/and my bones are brent with heate: my harpe is turned to sorow/ & my pype to weppynge.

a* To make a couenaũt with his eyes / is / to mortifye the cõcupiscẽce of the hert / that commeth by the meanes of the eye: which is to plucke out the eye / as is sayde Mat. v. e.

I a* Made a couenaunt with myne eyes / that I wolde not loke vpon a damsell. For how greate a porciõ shal I haue of God frõ aboue? & what enheritaunce frõ the almyghtye on hye? As for the vngodly & he that ioyneth him selfe to the cõpany of wycked doers shall not destruccion & mysery come vpon hym? Doth not he se my wayes / & tell all my goynges. If I haue cleued vnto banyte or yf my fete haue runne to dysceaue: let me be weyed in an euen balaunce / that God may se my innocency. If so be that I haue withdrawne my fote out of ỹ ryght waye / yf my hert hath folowed myne eye syght / yf I haue stayned or defiled my hãdes: O then is it reyson that I sowe / and another eate / yee that my generacion and posterite be cleane roted out. O that I had one whych wolde heare me. Lo / this is my cause. Let the almyghty geue me answere: & let hym that is my contrary party / sue me with a lybell. Then shall I take it vpon my shulder / & as a garlande about my head. I haue told the nõber of my goinges / & delyuered them vnto hym as to a Prynce. But yf case be that my c* lande crye agaynst me / or that the forowes therof make any cõplaynte: yf I haue eatẽ the frutes therof vnpayed for / yee yf I haue greued any of ỹ plowmen: then let thystles growe in steade of my wheate / & thornes for my barlye.

c* The lande cryeth agaynst hym / when the housband men defrauded of their wages crye therfore agaynst hym: so the hyre of the workemen crieth. Jaco. v. a And the forowes make lamẽtacyõ / whẽ they that plowe the ground & make the forowes / are deprined of their duti.

C Here ende the wordes of Job.

C Eliu after the other had fynyshed their communycacyon / reproueth them of folyshnes. Age maketh not a man wyse / but the spyrite of God.

C The .xxxij. Chapter.

SO these thre men wolde stryue no more with Job / because he helde hym selfe a ryghtuous man. But a* Eliu the sonne of Barachell the Bussite of the kinred of Ram / was very sore displeased at Job / that he called him selfe iust before God. And with Jobs thre fryndes he was angry also / because they had founde no reasonable answere to ouercome hym. Now taried Eliu tyll they had ended their cõmunicacyon with Job / for why they were elder then he. So when Eliu the sonne of Barachel the Bussite sawe / ỹ these thre men were not able to make Job answere / he was myscontent: so that he gaue answere him selfe / & sayde: C Consydring / that I am yonge / & ye be men of age / I was afrayed / & durst not shewforth my mynde / for I thought thus within my selfe: It becommeth olde men to speake / & the aged to teache wisdome. Euery mã (no doute) hath a mynde / but it is the inspiracyõ of the Almighty that geueth vnderstanding. All mẽ are not wyse / nether doth euery aged C man man vnderstande the thinge that is lawfull. Therfore wyll I speake also (in so farre as I maye be hearde) & wyll shew you myne oppynyon. For when I had wayted tyll ye made an ende of youre talkynge/and hearde youre wysdome/what argumētes ye made in your communycacyon: yee when I had dylygētly pondred what ye sayde I founde not one of you that made any good argument agaynst Job / or that directly coude make answere vnto his wordes: lest ye shulde prayse youre selues/to haue foūde out wysdome: because it is God that hath cast hym out / & no man.

D Neuertheles/seynge he hath not spokē vnto me/therfore wyll not I answere hym as ye haue done (for they were so abashed/that they coude not make answere / nor speake one worde) but in so moche as ye wyll not speake / standynge styll lyke dom men / and makynge no answere: I haue a good hope for my parte to shappe him an answere/and to shewe him my meanyng. For I am full of wordes/& the spyrete that is within me/ compelleth me.

Beholde/I am as the new wyne / which hath no vente / and bursteth the newe vessels in sunder. Therfore wyll I speake/that I may haue a vente: I will opē my lyppes/& make answere. I will regarde no maner of personne/no mā will I spare. For yf I wold go aboute to please men/I knowe not how sone my maker wolde take me awaye.

¶ The.xxxiij. Chapter.

A Wherfore heare my wordes (O Job) & herken vnto me all/that I wyll saye: Beholde / I wyll open my mouth/and my tonge shall speake out of my chawes. My hert shall ordre my wordes a ryght/ & my lyppes shall talke of pure wisdome. The spyrite of God hath made me/& the breth of the almyghtye hath geuen me my lyfe. If thou canst/ then geue me answere: prepare thy selfe to stande before me face to face. Beholde/before God am I euen as thou/for I am fashyoned and made euen of the same moulde. Therfore / thou nedest not be afrayed of me / nether nedest thou to feare / that my auctoryte shalbe to heuy for

B the. Now hast thou spoken in myne eares/& I haue herde the voyce of thy wordes: I am clene without any faute / I am innocent/& there is no wickednes in me. But lo/he hath pyked a quarell agaynst me/& taketh me for his enemy: he hath put my fote in ỹ stockes/ & loketh narowly vnto all my pathes. Beholde / vnto these vnreasonable wordes of thyn wyll I make answere.

Shulde God be reproued of man? Why doest thou then stryue agaynst him/because he geueth the no accōptes of all his doynges? For when God doth once cōmaunde a thing there shulde no man be curyous / to searche whether it be ryght. In dreames & bysyōs of the nyght season (when slombringe cōmeth vpō men/ỹ they fall a slepe in their beddes) he rowndeth thē in the eares/he infourmeth them/and sheweth them playnely / that it is he/which withdraweth man from euyll/ delyuereth hym from pryde/ kepeth hys soule from destrucciō/& his lyfe from the swearde. He chasteneth hym with sycknesse/and bringeth hym to his bed: he layeth sore punyshement vpon hys bones/so that hys lyfe maye awaye with no bred / & his soule abhorreth to eate any dayntye meate: In so moche that his body is cleane consumed awaye/and his bones appeare no more. Hys soule drawethon to destruccyon/& hys lyfe to death. Now yf there be a* messenger (one amōge a thousande) sent for to speake vnto man/ and to shewe hym the ryght waye: then the Lorde is mercyfull vnto hym / & sayeth: Ye shalbe delyuered/that he fall not downe to destruccyon/for I am sufficyently recōcyled. Than hys flesh (which hath bene in mysery & trouble) shalbe as it was in hys youth. For yf he submytte hym selfe vnto God / he is gracyous/and sheweth hym hys countenaūce ioyfully/and rewardeth man for his rightuousnes. Soche a respecte hath he vnto men. Therfore let a man confesse (and saye) I offended/ but he hath chastened and reformed me: I dyd vnryghtuously / neuertheles he hath not recompensed me therafter. Yee he hath delyuered my soule from destruccyon/ and my lyfe/that it seith the lyght. Lo/thus worcketh God allwaye with man / that he kepeth hys soule from perysshynge/ and letteth hym enioye the lyght of the lyuynge. Marcke well (O Job) and heare me: holde the styll/vntyll I haue spoken. But yf thou hast any thynge to saye / then answere me/ and speake/for thy answere pleaseth me. If thou hast nothinge/then heare me/and hold thy tonge/so shall I teache the wysdome.

* That is/an instructor vnto the worde of God.

¶ Eliu prayseth the iustyce of God (whych iudgeth the worlde/and gouerneth all.

¶ The.xxxiiij. Chapter.

A Eliu proceading forth in his communycacyon / sayde: Heare my wordes (O ye wyse men) herken vnto me/ye that haue vnderstandynge. For lyke as the mouth tasteth ỹ meates / so the eare proueth and discerneth the wordes. As for the iudgement/let vs seke it out out amõge oure selues/that we may knowe what is ryght. And why? Job hath sayde: I am ryghtuous/but God doth me wronge. I must neades be a lyer/ though my cause be right/and violently I am plaged where as I made no fawte: where is there soche one as Job/ ẏ dryncketh vp scornefulnes like water? which goeth in the cõpany of wycked doers/ & walketh with vngodly men? For he sayeth: Though a man be good/yet is he naught before God. Therfore herken vnto me/ ye that haue vnderstandynge.

Farre be it from God/that he shuld medle with wickednesse: and farre be it from the almighty e/ ẏ he shulde medle with vnrighteous dealynge: but he rewardeth the workes of man/and causeth euery man to finde accordinge to his wayes. For sure it is/ /that God condemneth no man wrongously/ and the iudgement of the Allmyghtye is not vnrightuous. Who ruleth ẏ earth in his steade? Or/whom hath he sett to gouerne the whole worlde? To whom hath he geuen hys herte/ for to drawe his spyrete and breth vnto hym? All flesh shall come to gether vnto naught/ & all men shall turne agayne vnto earth. If thou now haue vnderstandynge/heare what I saye/ & herken to the voyce of my wordes.

Saye he be made whole / that loueth no ryght? If thou were a very innocent man/ shuldest thou then be punyshed? For he is euen the same/ that knoweth the rebellions kynges/ & sayeth to Princes: Vngodly men are ye. He hath none respecte vnto the per-
C sonnes of the lordly/ & regardeth not the rych more then poore. For they be all the worcke of his handes. In the twynckl inge of an eye shall they be slayne: & at mydnight/ when the people & the tyrauntes rage/ then shall they perysh/ & be taken awaye without handes. And why? hys eyes loke vpon the wayes of man/and he seyth all his goynges. There is no darcknes nor thycke shadowe / that can hyde the wycked doers frõ hym. For no man shalbe suffred to go into iudgemẽt with God.

Many one/yee innumerable doth he punyshe/and setteth other in their steades. For he knoweth their euell & darcke worckes/ therfore shall they be destroyed. They that were in the steade of Sears/ dealt lyke vngodly men. Therfore turned they back trayterously & vnfaythfully from hym / & wolde not receaue his wayes. In so moch that they haue caused the voyce of the poore to come vnto hym/ & now he heareth the complaynte of soche as are in necessite. If he delyuer and graũte pardõ/ who will iudge or condemne? But yf he hyde awaye his coũtenaũce/ who wyll turne it aboute agayne/ whether it be D to the people or to any mã? For the wyckednesse and synne of the people/ he maketh an ypocryte to reygne ouer them. For so moch then as I haue begonne to talke of God/ I wyll not hynder the. If I haue gone a mysse/ enfourme me: yf I haue done wronge/ I will leaue of. Wylt thou not geue a reasonable answere? Art thou afrayed of any thynge/ seinge thou begannest fyrst to speake/ & not I? For els the men of vnderstandynge & wysdome/ that haue herde me/ might saye: What canst thou speake? As for Job he hath nether spoken to the purpose nor wisely. O father/ let Job be well tryed / because he hath turned hym selfe to the wycked: yee aboue hys synnes he hath blasphemed / which offence he hath done euen before vs/ in that he stryueth agaynst God with his wordes.

C Nether doth godlynesse profet/or vngodlynes hurt to God but to man.

C The .xxxv. Chapter.

Eliu spake more ouer / and sayde:
A Thynkest thou it ryght that thou sayest: I am ryghtuous before God? Seinge thou sayest so/ how doest thou knowe it? What thinge hast thou more excellẽt then I/ ẏ am a synner? Therfore wyll I geue answere vnto the and thy fryndes: loke vnto the heauen / & beholde it: consyder the cloudes/ how they are hyer then thou. If thou synnest/ what doest thou vnto
B hym? If thyne offences be many/ how gettest thou his fauoure? If thou be rightuous what geuest thou hym? Or what receaueth he of thy handes? Of soche an vngodly personne as thou/ & of the sonne of man that is ryghtuous as thou pretendest to be: there is a greate cry & cõplaynte made by them that are oppressed with violence/ yee euery man complayneth vpon the cruell arme of tyrauntes. For soche one neuer sayeth: Where is
C God that made me? & that shyneth vpon vs/ ẏ we myght prayse him in the night? Which geueth vs more vnderstanding then he doth the beastes of the earth/ & teacheth vs more then the foules of heauen.

If any soche complayne/ no man geueth answere/ & that because of the wyckednesse of proude tyrauntes. But yf a man call vpõ God / doth not he heare hym? Doth not the almyghtye accepte hys crye? When thou
D speakest then/ shulde not he pardon the / yf thou open thy selfe before hym/and put thy trust in him? Then vseth he no violence in his wrath/ nether hath he pleasure in curyous & depe inquysiciõs. Therfore hath Job opened his mouth but in vayne / & folyshly hath he made so many wordes.

C Eliu sheweth wherfore God punysheth and correcteth.

C The .xxxvj. Chapter

Eliu

Eliu proceaded forth in his talkīg & sayde: Holde the styll a lytle/ & I shall shewe the/ what I haue yet to speake on Godes behalfe. I wyll open vnto the yet moze of myne vnderstandynge/ and proue my maker righteous. True are my wozdes/ & no lye: & the knowledge wher with all I argue agaynst the/ is perfecte. Beholde/ God caſteth not awaye ỹ mightye/ foz he him selfe is mighty in power and wysdome.

As foz the vngodly/ he pzeserueth thē not/ but helpeth the pooze to their right. He turneth not his eyes awaye frō the righteous/ he setteth vp kynges in their trone/ and confirmeth them/ so that they allwaye sytt ther
B in. But yf they be layed in pzeson and cheynes/ oz bounde with the bondes of pouerte: then sheweth he them their wozckes & dedes & the synnes wherwith they haue vsed cruell vyolence.

a.* With punishing & nurturyng to rounde them in the eares/ is/ to bzig thē to ỹ knowledge of their synnes/ and to cause thē to be persuaded in thē selues/ that they be punyshed foz them.

a* Hewith punishynge and nurtringe of them/ rowndeth them in the eares/ warneth them to leaue of from their wyckednesse/ & to amende. If they now wyll take hede and be obedient/ they shall were out their dayes in pzosperite/ and their yeares in pleasure & ioye. But yf they wyll not obeye/ they shall go thozow the swearde/ & perish oz euer they be awarre. As foz soche as be fayned/ dissemblers and ypocrites/ they heape vp wzath foz thē selues: foz they call not vpō hym/ though they be his pzesoners. Thus their soule perissheth in folyshnesse/ and their lyfe with the condemned. The pooze deliuereth he out of his straytenesse/ & comfozteth soche as be in necessyte and trouble. Euen so shall he kepe the (yf thou wylt be content) from the bottomlesse pytte that is benethe: and yf thou wilt holde the quyete/ he shall fyll thy table with plenteousnesse.

Neuertheless thou hast condemned the
C iudgement of the vngodly/ yee euen soche a iudgemēt and sentence shalt thou suffre. Foz then shall not thy cause be stilled with cruelte/ noz pacyfyed with many gyftes. Hath God ozdened then/ that the glozyous lyfe of the/ & all soch mighty men shulde not be put downe: Pzolōge not thou the tyme/ tyll ther come a nyght foz the/ to set other people in thy steade. But bewarre that thou turne not aſyde to wickednesse and synne/ which hither to thou hast chosen moze then mekenesse. Beholde/ God is of a myghtye hye power: Where is there soche a gyde and lawe geuer as he: Who wyll repzoue hym of his waye: who will saye vnto hī: thou hast done wzōg:

D O consydze how greate and excellent his wozckes be/ whom all men loue and pzayse: yee wondze at hym/ and yet they se hym but afarre of. Beholde/ so greate is God/ that he passeth oure knowledge/ nether are we able to come to the experience of his yeares. He turneth the water to small dzoppes/ he dzyueth his cloudes to gether foz to rayne/ so ỹ they poure downe and dzoppe vpon men. He can spzede out the cloudes (a couerynge of his tabernacle) and cause hys lyght to shyne vpon them/ & to couer the botome of the see. By these thinges gouerneth he hys people/ & geueth them aboundaunce of meate. In ỹ turnyng of a hande he hydeth the lyght/ & at hys commaundement it commeth agayne. The rysing vp therof sheweth he to his frendes and to the catell.

¶ The. xxxvij. Chapter.

At this/ my hert is astonned/ & moued out of his place. Heare then ỹ sounde of his voyce/ & the noyse ỹ goeth out of his mouth. He gouerneth euery thing vnder the heauē/ & his light reacheth vnto the ende of the wozlde. A roaringe voyce foloweth him: foz his glozious maiesty geueth soche a thondze clappe/ that (though a man heare it) yet maye he not perceaue it afterwarde. It geueth an hozryble sownde/ when God sendeth oute hys voyce: greate thinges doth he/ which we can not cōpzehende. When he cōmaundeth the snowe/ it falleth vpon the erth: As soone as he geueth the rayne a charge/ immedyatly ỹ showers haue their strength/ and fall downe. He sendeth feare vpon euery man/ that they
B might knowe their awne wozckes. The beestes crepe into their dēnes/ & take their rest. Out of the south commeth the tempest/ and colde out of the nozth.

At the* a bzeth of God/ the frost cōmeth/ & the waters are shed abzode. The cloudes do their labour in geuing moystnesse/ the cloudes poure doune their rayne. He dystrybuteth also on euery syde/ acozdinge as it pleaseth him to deale out his wozckes/ that they maye do/ whatsoeuer he cōmaundeth them thozow the whole wozlde: whether it be to punysh any lande/ oz to doo good vnto them/ that seke hym.

a* The bzeth of God here signifieth a strōge and vehement wynd/ as is the nozth wynde.

Herken vnto this (O Job) stand styll/ and C considze the wondzous wozckes of God. Art thou of councell wyth God/ when he doth these thinges: When he causeth the lyght to come forth of hys cloudes: Art thou of hys councell/ when he spzedeth out the cloudes: Hast thou the perfecte knowledge of hys wonders: and how thy clothes are warme/ when the lande is styll thozow the South wynde: Hast thou helped hym to spzeade out the heauen/ which is to loke vpon/ as it were were cast of cleare metall? Teache vs what we shall saye vnto hym / for we are vnmete

D because of darcknes. Shall it be tolde hym what I saye? Shuld a man speake / or shulde he kepe it backe? For euery man seyth not the light / that he kepeth cleare in ỹ cloudes / which he clenseth whan he maketh ỹ wynde to blowe. Golde is brought out of ỹ North / but the prayse & honoure of Gods feare cõmeth from God hym selfe. It is not we that can fynde out the almyghtye: for in power / equite / & righteousnesse / he is hyer than can be expressed. Seinge then ỹ euery body feareth hym / why shulde not all wyse men also stande in feare of hym.

THen spake the Lord vnto Job out of the storme / & sayde: what is he that hydeth his mynde with folysh wordes? Gyrde vp thy loynes lyke a man / for I will question the / se thou geue me a directe answere. Where wast thou / whẽ I layde the foundacyõs of ỹ earth? Tell planely yf thou hast vnderstanding. Who hath measured it, knowest thou? Or / who hath spreade ỹ lyne vpõ it? Where vpõ stande the pylers of it? Or / who layed ỹ corner stone?
*a. he sayth not that heauẽ was made before the earth / but whẽ his godly wysdome made the / he sayth he had a dwelling place and that he neaded no erthly mãsyon: for then was he praysed of the angels / which here are called the chyldren of God. He meaneth also that there was no man by or helped hym / when he made the starres and created the intellectuall and spirituall natures.
*a Where wast thou / whẽ the morntg starres praysed me to gether / and all the chyldren of God reioyced tryumphantly? Who shut the see with dores / whẽ it brake forth as a chyld out of hys mothers wombe? When I made the cloudes to be a couering for it / & swadled it with the darcke? when I gaue it my commaundement / making dores & barres for it / sayng: Hither to shalt thou come / but no forther / & here shalt thou laye downe thy proud & hye waues. Hast thou geuen the morning his charge (as soone as thou wast borne) & shewed the daye spring his place / ỹ it might take holde of the corners of the earth / & that ỹ vngodly might be shakẽ out? Their tokẽs & weapẽs hast thou turned lyke claye / & sett thẽ vp agayne as the chaũging of a garmẽt. Yee thou hast spoyled the vngodly of their lyght / & brokẽ the arme of ỹ proude. Camest thou euer into the grounde of the see: or hast thou walked in the lowe corners of the depe? Haue the gates of deeth bene opened vnto the / or hast thou sene the dore of euerlastyng treasure? Hast thou also perceaued how broade ỹ earth is? Now yf thou hast knowledge of all / then shew me where light dwelleth / & where darcknes is: that thou mayest bringe vs vnto their quarters / yf thou canst tell the waye to their houses.

¶ Knewest thou (whẽ thou wast borne) how olde thou shuldest be? Wentest thou euer in to the threasuries of the snowe / or hast thou sene the secrete places of the hayle / which I haue prepared agaynst the tyme of trouble / agaynst the tyme of batell and warre? By what waye is the lyght parted / and the heate dealt out vpon the earth? Who deuydeth the aboundaunce of waters into ryuers / or who maketh a waye for the stormy wether / that it watereth & moysstureth the drye and baren grounde: to make the grasse growe in places where no body dwelleth / and in the wylderness where no man remayneth? Who is the father of rayne? Or who hath begotten the droppes of dewe? Out of whose wõbe came the yse? Who hath gendred the coldnes of the ayre? that ỹ waters are as harde as stones / and lye congeled aboue the depe. Hast thou brought ỹ .vij. starrs to gether? Or art thou able to breke the circle of heauẽ? Canst thou

Moreouer / cãst thou lyft vp thy voyce to the cloudes / ỹ they maye powre downe a greate rayne vpõ the? Canst thou thondre also that they maye go their waye / & be obediẽt vnto the / saying: Lo here are we. Who geueth sure wysdome or stedfast vnderstandinge? who nombreth the cloudes in wysdome? who stylleth the vehement waters of the heauen? who turneth the clottes to dust / & then to be clottes agayne? Hunteste thou the praye frõ the lyõ / or fedest thou his welpes lying in their dẽnes / & lurking in their couches? who prouideth meate for the rauẽ / when his younge ones crye vnto God / & fle aboute for want of meate?

Who

Jere.l.b. WHo is able to stande before me? Or/who hath geuē me any thing afore hande/ that I am bounde to reward him agayne? All thinges vnder heauē are myne. I feare him not/whether he threatē or speake fayre. Who lyfteth him vp/& stripeth him out of his clothes/or who taketh hym by the bytt of hys bridle? Who openeth ỹ dore of his face? for he hath B horrible tethe round aboute. His body is couered with scales as it were with shyldes/ lockte in/kepte/& well compacte together. One is so ioyned to another/ỹ no ayre can come in: Yee one hangeth so vpon another/ & stycketh so together/ỹ they cā not be sundered. His nesinge is lyke a glystering fyre/ & his eyes lyke the morninge shyne. Out of his mouth go torches & fyre brandes/out of his nostrels ther goeth a smoke/ lyke as out C of an hote sething pot. His breth maketh ỹ coales burne / the flamme goeth out of hys mouth. In his necke remayneth strength/ & before hys face sorowe is turned to gladnesse. The membres of hys body are ioyned so strayte one to another / and cleue so fast together/that he can not be moued.

His hert is as herde as a stone/& as fast as the stithye that the hammer man smyteth vpon. When he goeth: the myghtiest of all are afrayed/& the waues heuy. If he drawe out the swearde / there may nether speare/ ner brest plate/abyde hym. He setteth as moche by a strawe as by yrō / and as moche by a rotten stocke as by metall. He starteth not awaye for him that bendeth the bowe: & as for synge stones/he careth as moche for D stubble as for them. He counteth the hāmer no better then a strawe/ he laugheth hym to scorne that shaketh the speare. He treadeth the golde in ỹ myre lyke the sharpe pot sherdes. He maketh the depe to seethe and boyle lyke a pot/and stereth the see together lyke an oyntment. The waye is lyght after him/the depe is his walkynge place. Upon erth is there no power lyke vntohys / for he is so made that he feareth not. If a man will consydre all hye thinges/this same is a king ouer all the chyldren of pryde.

C The repentaūce of Job. He prayeth for his frindes/ & his goodes are restored double vnto hym.

C The.xlij.Chapter.

Esai.xxxiij.c. i.Reg.xvi.b. AThen Job answered the Lorde / and sayd: I knowe that thou hast power ouer all thinges/& ỹ there is no thought hyd vnto the. For who can kepe his awne councell so secrete/ but it shalbe knowne? Therfore haue I spoken vnwysely / seynge these thinges are so hye/ & passe myne vnderstandyng. O herken thou vnto me also/ & let me speake: answere vnto the thinge that I wyll aske the. I haue geuen diligent eare vnto the/ & now I se the w̄ myne eyes. Wherfore I geue myne awne selfe the blame/ & take repentaūce in ỹ dust and asshes.

Now when the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto Job/he sayde vnto Eliphas the Themanite: I am displeased with the & thy two frendes/for ye haue not spoken ỹ thing B that is ryght before me/lyke as my seruaūt Job hath done. Therfore take.vij.oxen & .vij rammes/and go to my seruaunt Job / offre vp also for youre selues a brentoffringe: and Marc.v.c. let my seruaūt Job praye for you. Him will I accepte/& not deale with you after youre folyshnesse: in that ye haue not spoken the thinge which is ryght/ lyke as my seruaunt Job hath done.

So Eliphas the Themanite/ Baldad ỹ Suhite & Sophar the Naamathite wente their waye/and dyd accordyng as the Lorde C cōmaunded thē. The Lorde also accepted ỹ persōne of Job/and the Lorde turned hym vnto Job/whē he prayed for his frindes: Yee the Lorde gaue Job twyse as moche as he had afore.

And then came there vnto him all his brethren/all his systers/with all them that had bene of his acquaintaunce afore/ & ate bred with him in hys house/wondring at hym/ & com fortynge hym ouer all the trouble/ that the Lorde had brought vpon hym. Euery man gaue him a shepe and a Jewell of gold.

And the Lorde made Job rycher then he D was before: for he had.xiiij.M. shepe.vj.M. camels/a.M.youck of oxē/& a.M. asshes. He had chyldren also.vij.sonnes & .iij. doughters. After this lyued Job.xl.yeares/so that he sawe his childrē/& hys childrēs children to the fourth generacyon. And so he dyed/ beinge olde & of a perfecte age.

¶ Those that forsake the councelles and tradycyons of the wycked/and wholly geue them selues to knowe the lawe of God/and to shewe it in their lyuyng: doth thys Psalme pronounce blessed/ bothe here & in the A worlde to come: and the contrarye parte/in both the worldes/mysserable and wretched.

a* The waye of synners/is/ their maners & ordynaunces/ in whych they walcke/ as it were in a waye. Waye in the scripture is taken for whatsoeuer we do or go aboute/be it good or euyll/ as in the last verse of thys Psalme.

Blessed is the man/ that goeth not in the councell of the vngodly: that abydeth not in a* the waye of synners/ b* and sytteth not in the seate of the scornefull.

But delyteth in the lawe of the Lorde/ & exercyseth hym selfe in his lawe/bothe daye and nyght.

Soche a man is lyke a tre planted by the waterlyde/ that bryngeth forth his frute in due season.

His leaues shall not fall of/ & loke what soeuer he doth/it shall prospere.

As for the vngodly/it is not so with them: but they are lyke the dust/ which the wynde scatereth awaye from of the grounde.

Therfore ỹ vngodly shall not be able c* to stande in the iudgement/nether the synners in the congregacyon of the ryghtuous.

For the Lorde alloweth the waye of the ryghtuous/but ỹ waye of the vngodly shall perysshe.

b* Tolytt in ỹ seate of ỹ scornefull/is/to cõspire with thẽ/ & to become fellowes of their mysscheefe: as in the Psal. rrv.b

c* To stãd in iudgement/is/ to wynne the processe/and to haue sentence: pronounced on their sydes: as to robbe iudgement/is/ to let the processe/& to haue sentence pronounced agaynst ryght & trueth. Esa.v.a. So then this text meaneth no more/but that the wycked shall haue sorche a terrible sentence geuen vpon them/that they shall not be able to abyde/when the Lorde shall come to the generall iudgemẽt: it meaneth not that the wycked shall not appeare in the iudgement.

¶ The.ij. Psalme.

¶ They that knowe not God are moued agaynst the kyngdome of Christ with wonderfull intentes/ but in vayne: yet runneth their rage thorow the whole worlde. The only waye to healthe is to cõmit thy selfe to Christ.

Notwithstandynge dyuers Authoures do dyuersly interprete it. Some saye that it signyfieth / To the victour or ouercomer: some / to the victorye: which maye thus agree and concorde together yf thou take a Psalme to be a stirrynge & exhortacyon to put oure trust in God / being sure to obtayne the victorye: And where some interprete / vnto the ende / vnderstande euen the same: for therfore do we put oure trust in God / that we may come to the ende of the victorye. Some translate the tytle thus: A vehement and often made exhortacion in instrumentes of musyke / a Psalme to Dauid / that is / as they them selues expounde it: a Psalme reuelate to Dauid / for Dauid is in Hebrue the datyfe case not the genytyfe.

b* Neginoth sygnyfyeth the tune or note of the instrumentes wher after the Psalmes before whych it is prefyxed / were songe: for the Psalmes were songe at certen instrumentes / but so that the swete tune & melodye of the instrumẽtes prepared the mynde more perfectely to perceaue the wordes of the holy dytye.

HEare me when I call / O God of my ryghtuousnes: thou that cõfortest me in my trouble: haue mercy vpon me / & herken vnto my prayer. A

O ye sonnes of men / how longe wyll ye blaspheme myne honour? why haue ye soch pleasure in vanyte / and seke after lyes? Selah.

There be many that saye: who wyll do vs any good? Lorde c* lyft vp vpon vs the lyght of thy countenaunce.
Thou reioycest myne herte / though their encreace be greate both in corne & wyne.
Therfore wyll I laye me downe in peace / and take my rest: for thou Lorde only settest me in a sure dwellynge.

A prayer of Dauid.

HEare the right (O Lord) cōsidre my cō playnte: herken vnto my prayer/ that goeth not out of a fayned mouth.

Let my sentence come forth frō thy pre sence: & loke vpon the thinge that is equall.

Thou hast proued & vysyted myne herte in the nyght season: thou hast tryed me in the a* fyre: & hast founde no wickednes in me: for I vtterly purposed that my mouth shuld not offende.

The. xxiiij. Psalme.

When the Lorde had shewed vnto Dauid that the threshyng flour of Ornan ỹ Jebusyte/ which was in the hyll Moria/ was the place where he wolde haue a temple buylded for hym/ Dauid monyshed with the syngular goodnes of God towarde the Israelites amongest whō he had chosen hym a dwellyng place/ describeth to whō the place of God doth verely belonge/ and which is the very nacion of God/ & amongest whom he vouchsaueth to dwell. Then he exhorteth them to the buyldynge of the temple.

A Psalme of Dauid.

Dñi est

THe earth is the Lordes/ & all ỹ therin is: the compase of the world/ & all that dwell therin.

For he hath founded it vpon the sees/ and buylded it vpon the floudes.

Who shall go vp in to the hyll of ỹ Lord? Or/ who shall remayne in his holy place?

Euen he that hath innocent handes and a cleane hert: which a* lifteth not vp his mynde vnto vanyte/ & sweareth not to disceaue.

a* Which lyfteth not vp hys minde vnto vanitie. That is/ which glorifyeth not hym selfe nor esteameth of: setteth by hym selfe as though he were some what/ but taketh hym selfe for nothyng. Gala. vi. a.

B He shall receaue the blessynge from the Lorde/ and mercy from God his sauioure.

The. xxv. Psalme.

A prayer of Dauid oppressed both with synne and with enemyes. He prayeth the Lorde to delyuer him from his synnes to shewe him his wayes and to rydd him from the furye of his enemyes. In the ende he prayeth for all the people.

A Of Dauid.

VNto the (O Lorde) I lyft vp my soule.

My God/ I trust in the: Oh lett me not be cōfunded/ lest myne enemyes triumphe ouer me.

a* To knowe the wayes of ỹ Lorde is/ to lyue a lyfe ỹ pleaseth God: that is/ to lyue in his fayth/ & to lett him leade vs by hys goodnes: the same is the waye of lyfe/ before mỹ. xvi. c

For all they that hope in the shall not be ashamed: but soch as be scornefull despysers without a cause/ they shall be put to cōfucyon.

Shewe me thy wayes/ O Lord/ & teach me thy pathes.

Lede me in thy trueth and lerne me/ for thou art the God of my health/ and in the is my hope all the daye longe.

B Call to remembraūce/ O Lorde/ thy tender mercyes and thy louynge kyndnesses/ which haue bene euer of olde.

Oh remēbre not the synnes & offences of my youth/ but accordynge vnto thy mercy thynke vpō me/ O Lorde/ for thy goodnesse.

O how frendly & ryghtuous is the Lord/ therfore will he teach synners in the waye.

He iedeth the symple a right/ & soch as be b* meke thē lerneth he his wayes.

All the wayes of the Lorde are very mercy and faythfulnesse/ vnto soch as kepe hys c* testament and conuenaunt.

For thy names sake/ O Lorde/ be mercyfull vnto my synne/ for it is greate.

What soeuer he be that feareth ỹ Lorde/ he shall shewe hym the waye that he hath chosen.

His soule shall dwell at ease/ and his sede shal possese the lande.

The secrete of the Lorde is amonge them that feare him/ and he sheweth them his cōuenaunt.

Myne eyes are euer lokynge vnto the Lorde/ for he shall plucke my fete oute of the net.

Turne the vnto me and haue mercy vpon me/ for I am desolate and in mysery.

c*Of Zoan

d*By the table is vnderstande all sortes of vytayles necessary for mãne: yet is it often taken for the bredde & water of the wisdome of the worde of God/as in the Psal. xxiij.b.

Lo/he smote the stony rocke/that the watery streames gushed out/and the streames flowed with all: but how can he geue bred & prouyde flesh for his people?

When ỹ Lord hearde this/he was wroth: so the fyre was kyndled in Jacob/ and heuy displeasure agaynst Israel.

Because they beleued not in God/ & put not their truste in hys helpe.

So he commaunded the cloudes aboue/& opened the dores of heauen.

He moueth all creatures to the prayse of God. A prophecye of the kyngdome of Christ and of the increase therof.

A SYnge vnto the Lorde a new songe / Synge vnto ỹ Lorde all ỹ whole earth.

1. Para. xvi. c

Synge vnto the Lorde / and prayse his name / be tellynge of his saluacyon from daye to daye.

Declare his honoure amõge the Heathẽ / and his wonders amonge all people.

* Psal. xlviij. a Eccli. xliij. d

* For the Lorde is great / and can not worthely be prayed: he is more to be feared then all goddes.

As for all the goddes of the Heathẽ / they be put Idols / but it is the Lorde that made B the heauens.

Thanckesgeuynge and worshipe are before him / power & honoure are in hys Sanctuary.

Ascrybe vnto the Lorde (O ye kynredes of the Heathen) ascribe vnto the Lorde worshipe and strength.

Ascrybe vnto the Lord the honoure of his name / brynge presentes / and come in to hys courte.

O worshipe the Lorde in ỹ beutye of holynesse / lett the whole earth stande in awe of hym. C

Tell it out amonge the Heathẽ / that the Lorde is kynge: and that it is he which hath made the rounde worlde so fast / that it can not be moued / and how that he shall iudge the people ryghtuously.

Let the heauens reioyse / and let the earth be glad: let the see make a noyse / yee and all that therin is.

Let the felde be ioyfull and all that is in it / let all the trees of the wodd leape for ioye.

Before the Lorde / for he commeth: for he commeth to iudge the earth: yee wyth ryghtuousnesse shall he iudge the worlde / and the people with his trueth.

The.xcvij. Psalme.

Here prophecyeth he also of Christ / in whom God wonderfully shewed his power vnto the saluacyon of his chosen / and to the ouerthrowing of their enemyes and of vayne superstycyõs: vnto the knowledgyng of whom he also exhorteth.

a * The Lorde is longe sufferyng / which is moare then pacyẽt: for he not onely suffreth/ but also differeth vengeaunce/ desyryng the amendemẽt of the synner / louyng better to pardon & forgeue then to punyshe. C Rom. ij. a Ether despysest thou the ryches of hys goodnes / pacyence & longe sufferaunce &c.

He will not alwaye be chydynge / nether wyll he kepe his anger for euer.

He hath not dealt with vs after oure synnes/ nor rewarded vs according to oure wickednesse.

For loke how hye the heauen is in comparison of the earth/so greate is his mercy also towarde them that feare him.

Loke how wyde the east is from ỹ west/ so farre hath he set oure synnes from vs.

Yee like as a father pitieth his awne children/euen so is the Lorde mercyfull vnto thẽ that feare him.

For he knoweth wherof we be made / he remembreth that we are but dust.

That a mã in his time is but as is grasse/ and florisheth as a floure of the felde.

For as soone as the wynde goeth ouer it/ it is gone / and the place therof knoweth it no more.

But the mercyful goodnesse of the Lorde endureth for euer and euer / vpon them that feare him/and his rightuousnesse vpon their chylders chyldren.

Oure

Oure fathers regarded not thy wonders in Egypte / they kepte not thy greate goodnesse in rememoraūce: but were disobedient
B at the see / euen at the reed see.
Neuertheles / he helped thē for his names sake / that he myght make hys power to be knowne.
He rebuked the reed see / and it was dried vp: so he ledd thē thorow ẏ depe as in a wyldernesse.
Thus he saued them from the hand of the hater / and delyuered them frō ẏ hande of the enemye.
*Exodi.xiiij.g * As for those that troubled them the waters ouerwhelmed thē / there was not one of them left.
Then beleued they in his worde / & sange prayse vnto hym.
But within a while they forgat his workes / and wolde not abyde his councell.
C A lust came vpō them in the wyldernesse / so that they tempted God in the deserte.
Yet he gaue them their desyre / and sent thē enough at their wylles.
They angred Moses in ẏ tentes / & Aaron the sayncte of the Lorde.
So ẏ earth opened & swalowed vp Dathan / & couered ẏ congregacion of Abiram.
The fyre was kyndled in their company / the flame brent vp the vngodly.
*They made a calfe in Horeb / and worExo.xxxij.a. shipped the molten ymage.
b* That is, God: whych was their glorye. Thus they turned their b* glory in to the symilitude of a calfe / that eateth haye.
They forgat God their Sauiour / whych D had done so greate thynges in Egypte.
c* That is, Egypt: as before in the Psal. lxxviij.c. Wonderous workes in ẏ lāde of c* Ham / and fearfull thinges in the reed see.
So he sayde he wolde haue destroyed thē / had not Moses his chosen stande before him in that gappe: to turne awaye his wrathful indignacyon / lest he shulde destroye them.
Yee they thought scorne of that pleasaūt lande / and gaue no credence vnto his worde.
But murmured in their tentes / and herkened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde.
Then lyft he vp his hande agaynst them / to ouerthrowe them in the wyldernes.
To cast out their sede amōge the naciōs / and to scater them in the landes.
E They ioyned thē selues vnto Baal Peor / and ate the offerynges of the deed.
Thus they prouoked hym vnto anger wt their awne inuencyons / and the plage was greate amonge them.
*Num.xxv.c. *Then stode vp Phinehes & executed iustice / and so the plage ceased.
And that was counted vnto him for ryghteousnesse / amōge all posterite for euermore
They angeryd hym also at the waters of strife / so ẏ Moses was punyshed for their sakes.
Because they prouoked his spyrite / and he tolde them planely with his lyppes.
Neither destroyed they the Heathen / as the Lorde commaunded them.
But were mengled amonge the Heathen / and lerned their workes.
In so moch ẏ they worshipped their ymages / which turned to their awne decaye.
Yee they offred their sonns & their daugh- F ters vnto deuels.
And shed ẏ innocēt bloude of their sonnes & of their daughters / whom they offred vnto the ymages of Canaan / so that the lande was defyled with bloude.
Thus were they stayned with their awne workes / and wente a whorynge with their awne inuencyons.
Therfore was the wrath of the Lord kyndled agaynst hys people / in so moch ẏ he abhored his awne enheritaunce.
And gaue them ouer in to the hāde of the Heathē / & they that hated them / were lordes ouer them.
Their enemyes oppressed them / and had G them in subiecyon.
Many a tyme dyd he delyuer thē / but they prouoked him wyth their awne inuencions / & were brought downe for their wickednesse Neuertheless when he sawe their aduersyte / he herde their complaynte.
He thought vpon his couenaunt / and pytied them / accordynge vnto the multitude of hys mercyes.
Yee he made all those that had lead them awaye captyue / to pytie them.
Delyuer vs / O Lorde oure God / and gather vs from amonge the Heathen: that we maye geue thanckes to thy holy name / and make oure boast of thy prayse.
Blessed be ẏ Lord God of Israel frō euerlastyng & world without ende / & let all people saye: Amē / Amē. Prayse ẏ euerlastyng.

Thy thonder was hearde rounde aboute / the lyghtenynges shone vpon the grounde / the earth was moued and shoke with all.

Thy waye was in the see / and thy pathes in the greate waters / yet coude nomā knowe thy f* fotesteppes. f* The fotesteppes of the Lorde signifye the knowledge & perceueräce of his worckes i. Petri.ij.d.

Thou leddest thy people lyke a flocke of shepe / by the hande of Moses and Aaron.

¶ The.lxxviij. Psalme.

The sheweth that it is the commaundement of God and a specyall good thyng / perfectly to remembre the actes and deades of the Lorde done to his people. Then sayth he / that all thoughe they were vnfaythfull / yet dyd he wonders in Egypte / and brought them from thence / and thoughe they prouocked hym to anger in the wyldernesse / gaue them aboundantly hys benefytes. And after that / when they were destroyed which came forth of Egypte / for their wyckednes: yet brought he their sonnes (although they folowed their fathers vnfaythfulnes / & despysed the wonders done in the wildernes for their fathers) into the lande promessed / & droue out the inhabiters: In which / although he often punyshed them greuously / when they prouoked and tempted hym / & at the last in token of a great feruent wrath / beside their great slaughter / suffered also the Arcke to be taken from them / in the tyme of Ely the Preste: yet behylde he them fauorably agayne / geuynge them Dauid to their Kynge / and restoaring godlynes agayne at Jerusalē. In which thyng he also prophecyeth of Christ vnder the shadowe of Dauid.

An instruccyon of Asaph.

H Eare my lawe / O my people / encline youre eares vnto the wordes of my mouth. A

I wyll open my mouth in parables / and speake of thynges of olde.

Which

Which we haue herde & knowne/ & soche as oure fathers haue tolde vs.

That we shulde not hyde them from the chyldren of the generacyons to come: but to shewe the honour of the Lorde/ hys myght & wonderfull worckes that he hath done.

He made a couenaũt with Jacob/ & gaue Israel a lawe/ which he commaunded oure forefathers to teache their chyldren.

That their posterite myght knowe it/ and the chyldren which were yet vnborne.

To thintent that when they came vp/ they myght shewe their chyldren the same.

That they also myght put their trust in God/ & not to forget what he had done/ but to kepe hys commaundementes.

And not to be as their forefathers/ a a*frowarde and ouerthwarte generacion/ a generacyon that set not their herte a ryght, and whose spyrete was not true towarde God.

a* Of a frowarde generacion lok: Mat. xij. c.

B Lyke as the chyldrẽ of b*Ephraim/ which beyng harnessed and caryẽg bowes/ turned them selues backe in the tyme of batayll.

b* Although Ephraim in Josue. xiij. signifie but one tribe of the chyldren of Israel: neuertheles for the most parte/ in the Prophetes by Ephraim are vnderstãde the x. tribes/ which were vnder Jeroboam: as it appereth Ose. xiij. d. f. b. a. b.

They kepte not the couenaunt of God/ & wolde not walke in hys lawe.

They forgat what he had done/ and the wonderfull worckes that he had shewed for them.

Marueilous thynges dyd he in the syght of oure fathers in the lande of Egypte/ euen in the felde of c*Zoan.

He deuyded the see & let them go thorow it/ & made the waters to stande lyke a wall.

In the daye tyme he led thẽ with a cloude/ & all the nyght thorow with a lyght of fyre.

He cloue the hard rockes in the wyldernesse/ & gaue them drynke therof (as it had bene out of the greate deapth.

He brought waters out of ỹ stony rocke/ so that they gushed out lyke the ryuers.

Yet for all this they synned agaynst him/ & prouoked the moost hyest in ỹ wyldernes.

They tempted God in their hertz/ and requyred meate for their lust.

For they spake agaynst God/ & sayde: yee yee/ God shall prepare a d*table in ỹ wildernesse/ shall he?

C d* By the table is vnderstande all sortes of vytayles necessary for mãs: yet is it often taken for the breade & water of the wisdome of the worde of God/ as in the Psal. xxiij. b.

Lo/ he smote the stony rocke/ that the watery streames gushed out/ and the streames flowed with all: but how can he geue bred & prouyde flesh for his people?

When ỹ Lord hearde this/ he was wroth: so the fyre was kyndled in Jacob/ and heuy displeasure agaynst Israel.

Because they beleued not in God/ & put not their truste in hys helpe.

So he commaunded the cloudes aboue/ & opened the doores of heauen.

He rayned downe Manna vpon them for to eate/ and gaue them bred from heauen.

Then ate they angels e*fode/ for he sent them meate ynough.

e* Manna is called the fode of angels/ not that the angels vse soche fode/ but because it came doune frõ heauen/ which is the dwelling place of the angels. And therfore do some reade here/ the bredde of the cloudes: because it came from the cloudes: some the bredde of ỹ mighty/ because it cam from the almyghty. Exo. xvi. d. Sapien. xvi. c. & Joan. vi. d.

He caused the East wynd to blowe vnder the heauẽ/ & thorow hys power he brought in the south wynde.

He made flesh to rayne vpon thẽ as thicke as dust/ and fethered foules like as the sande of the see.

He let it fall amonge their tentes rounde aboute their habytacyons.

So they ate/ and were fylled/ for he gaue them their awne desyre.

They were not dysapoynted of their lust.

But whyle ỹ meate was yet in their mouthes: the heuy wrath of God came vpon thẽ/ slewe the f*welthiest of thẽ/ & smote downe the chosen men of Israel.

f* By the welthy or fat in the Scripture/ & by the chosen/ are signified ỹ noble & mighty princes & Prelates: & al those that are moost esteamed & honoured in thys worlde. Psalme. xxij. g

But for all this they synned yet more/ and beleued not his wonderous worckes.

Therfore their dayes were consumed in vanyte/ and sodenly their yeares were gone.

When he slewe them/ they sought hym/ & turned them early vnto God.

They thought then that God was their succoure/ and that the hye God was their redemer.

Neuertheles they dyd but flatter hym in their mouthes/ and dyssembled wyth hym in their tonges.

For their herte was not whole with him/ nether contynued they in his couenaunt.

But he was so mercyfull/ ỹ he forgaue their myssedes/ and destroyed them not.

Yee many a tyme turned he his wyath awaye/ and wolde not suffre hys whole displeasure to aryse.

For he considered ỹ they were but g*flesh: euen a wynde that passeth awaye/ and commeth not agayne.

g* Flesh for man/ as in the Psal. lvi

D how oft haue they greued hym in the wyldernesse?

How many a tyme haue they prouoked hym in the deserte?

They turned backe/ and tempted God/ & moued the holy one in Israel.

They thought not of his hand/ in the daye when he delyuered them from the hande of the enemye.

How he had wrought hys myracles in Egypte/ & his wondres in the lande of Zoan.

How he turned their waters in to bloude/ so that they myght not drynke of ỹ ryuers.

How he sent lyce amõge them/ to eate thẽ vp/ and frogges to destroye them.

How he gaue their frutes vnto the caterpylier/ & their laboure vnto the grashopper.

How he bett downe their vyneyardes wt hayle stones/ and their molbery trees wyth the frost.

How he smote their catel wt hayle stones/and their flockes with hote thonder boltes.

How he sent vpon them the furyousnesse of his wrath/anger and displeasure: wyth trouble and sallyng in of euell angels.

When he made a waye to hys fearfull indignacyon/and spared not [h]* their soules frō death / yee & gaue their [i]* catell ouer to the pestylence.

h * That is/ to put thē to deeth

i * Some reade/ syues

When he smote al ỹ fyrstborne in Egypt/ the moost pryncypall and myghtyest in the dwellynges of [k]* Ham.

k * Ham for Egipte: because Mizraim of whom the Egyptians came was the sonne of Ham. Genesis.x.

But as for his awne people/he lead them forth lyke sheepe/and caried them in the wyldernesse lyke a flocke.

He brought thē outsafely/ ỹ they shulde not feare/ and ouerwhelmed their enemyes with the see.

He caryed them [l]* vnto the borders of his Sanctuary: euen in to thys hyll / which he purchased with his ryght hande.

l * That is / to the lāde of promesse: where his sanctuary and holy place was

He dyd cast out the Heathen before them/ caused their lande to be deuyded amonge thē for an heritage/and made the trybes of Israel to dwell in their tentes.

For all this they tempted & displeased the most hye God/and kepte not his couenaunt.

But turned their backes/and fell awaye lyke their forefathers/ startynge asyde lyke a broken boowe.

And so they greued hym wt their hye places/and prouoked hym with their ymages.

When God hearde this/he was wroth / & toke sore displeasure at Israel.

So that he forsoke the Tabernacle in Silo/ euen his habitacion wherin he dwelt amonge men.

He delyuered their power into captyuite/ and their glory into the enemyes hande.

He gaue his people ouer into the swerde/ G for he was wroth with his heritage.

The fyre consumed their yōge men / and their maydens were not geuen to mariage.

Their Prestes were slayne wt the swerde/ and there were no wyddowes to make lamentacyon.

m * The Lorde awaketh when he ouerthroweth the wycked & setteth vp the Godly.

So the Lorde [m]* awaked as one out of slepe/and like a gyaunte refreshed wt wyne.

He smote his enemyes in the hynder partes/and put them to a perpetuall shame.

He refused the tabernacle of Joseph/and chose not the trybe of Ephraim.

Neuertheless/he chose the tribe of Juda/ euen the [n]* hyll of Syon which he loued.

n * Before in the. lxxviij. psal.

And there he buylded his temple on hye/ & layed the foundacion of it lyke the groūde/ that it myght perpetually endure.

He chose Dauid also his seruaunt/& toke hym awaye from the shepe foldes.

As he was folowinge the yowes greate wt yonge/he toke him/that he might fede Jacob hys people/and Israel his enherytaunce.

So he fed them with a faythfull and true hert/and ruled them with all the dilygence of hys power.

O [a]* remembre not oure olde synnes/ but haue mercy vpon vs/and that soone/ for we are come to greate mysery.

a * God remembreth not oure synnes whē he forgeueth the/ and punisheth the not as they haue deserued/ as he sayth Ezech. xviij. f. & Esa. lxiij. d. C

Helpe vs/O God oure sauyour/ for the glory of thy name: O delyuer vs/ & forgeue vs oure synnes for thy names sake.

Wherfore shall the Heathē saye: where is now their God?

℣ Helpe now O Lorde/ O Lorde sende vs now prosperite.

Blessed be he that commeth in the name of the Lorde/we wysh you good lucke / ye that be of the house of the Lorde.

God is the Lorde/& hath shewed vs light: O garnysh the solempne feast wyth grene braunches/ euē vnto the hornes of ỹ aulter.

Thou art my God/and I wyll thācke the: thou art my God/and I wyll prayse the.

℣ Geue thanckes vnto the Lorde / for he is gracious/and hys mercy endureth for euer.

ℭ The.cxix.Psalme.

ℭ This Psalme declareth how moche the saynctes & Christen set by the lawes of God/and how greatly they endeuour thē selues vnto them: in so moche that they sorowe them to be transgressed & withstanded of the wycked: And how they praye to be taught thē frō aboue/& to be accustomed with thē: & wyshe as many as transgresse & withstande them/to be destroyed and made awaye.

¶ The. cxxix Psalme.

¶ Although the wycked do longe and greatly persecute the godly/ yet shall they not preuayle ouer them: yee they shall at the length perish when the godly shal be in safetye.

The longe of the steares.

A Many a tyme haue they fought agaynst me fro my youth vp (maye Israel now saye.)

Yee/many a tyme haue they fought agaynst me fro my youth vp/but they haue not ouercome me.

The plowers plowed vpon my backe/ & and made longe forowes.

But the righteous Lorde hath hewen the yocke of the vngodly in peces.

Let them be confounded & turned backward/as many as haue euyl will at a* Siõ.

a* Sion in the scripture signifieth the whole churche & congregacyon of God/ & euery faythfull soule that hath hys whole intent/ affeccyon & desyre towarde God.

Let them be euen as the haye vpon the house toppes/ whych wythereth afore it be pluckte vp.

Wherof the mower fylleth not his hande/ nether he that byndeth vp the sheaues/ hys bosome.

So ỹ they which go by/saye not so moch as: ỹ Lorde prospere you/ we wish you good lucke in the name of the Lorde.

¶ The. cxxx. Psalme.

¶ An earnest prayer of him that is oppressed with aduersitie for his sinnes/& that surely hopeth to obtayne of God bothe forgeuenes of his synnes & delyuraunce from hys aduersyryes.

The longe of the steares.

Out of the a* depe call I vnto the/ A O Lorde/Lorde heare my voyce.

a* By the depe is vnderstande the aduersytye wherin ỹ people of Israel were/whe they were scatered amõge the Chaldees. Unto vs Christen it signifieth the aduersytie/ trouble and mysery which happeneth to vs for oure offenses & synnes.

Oh let thyne eares consyder well the voyce of my complaynte.

If thou Lord wylt be extreme to marcke what is done a mysse/ Oh Lorde who maye abyde it?

But there is mercy wyth the/that thou mayest be feared.

I loke for the Lord/my soule doth wayte for hym/and in his worde is my trust.

My soule doth pacyently abyde ỹ Lorde/ from the one morynge to the other.

Let Israel trust in the Lorde/for with the Lorde there is mercy & plẽteous redempciõ. And he shal redeme Israel frõ al his synnes.

¶ The. cxxxj. Psalme.

¶ She sheweth ỹ he was not proude/but meake & lowly.

The longe of the steares.

Lorde/I am not hye mynded/I haue no A proude lokes.

I do not exercyse my selfe in greate matters/which are to hye for me.

But I refrayne my soule & kepe it lowe/ lyke as a childe that is weened from his mother: yee my soule is euẽ as a weened chylde.

Let Israel trust in the Lorde/from thys tyme forth for euermore.

¶ The. cxxxij. Psalme.

¶ She sheweth that the prosperytye of Christes kyngdome dureth euer/& that God is allwaye present with his churche and congregacyon: Thys doth he vnder the figure of Dauid & of the arcke abydyng in Siõ.

The longe of the steares.

Lorde/remẽbre Dauid & al his trouble. A

How he swore vnto the Lorde/ and vowed a vowe vnto the almyghtye one of Jacob: I wyll not come within ỹ tabernacle of my house/nor clyme vp in my bedde.

I wyll not suffre myne eyes to slepe/ nor myne eye lydes to slomber.

Untyll I fynde out a place for ỹ Lorde/ an habytacyõ for the mightye one of Jacob.

Lo/

Lo/we hearde of the same at Ephrata/ & founde it in the wod.

We wyll go in to his tabernacle / and fall downe before his fote stole.

B Aryse/O Lord/ into thy a*restyng place/ thou and the arcke of thy strength.

a* His resting place was the mercy seate/as before in the Psal.xcix.b.

Let thy Preastes be clothed with rightuousnesse/and let thy saynctes reioyse.

b* Turne not awaye the presence.i. c. that is/forsake not or dyspoynte not the presence of thine anoynted

For thy seruaunt Dauids sake b* turne not awaye the presence of thyne anoynted.

The Lord hath made a saythfull ooth vnto Dauid/& he shall not shrynke from it: Of ỹ frute of thy body shall I set vpõ thy seate.

C If thy chyldrẽ wyll kepe my couenaũt/& my testymony ỹ I shall lerne thẽ: their chyldrẽ also shall syt vpõ thy seate for euermore.

For the Lord hath chosen Sion/to be an habitacyon for hym selfe hath he chosen her.

This shalbe my rest/ here wyll I dwell/ for I haue a delyte therin.

I wyll blesse her vytalles with increase/ and wyll satysfye her poore with bred.

I wyll decke her Preastes with health/& her saynctes shall reioyse and be glad.

c* Horne for power/ as in Psalme. xviij

There shall I make the c* horne of Dauid to florysh/I haue ordened a lanterne for myne anoynted.

As for hys enemyes /I shall clothe them w shame/but vpõ him selfe shall his crowne florysshe.

¶ The.cxxxiij.Psalme.

¶ He prayseth the vnyte & concorde of brethren.

The songe of the steares of Dauid.

A a* Of thys oyntement is spoken Exod. xxx.c.

Beholde/how good & ioyfull a thynge it is/brethrẽ to dwell to gether in vnitye.

It is lyke the precyous a* oyntement vpon the heade/ that ranne downe vnto the beerd: euen vnto Aarons beerd / and wente downe to the skyrtes of his clothynge.

Like the dewe of Hermon/which fell vpõ the hyll of Syon.

For there the Lorde promysed hys blessynge/and lyfe for euermore.

¶ The.cxxxiiij.Psalme.

¶ He exhorteth to praye and prayse God: yee and that also in the nyght.

The songe of the steares.

A Beholde/O prayse the Lorde/all ye seruauntes of the Lorde/yee that by night stande in the house of the Lorde.

O lyft vp youre handes in the Sanctuary/and prayse the Lorde.

The Lorde that made heauen and earth blesse the out of Sion.

¶ The.cxxxv.Psalme.

¶ He moueth men to the prayse of God/and declareth hys power by his workes / as well by those whych he euery where doth/as by those wherwith he peculyarly auaunced Israel.

A * Judith.xiij.e Psal.cv.a.and cvi.a

O geue thankes vnto the God of all goddes/for his mercy endureth for euer.

O thanke

O thanke the Lorde of all Lordes/for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which only doth greate wonders/ for hys mercy endureth for euer.

Which by his wysdome made the heauēs/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which layed out the earth aboue the waters/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which hath made greate lyghtes/ for hys mercy endureth for euer.

The sunne to rule the daye/ for hys mercy endureth for euer.

The moone & the starres to gouerne the nyght/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

*Exo.xij.c. *Which smote Egypt w their fyrst borne/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

And brought out Israel frō amonge thē/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

And Og the Kyng of Basan/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

And gaue awaye their lande for an heritage/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

Euen for an heritage vnto Israel his seruaunt/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

Which remembreth vs/ when we are in trouble/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

*Psal.cxlij.d. *Which geueth fode vnto all flesh/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

O geue thankes vnto the God of heauē/ for his mercy endureth for euer.

¶ The.cxxxvij. Psalme.

¶ The Babylonyans requyred of Israel songes/ but they perpetually bewayled the destruccio of Jerusalē.

A BY the waters of Babylon we sat downe & weapte/ when we remembred Syon.

As for oure harpes/ we hanged them by vpon the trees/ that are therin.

Then they that led vs awaye captyue/ requyred of vs a songe and melody in oure heuynes: synge vs one of the songes of Sion.

How shall we synge the Lordes songe in a straunge lande?

B If I forget the/ O Jerusalē/ let my right hande be forgotten.

If I do not remembre the/ let my tonge cleue to the rofe of my mouth: yee yf I preferre not Jerusalem in my myrth.

Remembre the chyldrē of Edom/ O Lord/ in the daye of Jerusalem/ how they sayde: downe w it/ downe with it: euē to the ground.

a* O daughter of Babylō/ thou shalt come to mysery thy selfe: yee/ happye shall he be/ that rewardeth the as thou hast serued vs. a* Daughter of Babylon for cytye & people of Babylon.

*Blessed shall he be/ that taketh thy chyldren/ and throweth thē agaynst the stones. *Esai.xiij.c.

¶ The.cxxxviij. Psalme.

¶ He prayseth the goodnes of God towarde hym/ which hath delyuered hym forth of all Jeopardyes/ & promoted him vnto the dygnitie of a Kynge.

Of Dauid.

A I wyll geue thankes vnto the/ O Lord/ wyth my whole herte/ euen before the Goddes/ will I synge prayses vnto the.

I will worshyppe towarde thy holy temple/ & prayse thy name/ because of thy louīg kyndnesse & trueth/ for thou hast magnyfyed thy worde/ according vnto thy greate name.

When I call vpon the/ thou hearest me/ & endewest my soule with moche strength.

All the Kynges of the earth shall prayse the/ O Lorde/ when they heare the wordes of thy mouth.

B Yee they shall synge in the wayes of the Lorde/ that greate is the glory of the Lorde.

For though the Lorde be hye/ yet hath he respecte vnto the lowly: as for the proude/ he beholdeth hym a farre of.

Though I walke in the myddest of trouble/ yet shalt thou refresh me: thou shalt stretche forth thyne hād vpō the furyousnes of myne enemyes/ & thy right hāde shall saue me.

The Lord shall make good for me/ yee thy mercy/ O Lorde/ endureth for euer: despyse not then the worcke of thyne awne handes.

¶ The.cxxxix. Psalme.

¶ He sheweth that all thinges are euident & open vnto God which made him: and that he is euery where/ and seyth all thynges.

a* To the chaunter/ a Psalme of Dauid. a* Loke the tytle of the.xij. Psalme.

A LOrde/ thou searchest me out/ and knowest me.

Thou knowest my downe syttinge & myne vprysynge/ thou vnderstandest my thoughtes a farre of.

Thou art aboute my path & aboute my bedd/ & spyest out all my wayes.

For lo/ there is not a worde in my tonge, but thou/ O Lorde knowest it altogether.

Thou hast fashyoned me behynde and before/ and layed thyne hande vpon me.

Soche knowledge is to wonderfull and excellent for me/ I can not attayne vnto it.

B Whither shall I go then from thy spyrete? or/ whyther shall I go then frō thy presence?

If

If I clyme vp into heauē/thou art there: yf I go downe to hell/thou art there also.

If I take the wynges of the morynge/ & remayne in the vttermost parte of the see:

Euen there also shall thy hande leade me/ and thy ryght hande shall holde me.

If I saye: peraduenture the darcknesse shall couer me/then shall my nyght be turned to daye.

Yee the darcknesse is no darcknesse wyth the/but the nyght is as cleare as the daye/ ỹ darcknesse and lyght are both alyke.

For my reynes are thyne/thou hast couered me in my mothers wombe.

I wyll geue thankes vnto the/ for I am wonderously made:maruelous are thy workes/ & that my soule knoweth right well.

My bones are not hyd from the/ though I be made secretely/and fashyoned beneth in the earth.

Thyne eyes se myne vnperfectnesse/ they stande all wryttē in thy boke:my dayes were fashyoned/ when as yet there was not one of them.

How deare are thy councels vnto me O God? O how greate is the summe of them?

If I tell thē/they are mo in nombre then the sande: when I wake vp/I am present with the.

Wylt thou not slaye ỹ wycked(Oh God) ỹ the bloudthyrsty myghte departe fro me?

For they speake vnright of the/thyne enemyes exalte them selues presumptuously.

I hate them/O Lorde/ that hate the: and I maye not awaye wyth those that ryse vp agaynst the?

Yee I hate them right sore/ therfore are they myne enemyes.

Trye me/O God/and seke the grounde of myne hert:proue me/& examen my thoughtes.

They sharpen their tonges lyke a serpēt: adders poison is vnder their lippes. Selah.

Kepe me/O Lorde/ from the hande of the vngodly: preserue me from the wycked men/which are purposed to ouerthrowe my goinges.

The proude haue layed a snare for me/ & spred a net abroade wyth coardes/ yee and set trappes in my waye. b* Selah.

b* Loke the Psalme.iij.a.

But my sayinge is vnto the Lorde: thou art my God/ heare the voyce of my prayer O Lorde.

O Lorde God/thou strēgth of my health/ thou hast couered my heade in the daye of battayle.

Let not the vngodly haue hys desyre/ O Lord/let him not haue his purpose/lest they be to proude. Selah.

Let the mysches of their awne lippes fall vpon the head of thē/that cōpase me about.

Let hote burnyng c* coales fall vpō thē/ let them be cast into the fyre/ & into the pyt/ that they neuer ryse vp agayne.

c* Coales: ther of is sayde in the Psal.xviij.b

A man full of wordes shall not prospere vpon the earth: a malycyous & wycked person shalbe hunted awaye/and destroyed.

Sure I am/that the Lorde wyll auenge the poore/ and mayntayne the cause of the helpeles.

The ryghtuous also shall geue thankes vnto thy name/ and the iust shall contynue in thy syght.

The cxli Psalme.

The fyrst he prayeth for the spyrite wherwith he maye preferre the sharpe frendshyp of the sayntes before the prosperitie of the wycked: and after that/for worthye auengement of his enemyes & for his delyuerance.

A Psalme of Dauid.

Lorde/I call vpō the: haste the vnto me/ & consider my voyce/when I crye vnto the.

Let my prayer be set forth in thy syght as the incense/ & let the lifting vp of my handes be an euenynge sacrifyce.

Set a watch/O Lorde/before my mouth/ yee a watch at the dore of my lyppes.

O let not myne herte be enclyned to any euell thynge/to be mynded as the vngodly or wicked men/lest I eate of soche thynges as please them.

Let the rightuous rather smite me frindly/ & reproue me: so will I take it/as though he had poured oyle vpō my head: it shall not hurt my heade/yee I wyll praye yet for their wyckednesse.

Their iudges stomble at the stone/ yet heare they my wordes/that they be ioyfull.

Oure bones lye scatered before the pyt/ lyke as when one graueth and dyggeth vp the grounde.

But myne eyes loke vnto the/ O Lorde God: in the is my trust/ Oh cast not out my soule.

Kepe me from the snare which they haue layed for me/and frō the trappes of the wycked doers.

Let the vngodly fall into their awne nettes together/vntyll I be gone by them.

The

The. cxlij. Psalme.

He sheweth how he prayed vnto the Lorde when he fleode frō Saul into the caue/ & thought that he shulde there haue bene taken.

The instruccyon of Dauid/ a prayer when he was in the caue.

A a*I Crye vnto the Lorde with my voyce/ yee euen vnto the Lorde do I make my supplycacyon.

a* Of this ye haue in ỹ Psal. xv. Ero. xiiij. d & 1. Reg. xxj. b.

I poure out my complaynte before hym/ and shewe hym of my trouble.

When my spyrite is in heuynesse/ for thou knowest my path: in ỹ waye wherin I walke haue they preuely layed a snare for me.

I loke vpon my right hande/ & se/ there is no man that wyll know me.

I haue no place to fle vnto/ no mā careth for my soule.

Therfore do I crye vnto the/ O Lorde/ & saye: thou art my hope and my porcion in the b* lande of the lyuynge.

b* Here it is manyfest/ that the lande of the lyuynge signifieth the estate of the sayntes and Chrysten/ which yet remayne in thys lyfe/ as aboue in the Psalme xxvij. d.

Considre my cōplaynte/ for I am brought very lowe.

O delyuer me fro my persecuters/ for they are to stronge for me.

Brynge my soule out of prison/ that I maye geue thanckes vnto thy name: whych thynge yf thou wylt graunte me/ then shall the ryghtuous resorte vnto my company.

The. cxliij. Psalme.

This Psalme & the Psalme next before are bothe of one tenour & made bothe of one thynge.

A Psalme of Dauid.

A Psalme. cvj. a. Heare my prayer/ O Lorde/ consydre my desyre: answere me for thy treuth & ryghtuousnesse sake.

And entre not into iudgement wyth thy seruaunt/ for in thy syght shall no man lyuynge be iustyfyed.

For the enemye persecuteth my soule/ he smyteth my lyfe downe to the grounde/ he layeth me in the darcknesse/ as the deed men of the worlde.

Therfore is my spyrite vexed within me/ & my herte within me is desolate.

B Yet do I remembre ỹ tymes past/ I muse vpon all thy worckes/ yee I exercyse my selfe in the worckes of thy handes.

I stretche forth myne handes vnto the/ my soule cryeth vnto the out of the thyrstye lande. Selah.

Heare me/ O Lorde/ & that soone/ for my spyrite waxeth faynte: hyde not thy face fro me/ lest I be lyke vnto them that go downe into the graue.

O let me heare thy louynge kyndnesse by a* tymes in the a* morning/ for in ỹ is my truste: shewe thou me the waye that I shulde walke in/ for I lyft vp my soule vnto the.

a* Of this loke the Psal. vi. a.

Delyuer me/ O Lord/ fro myne enemyes/ for I resorte vnto the.

Teache me to do the thynge that pleaseth ỹ/ for thou art my God: let thy louing spyrite leade me forth vnto ỹ lāde of ryghtuousnes.

Quycke̅ me/ O Lorde/ for thy names sake/ and for thy ryghtuousnesse sake brynge my soule out of trouble.

And of thy goodnesse scater myne enemyes abroade/ & destroye all them that vexe my soule/ for I am thy seruaunt.

The. cxliiij. Psalme.

Heare

A HEare/O ye chyldren/the fatherly exhortacyō/& take goodhede/that ye maye lerne wysdome. Yee I shal geue you a good rewarde/ yf ye wyll not forsake my lawe. For whē I my selfe was my fathers deare sonne/ & tenderly beloued of my mother/he taught me also/ sayinge: Let thyne herte receaue my wordes/ kepe my commaundementes/ & thou shalt lyue. Get the wysdome/get the vnderstādynge/forget not the wordes of my mouth/& shrynke not from them. Forsake her not/& she shall preserue the: loue her/ and she shall B kepe the. The chefe poynte of wysdome is/ that thou be wyllynge to opteyne wysdome/ and before all thy goodes to gett the vnderstandynge. Make moch of her & she shall promote the: Yee yf thou embrace her/ she shall bringe the vnto honoure.

She shall make the a gracyous head/ & garnysh the a* with a crowne of glory. a* That is/ with great and syngular honoure/as after in the.xij.a. Heare my sonne/& receaue my wordes/that the yeares of thy lyfe maye be many. I will shewe the/the waye of wysdome/& leade the in the ryght pathes. So that yf thou goest therin/there shall no straytenesse hynder the: and when thou runnest/thou shalt not fall. C Take fast holde of doctryne/let her not go: kepe her/for she is thy lyfe. Come not in the path of the vngodly/and walke not in the waye of the wycked. Eschue it/and go not therin: departe aslyde/& passe ouer by it. For they can not slepe/except they haue first done some mischefe: nether take they any rest/except they haue fyrst done some harme. For they eate the bred of wyckednesse/and dryncke the wyne of robbery. The path of the ryghtuous shyneth as the lyght/and is euer brighter and brighter vnto the perfecte D daye. But the waye of the vngodly is as the darcknes/wherin mē fall/or they be awarre. b* Bytheright hand is vnderstande the false & wycked confidence in workes/& by ỹ left/ desperacyō. To turne aslyde or adde to ỹ right hand is/ to adde that to the worde of god/which God neuer cōmaunded. To turne aslyde or bowe to the left hande is/to take awaye frō the worde of God/ or to do that which is forbidde. As it is written in Deuter. xxviij.b.& Josue.xxiij.b.

My sonne/marcke my wordes/& encline thyne eare vnto my sayinges. Let thē not departe from thyne eyes/kepe thē euen in ỹ myddest of thyne herte. For they are lyfe vnto all those that fynde them/& health vnto all their bodyes. Kepe thyne herte with all dilygēce/for there vpon hangeth lyfe. Put awaye from the a frowarde mouth/and let ỹ lyppes of sclaunder be farre from the. Let thyne eyes beholde the thynge that is ryght/ & let thyne eye liddes loke strayght before ỹ. Ponder the path of thy fete/so shall all thy wayes be sure. Turne not aslyde/nether to the b* ryght hand ner to ỹ left/ but withhold thy fote from euell.

C He warneth to eschue & flee whordome. He forbydeth prodigalitye & wastfull spendyng. He wylleth vs to lyue of oure awne laboures. Men must loue their wyues.

C The.b.Chapter.

My sonne/geue hede vnto my A wysdome/& bowe thyne eare vnto my prudence: that thou mayest regarde good coūcell/& ỹ thy lyppes maye kepe nourtoure. For the lyppes of an harlot are a droppyng hony combe/ & her throte is softer then oyle. But at ỹ last she is as bytter as wormwod/& as sharpe as a two edged swerde. Her fete go downe vnto death/& her steppes pearse thorow vnto hell. She regardeth not ỹ path of lyfe/so vnstedfast are her wayes/that thou cāst not know B them. Heare me therfore (O my sonne) and departe not from the wordes of my mouth. Kepe thy waye farre frō her/& come not nye the dores of her house. That thou geue not a* thyne honour vnto another/& thy yeares to the cruell. That other men be not filled with thy goodes/& that thy labours come not in a straūge house. Yee ỹ thou mourne not at the last (when thou hast spēt thy body and goodes) & then saye: Alas/why hated I nourtoure: why dyd my herte despyse correccyon: Wherfore was not I obediēt vnto ỹ C voyce of my teachers/& herkened not vnto thē that informed me: I am come almost into all myschefe/in the middest of ỹ multytude & congregaciō. b* Drincke of ỹ water of thyne awne well/& of ỹ ryuers ỹ rūne out of thyne awne spring. c* Let thy welles flowe out abrode/that there may be ryuers of water in the stretes: but let them be only thyne awne/and not straungers with the. Let thy well be blessed/& be glad with the wyfe of thy youth. Louynge is the hynde/ & frendly is the Roo: let her bresstes alwaye satisfye the/& holde the euer contēt with her loue. My sonne/why wylt thou haue pleasure in an harlot/& embrace the bosome of another woman: *For euery mās wayes are open in the syght of the Lorde/& he ponderyth all their goinges. Doth

A DOth not wysdome crye? ooth not vnderstandig put forth her voyce? Standeth she not in the hye places in the stretes and wayes? doth she not crye before the whole citie/and in the gates where men go out & in? It is you / O ye men(sayeth she)whom I call? Unto you (O ye chyldren of men)lyft I vp my voyce.

B Take hede vnto knowledge O ye ignoraũt/ be wyse in herte O ye foles. Geue eare/for I wyll speake of greate matters/& open my lyppes to tell thynges that be ryght. For my throte shalbe talking of the trueth/& my lyppes abhorre vngodlyneſſe. All ỹ wordꝛ of my mouth are rightuous/ there is no frowardeneſſe nor falſede therin. They are all playne to soche as wyll vnderstande/and ryght to them that fynde knowledge. Receaue my doctrine therfore & not syluer: & my knowledge/more then fyne golde. For wysdome is more worth then precyous stones/ yee all the thyngꝛ that thou canſt deſyre/ are not to be compared vnto it.

C I wysdome haue my dwellyng w̃ knowledge/& prudent councell is myne awne. With me is the feare of the Lorde / and the eschuyng of euell. As for pryde/dyldayne/ & euell waye/ & a mouth that speaketh wicked thinges/I vtterly abhorre thẽ. I can geue councell/& be a gyde: I haue vnderstãdyng/I haue strẽgth. Thorow me/Kyngꝛ reygne: thorow me/prynces make iuſt lawes. Thorow me/Lordes beare rule/& all iudges of ỹ earth execute iudgemẽt. I am louyng vnto those that loue me/& they that seke me early/shall fynde me. Riches and honoure are with me/yee excellent goodes & ryghtuouſnes. My frute is better then golde and precious stone/& myne encreaſe more worth then fyne syluer. I walke in the waye of ryghtuouſnes/& in the strete of iudgement.

That I may sende prosperite to those ỹ loue me/& to encreaſe their treaſure. *The Lorde him selfe had me in poſſeſſyon in ỹ begynnynge of his wayes/ or euer he beganne his worckes aforetyme. I haue bene ordened frõ euerlaſting/& frõ the begynnyng or euer the earth was made. When I was borne/there were nether depthes nor ſpringꝛ of water. Before the foundacyons of the moũtaynes were layed/ yee before all hylles D was I borne. The earth & all that is vpon the earth was not yet made/no not ỹ groũde it ſelf. For when he made the heauens/ I was present: when he ſett vp the depthes in order: whẽ he hanged the cloudes aboue: whẽ he faſtened the ſprynges of the depe: When he shut the ſee within certayne bowndes/ ỹ the waters ſhuld not go ouer their marckes. When he layed the foundacyõs of the earth I was with him/ordringe all thinges/delyting dayly/& reioyſyng all waye before him. As for the rounde compaſe of his worlde/ I make it ioyfull: for my delyte is to be amõge the chyldrẽ of men. Therfore herkẽ vnto me/O ye chyldrẽ/for blessed are they ỹ kepe my wayes. O geue eare vnto nurture/be wyſe/& refuſe it not. Blessed is the man that heareth me/watching dayly at my gates/& geuing attendaunce at ỹ poſtes of my doores. For who so fyndeth me/fyndeth lyfe/& ſhall obtayne fauour of ỹ Lord. But who so offendeth agaynſt me/ hurteth his awne ſoule. All they that hate me/are the louers of death.

¶ The .ix. Chapter.

¶ Wysdome moueth all men to embrace her. The proper tye of a whore.

WYsdome hath buylded her ſelfe an houſe/& hewen out a*ſeuẽ pyllers: she hath kylled her vitayles/poured out her wyne/& prepared her table. She hath ſent forth her maydẽs to crye vpõ ỹ hyeſt place of ỹ citie: Who ſo is ignoraũt/ let hym come hither. And to the vnwiſe she sayde: O come on youre waye/eate my bred/ & drincke my wyne / which I haue poured out for you. Forſake ignoraũce/& ye ſhall lyue: and ſe that ye go in the waye of vnderſtandyng. Who ſo reproueth a ſcornefull perſonne/getteth hym ſelfe dyſhonoure: and he that rebuketh the vngodly / ſtaynethe hym ſelfe. Reproue not a b*ſcorner/leſt he owe the euell wyll: but rebuke a wyſe man/& he wyll loue the. Geue a dyſcrete man but an occaſiõ/& he wylbe ỹ wiſer/teache a rightuous man/& he wyll increaſe. The feare of the Lorde is the begynnynge of wysdome/& the knowledge of holy thinges is vnderſtandynge. For thorow me thy dayes ſhalbe prolõged/& the yeares of thy lyfe ſhalbe many. If thou be wyſe thy wysdome ſhall do thy ſelfe good: but yf thou thinckeſt ſcorne therof/it ſhalbe thyne awne harme. A folyſh reſtleſſe woman/ full of wordes/& ſoch one as hath no knowledge/ſytteth in ỹ dores of her houſe vpon a ſtoole aboue in the cyte/ to call ſoch as go by/ and walke ſtreyght in their wayes. Who ſo is ignoraũt(ſayth she) let hym come hyther / and to the vnwyſe she ſayeth: ſtollen waters are ſwete/and ỹ bred that is preuely eaten/hath a good taſte. But they conſyder not that death is there/& that her geſtes go downe to hell.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ In this Chapter & in all that folowe vnto the thyrtyeth / the wyſe man exhorteth by dyuers ſentences which he calleth Parables / to folowe vertues and flye vyces: And ſheweth alſo what profet cometh of wysdome/& what hyndraſce proceadeth of folyſhneſſe.

The* Paraboles of Salomon.

* Some reades ſayinges

A Wyse sonne maketh a glad father/ but an vndyscrete sonne is the heuynesse of his mother. Treasures that are wyckedly gotten/ profyte no thynge/ but righteousnesse deliuereth frō death. The Lorde wyll not let the soule of the ryghteous suffre honger/ but he putteth the vngodly from his desyre. An ydle hand maketh poore/ but a quycke labouryng hand maketh ryche. B Who so gathereth in Sommer/ is wyse: but he ẏ is slougysh in haruest/ bringeth him selfe to confusyon. Louyng and fauorable is the face of the righteous/ but ẏ forehead of ẏ vngodly is past shame/ & presumptuous. The memoryall of the iust shall haue a good reporte/ but the name of the vngodly shall stynke. A wyse man wyll receaue warnynge/ but a foole wyll soner be smyten in the face. He that leadeth an innocent lyfe/ walketh surely: but who so goeth a wronge waye/ shalbe knowne.

a* To wynke wyth hys eye/ here is/ to shew a sygne or token of consentyng/ whē he thynketh the cōtrarye: as before in the.vi.b. and Eccli.xxvij.c.

a* He that wynketh with his eye/ wyll do some harme: but he ẏ hath a foolysh mouth/ shalbe beaten. The mouth of a righteous man is a well of lyfe/ but the mouth of the vngodly is past shame/ & presumptuous.

C Euyll wyll stereth vp stryfe/ *but loue couereth the multytude of synnes. In ẏ lyppes of him that hath vnderstandyng a man shall fynde wysdome/ but the rodde belongeth to the backe of the folysh. Wyse men laye vp knowledge/ but the mouth of the folysh is nye destruccyō. The riche mans goodes are his stroge holde/ but pouerte oppresseth the poore. The ryghteous laboureth to doo good/ but the vngodly vseth his encrease vnto synne. To take hede vnto ẏ chastenyng of nurtoure/ is the waye of lyfe: but he that refuseth to be reformed/ goeth wronge.

*i.Pet.iiij.b.& i.Corin.xiij.b

Dyssemblyng lyppes kepe hatred secretly/ & he that speaketh any sclaunder/ is a foole. Where moche bablyng is/ there must nedes be offence: he that refrayneth hys lyppes is wyseste of all. An innocēt tonge is a noble treasure/ but the herte of the vngodly is no thynge worth. The lyppes of ẏ righteous fede a whole multitude/ but fooles shal dye in their awne folye. The blessyng of the Lorde maketh rich men/ as for carefull trauayle/ it doth nothinge therto. A fole doth wyckedly & maketh but a sporte of it: neuertheles it is wysdome for a man to bewarre of soche.

The thinge that the vngodly are afrayed of/ shall come vpon them/ but the righteous shall haue their desyre. The vngodly is lyke a tēpest that passeth ouer/ & is no more sene/ but the righteous remayneth sure for euer.

D As vyneger is to the teth/ and as smoke is vnto the eyes/ euen so is a slougysh personne to thē that sende him forth. The feare of ẏ Lorde maketh a long lyfe/ but ẏ yeares of the vngodly shalbe shortened. The paciēt abydyng of the righteous shalbe turned to gladnesse/ but ẏ hope of the vngodly shall perish. The waye of the Lorde geueth a corage vnto ẏ godly/ but it is a feare for wicked doers. The righteous shall neuer be ouerthrowne/ but ẏ vngodly shal not remayne in the lande. The mouth of ẏ iust wylbe talkyng of wysdome/ but the tonge of the frowarde shall perysh. The lyppes of the ryghteous are occupyed in acceptable thyngs/ but the mouth of the vngodly taketh them to the worst.

C The.xj.Chapter.

A Falle balaunce is an abhomynacyon vnto the Lorde/ but a true weight pleaseth him. A Where pryde is/ there is shame also and confusyon: but where as is lowlynes/ there is wysdome. The innocent dealynge of the iust shall lede them/ but the vnfaythfulnesse of ẏ despylers shalbe their awne destruccyon.

*Pouer.x.a Eccli.v.b.

*Riches helpe not in the daye of vengeaūce/ but righteousnesse delyuereth from death. The ryghteousnes of the innocēt ordreth his waye/ but the vngodly shall fall in his awne wyckednesse. The ryghteousnesse of the iust shall delyuer them/ but the despylers shalbe taken in their awne vngodlynesse.

B *When an vngodly man dyeth/ hys hope is gone/ the confydēce of ryches shall perish. The righteous shalbe delyuered out of trouble/ and ẏ vngodly shall come in his steade. Thorow the mouth of the dyssembler is hys neyghboure destroyed/ but thorow knowledge shall the iust be delyuered. When it goeth well wyth the ryghteous/ the cytye is mery: and when the vngodly perysh/ there is gladnesse. When the iust are in wealth/ ẏ citie prospereth: but when the vngodly haue the rule/ it decayeth. A foole bringeth vp a sclaunder of his neyghbour/ but a wyse mā wyll kepe it secrete. A dyssemblyng person wyll dyscouer preuythinges/ but he that is of a faythfull herte/ wyll kepe councell.

C Where no good councell is there the people decaye: but where as many are that can geue councell/ there is wealth. He that is suertye for a straūger/ hurteth him selfe: but he ẏ medleth not with suerte shyppe/ is sure. A gracyous womā manteyneth honestie/ as for the myghtye/ they manteyne ryches.

He ẏ hath a gentle lyberall stomack is mercyfull: but who so hurteth his neygbhour/ is a tyraūt. The labour of ẏ vngodly prospereth not/ but he that soweth ryghteousnes/ shall receaue a sure rewarde. Like as righteousnes bringeth lyfe: euē so to cleue vnto euell/ bryngeth death. The Lorde abhorreth a fayned hert/ but he hath pleasure in them that are

are vndefiled. It shall not helpe ỹ wicked/ though they laye all their handes together/ but the sede of the ryghtuous shalbe preserued. A fayre woma without discrete maners/is like a rig of gold in a swines snoute.

The iust laboure for peace and tranquyllyte/but the vngodly for dysquyetnesse.

Some man geueth out hys goodes/& is the rycher/but the nygard (hauing ynough) wyll departe from nothynge/and yet is euer
D in pouertye. He that is lyberall in geuyng/ shall haue plenty: & he that watereth/ shall be watered also him self. Who so hoordeth vp his corne/shalbe cursed amonge the people: but blessynge shall lyght vpon his head that selleth it. He ỹ laboureth for honesty fyndeth hys desyre: but who so seketh after mischefe/it shall happē vnto hym. He that trusteth in his ryches shall haue a fall/but the righteous shall florysh as the grene leaf.

Who so maketh dysquyetnes in his awne house/he shall haue wynde for his heritage/ and the foole shalbe seruaunt to the wyse. The frute of the ryghtuous is as the tree of lyfe/a wise man also wynneth mens soules.

1.Petri.iiij.d *If the ryghtuous be recō penced vpō earth/ how moch more then the vngodly & ỹ synner?

The.xij.Chapter.

A Who so loueth wyldome/will be cōtent to be refourmed: but he that hateth to be reproued/is a foole.

A good man is acceptable vnto ỹ Lorde/but the wycked wyll he condempne.

A man can not endure in vngodlynesse/but the rote of the righteous shall not be moued.

a*Crowne for great honour & glorie/as before in the.iiij.chapter.b. A stedfast woman is a a* crowne vnto her husband: but she that behaueth her selfe vnhonestly is a corrupcyō in his bones. The thoughtes of the ryghtuous are right/but ỹ ymagynaciō of the vngodly are disceatfull. The talkynge of the vngodly is how they maye lye wayte for bloude/but the mouth
B of the righteous will deliuer thē. Or euer thou canst turne the aboute/ỹ vngodly shalbe ouerthrowen: but the house of the ryghtuous shall stande. A man shalbe cōmended for hys wyldome/but a fole shalbe despised. A symple man which laboureth & worketh/ is better then one that is gorgyous and wanteth bread. A ryghtuous mā regardeth the lyfe of his catell/but the vngodly haue cruel hertes. He that tylleth hys land/shall haue plētuousnesse of bread: but he that followeth ydlynes/is a very foole.

The desyre of the vngodly hunteth after mischefe/but ỹ rote of the ryghtuous bringeth forth frute. The wicked falleth into ỹ snare thorow ỹ malyce of his awne mouth/ but ỹ iust shall escape out of parell. Euery man shall enioye good accordinge to the innocency of his mouth/& after the workes of his hande shall he be rewarded. Loke what b* a b* foole taketh in hāde/he thynketh it well done: but he that is wyse/wyll be counceled. A foole vttereth his wrath in all ỹ haste/but a discrete man forgeueth wrōge. A iust mā wyll tell ỹ trueth/& shewe the thynge that is right: but a false witnesse disceaueth. A sclaūderous personne pricketh like a swerd/but a wise mās tōge is wholsome. A true mouth is euer constant/but a dyssemblynge tonge is soone chaūged. They ỹ ymagyn euell in their mynde/wyll dysceaue: but the counceilers of peace shall haue ioye folowing thē. There shall no mysfortune happen vnto the iust/but the vngodly shalbe filled wt mysery.

b* By a fole in the Prouerbes is pryncypally vnderstande him that in folowinge his awne counsell defendeth inkydelytye & the vnknowing of God/for trueth* and hyghe wysdome: and will by no meanes hercken & obeye to ỹ word of God/as before in the.i.a. iij.d. x. b. and xiij.a.

The Lorde abhorreth dysceatfull lyppes/ but they that laboure for trueth please him. Ye ỹ hath vnderstandyng/can hyde hys wisdome: but an vndiscrete herte telleth out his folishnesse. A diligēt hāde shall beare rule/
D but ỹ ydle shalbe vnder trybute. Heuynesse discourageth ỹ herte of mā/but a good worde maketh it glad agayne. The righteous is liberall vnto his neyghboure/but ỹ waye of ỹ vngodly wyll dysceaue thē selues. A dysceatfull man shall fynde no vauntage/but he that is content with that he hath/is more worth then golde. In ỹ waye of righteousnesse there is lyfe/as for any other waye it is the path vnto death.

The.xiij.Chapter.

A A Wyse sonne wyll receaue hys fathers warnyng/but he ỹ is a* scornefull/ wyll not heare when he is reproued. A good mā shall enioye the frute of hys mouth/but he ỹ hath a frowarde minde shalbe spoyled. He ỹ kepeth his mouth/kepeth his lyfe: but who so speaketh vnaduised/findeth harme. The slogard wold fayne haue/& cā not get his desyre: but the soule of the dyligent shall haue plenty.

a*Of this.ye haue before in the.ix.Chap.b

A ryghtuous man abhorreth lyes/but ỹ vngodly shameth both other & him self. Righteousnesse kepeth the innocent in the waye/ but vngodlynesse shall ouerthrowe ỹ synner.

Some men are ryche/though they haue nothinge: agayne some men are poore hauīg greate ryches. With goodes euery mā deliuereth his lyfe/& ỹ poore wyll not be reproued. The lyght of ỹ righteous maketh ioy-
B full/but the candle of ỹ vngodly shalbe put out. Amōge the proude there is euer stryfe/ but amōge those that do all thinges with aduysemēt/there is wyldome. Hastely gotten goodes are soone spent/but they that be gathered together with ỹ hand/shall increase. Longe taryenge for a thynge that is differred/greueth ỹ herte: but when the desyre cōmeth/it is a tree of lyfe. Who so despiseth ỹ C wo:de/destroyeth hym selfe:but he ꝑ feareth ꝑ cõmaundemẽt shal haue peace. The law is a well of lyfe vnto the wise/ ꝑ it may kepe him frõ the snares of death. Good vnderstãdynge geueth fauour/but harde is the waye of ꝑ despysers. A wyse man doth all things with discrecyon/but a foole wyll declare his foly. An vngodly messaũger bringeth myschefe/but a faythfull embassytour is wholsome. He ꝑ thynketh scorne to be refourmed/cõmeth to pouerte & shame:but who so receaueth correccyon/shall come to honour.

D When a desyre is brought to passe/it delyteth the soule:but fooles abhorre him that eschueth euell. He that goeth in the company of wyse men/shalbe wyse: but who so is a companyon of fooles/shalbe hurte.

Mischefe followeth vpon synners/ but the ryghtuous shall haue a good rewarde.

Which their children children shall haue in possessyõ/for the riches of the synner is layed vp for the iust. There is plentuousnesse of fode in the feldes of the poore/ & shalbe increased out of measure. He that spareth the rodde/hateth hys sonne: but who so loueth hym/holdeth hym euer in nurtoure. The ryghtuous eateth/and is satisfyed/ but the bely of the vngodly hath neuer ynough.

A WYse womã vpholdeth her house/ but a folysh wyfe plucketh it downe. Who so feareth the Lorde/ walketh in the right path: & regardeth not hym that abhorreth the wayes of ꝑ Lorde. In the mouth of the foolysh is the boosting of lordshyppe/but the lyppes of ꝑ wyse wylbe warre of soch. Where no* oxẽ are/there the crybbe is emptye:but where ꝑ oxẽ labour/there is moch frute. A faythfull wytnesse wyll not dyssemble/but a false recorde wyll make a lye. A scornefull body seketh wysdome/and fyndeth it not: but knowledge is easy to come by/vnto hym ꝑ wyll vnderstande. Se ꝑ thou medle not with a foole/& do as though thou haddest no knowledge. The wysdome of hym ꝑ hath vnderstandig is/to take hede vnto his waye/ but the folysshnesse of ꝑ vnwyse disceaueth. Fooles make but a sporte of synne/but there is fauorable loue amonge the righteous. The herte of hym that hath vnderstandynge wyll nether dyspare for any sorow/ner be to presumptuous for any soddane toye.

B The houses of the vngodly shalbe ouerthrowne/but ꝑ tabernacles of ꝑ ryghtuous shall florysh. There is a waye which some men thynke to be ryght/ but the ende therof leadeth vnto death. The herte is sorowfull euẽ in laughter/& the ende of myrth is heuynesse. An vnfaythfull personne shalbe fylled wt his awne wayes/but a good man wyll bewarre of soche. An ignorãt body beleueth all thynges/but who so hath vnderstãdyng/loketh well to his goinges. A wyse man feareth/and departeth from euell/but a foole goeth on presumptuously. An vnpacyent man dealeth folysshly/but he that is well aduysed/doth other wayes. The ignorãt haue folysshnes in possessyõ/but the wyse are crowned with knowledge. The euell shall bowe them selues before the good/ & the vngodly shall wayte at the dores of the ryghtuous. The poore is hated euẽ of his awne neyghboures/but ꝑ ryche hath many frends.

Who so despyseth hys neyghbour/ doth a mysse:but blessed is he that hath pytye of the poore. They ꝑ ymagyn wyckednes/ shal be disapoynted:but they that muse vpõ good thinges/vnto soche shall happen mercy and faythfulnesse. Diligẽt labour bringeth riches/but where many vayne wordes are/ truly there is scarcenesse. Ryches are an ornament vnto the wyse/but the ignorãce of fooles is very folysshnesse. A faythfull witnesse delyuereth soules/but a lyar disceaueth them. The feare of the Lorde is a strõge holde/for vnto his he wyll be a sure defence.

D The feare of the Lorde is a well of lyfe/to auoyde the snares of death. The increase & prosperite of ꝑ comẽs is ꝑ Kynges honoure/ but the decaye of the people is the confusion of the Prince. Pacyence is a token of wysdome/but wrath & hastye displeasure is a token of folysshnesse. A mery herte is the lyfe of the body/ but rancoure consumeth awaye the bones. He that doth a poore mã wronge/blasphemeth his maker:but who so hath pytye of the poore/doth honoure vnto God. The vngodly is afrayed of euery parell/but the ryghtuous hath a good hope euẽ in death. Wysdome resteth in ꝑ herte of hym that hath vnderstandynge/& he wyll teache them that are vnlerned. Ryghtuousnesse setteth vp the people/but wyckednesse bringeth folke to destruccyon. A discrete seruaũt is a pleasure vnto the Kynge/ but one ꝑ is not honest prouoketh him vnto wrath.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

A SOfte answere putteth downe displeasure/but frowarde wordes prouoke vnto anger. A wyse tõge commendeth knowledge/a folysh mouth blabbeth out nothynge but folysshnesse. The eyes of the Lorde loke on euery place/both vpon the good and badd.

A wholsome tonge is a tree of lyfe/but he that abuseth it/hath a broken mynde. A foole despyseth hys fathers correccyon/ but he that taketh hede whan he is reproued shall haue the moare vnderstandynge.

In the

a* By the oxẽ are sygnyfyed preachers/as in 1.Corint.ix. & by the Crybbe the churche.

b* Waye for maner of lyuyng. Psal.i.a ꝑ abydeth not in the waye of synners. &c. & here after in the.xvi.c.

B In the house of the righteous are greate ryches/but in ỹ increase of ỹ vngodly there is myslozde. A wyse mouth poureth oute knowledge/but the herte of the folysh doth not so. The Lozde abhozreth the sacrifyce of the vngodly / but the pzayer of the ryghteous is acceptable vnto him. The waye of the vngodly is an abhominacyon vnto ỹ Lozde/ but who so soloweth righteousnes/ him he loueth. He that forsaketh ỹ right strete/shalbe soze punyshed: and who so hateth correccyon / sailleth in to death. The hell & her payne is knowne vnto the Lozd/ how moch moze then the hertes of men?

A scornefull body loueth not one that rebuketh hym/nether wyll he come amonge the wyse. A mery herte maketh a chearfull coũtenaũce/but an vnquyet mynde maketh it heuy. A wyse herte will seke after knowledge/but the mouth of fooles medleth with foolishnesse. All the dayes of the pooze are myserable/but a quyete herte is as a continuall feast. Better is a lytle & the feare of the Lozde then greate treasure / foz they are not without sozowe. Better is a messe of potage & loue/ then a fat oxe & euell wyll.

C An angrie man stereth vp strife/but he ỹ is pacient stylleth discozde. The waye of ỹ slouthfull is full of thoznes/but ỹ strete of ỹ righteous is well clensed. A wyse sonne maketh a glad father / but an vndiscrete body shameth his mother. A foole reioyseth in foolish thynges / but a wyse man loketh well to hys awne goinges. Vnaduysed thoughtes shall come to naught/ but where as men are that can geue councell/ there is stedfastnesse. O how ioyfull a thynge is it/ a man to geue a conuenient answere? O how pleasaunt is a wozde spokẽ in due season. The waye of lyfe leadeth vnto heauẽ/ that a man shulde beware of hell beneth.

D The Lozde wyll breake downe ỹ house of ỹ proude / but he shall make fast ỹ bozders of the widowe. The Lozde abhozreth the ymaginacions of ỹ wycked/but pure wozdz are pleasaũt vnto him. The couetous mã roteth vp his awne house/but who so hateth rewardes/shall liue. A righteous mã museth in hys mynde how to do good / but the mynde of the vngodly ymagyneth / how he maye do harme. The Lozde is farre from the vngodly/ but he heareth ỹ pzayer of the ryghteous. Lyke as the clearnesse of the eyes reioyseth ỹ herte / so doth a good name fede the bones The eare that harkeneth vnto wholsome warnynge / and enclyneth therto/shall dwell amonge the wyse. He that refuseth to be reformed/ despyseth his awne soule: but he that submitteth hym selfe to correccyon/is wyse.

C The.xvi.Chapter.

THe feare of the Lozde is the ryght A scyence of wysdome / & lowlynes goeth before honoure. a* A man maye well purpose a thinge in hys herte/but the answere of the tonge cõmeth of the Lozd. A mã thinketh all his wayes to be cleane/ but it is the Lozd ỹ fashioneth the myndes. Cõmytte thy wozckes vnto ỹ Lozde/and loke what thou deuysest/ it shall pzospere. The Lozde doth all thynges foz his awne sake/yee & when he kepeth the vngodly foz the daye of wzath. The Lozd abhozreth all pzesumptuous & proude hertes/ there maye nether strẽgth ner power escape.

a* That is/no wyll of mã can come to good purpose/without the helpe of God.

With louing mercy & faithfulnesse synnes be forgeuen / and who so feareth the Lozde eschueth euell. When a mãs wayes please the Lozde / he maketh hys very enemyes to be his frendes. Better is it to haue a lytle thynge & rightousnes/then greate rentes wzõgeously gottẽ. A mã deuyseth a waye in his herte/but it is ỹ Lozde ỹ ozdzeth hys goingz. When ỹ pzophecy is in ỹ lippes of the kyng/his mouth shall not go wzonge in iudgmẽt. A true measure & a true balaũce are ỹ Lozdes/he maketh all weyghtes. It is a greate abhominacyõ when kynges are wycked/foz a kynges seate shulde be holden vp & ryghtuousnesse Ryghtuous lyppes are pleasaũt vnto kynges / & they loue hym ỹ speaketh ỹ trueth. The kynges displeasure is a messaũger of death/ but a wyse mã wyll pacifye hym. The cherefull countenaunce of ỹ kyng is lyfe/ & his louynge fauoure is as the euenynge dewe. To haue wysdome in possession is better then golde/ & to get vnderstandyng/is moze wozth then syluer. The path of ỹ ryghteous eschueth euell/& who so loketh well to his wayes/kepeth his awne soule. Pzesumptuousnes goeth before destrucciõ/& after a proude stomake there foloweth a fall. Better is it to be of humble mynde & the lowly/ then to deuyde the spoyles & the proude. He that hãdleth a matter wysely / optayneth good: & blessed is he/ ỹ putteth his trust in ỹ Lozde. The poore maketh supplicacyon and prayeth mekely/ but the ryche geueth a rough answere. A frende that delyteth in loue/doth a mã more frendshipe/& sticketh faster vnto him then a brother.

¶ The.xix.Chapter.

A Better is the poore ỹ lyueth godly/ then the blasphemer that is but a foole. Where no discrecyon is/ there the soule is not well: & who so is swyfte on fote/stõbleth hastely. Foolishnesse maketh a mã to go out of his waye/ and then is his herte vnpacient agaynst the Lorde. Ryches make many frendes / but the poore is forsaken of his awne frendes. A false wytnesse shall not remayne vnpunisshed/& he ỹ speaketh lyes shall not escape. The multitude hangeth vpon greate men/& euery man fauoureth him ỹ geueth rewards. Who so curseth hys father and mother / hys light shalbe put out in the myddest of darcknesse. The herytage that cōmeth to hastely at the fyrst / shall not be praysed at ẏ ende.

Saye not thou: I will recompence euell / but put thy trust in the Lorde / and he shall defende the. The Lord abhorreth two maner of weyghtes / and a false balaunce is an euell thinge. The Lorde ordreth euery mās goinges / for what is he / that vnderstandeth his awne wayes? It is a snare for a man to blaspheme that which is holy / and then to go aboute with vowes. A wyse kynge destroyeth the vngodly / & bryngeth the whele ouer thē. The lanterne of the Lord is ẏ breth of man / & goeth thorow all the inwarde partes of the body. Mercy & faithfulnes preserue the kynge / & with louing kyndnes his seate is holden vp. The strength of yonge men is their worshype / & a gray head / is an honour vnto ẏ aged. Wounds dryue awaye euell / and so do strypes the inwarde partes of the body.

The xvi. Chapter.

The kynges herte is in the hande of the Lord, lyke as are the ryuers of water: he maye turne it whither so euer he will. Euery mā thinketh his awne waye to be ryght / but ẏ Lorde iudgeth the hertes. To do righteousnesse and iudgmēt is more acceptable to ẏ Lorde then sacrifyce. A presumptuous loke a proude stomacke / & the lanterne of the vngodly is synne. The deuyces of one ẏ is dyligent / bringe plenteousnes: but he ẏ is vnadusyed / cōmeth vnto pouerte. Who so hoordeth vp ryches wt the disceatfulnes of his tōge / he is a foole / & lyke vnto thē that seke their awne death. The robberies of the vngodly shalbe their awne destrucciō / for they wolde not do the thynge ẏ was ryght. The wayes of the frowarde are straunge / but the worckes of him ẏ is cleane / are ryght. *It is better to dwell in a corner vnder the house toppe / then wt a braulynge womā in a wyde house.

The soule of the vngodly wysheth euell / and hath no pitye vpon his neyghboure.

*When the scornefull is punyshed / the ignoraunt take the better hede: and when a wyse man is warned / he will receaue the more vnderstandyng. The rightuous enfourmeth the house of the vngodly / but ẏ vngodly goo on styll after their awne wickednesse. Who so stoppeth his eare at ẏ crienge of ẏ poore / he shall crye him selfe and not be herde. A pryuy rewarde pacifyeth displeasure / and a gyfte in the bosome stylleth furiousnesse.

The iust delyteth in doynge the thynge ẏ is ryght / but the worckers of wyckednesse abhorre the same. The man that wādreth out of the waye of wysdome / shall remayne in the cōgregacion of the deed. *He ẏ hath pleasure in banckettes / shall be a poore mā: Who so deliteth in wyne and delicates / shall not be ryche. The vngodly shalbe geuen for the ryghtuous / & the wicked for the iust.

It is better to dwell in a wylderneße / then with a chydinge and an angrye woman. In a wyse mans house there is greate treasure and plenteousnesse / but a foolysh body spendeth vp all. Who so foloweth ryghteousnesse & mercy / fyndeth both lyfe / ryghteousnesse & honour. A wyse man wynneth the cytie of the mightie / & as for the strēgth that they trust in / he bringeth it downe. Who so kepeth his mouth and his tōge / the same kepeth hys soule from troubles. He that is proude & presumptuous / is called a scornefull mā / which in wrath darre worcke malicyously. The voluptuousnesse of the slouthfull is his awne death / for hys handes wyll not labour. He coueteth & desyreth a all ẏ daye longe / but the ryghtuous is alwaye geuynge & kepeth nothing backe. *The sacrifyce of the vngodly is abhominaciō / for they offre the thynge ẏ is gotten wyth wyckednes. A false witnesse shall perishe / but he ẏ wylbe content to heare / shall alwaye haue power to speake him selfe. An vngodly mā goeth forth rashly / but the iust refourmeth his awne waye. *There is no wysdome / there is no vnderstandynge / there is no coūcell agaynst the Lorde. The horse is prepared agaynst the daye of battayll / but the Lorde geueth the victory.

thynge to hope for/ & ꝑ candle of ꝑ vngodly shall be put out. My sonne/ feare thou ꝑ Lorde & the kynge/ & kepe no cōpany w the sclaunderous: for their destrucciō shall come sodenly/ & who knoweth ꝑ fall of thē both?
These are also the sayenges of the wyse.
It is not good/to haue respecte of any personne in iudgmēt. He ꝑ sayeth to ꝑ vngod-ly: thou art ryghtuous/hym shall the people curse/yee ꝑ comētie shall abhorre him. But they ꝑ rebuke ꝑ vngodly shalbe cōmended/& a ryche blessyng shall come vpō thē. He maketh him selfe to be well loued/ ꝑ geueth a good answere. First make vp thy worcke ꝑ is without/ & loke well vnto ꝑ which thou hast in ꝑ felde/ & then buylde thyne house.
Be no false witnesse against thy neyghbour/& hurte hym not w thy lyppes. Saye not:
I wyll hādle him/euē as he hath dealte with me/ & wyll rewarde euery mā accordynge to his dedes. I went by ꝑ felde of ꝑ slouthfull/& by ꝑ vyneyardes of the foolish mā. And lo/it was all couered w nettels/ & stode full of thistles/ & ꝑ stone wall was brokē downe.
This I sawe/and cōsydered it well: I loked vpon it/ & toke it for a warnyng. *Yee slepe on styll a lytle/ slombre a lytle/ folde thyne handes together yet a lytle: so shall pouerte come vnto the as one that trauayleth by the waye/ & necessyte lyke a weapened man.

AS Ike as ſnowe is not mete in ſommer / ner rayne in harueſt: euen ſo is worſhipe vnſemely for a foole. Lyke as the byrde & the ſwalowe take their flyght and fle here and there / ſo the curſe that is geuen in vayne / ſhall not lyght vpon a man. Vnto the horſe belongeth a whyppe / to the Aſſe a brydle / and a rodde to the fooles backe. Geue not ȳ foole an anſwere after hys foolyſhneſſe / leſt thou become lyke vnto him: but make the foole an anſwere to his foolyſhneſſe / leſt he be wyſe in his awne conceate. He is lame of his fete / yee dȝoncken is he in vanyte / that cōmitteth B eny thynge to a foole. Like as it is an vnſemely thynge to haue legges & yet to halte / euen ſo is a parable in the fooles mouth. He that ſetteth a foole in hye dignite / that is euē as yf a mā dyd caſt a pȝecious ſtone vpō the galous. A parable in a fooles mouth is lyke a thorne that pȝycketh a dȝonckē mā in the hande A man of experience diſcerneth all thynges well / but whoſo hyreth a foole / hyreth ſoch one as wyll take no hede.

Lyke as the dogg turneth agayne to hys vomyte / euen ſo a foole begynneth hys foolyſhneſſe agayne a freſh. Yf thou ſeyeſt a man that is wyſe in his awne cōceate / there ¶ is more hope in a foole then in hym. The ſlouthfull ſayeth: there is a leoparde in the waye / & a lyon in the myddeſt of the ſtretes.

Lyke as the dore turneth aboute vpō the threſholde / euē ſo doth the ſlouthfull welter hym ſelfe in his bedd. *The ſlouthfull body thruſteth hys hande in to hys boſome / and it greueth him to put it agayne to his mouth.

¶ The.xxvij.Chapter.

MAke not thy boaſt of to morowe / for A thou knoweſt not what maye happē to daye. Lett another man prayſe the / and not thyne awne mouth: yee other folckes lyppes / & not thine.

The ſtone is heuy / & the ſande weyghtye: but a fooles wrath is heuyer then they both.

Wrath is a cruell thinge / & furiouſneſſe is a very tempeſt: yee who is able to abyde enuye? An open rebuke is better then a ſecrete loue. Faythfull are the awounded of a louer / but the kyſſes of an enemye are diſceatfull. He that is full / abhorreth an hony combe: but vnto hym that is hongrye / euery ſower thynge is ſwete. He that oft tymes flitteth / is like a byrde that forſaketh her neſt. The herte is glad of a ſwete oyntment & ſauoure / but a ſtomacke ȳ can geue good councell / reioyſeth a mās neyghboure.

a By wounded here vnderſtande / checkes rebukes and reproſes &c. And by kyſſes / prayſes & flatterynges. &c.

Thyne awne frende & thy fathers frende ſe thou forſake not / but go not in to thy brothers houſe in tyme of thy trouble.

Better is a frende at hand / then a brother farre of.

My ſonne / be wyſe / and thou ſhalt make me a glad herte: ſo that I ſhall make anſwere vnto my rebukers. A wyſe man ſeynge ȳ plage wyll hyde him ſelfe / as for fooles they go on ſtill / & ſuffer harme. *Take his garment that is ſuertye for a ſtraunger / & take a pledge of him for the vnknowne mās ſake.

*Prouer.x.c.

He that is to haſtye to prayſe his neyghboure aboue meaſure / ſhalbe taken as one ¶ that geueth him an euell reporte. A brauelynge woman and the rofe of the houſe dropppynge in a raynye daye / maye well be compared together.

He that refrayneth her / refrayneth the wynde / and holdeth oyle faſt in his hande. Lyke as one yron whetteth another / ſo doth one man cōforte another. Who ſo kepeth his fyge tre / ſhall enioye the frutes therof: he that wayteth vpon hys maſter / ſhall come to honoure. Lyke as in one water there apeare dyuerſe faces / euen ſo dyuerſe men haue dyuerse hertes. Lyke as hell & destruccyon are neuer full/euē so the b* eyes of men can neuer be satisfyed. Syluer is tryed in the moulde/& golde in the fornace/& so is a mā/when he is openly prayled to his face. Though thou shuldest bray a foole with a pestell in a morter lyke otemeel/yet wyll not his foolysshnesse go frō hym. Se that thou know the nombre of thy catell thy selfe/& loke well to thy flockes. For ryches abyde not alwaye/& the c* crowne endureth not for euer. The hey groweth/the grasse commeth vp/and herbes are gathered in the mountaynes. The lambes shall clothe the/ and for the goates thou shalt haue money to thy husbandry. Thou shalt haue goates mylck ynough to fede ỹ/to vpholde thy houshold/and to susteyne thy maydens.

b* That is the hertes of men are insacyable/as in the Psal.ci.b.

c* Croune for honour aboūdaunce/as in ỹ Psal.lxv.c.

¶ The.xxviij.Chapter.

The vngodly a* flyeth no man chasynge him/but the righteous stādeth styf as a lyon. Because of synne the lāde doth oft chaūge her prynce: but thorow men of vnderstandynge and wysdome a realme endureth longe.

a* This flight is the feare wherof is spoken in the.liij. Psalm.b. They are afrayed where no feare is &c. Whych thynge chaunseth/when all thinges are done in vnbeleke/for want of the knowledge of God.

One poore man oppressynge another by violence/is lyke a continuall rayne that destroyeth the frute. They that forsake the lawe/prayse the vngodly: but soch as kepe the lawe/abhorre them. Wycked men discerne not the thynge that is ryght/but they that seke after the Lorde/discusse all thinges.

A poore man ledynge a godly lyfe/is better then ỹ ryche ỹ goeth in frowarde wayes.

B Who so kepeth ỹ lawe/is a chylde of vnderstandynge: but he ỹ fedeth ryotous men/ shameth his father. Who so increaseth his ryches by b* vauntage & wynnynge/let hym gather them to helpe the poore withall.

b* Some rede: vsurye and vnmeasurable gaynes/shall gather them to do aulmoūsse to ỹ poore. That is to saye/by hym that shall haue thē after hym.

He that turneth awaye his eare frō hearing ỹ lawe/his prayer shalbe abhorred. Who so ledeth the ryghtuous in to an euell waye/ shall fall in to his awne pytt/but ỹ iust shall haue the good in possession. The rych man thynketh him selfe to be wyse/but ỹ poore that hath vnderstandynge c*/can perceaue him well ynough. When ryghtuous men are in prosperite/then doth honoure florysh: but when the vngodly come vp/the state of men chaūgeth. He that hydeth his synnes/ shall not prosper: but who so knowledgeth them and forsaketh them/shall haue mercy.

c* Some rede/searcheth it. That is to saye/ to iudge better of his cōdicion: & not streyght wayes to thinke hym wyse because he is ryche.

¶ Well is him that standeth alwaye in awe: as for hym that hardeneth his herte/he shall fall in to myschefe. Lyke as a roarynge lyon and an hongrye beare/euē so is an vngodly prynce ouer the poore people.

Where the prynce is wythout vnderstandynge/there is greate oppression & wronge: but yf he be soch one as hateth couetousnesse/he shall longe raygne. He ỹ by violence sheddeth eny mans bloude/shall be a rennagate vnto his graue/and no man shall be able to succoure him. Who so leadeth a godly & an innocent lyfe/shalbe safe: but he that goeth frowarde wayes/shall once haue a fall. *He that tylleth his land/shall haue plēteousnesse of breed: but he that followeth ydilnesse/shall haue pouerte ynough. A faythfull mā is greatly to be cōmended/but he that maketh to moch haste for to be riche/ shall not be vngyltie. To haue respecte of persones in iudgmētis not good: And why? he will do wrōge/yee euē for a pece of breed.

He that wyll be rych all to soone/hath an euell eye/and consydereth not/that pouerte shall come vpon him. He that rebuketh a man/shall fynde more fauour at the last/ then he that flatreth him. Who so robbeth his father and mother/and sayeth it is no synne: the same is lyke vnto a murtherer. He that is of a proude stomacke/stereth vp stryfe: but he that putteth hys trust in the Lorde/shalbe well fedd. He that trusteth in his awne herte/is a foole: but he that dealeth wysely/shalbe safe. He that geueth vnto the poore/shall not wante: but he that turneth awaye hys eyes from soch as be in necessyte/shall suffre greate pouerte hym selfe. When the vngodly are come vp/men are fayne to hyde them selues: but whē they perysh/the ryghtuous increase.

¶ The.xxix.Chapter.

He that is stynecked and wyll not be reformed/shall sodenly be destroyed without eny helpe. Where the righteous haue the ouer hāde/ the people are in prosperite: but where the vngodly beareth rule/there ỹ people mourne. Who so loueth wysdome/maketh hys father a glad man: * but he that kepeth harlottes/spendeth awaye that he hath. With true iudgment the kynge setteth vp ỹ lande/ but yf he be a man that taketh gyftes/he turneth it vpsyde downe. Who so flatreth his neyghbour/layeth a nette for his fete. The synne of the wycked is his awne snare/ but the ryghtuous shall be glad and reioyse.

*Prou.b.a. Luke.xv.c.

The ryghtuous consydereth the cause of ỹ poore/but the vngodly regardeth no vnderstandynge. Wycked people bringe a citie in decaye/but wyse men let it vp agayne.

B If a wyse mā go to lawe with a foole (whether he deale wyth hym frendly or roughly) he getteth no rest. The bloude thyrstie hate the ryghtuous/but the iust a* seke his soule.

a* Understād/ to deyluer it. Soule is here also taken for lyfe.

A foole poureth out his spyrete altogether/ but a wyse man kepeth it in till afterwarde.

If a prynce delyte in lyes/all his seruaūtes are vngodly. The poore and ỹ lender mete together/together / the Lorde lyghteneth both their eyes. The leate of the kynge that fayth-fully iudgeth the poore / shall contynue sure for euermore. The rodde and correccyon mynistre wysdome / but yf a chylde be not lo-ked vnto / he bringeth his mother to shame. When the vngodly come vp / wickednesse in-creaseth: but the righteous shall se their fal. Nurtoure thy sonne with correccyon / and he shall comforte the / yee he shall doo the good at thyne herte. Where no b * Prophete is / there the people perysshe: but well is hym ꝯ kepeth the lawe. A seruaunt wyll not be the better for wordes / for though he vnder-stande / yet wyll he not regarde them.

b * That is / preacher of the worde of God / as in.i. Corint. xiv.

Yf thou seyst a man that is hastye to speake vnaduysed / thou mayest trust a foole more then hym. He that delycately bryn-geth vp his seruaunt frō a chyld / shall make hym his master at length. An angry man sterreth vp stryfe / and he that beareth euell wyll in his mynde / doth moch euell. After pryde commeth a fall / * but a lowely spryte bringeth greate worshyppe. Who so ke-peth company with a thefe / hateth his awne soule: he heareth blasphemyes / and telleth it not forth. He that feareth men / shal haue a fall: but who so putteth his trust in ꝯ Lord shall come to honoure. Many there be that seke the Prynces fauoure / but euery mans iudgement commeth from the Lorde. The ryghtuous abhorreth the vngodly: but as for those ꝯ be in the right waye / the wyc-ked hate them.

¶ The wordes of Agur the sonne of Jakeh.

THe prophecye of a true faythfull man / whom God hath helped / who God had cōforted ⁊ norysshed. For though I am ꝯ leest of all / ⁊ haue no mās vnderstandynge (for I neuer lerned wysdome) yet haue I vnderstandyng / ⁊ am well informed in Godly thyngs. Who hath clymmed vp into heauen? Who hath come downe frō thence? Who hath holdē the wynd fast in his hande? Who hath cōprehended the waters in a garment? Who hath sett all the endes of ꝯ worlde? What is his name / or his sonnes name? Canst thou tell? * All ꝯ wordes of God are pure ⁊ cleane / a * for he is a shyld vnto all them / that put their trust in hym. Put thou nothing therfore vnto his wordes / lest he reproue the / and thou be foūde a lyar.

* Psal.xix.c. Deute.iiij.a.c xij.d.

a * Some rea-de / and it is. ⁊ c. and in the ende of the verse / in it: meaning the worde.

Two thynges I requyre of thē / that thou wylt not denye me before I dye. Remoue fro me vanyte and lyes: geue me nether pouerte nor ryches / only graunte me a necessary ly-uynge. Lest yf I be to full / I denye the / and saye: what felowe is the Lorde? And lest I beinge constrayned thorow pouerte / fall vn-to stealynge / and forsweare the name of my God. Accuse not a seruaunt vnto his ma-ster / lest he speake euell of the also / and thou be hurte. He that bringeth vp an euell re-porte vpon the generacion of hys father and mother / is not worthy to be commended.

The generacyon that thynke them selues cleane / shall not be clensed from their fylthy-nesse. There are people that haue a proude loke / and cast vp their eye lyddes. This peo-ples teth are swerdes / and with their chafe bones they consume and deuoure the symple of the earth / and the poore from amōge men.

This generacyon (whych is lyke an horse-leche) hath two daughters: the one is called / fetch hither / and the other bryng hither.

¶ There be thre thinges that are neuer sa-tysfyed / and the fourth sayeth neuer hoo. The hell / a womans wombe / and the earth hath neuer water ynough. As for fyre / it sayeth neuer / hoo. Who so laugheth hys father to scorne / and setteth his mothers commaū-dement at naught: the rauens pycke out his eyes in the valleye / and deuoured be he of the yonge Aegles.

There be thre thynges to hye for me / and as for the fourth / it passeth my knowledge. The waye of an Aegle in the ayre / the waye of a serpent ouer a stone / the waye of a shyp in the see / and the waye of a man with a yōge woman. Soche is the waye also of a wyfe that breaketh wedlocke / which wipeth her mouth like as when she hath eaten / ⁊ sayeth. As for me / I haue done no harme. Thorow thre thinges the earth is dysquieted / and the fourth may it not beare: Thorow a seruaunt that beareth rule / thorow a foole that hath greate riches / thorow an ydle housewyfe / and thorow an handmayden that is heyre to her mastres. There be foure thinges in the earth / the whych are very lytle: but in wys-dome they exceade the wyse. The Emmettes are but a weake people / yet gather they their meate together in the haruest. The Conyes are but a feble folke / yet make they their cou-ches amonge the rockes. The grashoppers haue not a guyde / yet go they forth together by heapes. The spyder laboureth with her han-des / ⁊ that in the Kynges palace.

There be thre thinges that go stately / but the going of the fourth is the godlyest of al. A Lyon / which is King of beastes / ⁊ geueth place to no mā: A cock ready to fight: A rāme and a Kyng that goeth forth with his people. Yf thou be so folish to magnifie thy selfe / or medlest with any soch thinge / then laye thyne hande vpon thy mouth. Who so chyrneth mylche/maketh butter: he that rubbeth his nose / maketh it blede: and he that causeth wrath/bringeth forth stryfe.

Kynges ought to iudge iustly. The propertye of an honest maried wyfe.

¶ The ende of the Prouerbes of Salomon.

¶ The boke of the Preacher / otherwyse called Ecclesiastes.

¶ All that is in this worlde is vanytie.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

THese are the wordes of the Preacher / ye sonne of Dauid / kynge of Jerusalē. a* All is but vanyte (sayeth ye preacher) all is but playne vanite. For what els hath a man / of all the laboure ye he taketh vnder the Sūne? One generacion passeth awaye / another cōmeth / but the earth abydeth styll. The Sōne aryseth / the Sunne goeth downe / and returneth to his place / that he maye there ryse vp agayne. The winde goeth toward ye South / & fetcheth his cōpase aboute vnto ye North / & so turneth in to him selfe agayne. All floudz runne in to the see / & yet the see is not fylled: for loke vnto what place the waters runne / thence they come agayne. All thinges are so harde / ye no man can expresse thē. ¶ The eye is not satisfyed wt syght / ye eare is not fylled wt hearynge. The thing ye hath bene cometh to passe agayne: & ye thing ye hath bene done / is done agayne / there is no new thyng vnder the Sunne. Is there eny thinge wherof it maye be sayde: lo / this is newe? For it was longe agoo in the tymes ye haue bene before vs. ¶ The thinge that is past / is out of remembraunce: Euen so the thynges that are for to come / shall no more be thought vpō amonge thē that come after. I my selfe the Preacher / beynge Kynge of Israel & Jerusalē / applied my mynde to seke out & search for the knowledge of all thynges ye are done vnder heauē. Soch trauayle & labour hath god geuē vnto b ye childzē of mē / to exercyse thē selfz therin.

a* Heb. Vanitie of vanyties: ye is / a wonderfull greate vanytie: as Balet of balettes / for cheafe Balet / of which Cāt. i. a b* That is / vnto mē. Some reade the children of Adam. as Gene. xi. a.

¶ Thus I haue consydzed all the thynges ye come to passe vnder the Sunne / and lo / they are all but vanyte & veracion of mynde. The croked can not be mayde strayght / & ye fautz can not be nombzed. I cōmoned wyth myne awne herte / saying: lo / I am come to a great estate / & haue gottē more wysdome / then all they that haue bene before me in Jerusalem

Yee my herte had greate experience of wysdome & knowledge / for there vnto I applied my mynde: that I might knowe what were wysdome & vnderstādyng / what were errour & folyshnes. And I perceaued that this also was but a veracio of minde: for where moch wysdome is / there is also greate trauayle & disquietnes: and the more knowledge a man hath / the more is his care.

¶ Aboundaunce of rychesse / of pleasure & of buyldynge are vayne thynges.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

THen sayd I thus in myherte: Now go to / I wyll take myne ease and haue good dayes. But lo / ye was vanyte also: in so moch ye I sayde vnto laughter: thou art madd / and to myrth: what doest thou?

So I thought in my herte / to withdrawe my flesh frō wyne / to applie my mynde vnto wysdome / & to cōprehēde folishnes vntill the tyme ye (amōge all ye thinges which are vnder ye Sūne) I myght se what were best for men to do / so longe as they lyue vnder heauen.

I made gorgious fayre worckes. I buylded me houses / & plāted vineyardes. I made me orchardes & gardens of pleasure / & plāted trees in thē of all maner frutes. I made poles of water / to water ye grene & frutefull trees withall. I bought seruaūtz & maydēs / & had a greate housholde. As for catell & shepe / I had more substaūce of thē / then all they ye were before me in Jerusalem. I gathered syluer and golde together / euē a treasure of kynges and landes.

I prouyded me syngers and wemē which coude playe of instrumentes / to make men myrth & pastime. I gat me drynckyng cuppes also & glasses. (Shortly) I was greater & in more worshipe / then all my predecessours in Jerusalē. For wysdome remayned wt me: & loke whatsoeuer myne eyes desyred / I let thē haue it: & wherin soeuer myherte delited or had eny pleasure / I wt held it not from it. Thus my herte reioysed in all ye I dyd / & this I toke for ye porcion of all my trauayle. But when I cōsydred all ye worckes ye my handes had wrought / & all the labours ye I had takē therin: lo / all was but vanyte & veracyon of mynde / and nothinge of eny value vnder the Sunne. Then turned I me to consydre wysdome / errour & folyshnesse) for what is he amōge men / ye might be compared to me the kyng in soch worckz?) & I sawe / ye wysdo me excelleth foolishnesse / as farre as lyght doth darcknesse. * For a wyse mā beareth his eyes aboute in his head / but ye foole goeth in the darcknesse. I perceaued also ye they both had one ende. Then thought I in my minde: If it happen vnto ye foole as it doth vnto me / what

* After in the viij. a Prouer. xvij. d.

nedeth me then to laboure eny moze foz wyldome: So I cõfessed within my herte/ ẏ this also was but vanite. Foz ẏ wyse are euer as lytle in remẽbzaũce as ẏ folish/ & all ẏ dayes for to come shalbe forgottẽ/ yee the wyse mã dieth as well as ẏ foole. Thus beganne I to be weery of my lyfe/ in so moch ẏ I coude awaye w̃ nothing ẏ is done vnder ẏ Sũne/ foz all was but vanite & vexaciõ of mynde: Yee I was weery of al my labour/ which I had takẽ vnder the Sũne/ because I shulde be fayne to leaue thẽ vnto another mã/ ẏ cõmeth after me foz who knoweth / whether he shalbe a wyse mã oz a fole: And yet shal he be lozd of all my labours/ which I w̃ soch wysdome haue takẽ vnder the Sũne. Is not this a vayne thyng?

So I turned me to refrayne my mynde frõ all soch trauayle/ as I toke vnder the Sũne:
D foz so moch as a man shulde weery him selfe
w̃ wysdome/ w̃ vnderstãding & oppoztunite/& yet be fayne to leaue his labours vnto ano ther/ ẏ neuer swett foz them. Thys is also a vayne thinge and a greate mysery. Foz what getteth a man of all ẏ laboure & trauayle of his mynde/ ẏ he taketh vnder ẏ Sunne/ but heuyneße/ sozowe & disquietnes all ẏ dayes of his lyfe? In so moch that his herte can not rest in ẏ night. Is not this also a vayne thing?
Is it not better then foz a mã to eate & dzinc-ke/ & his soule to be mery in his labour? Yee
I sawe ẏ this also was a gyfte of God: Foz who maye eate/ dzincke/ oz bzinge eny thing to paße wythout hym? And why? he geueth vnto mã/ what it pleaseth him: whether it be wysdome/ vnderstanding / oz gladneße. But vnto ẏ synner he geueth weerynes & sozow/ẏ he maye gather & heape together ẏ thinge/ẏ afterwarde shalbe geuẽ vnto him whom it pleaseth God. This is now a vayne thinge/yee a very disquietneße & vexaciõ of mynde.
¶ All thinges come in their tyme and paße awaye in their tyme.

¶ The.iij.Chapter.

A Euery thynge hath a tyme/ yee all that is vnder the heauẽ/ hath is cõ-ueniẽt seazon. There is a tyme to be bozne/ & a tyme to dye.
There is tyme to plãte / & a tyme to pluckе vp the thynge/ that is planted:
A tyme to slaye / and a tyme to makе whole
A tyme to bzeakе downe/ & a time to build vp.
A tyme to wepe/ and a tyme to laugh:
A tyme to mourne/ and a tyme to daunse:
A tyme to cast awaye stones / and a tyme to gather stones together:
A tyme to enbzace / & a tyme to refrayne frõ enbzacynge:
A tyme to wynne/ and a tyme to lese:
B A tyme to spare/ and a tyme to spende:
A tyme to cutt in peces/ & a tyme to sowe together:
A tyme to kepe sylence/ & a tyme to speakе:
A tyme to loue/ and a tyme to hate:
A tyme of warre/ and a tyme of peace:

What hath a mã els (ẏ doth any thing) but weeryneße & labour? Foz as touching the trauayle & carefulneße which God hath geuen vnto men/ I se ẏ he hath geuẽ it thẽ/ to be exercised in it. All this hath he ozdened mar-uelous goodly/ to euery thing his due tyme.
He hath plãted ignozaũce also in the hertes of men/ ẏ they shulde not fynde out ẏ groũd of his wozkes/ which he doth frõ ẏ beginning to ẏ ende. So I perceaued/ ẏ in these things ¶ there is nothinge better foz a man/ then to be mery & to do well so longe as he lyueth. Foz all ẏ a man eateth & dzincketh/ yee what so euer a mã enioyeth of all his labour/ ẏ same is a gyfte of God. I cõsydered also ẏ what soeuer God doth/ it cõtinueth foz euer/ & ẏ no thing cã be put vnto it noz takẽ frõ it: & ẏ God doth it to the intẽt/ ẏ men shulde feare hym.
The thinge ẏ hath bene/ is now: & ẏ thinge ẏ is foz to come/ hath bene afoze tyme/ foz God restozeth agayne the thinge that was past.
Mozeouer/ I sawe vnder the sunne vngodlyneße in the steade of iudgemẽt/ & iniquyte in steade of ryghtuousneße. Then thought I in my mynde: God shall separate the rightuous frõ the vngodly/ & then shalbe ẏ tyme and iudgemẽt of all councels & wozckes.
I cõmened w̃ myne awne hert also cõcerning
the childzẽ of men: how God hath chosen thẽ/& yet letteth thẽ apeare: as though they were beastes: foz it happeneth vnto men as it doth vnto beastes/ & as the one dieth/ so dyeth the other: yee they haue both one maner of byzth/so that (in this) a man hath no pzeemynence aboue a beast/ but all are subdued vnto va-nitie. They go all vnto one place/ foz as they be al of dust/ so shal they all turne vnto dust agayne. Who knoweth *the spzete of man ẏ goeth vpwarde/ & ẏ bzeth of the beest that goeth downe into ẏ earth? Wherfoze I per-ceaue/ ẏ there is nothinge better foz a man/then to be ioyfull in his labour/ foz that is his pozcyon. But who wyll bzinge him to se the thinge that shall come after him?

*The romen translaciõ rea-deth) whether the spzete of a man goo vp warde/ and the breath of a beast downe warde.

¶ The mysteries of the innocent. The superfluous labours of men. The child that is pooze & wyse.

¶ The.iiij.Chapter.

SO I turned me/ & cõsydzed all the A byolent wzõge ẏ is done vnder the sunne: & beholde/ the teares of soch as were oppzessed/ & there was no man to cõfozte thẽ oz ẏ wolde delyuer & defende thẽ frõ ẏ violẽce of their oppzessoures.
Wherfoze I iudged those that are deed/ to be moze happye then soch as be alyue: yee hym that is yet vnboznе to be better at ease then they both/ because he seith not the myserable wozckes that are done vnder the sunne.

Agayne

AGayne/I sawe that all trauayle and diligence of labour was hated of euery man. This is also a vayne thynge/ and a vexacion of mynde. The foole foldeth his hãdes together/ and eateth vp his awne flesh. One hande full (sayeth he) is better wyth rest/ then both the handes full with labour and trauayle. Moreouer/I turned me/and beholde yet another vanyte vnder the Sonne.

There is one man/ no mo but hym selfe alone/ hauynge nether chylde ner brother: yet is there no ende of his carefull trauayle/ hys eyes can not be satysfyed wyth ryches/ (yet doth he not remembre hym selfe/& saye:) For whome I do take soch trauayle? For whose pleasure do I thus consume awaye my lyfe? This is also a vayne and myserable thyng. Therfore two are better then one/ for they maye well entoye the profyt of their labour. If one of them fall/ hys companion helpeth him vp agayne: But wo is him that is alone/for yf he fall/ he hath not another to helpe him vp. Agayne/ when two slepe together/they are warme: but how can a body be warme alone? One maye be ouercome/but two maye make resistaũce: A thre folde cable is not lyghtly broken. A poore chylde beynge wyse/ is better then an olde kynge/that doteth/ and can not bewarre in tyme to come. Some one commeth out of prison/& is made a kynge: & another whych is borne in the kyngdome/commeth vnto power. And I perceaued/ yͭ all men liuing vnder the Sonne/go with the secõde childe/ that commeth vp in the steade of the other.

As for the people that haue bene before him/and that come afterhim/they are innumerable: yet is not their ioye the greater thorow hym. This is also a vayne thynge & a vexacion of mynde. When thou cõmest in to yͭ house of God/kepe thy fote[a*] & draw nye/[b*] that thou mayest heare: that is better then yͭ offerynges of fooles/for they knowne not what euell they do.

a* Some rede: For he is redier to heare (vnderstãd thy worde) thã to release the sacrifices that fooles geue.

b* Some rede: rather to heare/ then to geue/as fooles offringe sacrifice.

¶ A monicyon to bewarre of rashe communycacyon. We ought not to meruel at the oppressiõ of the poore. The couetous is not satysfyed with his ryches.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

BE not hastie with thy mouth/& lett not thyne herte speake eny thynge rashly before God. For God is in heauen/ and thou vpon earth/ therfore let thy wordes be fewe. For where moch carefulnesse is/ there are many dreames: and where many wordes are/there men maye heare fooles. * If thou make a vowe vnto God/be not slacke to perfourme it. As for folish vowes/he hath no pleasure in thẽ. If thou promyse eny thinge/paye it: for better it is that thou make no vowe then that thou shuldest promyse/and not paye. Vse not thy mouth to cause thy flesh for to synne/ that thou saye not before the angell: my foolyshnesse is in the faute. For thẽ God wilbe angrye at thy voyce/& destroye all yͭ worcke of thyne handes. And why? where as are many dreames and many wordes/ there are also dyuerse vanityes: but loke yͭ thou feare God. If thou seyst the poore to be oppressed and wrongeously dealt wythall/ so that equyte and the ryght of the lawe is wrasted in the lande: maruell not thou at soch iudgment/for one greate man kepeth touch with another/and the myghtie helpe them selues together. The whole lande also wyth the feldes and all that is therin/is in subiecction and bondage vnto the kynge. He that loueth money/wyll neuer be satisfyed with money: and who so delyteth in ryches/ shall haue no profyt therof. Is not thys also a vayne thynge? Where as moche ryches is/ there are many also that spende them awaye. And what pleasure more hath he that possesseth them/sauynge that he maye loke vpõ them with hys eyes? A labouryng mã sleepeth swetely/ whether it be lytle or moch yͭ he eateth: but the aboundaunce of the ryche wyll not suffre hym to slepe.

Yet is there a sore plage/ which I haue sene vnder the sunne (namely) riches kepte to the hurte of him that hath them in possession. For oft tymes they perish with his greate mysery & trouble: and yf he haue a chylde/ it getteth nothynge. * Lyke as he came naked out of his mothers wõbe/so goeth he thither agayne/and caryeth nothinge awaye wyth hym of all hys labour. This is a myserable plage/ yͭ he shall go awaye euẽ as he came. What helpeth it hym then/ that he hath labored in the wynde? All the dayes of hys lyfe also must he eate in the darcke/ wyth greate carefulnesse/ sycknesse and sorow. Therfore me thincke it a better and a fayrer thynge/a man to eate and dryncke/and to be refreshed of all hys labour/ that he taketh vnder the Sunne all the dayes of hys lyfe which God geueth hym/ for this is his porcyon. For vnto whom soeuer God geueth riches/goodes/and power/ he geueth it hym to enioye it/to take it for hys porcion/and to be refreshed of hys labour: this is now the gyfte of God. For he thynketh not moche how longe he shall lyue/for so moch as God fylleth his herte with gladnesse.

¶ The mysery of the ryche and couetous. The differaunce of a fole and a wyse man.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

A THere is yet a plage vnder ỹ Sũne/ & it is a generall thynge amonge men: when God geueth a man ryches/goodes & honoure/so that he wanteth nothynge of all that hys herte can desyre: and yet God geueth hym not leue to entoye the same/ but another man spendeth them. This is a vayne thynge & a mysera-
B ble plage. If a man begett an hundred chil-dr̃e/and lyue many yeares/ so that his dayes are many in nombre / and yet can not enioye his good/nether be buried: as for him I saye/ that an vntymely byrth is better then he. For he cõmeth to naught / & goeth his waye in to darcknes/and his name is forgotten.
C Moreouer/he seyth not ỹ Sonne/& knoweth of no rest nether here ner there: Yee though he lyued two thousande yeares / yet hath he no good lyfe. Come not all to one place? All the laboure ỹ a man taketh/ is for hym selfe/ and yet hys desyre is neuer fylled after hys mynde For what hath the wyse moore then
D the foole? What helpeth it the poore/ that he knoweth to walcke before the lyuyng? The syght of the eyes is better/ then that ỹ soule shulde so departe awaye. Howbeit this is also a vayne thynge and a dysquyetnesse of mynde. What is more excellent then mã? yet can he not in the lawe get the victory of of him that is myghtier then he: A vayne thynge is it to cast oute many wordes / but what hath a man els?

C That wich palleth oure strengthes & wittes ought we not to seke after.

C The.vij.Chapter.

A FOr who knoweth what is good for man lyuynge / in the dayes of his vayne lyfe/ which is vnta sha-dowe? Or/ who will tell a man/
* Prou.xxij.a Cant.i.a. what shall happen after him vnder ỹ Sõne? * A good name is more worth then a pre-
B cious oyntmẽt/and the daye of death is bet-ter then the daye of byrth. It is better to go in to an house of mournyng / then in to a bãc-ketyng house. For there is the ende of all men/ & he that is lyuynge/taketh it to hert. It is better to be sory then to laugh/ for whẽ the countenaunce is heuy / the herte is ioy-full. The herte of the wyse is in the mour-nyng house/ but the herte of ỹ folish is in the house of myrth. It is better to geue eare to the chastenynge of a wyse man / then to heare the songe of fooles. For the laughyng of foles is lyke the crackyng of thornes vn-der a pot. And that is but a vayne thynge.

Who so doeth wronge / maketh a wyse man to goo oute of his witte/& destroyeth a gentle herte. The ende of a thynge is better then the begynnyng. The packẽt of spyrete is better then the hye mynded. Be not ha-stely angrie in thym ynde / for wrath resteth in the bosome of a foole. Saye not thou: What is the cause that the dayes of the olde tyme were better/then they that be now? for that were no wyse question. Wysdome is better then ryches / yee moch more worth then the eye syght. For wysdome defendeth as well as money/ and the excellent knowledge and wysdome geueth lyfe vnto hym ỹ hath it in possession. Consyder the worcke of God/how that no man can make the thynge straight/which he maketh croked. Vse well the tyme of prosperyte / and remembre the
C tyme of myshortune: for God maketh the one by the other/so ỹ a mã can fynde nothyng els.

These.ij.thinges also haue I cõsydred in the tyme of vanyte: that ỹ iust man perisheth for his ryghtuousnes sake/ and the vngodly lyueth in his wyckednesse. Therfore be thou nether to rightuous ner ouer wyse/that thou perish not: be nether to vnrightuous also ner to foolysh / lest thou dye before thy tyme. It is good for the to take holde of this / and not to let that go out thy hande. For ỹ he feareth God shall escape them all.

Wysdome geueth more corage vnto the wyse/then ten myghtie men of ỹ citie: * for there is not one iust vpon earth/ ỹ doth good/ and synneth not. Take not hede vnto euery worde that is spoken/lest thou heare thy ser-uaunt curse the: for thyne awne herte knoweth / that thou thy selfe also hast oft tymes spoken euell by other men. All these thynges haue I proued because of wysdome: for I thought to be wyse/but she went farther fro me then she was before/ yee & so depe that I might not reach vnto her. I applied my myn-
D de also vnto knowledge/& to seke oute scien-ce / wysdome and vnderstandyng: to knowe the foolishnesse of the vngodly/ & the errour of dotynge fooles. And I founde / that a wo-man is bytterer then death: for she is a very angle/her herte is a nett/ and her handes are cheynes. Who so pleaseth God shall escape from her/but the synner wyll be taken with her.

Beholde (sayeth the preacher) this haue I dilygently searched oute and proued / that I myght come by knowledge: whych as yet I seke/and fynde it not. Amonge a thousande men I haue founde one/but not one woman amonge all. Lo / thys onely haue I founde/ that God made man iust and right/ but they seke dyuerse soteltyes/where as no mã hath wysdome and vnderstandynge / to geue an-swere thervnto.

C The kynges commaundement ought to be obeyed Gladnes is one of the chefe thinges vnder the sonne.

C The.viij.Chapter.

Wysdome

A Wysdome maketh a mans face to shyne/but malyce putteth it oute of fauoure. Kepe the kynges commaundemēt(I warne the) and the othe that thou hast made vnto* God. Be not hastie to go out of his syght/ and se thou cōtynue in no euell thynge: for whatsoeuer it pleaseth him/ þ doeth he. Like as whē a king geueth a charge/ hys commaundement is myghtie: Euen so who maye saye vnto hym: what doest thou? Who so kepeth the commaundemēt/ shall fele no harme: but a wyse mans herte discerneth tyme and maner: For euery thynge wyll haue opportunite and iudgment/ and thys is the thynge that maketh B mē full of carefulnes and sorowe. And why? a man knoweth not what is for to come/ for who wyll tell hym? Nether is there eny man that hath power ouer the spyrete/ to kepe styll the spyrete/ ner to haue eny power in þ tyme of death: it is not he also that can make an ende of þ battayll/ nether maye vngodlynes delyuer hym that medleth with all.

* Prou.xvij.d. Iob.ix.d

* Some reade/ the Goddes: þ is/ Iudges.

All these thynges haue I consydered/ and applyed my mynde vnto euery worcke that is vnder the Sonne: how one mā hath lordshipe vpon another to his awne harme. For I haue oft sene þ vngodly brought to their graues/ and fallen downe from the hye and glorious place: in so moch that they were forgotten in the cytie/ where they were had in so hye and greate reputacyon. This is also a vayne thynge. Because now that euell worckes are not hastely punyshed/ the herte of man geueth hym selfe ouer vnto wyckednesse. But though an euell personne offende C an hundred tymes/ and haue a longe lyfe: yet am I sure/ that it shall go well wyth thē that feare God/ because they haue hym before their eyes. Agayne/ as for þ vngodly/ it shall not be well wyth hym/ nether shall he prolonge his dayes: but euen as a shadowe/ so shall he be that feareth not God.

Yet is there a vanyte vpon earth: There be iust men/ vnto whom it happeneth/ as though they had the worckes of the vngodly: Agayne/ there be vngodly/ with whom it goeth as though they had the worckes of the ryghtuous. Thys me thynck also a vayne thyng. Therfore I commende gladnesse/ because a man hath no better thynge vnder þ Sonne/ then to eate and drynck/ and to be mery: for that shal he haue of his labour all the dayes of his lyfe/ which God geueth him vnder þ Sonne. When I applied my mynde D to learne wysdome/ and to knowe the trauayle that is in the worlde (and that of soch a fashion/ þ I suffred not myne eyes to slepe nether daye ner nyght) I vnderstode of all þ worckes of God/ that it is not impossible for a man/ to attayne vnto the workes that are done vnder the Sonne: & though he bestowe his labour to seke them out/ yet can he not reach vnto thē: yee though a wyse mā wolde vndertake to knowe them/ yet myght he not fynde them.

C A man wotteth not/ by the ryghtwelnes of hys awne worckes/ whether he be worthie of loue or hate. A mā ought to lyue merely with his wyfe. A prayse of wysdome.

C The.ix. Chapter.

For all these thyngs purposed I in A my mynde to seke oute. The ryghtuous & wyse yee & their a* workes also are in the hande of God: & b* there is no man that knoweth ether þ loue or hate of the thynge that he hath before him. It happeneth vnto one as vnto another: It goeth wyth the ryghtuous as wyth the vngodly: with the good and cleane as with the vncleane: with him that offereth as with him that offereth not: lyke as it goeth wyth þ ryghtuous/ so goeth it also with the synner: As it happeneth vnto the periured/ so happeneth it also vnto him þ is afraied to be for sworne. Amonge all thynges that come to passe vnder the Sonne/ this is a mysery/ that it happeneth vnto all alyke. This is the cause also þ the hertes of men are full of wyckednesse/ and madd foolyshnesse is in their hertes as longe as they lyue/ vntyll they dye.

a* Some reade/ seruauntes.

b* Some reade: and man knoweth neither the louer ner the hate: which is all before him. The sentēce signifieth as moche/ as no mā knoweth whether God loue or hate any man: Understande/ by the ryghtwelnes of hys awne worckes.

And why? As longe as a man lyueth/ he is careles: for a quick dogg (saye they) is better then a deed lyon: for they that be lyuyng/ knowe that they shall dye: but they that be deed/ knowe nothynge/ nether deserue they eny more. For their memoriall is forgotten/ so þ they be nether loued/ hated ner enuyed: nether haue they eny more parte in þ worlde/ in all that is done vnder þ Sonne. Go thou thy waye then/ eate thy bred wyth ioye/ and drynck thy wyne wyth gladnesse/ for thy worckes please God. c* Let thy garmētes be alwaye whyte/ & let thy head wāt none oyntment. Vse thy selfe to lyue ioyfully with thy wyfe whom thou louest/ all the dayes of thy lyfe/ which is but vayne/ þ God hath geuen the vnder the Sonne/ all the dayes of thy vanite: for that is thy porcion in this lyfe/ of all thy labour and trauayle that thou takest vnder the Sonne. Whatsoeuer thou takest C in hande to do/ that do with all thy power: for amōge the deed/ where as thou goest vnto/ there is nether worcke/ councell/ knowledge ner wysdome.

c* That is/ be not slouēly and fylthely/ but honestly & manerly arayed.

So I turned me vnto other thynges vnder the Sonne/ and I sawe/ that in runyng/ it helpeth not to be swyft: in battayll/ it helpeth not to be stronge: to fedynge/ it helpeth not to be wyse: to ryches/ it helpeth not to be suttell: to be had in fauoure/it helpeth not to be connynge: but that all lyeth in tyme and foztune. For a man knoweth not hys tyme/ but lyke as the fysshe are taken wyth the angle/ and as the byrdes are catched wyth the snare: Euen so are men take in the perlous tyme/when it commeth sodenly vpon them.

¶ This wysdome haue I sene also vnder the Sonne/and me thought it a greate thynge. There was a lytle citie/and a fewemē within it: so there came a greate kynge and besieged it/ & made greate bulwarckes agaynst it. And in the cytie there was founde a poore man (but he was wyse) which wyth hys wysdome delyuered the cytye: yet was there no body/that had eny respecte vnto soch a symple man. Then sayde I: wysdome is better then strength. Neuertheles/ a symple mans wysdome is despised/and his wordes are not herde. The wyse mās councell that is folowed in sylence/ is farre aboue the crienge of a captayne amonge fooles.* For wysdome is better then harnesse: but one vnthryft alone destroyeth moch good.

DEed flyes ꝑ corruppe swete oyntment and make it to styncke/ are fomthynge moze worth then the wysdome and honoure of a foole.

a* That is/to do all thynges a ryght.

A wyse mans herte is[a]* vpon ꝑ ryght hāde/ but a fooles herte is vpō the left. And yonge foole thynckеth/that euery man doth as foolyshly as hym selfe. If a pryncypall spyrite be geuen the to beare rule/be not negligēt then in thyne offyce: for so shall greate wyckednesse be put downe/ as it were wyth a medecyne. Another plage is there/ whych I haue sene vnder the sonne: namely/ the ignorauce that is commenly amonge prynces: in that a foole sytteth in greate dignyte/ and the rych are sett downe beneth: I se seruauntes ryde vpon horses/ & prynces goinge vpō their fete as it were seruauntes.* But he ꝑ dygeth vp a pyt/ shall fall therin him selfe: & who so breaketh downe ꝑ hedge/ a serpēt shall byte hym. Thy two brestes are lyke two twyns of younge roes/ which fede amonge the lylyes.

¶ The spouse speaketh to hym selfe.

O that I myght go to the mountayne of Myrre/ and to the hyll of franckincense: tyll the daye breake/ & tyll the shadowes be past awaye.

¶ The voyce of Christ speaking to ỹ church.

Thou art all fayre, O my loue/ & no spott is there in the. Come to me from Libanus/ O my spouse / come to me from Libanꝰ: come soone the next waye from the toppe of Amana/ from the toppe of Sanir & Hermon/ frō the lyons dennes and from the mountaynes of the leopardes. Thou hast woūded my hert/ O my syster / my spouse/ thou hast wounded my hert/ with one of thyne eyes/ & with one cheyne of thy neck. O how fayre & louely are thy brestes/ my syster/ my spouse? Thy brest are more pleasaunt then wyne / & the smell of thyne oyntemētes passeth all spyces. Thy lyppes/ O my spouse / droppe as the hony combe / yee mylcke and hony is vnder thy tonge/ and the smell of thy garmentes is like the smell of frankynsense. Thou art a well kepte garden/ O my syster/ my spouse / thou art a well kepte watersprynge/ a sealed wel. The frutes that spryoute in the/ are lyke a bery Paradyse of pōgranates with swete frutes: as Cypresse/ Nardus/ Saffrō/ Calmus/ and all the trees of Libanus: Myrre/ Aloes and all the best spyces. Thou art a well of gardens / a well of lyuynge waters / whych renne downe from Libanus.

¶ Christ calleth the Heathen.

Vp thou northwynde / come thou southwynde/ & blowe vpon my garden/ ỹ the smell therof may be caried on euery syde: yee ỹ my beloued maye come into my garden / & eate of the frutes & apples that growe therin.

The.v. Chapter.

¶ Christ speaketh to the Churche.

Come

¶ Christ speaketh to the Apostles.

Eate / O ye frendes / drynke & be mery / O ye beloued.

¶ The voyce of the Church.

As I was a slepe / & my hert wakynge / I hearde the voyce of my beloued / when he knocked.

¶ Christ to the Churche.

Open to me (sayde he) O my syster / my loue / my doue / my derlynge: for my heade is full of dewe / and the lockes of my hearre are full of the nyght droppes.

¶ The voyce of the spouselesse.

I haue put of my cote / how can I do it on agayne: I haue washed my fete / how shall I fyle them agayne:

¶ The voyce of ỹ church speaking of Christ.

But when my loue put in his hand at the hole, my herte was moued towarde hym: so that I rode vp to opē vnto my beloued. My handes dropped with Myrre / & the Myrre ranne downe my fingers vpon the lock. Neuertheles when I had opened vnto my beloued, he was departed and gone hys waye.

Now lyke as afore tyme when he spake / my herte coude not longer refrayne: Euen so now I sought hym / but I coude not fynde him: I cryed vpō hym / neuertheles he gaue me no answere.

¶ The Churche complayneth of her persecuters

So the watchmen that wente about the citie / founde me / smote me / & wounded me: Yee they that kepte the walles / toke awaye my garment fro me.

I charge you therfore / O ye daughters of Jerusalem / yf ye fynde my beloued / that ye tell hym how that I am syck for loue.

¶ The voyce of the Synagoge.

Who is thy loue aboue other louers / O thou fayrest amonge wemen: Or what can thy loue do / more then other louers / ỹ thou chargest vs so straytely:

¶ The Churche / answerynge of Christ.

As for my loue / he is whyte and redde coloured / a syngular personne amonge many thousandes: his heade is the most fine golde / the lockes of his hearre are bulshed / browne as the euenynge: His eyes are as the eyes of doues by the water brokes / washen w̄ mylk / and remaynynge in a plenteous place: Hys chekes are lyke a garden bedd / where in the Apotecaries plāte almaner of swete thinges: His lyppes droppe as the floures of ỹ most

His body is as the pure yuery / decte ouer with Saphires: His legges are as the pylers of Marbell / set vpō sokettes of golde: His face is as Libanus / and as the bewtye of the Cedre trees: Hys throte is swete / yee he is altogeter louely. Soche one is my loue / O ye daughters of Jerusalem / soche one is my loue.

¶ The voyce of the Synagoge speakinge to the Churche.

Whither is thy loue gone then (O thou fayrest amonge wemen) whither is thy loue departed / that we may seke hym with the:

¶ The .vj. Chapter.

¶ The voyce of the Churche.

MY loue is gone downe into his garden / vnto the swete smellyng bedes / that he may refresh him selfe in the garden / & gather floures.

My loue is myne / and I am his / which fedeth amonge the lylyes.

¶ Christ to the Churche.

Thou art pleasaunt (O my loue) euen as louelynesse it self / thou art fayre as Jerusalem / glorious as an armye of men / w̄ their banners. (Turne awaye thyne eyes fro me / for they make me to proude.) Thy hearrye lockes are lyke a flocke of goates vpon the mount of Galaad. Thy teth are lyke a flock of shepe that be clypped / which go out of the washynge place: where euery one beareth two twyns / and not one vnfrutefull amōge them. Thy chekes are lyke a pece of a pomgranate / besydes that which lyeth hyd within. There are thre score Quenes / foure score concubines / & yonge wemen without nombre. But one is my doue / my derlinge. She is the onely beloued of her mother / and deare vnto her that bare her. When the daughters sawe her / they sayde / she was blessed: Yee the Quenes & concubynes praysed her.

What is she this / that pepeth out as the morynge: fayre as the moone / excellent as the sunne / glorious as an armye of mē with their baners.

¶ Christ to the Synagoge.

I wente downe into the notte garden / to se what grewe by the brokes / to loke yf the vineyarde florished / and yf the pomgranates were shot forth.

¶ The voyce of the Synagoge.

Then the charettes of the Prince of my people made me sodenly afrayed.

¶ Christ to the Synagoge.

A WHat pleasure haue ye more in the Sulamite / than when she daunseth amonge the men of warre?

¶ Christ to the Churche.

O how pleasaunt are thy treadynges w̄ thy shues / thou prīces daughter: Thy thiges are lyke a fayre iewel / which is wrought by a cōnyng worke master: Thy nauell is like a roūd goblet / which is neuer without drynke: Thy wombe is lyke an hepe of wheate / sett aboute with lylies: Thy two brestes are like
B two twynnes of youge roes: Thy neck is as it were a tower of yuery: thyne eyes are lyke the water poles in Hesebon / beside ẏ porte of Bathrabbim: thy nose is like the tower of Libanus / which loketh toward Damascus: That head that standeth vpon the is lyke Carmel: the hearre of thy heade is lyke the kynges purple folden vp in plates.

O how fayre & louely art thou / my dearelynge / in pleasures? Thy stature is lyke a

¶ The spouse speakynge of the crosse.

I sayde: I wyll clymme vp into the date tree / and take holde of his braunches.

¶ The spouse speakynge to the spousesse.

Thy brestes also shalbe as the vyne grapes / the smell of thy nostrels lyke the smell of apples / & thy throte lyke the beste wyne. This shalbe pure & cleare for my loue / hys lippes and teth shall haue their pleasure. There wyll I turne me vnto my loue / & he shall turne hym vnto me.

¶ The Churche speaking to Christ.

O come on my loue / let vs go forth into
D the felde / and take oure lodginge in the villages. In the morynng wyll we ryse by tymes / and go se the vyneyarde: yf it be sprōge forth / yf the grapes be growne / & yf the pōgranates be shot out. There wyll I geue the my brestes: there shall the Mandragoras geue their smell beside oure dores: there / O my loue / haue I kepte vnto the all maner of frutes / both new and olde.

I charge you / O ye daughters of Jerusalem / that ye wake not vp my loue / ner touch her / tyll she be content her selfe.

¶ The Synagoge speakyng of the churche.

What is she this / that cōmeth vp frō the wyldernes / and leaneth vpon her loue?

¶ The voyce of ẏ spoule vnto ẏ spousesse.

I am the same that waked the vp amōge B the appie trees / where thy mother bare the / where thy mother brought the in to ẏ world.

¶ The Churche speakynge to Christ.

O set me as a seale vpon thyne hert / and as a seale vpon thyne arme: for loue is mightye as the death / and gelously as the hell. Her coales are of fyre / and a very flamme of the Lorde: so that many waters are not able to quēche loue / nether maye ẏ streames droune it. Yee yf a mā wolde geue all the good of his C houle for loue / he shulde counte it nothinge.

¶ Christ speakynge of the churche to the Synagoge.

When oure loue is tolde oure younge sister / whose brestes are not yet growne / what shall we do vnto her?

¶ The answere of Christ for the churche.

Yf she be a wall / we shall buylde a syluer bolwercke ther vpon: yf she be a tower / we shall fasten her with borders of Cedre trre.

¶ The church answereth to the Synagoge.

If I be a wall / & my brestes like towres / then am I as one that hath founde fauoure in his syght.

¶ The Synagoge speakynge to the church.
D Salomō had a vyneyarde at Baal Hamon / this vyneyarde delyuered he vnto the kepers: that euery one for the frute therof shulde geue hym a thousand peces of syluer.

¶ The voyce of Christ.

But my vyneyard / O Salomon / geueth the a thousand / and two hundreth to the kepers of the frute. Thou that dwellest in the gardens / O let me heare thy voyce / that my companyons maye herken to the same.

The Prophete Elaye.

Esa. vi. b.

A The worde of the Lorde endureth for euer. Esay. xl. a.

¶ The boke of the prophete Esay.

¶ Esay prophecieth that the anger of God shall come vpon Jerusalem because of their synnes.

¶ The first Chapter.

THe prophecy of Esay the sonne of Amos / which he shewed vpon Juda & Jerusalem: In^a* time of ^b* Oziah / Joatham / Ahaz / and Jehezekiah kynges of Juda. Heare O heauē herken O earth / for ỹ Lord speaketh: I haue nourished & brought vp children / and they are fallē awaye fro me. An oxe knoweth his Lord / & an Asse his masters stall / but Israell knoweth nothynge / my people hath no vnderstanding. Alas for this synfull people / whych are experte in blasphemyes / a frowarde generacion / vnnaturall childrē. They haue forsaken the Lorde / they haue prouoked the holy one of Israel vnto anger / & are gone backward. Wherfore shulde ye be plaged any more? For ye are euer fallynge awaye. The whole ^c* head is sych / & the herte is very heuy. ^d* From the sole of ỹ fote vnto ỹ head / there is no whole parte in all youre body: but all are woundes / botches / sores & strypes / which can nether be helped / bounde vp / molifyed / ner ealed with eny oyntment.

Youre lande lyeth waste / youre cyties are brent vp / youre enemyes deuoure youre lād / and ye must be fayne to stande / and loke vpō it: and it is desolate / as it were with enemies in a battell. Moreouer ^e* the daughter of Siōn is left alone lyke a cotage in a vineyard lyke a watchouse in tyme of warre / lyke a besieged cytie. And excepte ỹ Lord of Hostes had left vs a fewe alyue: we shulde haue bene as Sodoma / and lyke vnto Gomorra.

Heare the worde of ỹ Lord ye tyrauntes of ^f* Sodoma: and herken vnto the lawe of oure God / thou people of Gomorra. Why offre ye so many sacrifyces vnto me? I am discontent for ỹ brent offrynges of wethers / and with ỹ fatnesse of fedbeastes. I haue no pleasure in the bloude of bullockes / lambes and gootes. When ye apeare before me / who requyreth you to treade within my porches? Offre me no mo oblacions / for it is but lost laboure. I abhorre youre incēse. I maye not awaye with youre newmoones / youre Sabbathes and solempne dayes. Youre fastynge are also in vayne. I hate youre newe holy dayes and fastinges / euen fro my very herte. They make me weery / I can not abyde them. Though ye holde out youre hādes / yet turne I myne eyes from you. And though ye make many prayers / yet heare I nothyng at all / * for youre handes are full of bloude.

Wash you / make you cleane / put awaye youre euell thoughtes out of my syght / cease from doynge of euell and violence. Lerne to do ryght / applye youre selues to equyte / delyuer the oppressed / helpe the fatherlesse to his ryght / let ỹ wydowes complaynte come before you. Now go to (sayeth the Lorde) we wyll talke together. Is it not so? Though youre synnes be as read as scarlet / shal they not be whyter then snowe? And though they were like purple / shal they not be like white wolle? Is it not so? If ye be louyng and obedyent / ye shall enioye the best thynge that groweth in the lande. But yf ye be obstinate & rebellyous / ye shalbe deuoured wyth the swerde: for thus the Lorde hath promysed wt his awne mouth.

How happeneth it then that ỹ ryghtuous cytie (whych was full of equyte) is be come vnfaythfull as an whore? righteousnes dwelt in it / but now murthur. ^g* Thy Syluer is turned to drosse / and thy wyne myxte wt water. Thy prynces are traytours and companyons of theues. They loue gyftes altogether / and folow rewardes. As for the fatherles / they helpe him not to hys ryghte / nether wyll they lett the wydowes causes come before them. Therfore speaketh the Lord God of Hostes ỹ myghty one of Israel: Ah I must ease me of myne enemyes / and auenge me vpon them. And therfore shall I laye myhād vpon the / and burne out thy drosse from the fynest and purest / and put oute all the lead / and set thy iudges agayne as they were somtyme / and thy Senatours as they were from the begynnynge. Then shalt thou be called ỹ ryghtuous cytye / the faythfull cytye. But Sion shalbe redemed with equyte / and her captyuite with ryghtuousnesse. For the trāsgressours and vngodly / and soch as are become vnfaythfull vnto the Lord / must altogether be vtterly destroyed.

And excepte ye be ashamed of ỹ oke trees wherin ye haue so delyted / and of the gardēs that ye haue chosen: ye shalbe as an oke whose leaues are fallen awaye / & as a gardē that hath no moystnesse. And as for the glory of these thynges / it shalbe turned to drye strawe / and he that made them to a sparke. And they shall both burne together / so that no man shalbe able to quench them.

For ẏ [b*] lawe shall come out of Sion/ & the worde of God frō Jerusalem/ & shall geue sentence amōge the Heathen/ and shall reforme the multitude of people: [c*] So ẏ they shall breake their swerdꝫ & spearꝫ/ to make sythꝫ/ sycles & sawꝫ therof. Frō ẏ tyme forth shal not one people lyft vp weapē agaynst another/ nether shall they learne to fight from thens forth. It is to the that I crye (O house of Jacob) vp/ let vs walcke in the lyght of the Lorde. But thou art scatred abrode wyth thy people (O house of Jacob) for ye go farre beyonde youre fathers/ whether it be in Sorcerers (whō ye haue as the Philistines had) or in calkers of mens byrthes/ wherof ye haue to many. O my

The prophecyeth that at the commyng of Christ all strength & power shall be put forth of Jurye.

The.iij. Chapter.

EVery man can eschue a persone moued in anger/ for what doth he wysely? Euen so shall the Lorde of Hostes take awaye from Jerusalē & Juda/ all possessions & power/ all meat and drincke/ the captayne & the soudyare/ ẏ iudge & the prophete/ the wyse & the aged man/ the worshipfull of fyfty yeare olde/ & the honorable: the Senatours/ and men of vnderstanding: the masters of craftes & oratours. And I shall geue you children to be youre princes (sayeth the Lord) & babes shall haue the rule of you. One shall euer be doyng violence and wronge to another. The boye shall presume agaynst the elder/ and the vyle persone agaynst ẏ honorable. Ye one shall take a frende of his awne kynred by the bosome/ and saye: [a*] thou hast clothyng/ thou shalt be ourehead/ for thou mayest kepe vs frō thys fall and parell.

a* That is/ thou arte better apparrelde & rycher then we/ helpe vs wt fode and other thingꝫ necessarye. All ẏ curses which the prophete here recyteth/ were fulfylled in the destruccyon of Jerusalem.

Then shall he sweare and saye: I can not helpe you. Moreouer/ there is nether meate ner clothynge in my house/ make me no ruler of the people. For Jerusalem and Juda must decaye/ because that both their wordꝫ & councels are agaynst the Lorde/ they prouoke the presence of hys magesty vnto anger. The chaunginge of their countenannce bewrayeth thē/ yee they declare their awne synnes them selues/ as the Sodomites/ and hyde them not. Wo be vnto their soules/ for they shalbe heuely rewarded. Then shal they saye: O happie are the godly/ for they maye enioye the frutes of their studies. But wo be to the vngodly & vnryghtuous for they shalbe rewarded after their worckes. O my people/ [b*] rybaudes oppresse the/ & wemen haue rule of the.

b* Some rede: exactours or extorcioners

O my

Hē noteth the couetoulnes of prestes & prelates. God here calleth ỹ poore/ wydowes / the fatherlesse: and all that are destytute of the coumforth of this worlde his people: whō the Pharisees then oppressed: now Bysshoppes / & loche as falsly boast thē selues to be spirituall: Justly called exactours/ inasmoche as they requere their righte (as they call it) moare by mennes tradycios/ then by ỹ worde of God: and do not so leake soules to God/ as money for them selues.

Oppresse/ ỹ is: spoyle/ pyll/ and euen shaue/ so that they shant leaue ought. What housesylde/ or marchaundyse is ther/ that rendereth them not somewhat:

O my people/ thy leaders deceaue the/ & treade out the waye of thy fotesteppes. The Lord is here to comen of the matter/ & standeth to geue iudgment wyth the people. The Lorde shall come forth to reason wyth the Senatours & prynces of his people/ and shall saye thus vnto them: It is ye that haue burnt vp my vyneyarde / the robbery of the poore is in youre house. Wherfore do ye oppresse my people/ and marre the faces of the innocentes: thus shall the God of Hostes reuyle them.

Moreouer thus sayeth ỹ Lorde: Seinge ỹ daughters of Siō are be come so proude/ and come in with stretched out neckes / and with wayne wanton eyes: seynge they come in tryppynge so nycely with their fete: therfore shall the Lorde *shaue the heades of ỹ daughters of Sion / & make their bewtye bare in ỹ daye. In that daye shall the Lorde take awaye ỹ gorgiousnes of their apparell/ & spanges/ cheynes/ partlettes/ and colares/ bracelettz & hooues/ ỹ goodly floured wyde & broderd rayment/ brusches & headbandes/ rynges and garlandes/ holy daye clothes & bales/ kerchiues & pynnes/ glasses & smockz/ bonettes and taches.

And in steade of good smell there shalbe stynck amonge them. And for their gyrdles there shalbe lowse bandes. And for well sett hearre there shalbe baldnesse. In steade of a stomacher/ a sack cloth / & for their bewty wytherydnesse & sonneburnyng. Their housbandes and their myghtye men shall perysh with the swerde in batell.

Whether ther be chyldrē christened/ or mariages made/ or men come to the table of the Lorde: whether the lyck be vylyted/ or the deed buryed/ ther is euer some what requyred. Furthermoare they are not onely accused to be couetouse/ but also to be wemen/ that is / effemynate & womanly: because they moast fylthely & ydely spende & waste ỹ/ which they haue scraped wt iuggeling/ violēce/ & most naughtie factiōs.

c* To shaue the heades of wemen is to make thē confounded and ashamed/ for it is ashame to a womā to be shauē. i. Cor. xi. a. So that the Prophete herby sygnyfyeth/ by a borowed speache/ that the Lorde shall make the daughters of Sion (by which vnderstande/ the wemē of Jurye) confounded & ashamed/ & bryng thē to extreme aduersytie & pouertye/ & euen to nought. Josephus maketh mencyon that Jerusalem/ which was the chefe cytie therof/ was ones so famelyshed that a certē womā of the cytie ate her awne chyld. Albe it/ some vnderstand euē here also by ỹ daughters of Syō/ the townes/ vyllages/ & castelles of Sion: as it dothe in deade often sygnifye in the Scriptures.

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

¶ For want of men. vij. wemē desyre to haue one mā.

a* The Gates shal mourne & cōplayne/ because not onely the soudyars shall perysshe wyth the sweard/ but also the Judges & geuers of sentence. Ruth. iiij. a Dyrect ỹ Gates shall be destroyed/ and no mā shall enter in or go out therat: for ỹ Gates mourne/ yf the people be not often seene in them.

AT ỹ tyme shal a* their gatz mourne & complayne / & they shall sytt as desolate folck vpō ỹ earth. b* Then shall seuē wyues take holde of one man/ and saye: we wyll laye all oure meate and clothynge together in comen/ only ỹ we may be called thy wyues/ & that this shamefull reproke maye be takē from vs. After that tyme shall the c* braūch of ỹ Lorde be bewtyfull and myghtie/ & the frute of ỹ earth shalbe kayre & pleasaunt for those Israelites that shall sprynge therof. Then shall the remnaūt in Sion & the remnaunt at Jerusalem be called holy: namely all soch as are wrytten amonge the lyuyng at Jerusalem: what tyme as the Lorde shall wasshe awaye the desolaciō of the daughters of Siō/ & pourge ỹ bloude out frō Jerusalē wt the wynde of his smoke & fyre. Moreouer vpō all the dwellynges of the hyll of Sion and vpon their whole congregacion/ shall the Lorde prouyde a cloude and smoke by daye / and the shynynge of a flammynge fyre by night: for all their glory shalbe preserued. And Jerusalē shall be a tabernacle for a shadowe because of hete in ỹ daye tyme/ a place and refuge where a man maye kepe him for wether and rayne.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Of Christ and his vineyarde/ wyth an execracyon of couetoulnes and of dronckenes.

NOw well then / I wyll synge my beloued frende a songe of his vyneyarde. My beloued frende hath a vyneyarde in a very frutefull plenteous grounde. This he hedged/ thys he walled rounde aboute/ & plāted it wt goodly grapz. In ỹ myddest of it buylded he a towre/ and made a a* wyne presse therin. And afterwarde when he loked ỹ it shulde brynge him grapes/ it brought forth thornes. I shewe yow now my cause (O ye Cytyzens of Jerusalem & whole Juda:) Judge I praye you betwixte me/ & my vineyard. What more could haue bene done for it/ that I haue not done? Wherfore then hath it geuen thornes/ where I loked to haue had grapes of it?

a* By the wyne presse vnderstandeth Scripture ỹ ministracio of the worde of God in the Church.

Well/ I shall tell you how I will do with my vineyarde: I will take the b* hedge frō it/ that it maye perysh/ & breake downe ỹ wall/ that it maye be troden vnder fote. I wyll laye it waste/ ỹ it shall nether be twysted nor cut/ but beare thornes and breares. I wyll also forbyd the cloudes/ that they shall not rayne vpon it. As for the vyneyarde of the Lorde of Hostes it is the house of Israel/ & whole Juda his fayre plantynge. Of these he loked for equyte/ but se there is wrōge: for rightuousnesse/ lo/ It is but mysery.

b* By the hedge & wall is figured the custodye of Aungels / wherwith the people of God (which is called the vineyarde of the Lorde) was cōpassed aboute & defended.

¶ Wo be vnto you ỹ ioyne one house to another / & brynge one lande so nygh vnto another/ tyll ye can get no more grounde. Wyll ye dwell vpō the earth alone? ¶ The Lorde of Hostes rowndeth me thus in myne eare: shal not many greater & more gorgious houses be so waste/ ỹ no mā shal dwell in thē? And ten akers of vynes shal geue but a Quarte/ and. xxx. bushels of sede shall geue but thre.

¶ Wo be vnto them that ryse vp early to vse them selues in dronckennes/ and yet at nyght are moze superfluous wyth wyne. In those companyes are harpes and lutes / tabzettes and pypes / and wyne. But they regarde not the wozcke of the Lozde / and consydze not the operacion of his handes. Therfoze commeth my folk also in captyuite / because they haue no vnderstandynge. Their glozy shalbe myxte wyth hunger / and their pryde shalbe marred for thyrste. Therfoze gapeth hell / and openeth her mouth maruelous wyde: that pryde / boostynge and wysdome / with soch as reioyse therin / maye descende in to it.

Thus shall man haue a fall / he shalbe brought lowe / & ỹ hygh lokes of the proude layde downe. But the Lozde of Hostes / that holy God: shalbe exalted & vntouched / when he shall declare hys equyte and ryghtuousnesse after this maner: Then shall ỹ lambes eate their apoynted foder / & shall fede plenteously in the moũtaynes. Wo be vnto vayne persones / that drawe wyckednes vnto thẽ / as it were with a coozde: & synne / as it were wt a cart rope. Which vse to speake on thys maner: let him make haste now / and go forth with hys wozcke / that we maye se it. Lett ỹ councell of the holy one of Israel come / and dzawe nye / that we maye knowe it.

Wo be vnto them that call euell good / & good euell: which make darcknesse lyght / & lyght darcknesse / that make sower swete / and swete sower. Wo be vnto them that are wyse in their awne syght / and thyncke them selues to haue vnderstandynge. Wo be vnto them / that are connynge men to suppe oute wyne / and experte to sett vp dzonckennesse. These geue sentence wyth the vngodly for rewardes / but condempne the iust cause of the ryghtuous.

Therfoze lyke as fyre lycketh vp ỹ strawe / and as the flame consumeth the stubble: Euẽ so (when their rote is full /) their blossome shall vanysh awaye lyke dust or smoke: for they despyse ỹ lawe of the Lozd of Hostes / and blaspheme the wozde of the holy maker of Israel.

Therfoze is the wzath of the Lozd kyndled also agaynst his people / and he * shaketh hys hande at them: yee he shall smyte so / that the hylles shall tremble. And their karcases shall lye in the open stretes / lyke myre. After all this / the wzath of God shal not ceasse / but he shall stretch hys hande wyder. And he shall gyue a token vnto a straunge people / and call vnto them in a farre coũtre: and beholde / they shall come hastely wyth spede. There is not one faynt noz feble amõge thẽ / no not a slogysh noz sleepery persone. There shall not one of them put of the gyrdle from his loynes / ner lowse their lachet of his shue

* To shake or stretch forth his hand at thẽ / is to pzouyde & make readye to stryke them / & greuously to punysh thẽ for their synnes. As after in the xiiii. g. If he stretch forth his hande / who wyll wythdza we it agayne?

Their arowes are sharpe / and their bowes bent. Their hoze hoofes are lyke flynt / and their cartwheles like a stozmy winde. Their crye is as it were of a lyon / and the roaryng of thẽ lyke lyons whelpes. They shall roaze / and hantch vp the praye / and no mã shall recouer it oz get it from thẽ. In that daye they shalbe so fearce vpon them / as the see. And yf we loke vnto the lande / beholde / it shalbe all darcknesse and sozowe. If we loke to heauen: beholde / it shalbe darck wyth carefull desperacyon.

Esay sawe the glozye of the Lozde / and was sent to prophecye the desolacyon of Jurye.

The.vj. Chapter.

IN the same yeare that Kynge Oziah dyed I sawe * the Lozde sytting vpõ an hygh & glozious seate / and his trayne fylled ỹ palace. Frõ aboue stakred the Seraphins / wherof euery one had syx wynges. Wyth twayne ech couered hys * face / wyth twayne his fete / and with twayne dyd he flye. They cryed also ech one to other on this maner: holy holy holy / is ỹ Lozd of Hostes. The whole wozld is full of hys glozy. Yee the geastes and dozechekes moued at their cryenge / and the house was full of smoke. Then I sayde: O wo is me. For I was astonyshed: that I (whych am a man of vncleane lyppes / and dwell amonge people that hath vncleane lippes also) shuld se the Kyng and Lozde of Hostes with myne eyes.

Then flewe one of the Seraphins vnto me / hauynge a hote cole in his hande / whych he had taken from the aulter with the tonges / and touched my mouth / and sayde: lo / thys hath thouched thy mouth / and thine vnrightuousnes is taken awaye / and thy synne forgeuen. After this I herde the voyce of the Lozde takynge aduysement on thys maner: Whome shall I sende / and who wylbe oure messaunger? Then I sayde: here am I / sende me. And soh e sayde: go / and tell thys people: * ye shall heare in dede / but ye shall not vnderstãde / ye shall planely se / & not perceaue. Harden the harte of this people / stoppe their eares / & shut their eyes / that they se not wyth their eyes / heare not wyth their eares / & vnderstande not with their hertes / and cõuerte and be healed.

Then spake I: Lozde / how longe? he answered: vntyll the cytyes be vtterly wythout inhabytours / and the houses wythout men / tyll the lande be also desolate / & lye vnbuylded. For the Lozde shall take the men farre awaye / so that the lande shall lye waste. Neuertheles / the tenthe parte shall remayne therin / for it shall conuerte and be frute

A 4. Reg. xvi. a 2. Para. xxviij. a

IT happened in the tyme of Ahaz the sonne of Joatham/ whych was the sonne of Oziah kynge of Juda: that *Razin the kyng of Siria/ and Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah/ kyng of Israel: went vp toward Jerusalem to besege it/ but wanne it not. Now when the house of Dauid (that is Ahaz) herde worde therof/ that Siria and Ephraim were confederate together: his herte quaked (yee and the hertes also of his people) lyke as a tre in the felde/ that is moued with the wynde.

Then sayde God vnto Esay: go mete Ahaz (thou and thy sonne Sear Jasub) at ỹ head of the ouer pole/ in the fote path by the fullers grounde/ and saye vnto hym/ take hede to thy selfe and be styll/ but feare not/ nether be faynthearted/ for these two tales: that is: for these two smokynge fyre brandes/ the wrath and furiousnes of Razin the Sirian and Romelies sonne: because that the kynge of Siria Ephraim & Romelies sonne haue wickedly conspired agaynst the/ saying: We
B wyll goo downe in to Juda/ vexe them/ and brynge them vnder vs/ and set a kynge there/ euen the sonne of Tabeel. For thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God therto/ It shall not so goo forth/ nether come so to passe: for the head cytye of the Sirians is Damascus/ but the head of Damascus is Razin. And after fyue & threscore yeare/ shall Ephraim be nomore a people. And the chefe cytie of Ephraim is Samaria/ but the head of Samaria is Romelies sonne. And yf ye beleue not/ there shall no promyse be kepte with you.

¶ Moreouer/ God spake vnto Ahaz/ saying: requyre a token of the Lorde thy God/ whether it be towarde the depth beneth or towarde the heyght aboue. Then sayde Ahaz: I wyll requyre none/ nether wyll I tempte the Lorde. The Lord answered: Then heare to/ ye of ỹ house of Dauid: Is it not ynough for you/ that ye be greuous vnto men/ but ye ¶ must greue my God also? And therfore the Lorde shall geue you a token of hym selfe: Beholde/ a virgin shall conceaue and beare a sonne/ and shall call his name a* Emanuel. Butter and hony shall he eate/ that he maye knowe the euell/ and chose the good. But or euer ỹ chylde come to knowledge/ to eschue the euell and chose the good: The lande (that thou art so afrayde for) shalbe desolate of both her kynges.

a * That is/ God with vs.

The Lorde also shall sende a tyme vpon the/ vpon thy people/ and vpon thy fathers house (such as neuer came sence the tyme ỹ Ephraim departed from Juda) thorowe the kynge of the Assirians. For at the same tyme b* shall the Lord whistle for the flies that are aboute the water of Egypt/ and for the Bees in the Assirians lande. These shall come/ and shall lyght all in the valeyes/ in the bawtes of stone/ vpon all grene thynges/ and in all corners.

At the same tyme shall the Lorde c* shaue b* the hearre of the head and the fete and the beerd cleane of/ with the c* rasoure ỹ he shall paye them withall beyonde the water: namely/ wyth the Kynge of the Assirians. At the same tyme shall a man lyue with a cowe/ & two shepe. Then because of the aboundaũce of mylck/ he shall make butter and eate it. So that euery one which remayneth in the lande/ shall eate butter and hony. At the same tyme all vyneyardes (though there be a thousande vynes in one/ and were solde for a thousande syluerlynges) shalbe turned to brears and thornes. Lyke as they shall come in to the lande wyth arowes and bowes/ so shall all ỹ lande be come brears and thornes. And as for all hylles that now are hewen downe/ thou shalt not come vpon them/ for feare of brears and thornes. But the catell shall be dryuen thyther/ and the shepe shall fede there.

b * That is/ shall geue a small tokẽ and bryng thẽ to geather. The Hoste/ as well of Nabuchodonozer as of Sennaherib was of the Assiryans/ Egyptians/ and Indians. The Egyptiãs calleth he flies/ because ther be in Egypt many flyes: and the Assirians bees/ because ther is in Assiria abondance of bees & honye. By the water of Egypt/ he sygnifieth Nilus.

c * That is/ take cleane awaye.

d * That is/ the nobles and rulars. And by the hearre of ỹ fete & beard/ are sygnifyed the comenalte/ & whatsoeuer is seamely or manly in it.

e * By the rasour that shall paye them vnderstandeth he the kynge of Assur/ and the other aboue named.

¶ The delyueraunce of the lande by Emanuel. The stone of offence/ at which many shall stomble.

¶ The .viij. Chapter.

MOreouer the Lorde sayde vnto me: Take the a greate leaf/ and wryte in it/ as men do with a penne/ that he spede hym to robbe/ and haste hym to spoyle. And immediatly I called vnto me faythfull wytnesses Uziah the preest/ and Zachariah the sonne of Barachiah. After that went I vnto the Prophetisse/ that now had conceaued & borne a sonne. Then sayde the Lorde to me: geue him thys name: Maherschalal haschbas (that is: a spedie robber: an hastie spoyler). For why/ or euer the chyld shall haue knowledge to saye: Abi and Im/ (that is father/ and mother): shall the ryches of Damascus and the substaunce of Samaria be taken awaye/ thorow the kynge of the Assirians.

¶ The Lorde spake also vnto me/ saying: for so moch as the people refuseth the styll a* rennynge water of Silo/ and put their delyte in Razin and Romelies sonne: Behold/ the Lorde shall bryng myghtye and greate floudes of water vpon thẽ: namely/ the kyng of ỹ Assirias with all his power. Which shall

So in Ezech. xvij. a is a kynge described by an eagle that hath great wynges. c * Some reade / and as the rocke to fall vpon to the. ij. houses of Israell: a snare and nett to the inhabytours of Jerusalẽ. And they expounde the sentence thus. The Lord wil be vnto the ij. houses of Israel / that is / to ꝓ house of Juda & to the house of the. x. tribes: partly a sanctifieng (by which vnderstand helth & felicytye) & partely a stone to stomble at. So that some of bothe the houses shall be sanctifyed & some shal stomble / but ꝓ chefely they of Jerusalẽ shal be snared. Who shall be sanctyfyed & who shall stõble & fall / doth S. poure out his furiousnes vpon euery man/ and renne ouer all their banckes. And shall breake in vpon Juda / increasyng in power / tyll he gett him by ꝓ throte. He shall fyll also the wydenesse of thy lande b * with hys brode wynges / O Emanuell. Go together ye peoples / and gather you / herken to all ye of farre countrees. Muster you / & gather you: muster you and gather you / take youre coũcell together / yet must youre councell come to nought: go in hande wythall / yet shall it not prospere. Excepte Emanuel: (ꝓ is God) be wꝫ vs. For the Lord chastised me / & toke me by ꝓ hãde / & warned me / saying vnto me: that I shulde not walcke in ꝓ waye of thys people. He sayde moreouer: rounde wꝫ none of them / whosoeuer saye: yonder people are bounde together. Neuertheles feare them not / nether be afrayde of thẽ / but sanctyfye the Lord of Hostes / lett hym be youre feare & drede. For he is ꝓ sanctyfyeng / & stone to stomble at c * ꝓ rock to fall vpõ / a snare & net to both ꝓ houses: to Israel / & the inhabitours of Jerusalẽ. And many shall stomble / fall / and be brokẽ vpon hym: yee they shalbe snared and taken.

Now laye the wytnesses together (sayde the Lorde) and seale the lawe wyth my disciples. Thus I wayte vpon the Lorde ꝓ hath turned his face from the house of Jacob / & I loke vnto him. But lo / as for me / & ꝓ chyldẽ which ꝓ Lord hath geuẽ me: we are a tokẽ & a wondre in Israel / for the Lorde of Hostes sake / which dwelleth vpõ the hyll of Syon.

And therfore yf they saye vnto you: aske councell at the sothesayers / wytches / charmers and coniurers / then make them thys answere: Is there a people eny where / that asketh not councell at hys God: whether it be concernynge the dead / or the lyuynge. If eny man want lyght / lett hym loke vpon the lawe and the testymony / whether they speake not after this meanyng. If he do not this / he stombleth and suffreth hunger. And yf he suffre honger / he is out of pacyẽce / and blasphemeth hys kynge & his God. Then loketh he vpwarde / & downe warde to ꝓ earth / & beholde / there is trouble & darcknesse veracyõ is rounde about hym / & ꝓ cloude of erroure. And out of soch aduersite / shall he not escape.

a * This yocke figureth ꝓ yocke & burthe of the lawe / which so oppressed the people / that S. Peter coulde saye to the Apostles / that neither they ner their fathers were able to kepe it. Act. xv b. Thys yocke hath Christ broken / according to this prophecye of Esay / and vtterly discarged the burthẽ therof. For we knowe nowe that God is satisfied & contẽted in ꝓ bloude of hys sonne Christ / & that ꝓ many thousandfolde punyshemen tes which are due to oure synnes / are cleane pardonned & forgeuẽ for the merites of the same Christ. i. Joan. ij. a. The Hebrues expos de thys of ꝓ destrucciõ of the hoste of Senaherib / which was done by ꝓ Aungell / of which ye haue after in the xxxvij. g. And call the host of the Assyrians the yocke of the peoples burthẽ / the staffe of the shoulder & rodde of the oppressour / but it is a moare greuous bõdage / wherwith the spyrytuall Sẽnaherib of whom that Assyriã was a certen figure and shadowe / boũdeth vs / & frõ which Christ hath deliuered vs.

Neuertheles the people that haue dwelt in darcknesse / shall se a greate lyght. As for them that dwell in the lande of the shadowe of death / vpon them shall the lyght shyne. Shalt thou multyplye the people / and not increase the ioye also? They shall reioyse before the euen as men make mery in haruest / and as men that haue gotten the victory / when they deale the spoyle. For thou shalt breake the a * yocke of the peoples burthen: the staff of hys shoulder and the rodd of hys oppressoure / as in the b * daye at Madian.

Moreouer all temerarious and seditious power (yee where there is but a cote fyled with bloude) shalbe burnt / and fede the fyre. For vnto vs a chylde shalbe borne / and vnto vs a sonne shalbe geuen. Upon hys shoulder shall the kyngdome lye / and he shalbe called with his awne name: The wonderous geuer of councell / ꝓ myghtie God / the euerlasting father / the prynce of peace / he shall make no ende to encrease the kyngdome and peace / and shall syt vpon the seate of Dauid and in hys kyngdom / to set vp the same / to stablish it wyth equyte and ryghtuousnesse / from thence forth for euermore. This shal the gelousy of the Lorde of Hostes bryng to passe.

The Lorde sent a worde in to Jacob / the same is come in to Israel. And the people also of Ephraim / and they that dwell in Samaria / can saye wyth pryde and hye stomackes / on thys maner: The tyle worcke is fallen downe / but we wyll buylde it wyth harder stones. The Wolbery tymbre is broken / but we shall sett it vp agayne wyth Cedre. Neuertheles / the Lorde shall prepare Razin the enemye agaynst thẽ / & so ordre their aduersaryes / ꝓ the Syrians shall laye holde vpon thẽ before / & the Philistines behynde / and so deuoure Israel wyth open mouth.

After all this / the wrath of the Lord shall not cease / but yet hys hande shall be stretched oute styll. For the people turneth not vnto hym / that chastyseth them / nether do they seke the Lorde of Hostes. Therfore the Lorde shall rote oute of Israell both head and tayle / braunche and twigge in one daye.

By the head / is vnderstande the Senatoure and honorable man / and by the tayle / the Prophet that preacheth lyes. For all they whych enfourme the people that they be in a ryghte case / soch be dysceauers.

b * By the daye at Madian is meãt the daye wherin Gedeon with thre. C. men slue an innumerable multitude of the Madyanytes / as ye reade Judic. vij. There fought the Lord for him / and delyuered the people from bondage. Euen so hath he now delyuered vs from the captyuyte of the deuell / deeth / and hell by Christ.

c * By the rocke to fall vpon to the. ij. houses of Israell: a snare and nett to the inhabytours of Jerusalẽ. And they expounde the sentence thus. The Lord wil be vnto the ij. houses of Israel / that is / to ꝓ house of Juda & to the house of the. x. tribes: partly a sanctifieng (by which vnderstand helth & felicytye) & partely a stone to stomble at. So that some of bothe the houses shall be sanctifyed & some shal stomble / but ꝓ chefely they of Jerusalẽ shal be snared. Who shall be sanctyfyed & who shall stõble & fall / doth S. Peter clerely expoũd. i. Pet. ij. b. saying: vnto you therfore which beleue / he is precyous: but vnto them / wh ych beleue not / the stone which the buylders refused. &c.

The. ix. Chapter.

The prophecyeth of Christ natyuyte & dompnyon.

A Gen lyke as in tyme past it hath bene well sene / that the lande of Zabulon and the land of Nephtali (where thorow ꝓ see waye goeth

Soch as men thynche also to be perfecte amonge these/are but cast awaye.

Therfore shall the Lorde haue no pleasure in their yonge men / nether fauoure their fatherlesse and wydowes. For they are all together ypocrites and wycked / and all their mouthes speake foly. After all this shall not the Lordes wrath ceasse / but yet hys hande shalbe stretched oute styll. For the vngodly burne / as a fyre in the bryers and thornes: And as it were oute of a fyre in a wod or a redde bush/so ascendeth ỹ smoke of their pryde.

For this cause shall the wrath of ỹ Lorde of Hostes fall vpon the lande/and the people shalbe consumed / as it were wyth fyre / no man shal spare his brother. If a mã do turne hym to the ryght hande / he shall famishe/or to the lefte hande to eate / he shall not haue ynough. Euery mã shall c* eate ỹ flesh of his awne arme: Manasses shall eate Ephraim/ and Ephraim Manasses and they both shall eate Juda. After all this shall not the Lordes wrath ceasse/but yet shall his hande be stretched out styll.

c* He eateth the flesche of his awne arme/ that taketh awaye the goodes of his nye kynde: & robbeth his kynsmã. The meanynge is that one shall robbe & polle another

WO be vnto you that make vnrygh-tuous lawes/and deuyse thynges/ which be to harde for to kepe: wher thorow the poore are oppressed/ on euery syde / and the innocentes of my people are therwith a* robbed of iudgment: ỹ wydowes maye be youre prayе / and ỹ ye maye robbe ỹ fatherlesse. What wyll ye do in tyme of the visytacion and destruccyon / that shall come from farre? To whome wyll ye renne for helpe? or to whom will ye geue youre honoure/ that he maye kepe it? that ye come not amõge the prysoneres/or lye amonge the deed? After all this shall not the wrath of the Lorde ceasse/but yet shall his hande be stretched out styll.

a* Robbed &c. lyke in the 1. Psal. b.

vadei malos manet.

Wo be also vnto Assur/whych is a staf of my wrath / in whose hande is the rod of my punyshment. For I shall sende hym amonge those ypocrytish people / amonge the people ỹ haue deserued my displeasure, shall I send him: ỹ he may vtterly robbe thẽ/spoyle thẽ/& treade thẽ downe lyke the myre in the strete. Howbeit his meaning is not so/nether thynketh his hert of thys falschyõ. But he ymagyneth only/how he may ouerthrowe & destroye moch people/for he sayeth: are not my prynces all Kynges / Is not b* Calno as easye to wynne / as Charchamis? Is it harder to conquere Antiochia then Arphad? Or is it lyghter to ouercome Damascus then Samaria? As who say: I were able to wynne the kyngdome of the Idolaters and their goddes/but not Jerusalem and Samaria. Shall I not do vnto Jerusalem and their ymages/as I dyd vnto Samaria and their ymages?

vt lutū platanꝰ delebit eos:

b* Calno and Charchamis are cytyes / which stãde by the ryuer. Euphrates.

Wherfore the Lorde sayeth: As soone as I haue perfourmed my whole worcke vpon the hyll of Syon and Jerusalem / then wyll I also c* vyset the noble and stoute kynge of Assiria/with his wyldome and pryde. For he standeth thus in hys awne conceate: Thys do I thorow the power of myne awne hãde/ and thorow my wysdome: For I am wyse/I am he that remoue the landes of the people/ I robbe their princes: & (like one of the worthyes) I dryue them from their hye seates. My hande hath founde out the Hostes of the people/as it were a nest. And lyke as egges/ that were layde here and there/ are gathered together: So do I gather all countrees. And there is no man/that darre be so bolde/as to touch a fether/that darre open his mouth/or once whysper.

c* To vyset doth often synifye for to take vengeaunce/ as in Exodi. xxxij. g.

But doth the axe boost it selfe / agaynst him that heweth therwith / or doth the sawe make eny krackynge/agaynst hym that ruleth it? That were euen lyke / as yf the rod dyd exalte it selfe agaynst hym that beareth it: or as though the staff shulde magnify eit selfe/as who saye: it were no wodd. Therfore shall the Lorde of Hostes sende hym pouerte in his ryches/and burne vp his power / as it were with a fyre. But the lyght of Israel shalbe that fyre/and his Sanctuary shalbe the flamme/and it shall kindle/and burne vp his thornes and breers in one daye/yee all ỹ glory of his woddes and feldes shalbe consumed with body and soule. As for hym selfe/ he shalbe as one chased awaye. The trees also of his felde shalbe of soch anombre/that a chylde maye tell them.

After that daye shall the remnaunt of Israel/and soch as are escaped out of the house of Jacob/seke no more comforte at him that smote them/but shall comforte them selues with faythfulnesse and treuth in the Lorde/ the holy one of Israel. The remnaunt / yee and the Posterye of Jacob / shall conuerte vnto God the myghty one. For though thy people (O Israel) be as the sande of the see/ yet shall but the remnaunt of them only cõuerte vnto hym. Perfecte is the iudgment of him that floweth in ryghtuousnesse / & therfore the Lorde of Hostes shall perfectly fulfyll the thynge/that he hath determined in ỹ myddest of the whole worlde. Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God of Hostes: Thou my people/that dwellest in Siõ/be not afrayed for the kynge of the Assirias: He shall wagg

And he shall lyft vp his rodd ouer ỹ see / as he dyd somtyme ouer ỹ Egyptcians. Then shall hys burthen be taken from thy shoulders / & his yock from thy neck / yee the same yock shall be corrupte for very fatnesse. He shall come to Aiath / and go thorow toward Migron. But at Machmas shall he muster his Hoste / and go ouer ỹ foorde d* . Gabaah shall be their restynge place / Rhamah shall be afrayed / Gabaah Saul shall fle awaye. The voyce of ỹ noyse of thy horses (O daughter Gallim) shalbe herde vnto Iais & to Anathoth / which also shalbe in trouble . Madmena shall tremble for feare / but ỹ cytesins of Gabin are manly / yet shall he remayne at Nob that daye. After that / shal he lyft vp his hande agaynst the mount Sion / & agaynst the hyll of Jerusalem. But le / the Lord God of Hostes shall take awaye the proude from thence / with feare . He shall hew downe the proude / and fell the hie mynded. The thornes of the wod shall be roted out with yron / and Libanus shall haue a mightye fall.

A FTer thys there shall come a rodd forth of the kynrede of Jesse / and a blossome out of his rote. The spyrete of the Lorde shall lyght vpō it: the spyrete of wysdome / and vnderstandynge: the spyrete of councell / and strength: the spyrete of knowledge / and of the feare of God: and shall make him feruent in the feare of God.

For he shall not geue sentence / after the thyng that shall be brought before his eyes / nether reproue a matter at ỹ fyrst hearyng: but wyth ryghtuousnesse shall he iudge the poore / and with holynes shall he reproue the symple of the worlde.

Bullockes / Lyons and catell shall kepe company together / so that a lytle childe shall dryue them forth. The cowe & the Bere shall fede together / & their yonge ones shall lye together. The Lyon shall eate straw like the oxe / or ỹ cowe. The chylde whyle he sucketh / shall haue a delyre to the serpētes nest / and when he is weaned / he shall put his hād in to the Cockatryce denne. Then shall the gentyles enquere after ỹ rote of Jesse (which shalbe set vp for a token vnto the Gentyles) for his dwellynge shalbe glorious. At the same tyme shall the Lorde take in hande agayne / to conquere the remnaunt of his people (whych are left alyue). From the Assirians / Egyptcians / Arabians / Morās / Elamites / Caldeyes / Antiochiās and Flandes of the see. And he shall sett vp a token amonge the Gentyles / and gather together the dysperled of Israel / yee & the out castes of Juda from the foure corners of the worlde. The hatred of Ephraim and the envyte of Juda shalbe cleane roted oute. Ephraim shall beare no eueill wyll to Juda / & Juda shall not hate Ephraim: but they both together shall flye vpon the shoulders of the Philistines toward the West / and spoyle them together that dwell towarde the East. The Idumytes and the Moabites shall lett their handes fall / and the Ammonites shalbe obedient vnto them.

The Lorde also shall cleue the tunges of the Egyptcyans see / & with a myghtie wynde shall he lyft vp his hande ouer Nilus / & shall smyte his seuen streames and make men go ouer drye shod. And thus shall he make a waye for his people / ỹ remayneth frō ỹ Assirians / lyke as it happened to the Israelites / what time they departed out of ỹ lād of Egipt

Then shall all handes be letten downe/ and all mens hertes shall melt awaye/ they shall stande in feare/ carefulnesse and sorow shall come vpon thẽ/ and they shall haue payne/ as a womã that trauayleth with chylde. c* One shall euer be abashed of another/ and their faces f* shall burne lyke the flamme.

For lo/ the daye of the Lorde shall come/ terrible/ full of indygnacyon and wrath: to make the lande waste/ and to roote out the synne therof. For the sterres and planetes of heauen shall not geue their lyght/ the sunne shalbe quẽched in the rysynge/ & the moone shall not shyne with hys lyght. And I wyll punysh the wyckednesse of the s* worlde/ & the synnes of the vngodly/ sayeth the Lorde. The hye stomackes of the proude wil I take awaye/ and wyll laye downe the boastynge of tyrãtes. I wyll make a man dearer then fyne golde/ and a man to be more worth/ then a golden wedge of Ophir. Moreouer I wyll so shake the heauen/ that the earth shall remoue out of her place.

Thus shall it go wyth Babylon in the wrath of the Lorde of Hostes in the daye of hys fearfull indygnacyõ. And Babylon shalbe as an hunted or chased doo/ and as a flock without a shepherde. Euery man shal turne to hys awne people/ & flee echone in to hys awne lande. Who so is foũde alone/ shalbe shot thorow: And who so gather together/ shalbe destroyed wyth the swerde. *Their chyldrẽ shalbe slayne before their eyes/ their houses spoyled/ and their wyues rauysshed. For lo/ I shal bryng vp the Medes agaynst them/ which shall not regarde syluer/ nor be desyrous of golde. Then shall younge mens bowes be knappeda sunder. The Medes shal haue no pytye vpon wemen with childe/ and their faces shall not spare the chyldrẽ. *And Babylon (that glory of Kingdomes & bewtye of the Caldees honour) shalbe destroyed/ euẽ as God destroyed Sodome & Gomorra. It shall neuer be more inhabyted/ nether shall there be any more dwellynge there/ frõ generacyon to generacyon.

The Arabyans shall make no mo tentes there/ nether shal the shepardes make their folde s there any more: but wild b*beastes shal lye there/ & the houses shalbe full of greate Oules. Estriches shall dwel there/ and Apes shall daunse there: the lytle Oules shall crye in the palaces/ one after another/ and Dragons shalbe in the pleasaunt parlours. And as for Babylons tyme it is at hand/ and her dayes maye not be longe absent:

b *By the dwellinge of these beastes in Babylon doth the Prophete meane/ that it shal be vtterly destroyed/ & become as desolate as a wildernes: as after in the xxxvij.c: Pellicanes/ storckes &c. shall dwell therin.

¶ The retourne of the people from captyuytie. The prosperytye of the people of God/ and affliccyon of their enemyes. The pryde of Babylon.

¶ The.xiiij.Chapter.

BVt the Lord wylbe mercyfull vnto Jacob/ and wyll take vp Israel agayne/ and set thẽ in their awne lande. Straungers shall cleaue vnto them/ and get them to the house of Jacob. They shall take the people/ and cary thẽ home with thẽ. And the house of Israel shall haue them in possessyon for seruauntes and maydẽs in the lande of the Lorde. They shall take those pryseners/ whose captyues they had bene afore: and rule those that had oppressed thẽ. When the Lord now shall bringe the to rest/ from ꝑ trauayle/ feare/ & harde bõdage ꝑ thou wast ladẽ with all: then shalt thou vse thys mockage vpon the Kynge of Babylon/ and saye: How happeneth it that the oppressour leaueth of? Is the golden tribute come to an ende? Douteles the Lorde hath broken the a* staf of the vngodly/ and the scepter of the lordly. Whych when he is wroth smyteth ꝑ people wt durable strokes/ and in his wonders he persecuteth them/ and tameth thẽ contynually. b* And therfore the whole worlde is now at rest and quyetnesse/ and men synge for ioye.

Yee euen the Fyre trees and Cedres of Libanus reioyse at thy fall/ sayinge: Now that thou art layde downe/ there come no mo vp to destroye vs. c* Hell also trembleth at thy commynge/ all myghtye men and Prynces of the earth/ steppe forth before the. All Kynges of the earth stande vp frõ their seates/ ꝑ they may all (one after another) synge and speake vnto the. Art thou wounded also as we? art thou become lyke vnto vs? Thy pompe and thy pryde is gone downe to hell: Wothes shalbe layde vnder the/ & wormes shalbe thy couerynge.

a* By the staf is vnderstande tyrãnie/ and by the scepter dominyon

b* Whyle Nabuchodonosor & his childr liued/ the people were not only oppressed/ but also Kynges & Prynces: but whẽ they were ones rydde out of the waye/ then was mysery & wayling ended. By the worlde he signifieth the comẽs: & by figge trees & cedres/ the heades and rulers/ as before in the.ij.c.

c* That is/ euẽ they that be in hell wyll tremble/ when Nabuchodonosor cõmeth thether. It is figuratly spoke to the further settinge out of the mischefe of Nabucodonosor.

d* He compareth the death of Nabuchodonosor to the fallyng of Lucifer the morynge sterre/ whych he calleth the chylde of the mornynge/ because it appeareth onely in ỹ mornyng. The meanynge is: No suche thing ought to haue happened vnto the/ ỹ in earth wast lyke the morynge sterre/ whych no man can take out of heauē: And thou that wast so mighty/ ỹ thou destroyedst what people thou woldest/ & vnto whome it was a pastyme to ouerthrowe naciōs/ hast receaued suche measure as thou broughtest. Such a lyke thynge is there in Exec. xxviij. Against kyng Tyrus.

How art thou fallen frō heauē(*d O Lucifer)thou fayre morynge chylde: hast thou gotten a fall euē to the grounde/ thou ỹ (notwithstandyng)dydest subdue the people? And yet thou thoughtest in thyne herte: I wyll clyme vp 'into heauen/and make my seate aboue the starres of God/ I wyll syt vpon the glorious mount toward the North / I wyll clyme vp aboue the cloudes/and wilbe lyke the highest of all. Yet darre I laye/that thou shalt be brought downe to the depe of hell. They that se the / shall narowly loke vpon the/and thinke in them selues/sayenge: Is this the man/that brought all landes in feare / and made the kingdomes afrayde: Is this he that made the worlde in a maner waste/and layde the cities to the grounde/ which let not his prisoners go home?

How happeneth it/that the kynges of all people lye/euery one at home in his awne palace/with worshipe/& thou art cast out of thy graue like a wilde braunch: like as dead mens rayment that are shot thorow with the swerde: as they that go downe to the stones of the depe: as a dead coarse that is troden vnder fete: & art not buried with them? Euen because that thou hast wasted thy lande/and destroyed thy people. For the generacion of the wicked shalbe without honour/for euer. There shal away be sought to destroye their children/ for their fathers wickednes: they shall not come vp agayne to possesse ỹ lande/ & fyll the worlde full of castels and townes.

I will stande vp agaynst them (sayeth the Lorde of hostes)and root out the name & generacion of Babylon(sayeth the Lorde) and F will geue it to the Otters/and will make water poddels of it. And I will swepe them out with the besome of destruccion/ sayeth the Lorde of Hostes. The Lorde of Hostes hath sworne an othe/sayinge: It shall come to passe as I haue determyned: & shalbe fulfylled as I haue deuysed. The Assyrias shalbe destroyed in my lande/ & vpon my mountaynes wyll I treade them vnder fote. Wher thorow his yock shall come from you/ & hys burthen shalbe take frō youre shoulders. Thys deuyce hath God taken thorow the whole worlde/ and thus is hys hande stretched out ouer all people. For ỹ the Lorde of Hostes determen a thynge/who wyll dysanulle it? And ỹ he stretch forth hys hande/ G who wyll holde it in agayne?

The same yeare that Kynge Ahaz dyed/ God threatened by Esay on thys maner: Reioyse not(thou whole Palestyna) as though the rod of him ỹ beateth the were brokē: for out of the serpentes rote/ there shall ware a kockatrice/ & ỹ frute shalbe a fyrie worme. But the poore shall fede of the best thynges/ and the symple shall dwell in safetye. Thy rotes wyll I destroye with honger/ & it shall slaye thy remnaūt. Mourne ye portes/ weepe ye cytyes/ & feare thou(O whole Palestina) for there shall come frō the North a smoke/ whose power no man may abyde. Who shall then maynteyne the messages of the Gentyles? But the Lorde stablysheth Syon/ & ỹ poore of my people shal put their trust in hī.

The prophecye agaynst Moab.

The.xv. Chapter.

THis is the heuy burthen vpō Moab: Ar of Moab was destroyed (as me thought) in the nyght season: The walles of Moab perysshed in the nyght/ & vanysshed awaye: They wente to Baith & Dibon in ỹ hye places/ for to wepe: Moab dyd mourne from Nebo to Medba: a* All their heades were colled / and all their beardes shaven. In their stretes were they gyrded aboute with sack cloth. In all ỹ toppes of their houses and stretes was there nothynge/but mournynge & weppynge. Heleshon and Eleale cryed/that their voyce was hearde vnto Jahaz. The worthyes also of Moab bleared and cryed for very sorow of their myndes: Wo is myherte for Moabs sake. They fled vnto the cyte of Zoar/ whych is lyke a fayre frutefull bullock'/ they went vp to Luhith/ wepinge. The waye towarde Horonaim was full of lamentacyon for the hurt. The waters of Nimrim were dryed vp/ the grasse was wythred/ ỹ herbes destroyed/ & what necessary grene thinge there was besyde. In lyke maner the thynge that was left them of their substaunce / they caryed it by water to Araby. The crie wēt ouer ỹ whole lande of Moab: frō Eglaim vnto Beer/ was there nothinge but mournynge. The waters of Dimon were full of bloude / for the enemye had sent thither a bonde of men/ which as a lyon laye a wayte for the remnaunt of the lande / & for them that were escaped.

The destruccyon of Moab.

The.xvj. Chapter.

THen sent the Lordes of the lande a man of warre/ from the rocke that lyeth towarde the deserte / a* vnto the hyll of the daughter Syon (For as for the b* daughters of Moab / they were as it had bene a trembling bryde/ that is put out of her nest / by the fery of Arnon) which messaunger sayde: gather your councell/ come together/ c* couer vs wyth youre shadowe d* in ỹ myddaye/ as the nyght doth: hyde the chased/ & bewraye not them that are fled/ let ỹ persecuted Moabites dwel amōge you/ be oure opē refuge agaynst the destroyer: for the aduersary oppresseth vs/ ỹ robber vndoeth vs/ & the tyraunte dryueth vs out of a* In tymes past it was a token of mournynge/to shaue the heed & clype the beardes therfore sayth the Prophete/ that the Moabites cut awaye their hearres/for sorow & carefulnes. A like thinge haue ye in Jeremy. xlvij. Cut of thyne hearre/ & cast it awaye. & c.

oure lande. But ỹ trone of youre kyngdome is full of grace/ therfore he that sytteth vpō it with faythfulnesse and trueth in the house of Dauid/ knowe the thinge/ & do hys dylygence to helpe shortly/ accordyng to equyte & rightuousnes. As for Moabs pryde (shall they answere) it is well knowne. And all though they be excellent/ proude/ arrogant/ & hye mynded: yet is their strength nothynge like. And therfore Moab complayneth vnto Moab/ wher thorow they come al to mourne: and now that they be smytten/ they take their deuyce beneth by the bryckwall/ and make their complaynte.

C The suburbes also of Hesebō were made waste/ & the Princes of the Gentiles hewed downe the vyneyardes of Sibma/ whych were planted wyth noble grapes/ and spred vnto Jazer/ and wente vnto the ende of the deserte/ whose braunches stretched their selues forth beyonde the see. Therfore I mourned for Jazer/ & for ỹ vyneyards of Sibma wt great sorow. I poured my teares vpō Hesebon and Eleale/ for all their songes were layde downe/ in their haruest & gatherynge of their grapes: Wyth and chere was gone out of the felde & vyneyardes/ in so moch/ ỹ
D no man was glad ner longe. There went no treader into ỹ wynepresse/ their mery chere was layde downe. Wherfore my bely rōbled (as it had bene a lute) for Moabs sake/ and myne inwarde membres/ for the bryckwalles sake. For it happened thus also: when Moab saw ỹ she was turned vpsyde downe: she went vp on hye in to her Sanctuary/ to make her prayer there/ but she myght not be helped. This is the deuyce/ which the Lorde toke in hande at that tyme agaynst Moab. But now the Lord sayeth thus: In thre yeare shall the power of Moab with their pōpe (which is greate) be mynyshed/ lyke as the burthen of an hyred seruaunte. And as for ỹ remnaunt of them/ they shalbe lesse then a fewe/ and not rekened moch worth.

C A prophecye agaynst Damascus.

C The .xvij. Chapter.

A THis is the heuy burthen vpō Damascus: Beholde Damascus shal be no more a cytye/ but an heape of broken stones. The cytyes of Aroer shalbe waste: the catell shall lye there/ & noman shall fraye them awaye. Ephraim shall no more be strōge/ & Damascus shall no more be a Kyngdome. And as for the glory of ỹ remnaunt of ỹ Syrians/ it shalbe as the glory of the chyldrē of Israel/ sayeth the Lorde of Hostes. At that tyme also shall the glory of Jacob be very poore/ & hys fatnes leane. It shal happē to thē/ as whē one sheareth in haruest/ which cutteth his hand full with the sickle/ & whē one gathereth the sheaues together in the valleye/ of a*Raphaim/ there remayneth yet some eares ouer: Or as when one shaketh an olyue tree/ whych fyndeth but two or thre olyue beries aboue in the toppe/ & foure or fyue in the braunches. Thus the Lorde God of Israel hath spoken.

Then shall man conuerte agayne vnto his maker/ & turne hys eyes to the holy one of Israel. And shall not turne to the auiters ỹ are the worke of his awne handes/ nether shall he loke vpon groues & ymages/ which his fingers haue wrought. At the same tyme C shall their stronge cities be desolate/ like as were once ỹ forsakē plowes & corne/ whych they forsoke/ for feare of ỹ chyldrē of Israel.

So shalt thou (O Damascus) be desolate/ because thou hast forgotte God thy Sauyoure/ & hast not called to remembraunce the rock of thy strēgth. Wherfore thou hast also set a fayre plāte/ & grafted a straūge braūch. In the daye when thou dydest plante it/ it was greate/ and gaue soone the frute of thy sede: But in the daye of haruest/ thou shalt reape an heape of sorowes & mysery es.

Wo be to the multitude of moch people/ that rush in like the see/ & and to the heape of D folke/ that rēne ouer all lyke greate waters. For though so many people increase as the flowyng waters/ and though they be armed/ yet they flee farre of/ and banish awaye lyke the dust with the wynde vpon an hill/ and as the whyrle wynde thorow a storme. Though they be fearfull at nyght/ yet in the morning it is gone wyth them. Thys is their porcyon/ that do vs harme/ and heritage of them/ that robbe vs.

C A prophecye agaynst Egypt.

C The .xviij. Chapter.

WO be to the lande of flyēg shyppes/ whych is of thys syde the floude of A Ethiopia: which sendeth her message ouer the see in shyppes of reedes vpō the water: and sayeth: goo soone/ & do youre message vnto a straunge and harde folke: to a fearfull people/ & to a people that is further then this: to a desperate and pyled folke/ whose lande is deuided frō vs with ryuers of water. Yee all ye that syt in the cō- B passe of the world/ and dwell vpon the earth: when the token shalbe geuen vpon the moūtaynes/ then loke vp: and when the horne bloweth/ then herken to/ for thus hath the Lorde sayde vnto me. I layde me downe/ and pondred the matter in my house/ at the Noone daye whē it was hote: And there fell a myldynge shower/ lyke a dew/ as it happeneth in Haruest. But the frutes were not yet rype cut of/ and the grapes were but younge and grene. Then one smote of/the grappes wt an hoke/yee he hewed downe also the bowes and the bzaũches / & dyd cast thẽ awaye. And thus they were layde waste/ for the foules of the mountaynes / & for the beastes of the earth together. So that the foules sat ther vpon/ & the beastes of ỹ earth wintered there. Then shall there be a pzesent bzought vnto the Lozde of Hostes: euẽ that harde folke/that fearful folke/ & that further is then thys: that desperate and pylled folke (whose lande is deuyded frõ vs wyth floudes of water) vnto the place of the name of the Lozde of Hostes: euẽ vnto the hyll of Syon.

¶ He pzophecyeth styll agaynst Egypt.

¶ The.xix.Chapter.

THis is the heuy burthẽ vpõ Egipt: Beholde/ the Lozde wyll a* ryde vpon a swyfte cloude/ & come into Egypte. And the goddes of Egypt shall trembie at hys cõmynge/ & the hert of Egypte shall quake wythin her. For thus sayeth the Lozde: I wyll stere vp the Egyppcyans one agaynst another amõge them selues/ so that one shalbe euer agaynst his bzother & neyghbour/ yee one cyte agaynst another/ & one kyngdome agaynst another. And Egypt shalbe choked in her selfe. When they aske councell at their goddes/ at their Pzophetes/ at their sothsayers & witches: then wyll I bzynge their councell to naught.

I will deliuer Egypt also in to the handes of greuous rulers/ and a cruell kynge shall haue the rule of them. b* The water of the see shalbe dzawen out/ Nilus shall synke awaye/ & be dzõcke vp. The ryuers also shalbe dzawen out/ the welles shal decreace and dzye awaye. Rede & rush shall fayle/ ỹ grasse by the waters syde oz vpõ the ryuers bãcke/ yee and whatsoeuer is sowẽ by the waters/ shalbe wythered/ destroyed/ and bzought to naught. The fyshers shall mourne/ all soch as cast angles in the water/ shall cõplayne/ & they that spzede their nettes in the water/ shalbe faynt harted. Soch as laboure vpon flax & sylck/ shall come to pouerte/ & they also that weeue fine wozckes. All the poundes of Egypte/ all the pollycye of their Moates and dyches shall come to naught.

Yee the vndyscrete Pzinces of Zoan/ the coũcell of the wise Senatoures of Pharao/ shall turne to foolyshnesse: Those that darre boast & saye of Pharaos behalfe: I am come of wyse people/ I am come of the olde regall Pzogeny. But where are now thy wise men? Let them tell the & shewe the/ what ỹ Lozde of Hostes hath takẽ in hand agaynst Egipt. Fooles are those Pzinces of Zoan/ & pzoude are the Pzynces of Noph: yee they dysceaue Egypte with the nobilite of their stocke. For the Lozde hath made Egypte dzoncken with the spzete of errour/ & they shall vse it in all matters: euen lyke as a dzonckẽ man goeth spewynge aboute. For Egypte shall lacke good councell/ so that they shall not knowe what to do/ nether begynnynge noz ende/ nether vpon the lande ner water. Then shall ỹ Egyppcyãs be lyke vnto wemen/ afrayde and astonyed/ at ỹ lyftyng vp of the head/ which the Lozde of Hostes shall lyft vp euer them. The land of Iuda also shall make the Egyppcyans afrayde/ who so doth but speake vpon it/ shall put them in feare: And that because of the coũcell/ which ỹ Lozde of Hostes hath deuyled agaynst them. Then shall the fyue cytyes of Egypte speake wyth the Cananytes tunge/ & sweare by the Lozde of Hostes/ & Heliopolis shalbe one of them. At the same tyme shall the Lozde of Hostes haue an aulter in the middest of the lande of Egypt/ with this tytle therby: Vnto the Lozde. This shalbe a token oz testymonye vnto the Lozde of Hostes in the lande of Egypte / when they shall crye vnto him/ because of those that oppzesse them: that he shall sende them a Captayne and a Sauyoure to delyuer them.

Mozeouer / Egypte shalbe bought vnto the Lozde/ & the Egyppcyãs also shall knowe the Lozde at the same tyme: they shall do him reuerẽce with peaceoffringes/ & with meatoffrynges: they shall pzomyse him offringes: yee and paye hym also. Thus the Lozde shall smyte Egypte/ and heale it agayne: & so shall they turne to the Lozde/ & he also shall haue mercy vpon thẽ/ & saue thẽ. Then shall there be a cõmen waye out of Egypt in to Assyria. The Assyzians shall come into Egypte/ & the Egyppciãs into Assyzia. The Egyppcyans also & the Assyzians shall both haue one Godes seruyce. Then shall Israel with honoure be the thyzde to Egypte & Assur. And the Lozde of Hostes shall blesse them/ sayinge: Blessed is my people of the Egyppcyans/ Assur is the wozke of my handes/ but Israel is myne enheritaunce.

IN the same yeare ỹ Tharthā came to Asdod/where Sargō the King of the Assyrians sent hym/what tyme as he also beleged Asdod/and wanne it the same season: Then spake the Lorde vnto Esay the sonne of Amoz/saying: go & lowse of that sack cloth frō thy loynes/ & put of thy shues frō thy fete. And so he dyd/ goinge naked and barefote. Then sayde the Lorde: where as my seruaūt Esay goeth naked & barefote/it is a tokē & signyfyenge of the thynge/that after thre yeare shall come vpon Egypt & Ethiopia. For euen thus shall the Kynge of the Assyrians dryue both yonge & olde/as prysoners naked and barefote/out of Egypte & Ethiopia. And shall discouer the shame of Egypte. They shalbe also at their wittes ende/ & ashamed one of another: the Egyptyans of the Mozians/and the Mozians of the Egyptyās/at ỹ sight of their glory. a* Mozeouer they that dwell in the Iles shall se euen the same daye: beholde/this is oure hope/to whom we fled to seke helpe/ ỹ we myght be delyuered from the Kynge of ỹ Assyrians. *Sapi.ij.b. 1.Cor.in.xv.c.

C Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Hostes: Go in to the treasurye vnto Sobna the gouernoure/& saye vnto hym: What hast thou here to do? & from whence comest thou? that thou hast made the a graue here? For he had caused a costly tombe of stone to be made for hym selfe/& a place to lye in to be hewē out of a rock. Beholde/the Lorde shall cast the out by violence/he will deck the of another fashyon/& put vpon the a straunge cloth. He shall carye the into a farre countre/lyke F a ball with his hādes. There shalt thou dye/ there shall the pompe of thy charettes haue an ende: thou vylleyne of the house of the Lorde: I will shutte the out of thyne office/ & put the from thyne estate.

After this will I call my seruaunt Eliakim/the sonne of Helkiah/& araye him with thy cote/and gyrde hym with thy gyrdle/and I will geue thy power in to hys hande. He shalbe a father of the cytesyns of Jerusalē/ & of the kynred of Juda: I will also laye the b*keye of Dauids house vpō his shoulders/ & yf he open/no man shall shut: and yf he do shut/no mā shall open. I will fasten him to G a nayle in the place of ỹ moost hyghe faythfulnesse/& he shalbe vpō the gloryous trone of his fathers house. They shall hange vpon hym all the glory of his fathers house/of the chyldrē & chylders chyldrē/all apparell small & great/all instrumentes of measure & musyke. This shall come to passe (sayeth ỹ Lord of Hostes) when the nayle that is fastened to the place of the hyghest faythfulnesse/shalbe pluckt of. And when the weyght that hangeth vpō it/shall fall/be brokē/& hewen in peces. For the Lord hym selfe hath sayde it.

b*By the keye is signified auctorite & power as in Apoc. iij.b This is he.&c. that hath the keye.&c.

C A Prophecye agaynst Tyrus/and a promes to restoare it agayne.

C The.xxiij.Chapter.

AN heuy burthen vpon Tyrus. Mourne ye shippes of Tharsis/ for she is throwē downe to ỹ groūde/ & cōquered of them that are come from Cethim. The indwellers of the Flandes/ the marchaūtes of Sidon/& they that occupyed the see (of whom thou wast full somtyme) are at a poynte. For by see were ther frutes brought vnto ỹ/& all maner of corne by water. Thou wast the comen marchet of all people. Sidon is sory for it/ yee & all the power of the see cōplayneth/& sayeth: O ỹ I had neuer traueled with chylde/that I had neuer borne any/that I had nether norysshed boye/ner brought vp daughter. As sone as Egypte perceaueth it/ she wylbe as sory as Tirus it selfe. Go ouer a*the see/ mourne ye that dwell in the Iles. Is not that the glorious cite/which hath bene of lōge antiquite? whose natiues dwellynge farre of/cōmende her so greatly? Who hath deuised soch thing vpon Tirus the crowne of all cytyes/whose marchaūtes & Captaynes were the hyghest & principall of the worlde? Euen the Lord of Hostes hath deuysed it/ ỹ he may put downe all pōpe/& mynysh all the glory of ỹ world. Go thorow thy lande (O thou daughter of the see) as men go ouer the water/and there is not a gyrdle more.

a*Some reade: in to Tharsus: he speaketh vnto the marchauntes of Egypte & to the marchaūtes of the Iles: ỹ they now get thē to Tharsus/because Tyrus is destroyed.

Thus the Lorde that remoueth the kyngdomes/& hath taken in hande agaynst that myghtye Canaan to rote it out: hath stretched out hys hande ouer the b*see/and sayde: From hence forth shalt thou make no more myrth (O thou daughter of Sidon: for thou shalt be put downe of the Cethens. Stande vp therfore/ and go where the enemye will carye the, where thou shalt also haue no rest. Beholde (for thyne ensample) The Chaldees were soche a people/that no man was lyke them/ Assur buylded them: he set vp hys castels & palaces/& brake them downe agayne. And therfore mourne (ye shyppes of the see) for youre power shalbe throwne downe.

b*He meaneth Tyrus/ which standeth in the see.

After that/shall the .lxx. yeares of Tyrus (euē as longe as their Kynges lyfe was) be forgottē. And after .lxx. yeares/ it shall happen to Tirus as with an harlot that playeth vpon a lute. Take thy lute (saye men to her) and go about the cytye/ thou art yet an vnknowne wenche/ make pastyme wyth dyuerse balettes/wherby thou mayest come in to acquantaūce. Thus shall it happen after .lxx. yeares. The Lorde shall vyset the cytye of Tyrus/ and it shall come agayne to her marchaundyse/ and shall occuppye wyth all the Kyngdomes that be in the worlde. But all her occuppynge and wynnynge shalbe halowed vnto the Lorde. For then shall they laye vp nothyng behynde them nor vpō heapes: but the marchaundyse of Tirus shall belonge vnto the cytesyns of the Lorde/to ỹ feadyng and sustenynge of the hungrye/and to the clothinge of the aged.

C A Prophecye vpon the tribulacyon that shall fall vpon the worlde/because of synne.

C The.xxiiij.Chapter.

BEholde/the Lorde shall waste and plage the worlde/he shall make ỹ face of the earth desolate/ & scatre abroade the inhabytoures therof. Then shall the a*Preast be as the people/the master as the seruaūt/ỹ dame lyke ỹ mayde/ the seller lyke the byer/he that lendeth vpon vsury a*Yf the Preste dothe often synnifye euery mā ỹ ruleth the people/ be it Kynge or Prynce or other comen officer. Jere. vi.c. And from the Prophete vnto the Preste &c.

vsury/like vnto him ỹ borroweth vpō vsury/ the creditoure/as the detter. Yee mylerably shall the worlde be wasted & clene destroyed. For the Lorde hath so determed in him selfe. The earth shalbe heuye & decaye: The face of ỹ earth shall perish & fall awaye/ ỹ proude people of the worlde shall come to naught. For the earth is corrupte of her indwellers.

For why? they haue offended ỹ lawe chaūged the ordynaunces/ & made the b* euerlastynge testamēt of none effecte. And therfore shall the curse deuoure ỹ earth: for they that dwell therō haue synned/ wherfore they shalbe brēt also/ and those that remayne/ shalbe very few. The swete wyne shall mourne/ the grapes shalbe weake/ & all ỹ haue bene merry in harte/ shall sighe. The myrth of tabretes shalbe layde downe/ the chere of the ioyfull shall cease/ & the pleasure of lutes shall haue an ende: there shall no more wyne be droncke with myrth/ the beere shalbe bytter to thē that drinke it/ the wicked cities shalbe broken downe/ all houses shalbe shut/ that no man maye come in.

In the stretes shall there be lyft vp a crye because of wyne/ all mēs chere shall vanysh awaye/ & all ioye of ỹ earth shal passe. Desolacyon shall remayne in the cytyes/ and the gates shalbe smytten wyth wastnesse. For it shall happen vnto all landes & to all people/ lyke as when a man smyteth downe the olyues/ that are left vpon the tree: or seketh after grapes/ whē the wyne gatheryng is out. And those same (that remayne) shall lyft vp their voyce/ & be glad/ & shall magnyfye the glory of the Lord/ euē from the see/ & prayse the name of the Lorde God of Israel/ in the valeys & Flondes. We heare songes sunge to the prayse of the righteous/ frō all the endes of the worlde. Therfore I must speake: O myne vnkrutefulnesse/ O my pouerte. Wo is me/ all is full of synners/ whych offende of purpose and malyce. And therfore (O thou that dwellest vpō the earth) there is at hande for the/ feare/ pyt and snare. Who so escapeth the terrible crye/ shall fall in to the pyt. And yf he come out of the pyt/ he shalbe taken wyth the snare. For the wyndowes aboue shalbe opened/ and the fondacion of the earth shall
D moue. The earth shall geue a greate crack/ it shall haue a sore ruyne/ & take an horrible fall. The earth shall stacker lyke a dronckenman/ & be takē awaye lyke a tent. Her mysdedes shall lye so heuy vpō her/ that she must fall/ and neuer ryse vp agayne. At the same tyme shall the Lord mustre together the hye hoste aboue/ and the kynges of the worlde vpon the earth. These shalbe coupled together as prysoners be/ and shalbe shut in one warde & punysshed innumerable dayes. The Moone & the Sunne shalbe ashamed/ whē the Lorde of Hostes shall rule them at Ierusalem vpon the mount Sion/ before & with his excellent councell.

¶ A thankesgeuyng to God for his workes.

¶ The.xxv. Chapter.

O Lorde, thou arte my God/ I wyll prayse the/ & magnyfye thy name: For thou brigest marueilous thinges to passe/ accordynge to thyne olde councels/ truly & stedfastly. Thou makest of townes/ heapes of stone: & of head cytyes/ brohē walles: The palaces of the wicked destroyest thou out of the cytye/ that they shall neuer be buylded agayne. Therfore the very rude people must magnyfye the/ and the cytyes of the cruell Heathen must feare the. For thou art the poore mans helpe/ a strēgth for the needfull in his necessyte/ Thou art a defence agaynst euell wether/ a shadowe agaynst the hete. But vnto the presumptuous/ thou art lyke a stronge whyrle wynde/ that casteth downe the boastyng of the vngodly: thou kepest men from heate/ wyth the shadowe of the clowdes/ thou cuttest of the braunches of tyrauntes.

Moreouer the Lord of Hostes shall once prepare a feast for all people vpon the hyll: A plenteous/ costly/ pleasaunt a* feast/ of fat & well fede beastes/ of swete & most pure thynges. Vpon ỹ b* hyll shall he take awaye the syde vale that hangeth before the face of all people/ and the couerynge wherwith all Gentyles are couered. As for death/ he shall vtterly cōsume it. The Lord God shall wype awaye the teares frō all faces/ & take awaye the confusiō of his people thorow the whole worlde. For the Lord hym selfe hath sayde it.

At the same tyme shall it be sayde: lo/ this is oure God in whom we put oure trust/ and he hath healed vs. This is the Lorde that we haue wayted for: Let vs reioyse and delite in his health. For the hand of the Lorde ceaseth vpon this hyll. But Moab shalbe threshen downe vnder hym/ lyke as the straw is trodē vnder fete in a dōge hyll. For he shall stretch out his handes vpō him/ lyke as a swymmer doth to swymme. And with the power of hys handes shall he cast downe hys hye pompe. As for his strōg holdes & hye walles: he shall bowe them/ cast them downe/ & fell them to the grounde in to dust.

¶ The.xxvj. Chapter.

THen shall thys songe be sunge in the lāde of Juda. We haue a strōg citie/ the walles & the ordynaunce shall kepe vs. a* Open the gates/ that the good people maye go in/ whych laboureth for the trueth. And thou/ which art the a* By the feast of fatte & well fedde beastes/ & of swete most pure thynges/ is betokened ỹ anger & indignacyō of God/ as the scripture doth often signyfy the same/ vnder the name of a cuppe. Iere. xxv. Zach. xij. a. Weholde I wyll make Ierusalem a cuppe of surfet vnto all the people that are rounde about her.

b* By the hyll is meant the hyll of Sion/ by whych is figured the church. There wyll the Lord iudge/ and deliuer vs from all our enemyes. By the vayle couerynge/ vnderstande synne: wherin all mē are fonde gyltye. Roma. iij. All mē haue synned. &c. the doar & hast the matter in hāde: shalt prouyde for peace/euē the peace that men hope for in the. Hope styll in the Lorde/for in the Lorde God is euerlastynge strength. For why/it is he/ ꝑ bryngeth lowe the hye mynded cytesyns/ & casteth downe the proude cyties. He casteth them to the grounde/yee euē into the myre/that they maye be troden vnder the fete of the symple/& with the steppes of the poore. Thou (Lorde) consydrest the path of the rightuous/ whether it be ryght/ whether the waye of the rightuous be ryght. Therfore(Lorde)we haue a respecte vnto ꝑ b* waye of thy iudgementes/ thy name & thy remembraunce reioyse the soule. My soule lusteth after the all the nyght longe/and my mynde hasteth frely to the. For as soone as thy iudgement is knowne to the world/then the inhabytours of ꝑ earth lerne ryghtuousnesse. But ꝑ vngodly (though he haue receaued grace) yet lerneth he not rightuousnesse/ but in ꝑ place where he is punysshed/ he offendeth/& feareth not the glory of the Lord.

b* The waye of the iudgemētes of God/ is the afflyccyō and the crosse that withdraweth vs from synne: In thys do the Christen reioyse. Roma. v. a. We reioyse in trybulacyon. & c.

Lorde/they wyll not se thyne hye hande/ but they shall se it/and be confounded: when thou shalt deuoure them wyth the wrath of the people/& with ꝑ fyre of thyne enemyes.

¶ But vnto vs/O Lorde/prouyde for peace: for thou worckest in vs all oure worckes.

O Lorde oure God/though soch Lordes haue dominacyon vpon vs as knowe not the: yet graunte/that we maye hope only in the/and kepe thy name in remembraunce. The malycyous Tyrauntes when they dye/ are nether in lyfe nor in the resurreccion/for thou vysytest thē & rootest thē out/ and destroyest all the memoryall of them. Agayne/thou increacest the people/O Lorde/ thou increacest the people/thou shalt be praysed & magnyfyed in all the endes of ꝑ world. The people that seke vnto the in trouble/ that same aduersyte which they complayne of is vnto thē a chastenyng before the. Lyke as a wyfe with chylde(when her trauayle cōmeth vpō her) is ashamed/cryeth & suffreth the payne: Euen so are we/ O Lorde/in thy syght. We are wyth chylde/we trauayle/ & beare/and with ꝑ spyrete we bringe forth health/where thorow the earth is vndestroyed/ and the inhabytours of the worlde perysh not.

c* By the deed here vnderstande the rygh twes as in the Apo. xiiij. c Blessed are the deed/which here after dye in the Lorde. They shal ryse agayne to lyfe/ not as the other which are vnrighteous. Joā. v. Daniel. xij.

But as for thy c* dead men & ours/ that be departed/they are in lyfe & resurreccion. They lye in ꝑ earth, they wake/& haue ioye: for thy dew is a dew of lyfe and lyght. But the place of the malycyous Tyrauntes is falle awaye. So go now my people into thy chambre/& shut the dore to the/& suffre now the twynckynge of an eye/tyll the wrath be ouerpast. For beholde/ the Lord wyll go out of his habitacyō/ & vyset the wyckednesse of thē that dwell vpon earth. He wyll dyscouer the bloude that she hath deuoured/ she shall neuer hyde them/that she hath murthered.

The prophecyeth that all reaulmes shalbe destroyed aboute the commynge of Christ.

¶ The. xxvij. Chapter.

In that tyme the Lorde wyth hys heuye/ great/& longe a* swearde shall visyte Leuiathan ꝑ inuyncyble serpent: euen b* Leuiathan that croked serpent/& shall slaye the whalfysh in the see. At the same tyme shall men synge of the vyneyarde of Muscatel. I the Lorde kepe it/ and water it in due season. I watch daye and nyght/ ꝑ no man breake into it. I beare no euell wyll in my mynde. Who wyll compell me/that I greatly forgettynge all kaythfulnesse/ shulde burne it vp at once wt thornes & bushes: Or who wyll enforce me to kepe or make peace: It will come to this poynte/ ꝑ Jacob shalbe roted agayne/& Israel shalbe grene/& beare floures/& they shall fyll ꝑ whole worlde with their frute. Smyteth he not his smyter/as euell as he is smyten hym selfe: Destroyeth he not the murtherers/ as he is murthered: Euery man recompenseth with the measure that he receaueth: He museth vpō his sore wynde/ as vpon the dayes of extreame heate. And therfore shall the iniquyte of Jacob be thus reconcyled. And so shall he take awaye all ꝑ frute of his synnes.

a* By the swerde of the Lord is vnderstāde the word of God/ & the sentence of the euerlastynge Judge. With it is the deuell & ꝑ power of Antichryst slayne.

b* Leuiathan betokeneth here the deuel after some expositoures/albeit that it properly sygnyfyeth a Whale/ as is sayde Job. xl. c. Serpētes do also betoken the deuell/ because of their sotelnes & wylynes. Genes. iij. a. The Hebrues vnderstande here by serpētes/ mighty kinges and princes.

As for aulter stones/ he shall make them all as stones beaten to poulder: the groues and Idols shall not stande. The strōge cities shalbe desolate/ and the fayre cytyes shalbe left lyke a wyldernes. The catell shall fede & lye there/ & the sheape shall eate it vp. Their harnest shalbe brēt/their wyues which were their bewtye when they came forth: shalbe defyled. For it is a people without vnderstādynge/ & therfore he that created them/ shall not fauoure thē & he ꝑ made them shall not be mercyfull to them. In that tyme shall the Lord shute frō the/ wyfte water of Euphrates/ vnto the ryuer of Egypt. And there shall the chyldren be chosen out one by one. Then shall the greate trompet be blowen/ so that those which haue bene destroyed in the Assyrians lande/ and those that be scatred abrode in Egypte: shall come & worshyppe ꝑ Lorde at Jerusalem/ vpon the holy mount.

¶ Agaynst the pryde of Ephraim/ and agaynst false Preastes and preachers.

Wo be to the crowne of pryde/ to the a* dronckē Ephraemytes/ & to the faydyng floure/ to the glory of hys pōpe/ that is vpon the toppe of the plenteous valley: whych men be ouerladen with wyne. Behoolde/ the strēgth and power of the of the Lorde shall breake in to the lande on euery syde/lyke a tempest of hayle/ ỹ bea-reth downe stronge holdes/and lyke an hor-rible/myghtye and ouer flowynge water. And ỹ proude crowne of ỹ dronckē Ephrae-mites/shall be troden vnder fote. And as for the faydynge floure/the glory of his pompe/ which is vpō the toppe of the plenteous val-ley: it shall happen vnto him/as to an vnty-mely frute before the haruest come. Which as soone as it is sene/is by & by deuoured/or euer it come well in a mans hande.

b* Joyfull crowne & glo-rious garmēt are here takē/ for the triūphe/ honour & re-warde that we loke for: which we shall vndou-ted receaue/by hys mercy/ graunted in Christ.

And then shall the Lorde of Hostes be a b*ioyfull crowne/and a glorious garlande vnto the remnaunt of hys people. Vnto the lowly/he shalbe a spyrete of iudgement/and vnto them that dryue awaye the enemyes from the gates/he shalbe a spyrete of strēgth. But they go wronge by the reason of wyne/ they fall & stacker because of strōge dryncke. Yee euē the prestes and prophetes thē selues go amysse/they are droncken with wyne/ & weake brayned thorow strōg dryncke. They erre in seynge/and in iudgment they fayle. For all tables are so full of vompte and fyl-thynes/that no place is cleane. c* What is he amōge them/that can teach/instructe or en-fourme the chyldren/which are weened frō suck or taken from the brestes: of eny other fashion then: Commaunde that maye be cō-maunded/byd that maye be bydden/forbydd that maye be forbydden/kepe backe ỹ maye be kepte backe/here a lytle/there a litle. And therfore the Lorde also shall speake with lis-pynge lippes and with a straunge language vnto this people to whom he spake afore of this maner: This shal brynge rest/yf one re-fresh the weery/yee this shall brynge rest. But they had no wyll to heare. And therfore the Lorde shall answere their stubbournes (Cōmaunde that may be cōmaunded/byd ỹ maye be byddē/forbyd that maye be forbyd-den/kepe backe that maye be kepte backe/ here a lytle/there a lytle) That they maye go forth/fal backward/be brosed/snared & takē.

c* Some rea-de: whom tea-cheth he know ledge: & whom wil he cause to vnderstāde his doctrine: euen thē that are wee-ned frō mylck/ & taken frō the brestes. For it is comēly sayd: Cōmaunde. &c. The same vnderstande by mylck/worldly promeses & the pleasures of this worlde. And by thē ỹ are taken frō the breastes/ they vnderstā-de soch as haue left dyfferring & de-laing frō daye to daye/ & that now saye no moare/cōmaū-de that may be cōmaunded. & cut but do streight wayse at the fyrst call folo-we the Lorde/ not lokynge to be called the secōd tyme.

Wherfore heare the worde of the Lorde/ye mockers that rule the Lordes people/which is at Jerusalem. For ye cōforte your selues thus: Tush/death & we are at a poynte/and as for hell/we haue made a condycion wyth it/ỹ though there breake out eny sore plage it shall not come vpon vs. For with dissceate wyll we escape/and with nymblenes wyll we defende oure selues. Therfore sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde/I wyll laye a stone in Sion/a great stone/a costly d* corner stone for a sure foundacyon: ỹ who so putteth hys trust in him/shall not be confounded. Rygh-tuoules wyll I set vp agayne in ỹ balaunce/ and iudgment in the weightes. The tempest of hayle shall take awaye your refuge/ ỹ ye haue to dissceaue withall: & ỹ ouerflowynge waters shall breake downe youre stronge holdes of dissimulacion. Thus the appoynt-ment ỹ ye haue made wt death/ shalbe done awaye: and the cōdycion that ye made wyth hell/shall not stande. When ỹ great destruc-cion goeth thorow/it shall all to treade you. It shal take you quyte awaye before it. For it shall go forth early in the morynge/and contynue only that daye & that night. And ỹ very feare only shall teach you/whē ye heare it. For the bedde shall be so narow that a mā can not lye vpō it: And ỹ couerynge to small/ that a mā maye not wynde him selfe therin. For the Lord shal steppe forth as he dyd vpō the moūt* Perazim/and shall take on as he dyd vpon the dale of Gabaon: that he maye brynge forth his deuyce/ e his straunge de-uyce: and fulfyll his worcke/his wonderfull worcke. And therfore make no mocke at it/ that youre captiuite increase not: for I haue herde the Lorde of Hostes saye/that there shall come a soden destruccion & plage vpon the whole earth. Take hede/and heare my voyce/ponder and mercke my wordes well. Goeth not the housbande man euer in due season earnestly to hys lande? he moweth & ploweth his grounde to sowe. And when he hath made it playne/he soweth it wt fetches or comyn. He soweth the wheate and Bar-lye in their place/Milium and Rye also in their place. And that he maye do it rycht/ his God teacheth him and sheweth him. For he treadeth not ỹ fytches out with a wayne/ nether bringeth he the cart here & there ouer the comyn/but he thresheth the fytches oute with a flayle/and the comyn with a rod. As for the wheate/he gryndeth it to make bred therof/In as moch as he can not bringe it to passe with treadynge out. For nether ỹ bro-synge ỹ the cart wheles make/ner his beast can grynde it. Thys and soch lyke thynges come of the Lorde of Hostes whych is mar-uelous in coūcel/& great in rightuousnesse.

Then shall the furyous people ceasse / and the mockers shalbe put awaye / and all they that do wronge shalbe plucked out / soche as laboure to draw men vnto synne: & that disceaue hym / which reproueth e* them in the gate / & soch as turne good personnes to banite. A curse agaynst them that forsake the councell of God and stycke vnto the councell of men. He treateneth the rest of the people / whych after the destruccio of Jerusalem wente in to Egypte.

The .xxx. Chapter.

WO be to those shrynkynge chyldrẽ (sayeth ꝑ Lorde) which seke coũcell / but not at me: whych take a webbe in hande / but not after my wyll: that they maye heape one synne vpon another. They goo downe in to Egypte (and alke me no councell) to seke helpe at the power of Pharao / and comforte in the shadowe of the Egyppcians. But Pharaos helpe shalbe your confusyon / and the comforte in the Egyppcians shadowe shalbe youre awne shame. Youre rulers haue bene at Zoan / & youre messaungers came vnto Hanes. But ye shall all be ashamed of the people ꝑ maye not helpe you / which shall not bringe you strẽgth or comforte / but shame & confusyõ.

Youre beastes haue borne burthens vpõ their backes towarde the South / thorowe the waye that is full of parell and trouble / because of the lyon & lyones / of the Cockatrice and shutynge dragon. Yee the Mules bare youre substaunce / and the Camels brought youre treasure vpon their croked backes / vnto a people ꝑ can not healpe you.

For

For the Egyptians helpe shalbe but vayne and lost. Therfore I tolde you also that your pryde shulde haue an ende. Wherfore go hēce and wryte them thys in their tables / & note it in a boke: that it may remayne by their posterytye / & be styll kepte. For it is an obstynate people / vnfaythfull chyldren / chyldren that wyll not heare the lawe of the Lorde.

They darre saye to the Prophetes: Intromytte youre selues with nothinge / and vnto the Soothsayers: tell vs of nothynge for to come / but speake frendly wordes vnto vs / and preache vs false thinges. Treade out of the waye / go out of the path / turne the holy one of Israel from vs. Therfore thus sayeth ỹ holy one of Israel: In as moch as ye haue cast of youre bewtye / and comforted youre selues with power and nymblenesse / & put youre confidēce therin: therfore shal ye haue thys myschefe agayne for youre destruccyō and fall / lyke as an hye wall / that falleth because of some ryft (or blast) whose breakyng cometh sodenly.

And youre destruccyon shalbe lyke as an erthen pot / which breaketh nomā touching it / yee and breaketh so sore / that a man shall not fynde a sheuer of it to fetch fyre in / or to take water with all out of the pyt. For the Lorde God / euen ỹ holy one of Israel hath promysed thus: With styll syttynge and rest shall ye be healed / in quyetnesse & hope shall D youre strength lye. Notwythstandynge ye regarde it not, but ye wyll saye: No / for thus are we constrayned to fle vpon horses. And therfore shall ye fle / we must ryde vpon swift beastes / and therfore youre persecutoures shall yet be swyfter. A thousand of you shall fle for one / or at the most for fyue / whych do but only geue you euell wordes: vntyll ye be desolate / as a shyp mast vpō an hye moūtayne / and as a beaken vpon on hyll.

Yet standeth the Lorde waytynge / that he maye haue mercy vpon you / and lyfteth hym selfe vp / ỹ he may receaue you to grace. For the Lorde God is ryghtuous. Happye are all they that wayte for hym. For thus (O thou people of Syon and ye cytizens of Ierusalem) shall ye neuer be in heuynes / for doutlesse he wyll haue mercy vpon the. As soone as he heareth the voyce of thy crye / he wyll helpe the. The Lorde geueth you the a* bred of aduersyte / & the water of trouble. But thyne instructer flyeth not farre from ỹ / yt thyne eyes loke vnto thyne instructer / and thyne eares harken to hys worde / that cryeth after the and sayeth: this is the waye / go thys / and turne nether to the ryght hande ner to the lefte. Moreouer, yt ye destroye the syluer wor- kes of youre Idoles / and cast awaye the gol- den coapes that ye decke them wythall (as kythynes) & saye gett you hence: Then wyll he geue rayne to the sede that ye shall sowe in the earth / and geue you bredde of the en- creasse of the earth / so that all shalbe plen- tuous and aboundaūt. Thy catell also shall he fede in the brode medowes / yee thyne oxē and Mules that tyll the grounde / shall eate good fodder / which is purged with ỹ fanne. Goodly ryuers shall flow out of al hys mou- F taynes and hylles. In the daye of the greate slaughter when the towers shall fall / the mone shall shyne as ỹ sunne / and the sunne shyne shalbe seuenfolde / and haue as moche shyne / as in seuen dayes besyde.

In that daye shall the Lorde bynde vp the brosed sores of hys people / and heale their woundes. Behoulde the glory of ỹ Lord shall come from farre / hys face shall burne / that noman shalbe able to abyde it / hys lyppes shall wagge for very indygnacyon / and hys tonge shalbe as a consumynge fyre. Hys breath like a behemēt floude of water / which goeth vp to the throte. That he maye take awaye the people / which haue turned them selues vnto vanyte / & the bridle of errour / that lyeth in other folkes chawes.

But ye shall synge / as ỹ vse is in ỹ night & of the holy solempnyte. Ye shall reioyse frō youre herte / as they ỹ come with the pype / when they go vp to the mount of the Lorde / vnto the rock of Israel. The Lorde also shal set vp the power of hys voyce / & declare hys terrible arme / with his angry countenaūce / yee and the flame of the consumynge fyre / with earthquake / tempest of wynde / & hayle stones. Then shall the Assyrians feare also / because of the voyce of the Lord / which shall smyte him with ỹ rodde. And the same rodde which the Lorde wyll sende vpon hym / shall moue the whole foundacyon: with trompet / with noyse of warre and batell to destroye. For he hath prepared the fyre of payne from the begynnynge / yee euen for Kynges also. This hath he made depe & wide / ỹ nothing therof is fyre and wodd innumerable / which the breath of the Lorde kyndleth / as it were a match of brymstone.

The curseth them that forsake God / and seake for the helpe of men.

The .xxxi. Chapter.

WO be vnto them that go downe in A to Egypte for helpe / and trust in horses / & comforte them selues in charettes / because they be many / & in horse men because they be lusty & strōg. But they regarde not the holy one of Israel / & they aske no questyō at the Lorde. Where as he neuertheles plageth the wycked / & yet goeth not from his worde / when he stepp[eth]

a* Assur shalbe slayne with the swerde. &c. The Prophete shuld here seame to prophecye of the great destruccyon that happened vnto Senaherib.ij.Parali. xxxij.c. & Esay.xxxvij. g. which was done by the swerde of the Aungell) not by ỹ swerd of man/ as ye maye there se. Sennaherib was the kyng of Assyria/ and therfore is the destruccyon of the Assyrians wherby happened vnder him sygnyfyed by this worde Assur.

Some (because the Prophete a litle before in the text/ moueth the people to forsake Idoles) expounde it thus. Not by oure Idoles, not by our stregth / not by mānes helpe (which all may be called the swerde of man) shall oure spretuall enemye (which is signified by Assur) perysh: but by the power of God/ & the inuysybe swerde that cānot be seue: with which the Aungell slew .lxxxv. thousande in one nyght. ¶ The condycyons of good rulers and Officers.

BEholde / the kynge shall gouerne after the rule of rightuousnes / & ỹ princes shall rule acoȝding to ỹ balaūce of equite. He shalbe vnto men/ as a defence foȝ ỹ wynde/ & as a refuge foȝ ỹ tempest / lyke as aryuer of water in a thurstie place/ & ỹ shadowe of a greate rock in a dȝie lande. ¶ Jerusalem is assaeged by Sennaherib/in the tyme of kynge Hezekiah.

A 4. kyng. Reg. xviij. c

*IN the.xiiij. yeare of kyng Hezekiah/ came Sennaherib kynge of the Assyrians downe/to laye sege vnto all the stronge cyties of Juda.

* ij. Paralip. xxxij. a.

* And the kyng of the Assyrians sent Rabsakeh frõ Lachis towarde Jerusalem/agaynst Kynge Hezekiah/ wyth a greuous Hoste/ which set him by the condyte of the ouerpole/ in the waye that goeth thorowe the fullers lande. And so there cam forth vnto him Eliakim Helkiahs sonne the Prouyder/Sobna the Scribe/& Joah Asaphs sonne the Secretary.

And Rabsakeh sayde vnto them: Tell Hezekiah/that the greate kyng of Assyria sayeth thus vnto hym: What presumpcion is thys/ that thou trustest vnto? Thou thinckest (peraduenture) that thou hast councell & power ynough to mayntene this warre: or els wher to trustest thou/ that thou castest thy selfe of from me? Lo/ thou puttest thy trust in a broken staff of rede (I meane Egypte) whych he that leaneth vpon/it goeth in to hys hande & shutteth hym thorowe. Euen so is Pharao the kyng of Egypt/vnto all thẽ that trust in him. But yf thou woldest saye to me: we trust in the Lorde oure God: A goodly God in dede: whose hye places & aulters Hezekiah toke downe/& cõmaũded Juda & Jerusalẽ/to worshyppe only before the aulter. Abyde/ thou hast made a condycyõ wyth my lorde the kyng of the Assyriãs/ that he shulde geue the two thousand horses: art thou able to set men ther vp? Seyng now thou canst not resist the power of the smallest prynce that my Lorde hath/how darrest thou trust in the charett & horsemẽ of Egipt? Moreouer/thynkest thou that I am come downe hither/to destroye thys lande without the Lordes will? The Lord sayde vnto me/go downe in to the lãde/ & thou mayest destroye it.

B

Then sayde Eliakim/ Sobna & Joah vnto Rabsakeh: Speake to vs thy seruauntes (we praye the) in the Sirians language/for we vnderstande it well: And speake not to vs in the Jewes tonge/ lest the folcke heare/ whych sytteth vpon the wall. Then answered Rabsakeh: Thyncke ye/that the kynge sent me to speake this only vnto you? Hath he not sent me to them also/that sye vpon the wall? that they be not cõpelled to eate their awne donge/& drincke their awne stale with you?

C

And Rabsakeh stode styff/and cryed with a loude voyce in the Jewes tunge/and sayd: Now take hede/how the greate kynge of the Assirians geueth you warning. Thus sayeth the kyng: Let not Hezekiah discreaue you/ for he shall not be able to delyuer you. Moreouer let not Hezekiah cõforte you in the Lord/whẽ he sayeth: The Lord without doute shall defende vs/& shall not geue ouer this citie into the handes of the Kyng of the Assyriãs/beleue hym not. But thus sayth the King of Assyria: Agree with me/ & entre in to my fauoure/ enclyne to me: so maye euery mã enioye his vineyard & figetrees/ & drincke the water of his cisterne: vnto the tyme that I come my self/& bringe you into a lande that is like youre awne: wherin is wheate & wyne/which is both sowen wyth sede/and planted wyth vyneyardes.

Jerusalē. Let not Hezekiah dysceaue you / when he sayeth vnto you: the Lorde shall delyuer vs:

Wyght the Goddes of the Gentiles kepe euery mās lande / frō the power of the King of the Assyrians: Where is the God of Hemath & Arphad: Where is the God of Sepharuaim: And who was able to defende Samaria out of my hāde: Or which of all ỹ Goddes of the landes / hath delyuered their coūtre out of my power / so ỹ the Lord shuld delyuer Jerusalem fro my hande: Unto this Hezekiahs messaungers helde their tunges / & answered not one worde: for the King had charged thē / that they shulde geue him none answere. So came Eliakim Helkiahs sonne the President / Sobna the Scrybe / & Joah Asaphs sonne the Secretary / vnto Hezekiah with rente clothes / & tolde hym the wordꝛ of Rabsakeh.

Chezekiah humbleth hym selfe before the Lorde. The armye of Sennaherib is slayne of the Aungell of the Lorde: & he hym selfe is kylled of his awne sonnes.

a iiij. Reg. xix. a

When Hezekiah hearde that / he rēte his clothes / & put on a sack cloth / & wēt into the tēple of the Lorde. But he sent Eliakim the Pzesydent / Sobna the Scrybe / wyth the eldest pzeastꝛ clothed in sack / vnto ỹ Pzophet Esay the sonne of Amoz / & they sayde vnto hym: Thus sayeth Hezekiah: Thys is the daye of trouble / of plage / & of wzath: lyke as when a chylde cometh to the byzth / but the woman hath no power to bzynge it forth. The Lord thy God (no doute) hath well consydered the wordes of Rabsakeh / whom hys lorde the Kynge of the Assyrians hath sent / to defye & blaspheme the lyuyng God: with soch wordꝛ as the Lord thy God hath heard right well. And therfore lyft vp thy pzayer for the remnaunt / that yet are left. So the seruauntes of Kynge Hezekiah came to Esay.

And Esay gaue them this answere: Saye thus vnto youre lorde: thus sayeth the Lord: Be not afrayed of the wordes that thou hast heard / wherwith the Kynge of the Assyriās seruauntes haue blaspheamed me. Beholde / I wyll cause a wynde go ouer hym / as sone as he heareth it / he shall go agayne into hys countre / there wyll I destroye him with the swerde. Now when Rabsakeh returned / he founde the Kynge of Assyria layenge sege to Lobnah / for he had vnderstande / ỹ he was departed from Lachis. For there came a rumoure / that Tharhakah Kyng of Ethiopia was come forth to warre agaynst him.

And when the Kynge of Assyria heard that / he sent other messaūgers to Kyng Hezekiah with this cōmaundemēt: Saye thus to Hezekiah Kyng of Juda: Let not thy God disceaue the / in whom thou hopest / & sayest: Jerusalē shall not be geuē in to the hādes of the Kyng of Assyria. For thou knowest well how the Kynges of Assyria haue handled all the landes that they haue subuerted / and hopest thou to escape: Were the people of the Gentyles (whō my pzogenytours cōquered) delyuered at any tyme thorow their goddes: As namely / Gozan / Haran / Rezeph / & the chyldren of Eden / which dwell at Thalassar. Where is the Kynge of Hemah / & the Kynge of Arphad / & the Kyng of the cytye Sepharuaim / Ena and Aua: Now when Hezekiah had receaued the lettre of the messaungers / and read it / he went vp into the house of the Lorde / & opened the letter before the Lorde. And Hezekiah pzayed before ỹ Lord on this maner: O Lorde of Hostes / thou God of Israel / which dwellest vpon Cherubyn. Thou art the God / that only is God of all ỹ Kyngdomes of the world / for thou only hast created heauē & earth. Enclyne thyne eare Lorde & consydre / open thyne eyes / O Lorde / & se / & pōdre all ỹ wordes of Sennaherib / which hath sent hys embassage to blaspheme the lyuynge God. It is true / O Lorde / that the Kynges of Assyria haue conquered all Kyngdomes & landes / & cast their goddes in the fyre. Delyuer vs then / O Lord oure God / frō the handes of Sennaherib / ỹ all Kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe / that thou only art the Lorde. The. xxxix. Chapter.

Thezekiah is reproued of Esay/ because he shewed his treasure vnto the Embassadoures of Babylon.

At the same tyme Merodach Baladam/ Baladams sonne Kyng of Babylon/ sent lettres & presentes to Hezekiah. For he vnderstode how that he had bene sick/ & was recouered agayne. And Hezekiah was glad therof/ and shewed thẽ the cõmodytyes of his treasure/ of syluer/ of gold/ of spyces & rootes/ of precyous oyles/ all that was in hys cubbordes & treasure houses. There was not one thing in Hezekiahs house/ & so throughout all hys Kyngdome/ but he let them se it.

Then came Esay the Prophete to Kyng Ezekiah/ & sayde vnto hym: What haue the men sayde/ & frõ whence came they vnto the? Hezekiah answered: they came out of a farre countre vnto me/ out of Babylõ. Esay sayd: what haue they loked vpon in thyne house? Hezekiah answered: All ỹ is in myne house haue they sene: and there is nothinge in my treasure/ but I shewed it them.

Then sayde Esay vnto Hezekiah: Vnderstande the worde of the Lord of Hoostes: Beholde the tyme wyll come/ that euery thynge which is in thyne house/ and al that thy progenytoures haue layde vp in stoare vnto this daye/ shalbe caried to Babylon/ and no thinge left behynde. He sayde more ouer: So that there be peace and faythfulnesse in my tyme.

Heare/ O ye deaf men/ and sharpẽ youre sightes to se (O ye blynde.) But who is blinder / then my seruaunt? Or so deaf / as my a*messaungers/ whom I sent vnto thẽ? For who is so blinde as my people/ & they ỹ haue the rule of thẽ? They are lyke/ as yf thou vnderstodest moch/ & keptest nothyng: or yf one herde well/ but were not obedient. The Lorde be mercyfull vnto thẽ for his righteousnesse sake/ that his worde myght be magnyfyed & praysed. But it is a myscheuous & wycked people. Their younge men belõge all to the snare/ and shalbe shut into prison houses. They shalbe caryed awaye captyue / and no man shall lowse thẽ. They shalbe troden vnder fote/ & no mã shall laboure to bringe thẽ agayne. But who is he amõge you/ that põdreth this in his mynde/ that consydreth it/ & taketh it for a warnynge in tyme to come?

a* Messaungers. Ye meaneth the hyghe prestes/ & those had cure of the people. Those shulde haue taught therother/ but they were blyndest of all/ as Christ declareth in the gospell. Soche ther beat all tymes/ and shalbe vnto the worldes ende.

Who suffred Jacob to be trodden vnder fote / and Israel to be spoyled? Dyd not the Lorde? Now haue we synned agaynst hym/ & haue had no delyte to walcke in his wayes/ nether potuit deus mala infligi ob peccata / grãtibus lex eius / suauis: et cõtra nether bene obedyent vnto his lawe. Therfore hath he poured vpon vs hys wrathfull dyspleasure/ & stronge batell/ which maketh vs haue to do on euery syde/ yet wyll we not vnderstande: He burneth vs vp/ yet syncketh it not in to oure hertes.

¶ God promeseth to sende his Christ/ which shall deliuer hys people. He forgeueth synnes for hys awne sake.

¶ The.xliij. Chapter.

BVt now/ the Lorde that made the O Jacob/ & he that fashyoned the O Israel/ sayeth thus: Feare not/ for I wyll defende the. I haue called the by name/ thou art myne awne. When thou wentest in the water/ I was by the/ ꝑ the strõg floudꝫ should not pluck the awaye. When thou walckest in the fyre/ it shall not burne the/ and the flame shall not kindle vpõ the. For I am the Lorde thy God/ the holy one of Israel/ thy Sauyour. I gaue Egypte for thy deliueraunce/ the Moryans & the Sabees for the: because thou wast deare in my sight/ & because I set by the/ and loued the. I pylled all men for the/ & delyuered vp al people for thy sake/ that thou shuldest not feare/ for I was wyth the. I wyll bryng thy sede from the East/ and gather the together from the West. I wyll saye to the North/ let go. And to ꝑ South/ kepe not backe: but bring me my sonnes frõ farre/ and my daughters from the endes of the worlde: Namely/ all those that be called after my name: For them haue I created/ fashyoned/ and made for myne honoure.

Bryng forth that people/ whether they haue eyes or be blynde/ deafe or haue eares. All nacyons shall come in one/ and be gathered in one people. But which amonge yondergoddes shall declare soche thynges/ & tell vs what is to come? Let them bringe their wytnesses/ so shall they be fre: for then men shall heare it/ & saye/ it is truth. But I bring you wytnesses (sayth the Lorde) euen those that are my seruauntes/ whom I haue chosen: to the intent that ye myght be certyfyed and geue me faythfull credẽce: yee and to cõsyder/ that I am he/ before whom there was neuer any God/ and that there shalbe none after me. I am only the Lorde/ and wythout me is there no Sauyour. I geue warnyng/ I make whole/ I teach you that there should be no straunge God amonge you. And thys record must ye beare me your selues (sayth the Lorde) that I am God. And euen he am I from the begynnyng/ & there is none that can take any thynge out of my hande. And what I do/ can no man chaunge.

Thus sayeth the Lorde the holy one of Israel youre redemer: For youre sake I wyll sende to Babylon/ & bryng all the strõgest of them from thence: Namely/ the Chaldees that boost them of their shyppes: Euen I the Lorde youre holy one which haue made Israel/ and am youre Kynge. Moreouer/ thus sayeth the Lorde (euẽ he that maketh a waye in the see/ & a footpath in the myghtye waters: which bryngeth forth the charettes & horses/ the hoste & the power/ that they may fall a slepe & neuer ryse/ and be extincte/ like as towe is quenched.

Ye remembre not thynges of olde/ and regarde nothinge that is past. a* Therfore beholde/ I shall make a new thynge/ & shortly shall it appeare: ye shall well knowe it/ I told it you afore/ but I wil tel it you agayne. I wyll make stretes in the deserte/ & ryuers of water in the wyldernes. b* The wylde beastes shall worshyppe me: the dragon/ and the Estryche. For I shall geue water in the wyldernesse/ and streames in the deserte: that I may geue drynke to my people/ whom I chose. This people haue I made for my self/ and they shall c* shewe forth my prayse. For thou (Jacob) woldest not call vpon me/ but thou haddest an vnlust towarde me/ O Israel. *Thou gauest me not thy younge beastes for burntoffryngꝫ/ nether dydest honoure me with thy sacrifices. Thou boughtest me no deare spice wt thy money/ nether pouredest the fatt of thy sacrifices vpon me. Howbeit I haue not bene chargeable vnto the in offrynges/ nether greuous in incense. *But thou hast ladẽ me with thy synnes/ and weeried me wyth thyne vngodlynes.

*Where as I yet am euen he only/ that for myne awne selfes sake do awaye thyne offences/ & forget thy synnes: so that I wyll neuer thynck vpon them. *Put me now in remembraunce) for we wyll reason together) & shew what thou hast for the/ to make the quyte. *Thy fyrst father offended sore/ & thy rulers haue synned agaynst me. Therfore I ether suspended/ or slue the cheefest Princes: I dyd curse Jacob/ and gaue Israel into reproke.

a* Therfore beholde/ I shall make a newe thinge. & ce. He meaneth that he wyll forsake ꝑ Jewes which were hys awne peo- ple/ for their offences: & call the Gẽtyles that were Idolatrers/ whõ he vnderstãdeth by ꝑ desert & wyldernes: as before in the.xxxv.a. & .xli.e.

b* The wilde beastes shall worshype me/ the dragon. &c. Vnder the name of these beastes signyfieth he also the Heathẽ/ which were wylde/ rude & beastly/ concernyng godly knowledge.

c* To shew forth the prayse of the Lorde/ is/ to preache the remyssyõ of synnes/ & the delyuraunce from death and hell/ and the geuenes of euerlastyng lyfe by the mercy of God/ for Christes sake. A lyke maner of speakynge vseth Dauid in the Psal.xxij.d. where he bearynge the figure of Christ/ sayeth: In the myddest of the congregacyon wyll I prayse the. & ce. Thus shulde the Gentyles & Heathen prayse him/ which people he chose for hym selfe/ as ye maye se in the text: For the Jewes (which are signyfyed by Jacob) wolde not do it/ but put their confydence in keepynge of the lawe. Thys doth the Prophet vpbreade them with/ in the person of God/ sayinge: * Thou gauest me not thy yonge beastes. & ce. As who shulde saye: Saye not that thou hast geuẽ me many sacrifices/ bothe because thou gauest thẽ not vnto me only/ but vnto thy calues & Baalles & other Idoles: & also because I dyd neuer set greatly by them/ ner greatly requyred them. They greued me alwayes/ when the fayth and the deuocyon of the geuers was awaye.

The shepe of thy burntoffringes broughtest thou not vnto me/nether dydest thou glorifye me with thy sacrifices/but dydest only satisfye thyne awne superstitions. I compelled the not to worshyp me with thyne offringes/but because thou so redely offredest soch thinges vnto Idoles after the maner of the Heathen/I cõmaunded that they shulde not be offred vnto other goddes/but vnto me/of whose gyft thou receuedest them &c. None of all these thinges profyted me: in as moch as thou leftest of the thinges which I chefly requyred/righteousnes/fayth/and iudgement. Esai.xxiij. *Thou hast moch more offended me wyth thy synnes/then that thou canst playse me with all these ceremonyes: which iustyfye not them that do them/ner bringe them into my fauoure/in lesse than they fyrst be mp beloued throughe fayth. *No maner of Idoles/ner the sacrifyces of oxen/shepe/or goates/ner the merytes of thy workes/how precyous or goodly so euer they be/do put awaye sinne: But/I I my selfe alone by my onely mercy & grace do pardon them/to all those that beleue that I so do: & do not ones remember them/to thintent to punyshe them: Yee/and I frely forgeue them. Rom.iij.d. I am not bounde vnto the/that haste so often fallen from thy fayth/which I onely regarde. *Or elles bringe me in remembrãce/reason the matter wt me/& shew me/whether thou haue alwayes more prouoked me vnto anger/or I haue bene ouermoch fauorable vnto the: & whether I haue euer bene readyer to forgeue/then thou to amende. Thou canst surely neuer bringe any thynge for the/wherby thou mayest iustyfye thy cause agaynst me.

But I wyll at tyme conuenient curse the sonnes of Jacob after the flesh/which be out of kynde concernyng the spyrete/so that they shalbe a curse amõgest the Heathẽ: where as on the other syde/the true and leafull sonnes of Jacob shalbe the blessyng of all nacyons thorow Christ/in whõ all the chosen shalbe blessed. The .xliiij. Chapter.

Christ promiseth to delyuer his churche/which he hath redeamed. Idolatry & knelyng before ymages. &c. Are confuted.

*For I shall poure waters vpon the. &c. By the water and ryuers/vnderstande the grace of God: and by the drye grounde & the thyrsty/the gentyles & Heathẽ/which had not bene tylled and watered wyth the worde of God. Soche a lyke sentence is there before in .xliij.c. I wyll make streates in the desert &c.

SO heare now/O Jacob my seruaũt/& Israel whom I haue chosen. For thus sayth the Lorde/that made the/fashyoned the/& helped the/euen from thy mothers wombe: Be not afrayed/O Jacob my seruaunt/thou righteous/whom I haue chosen. a*For I shall poure water vpõ the drye grounde & ryuers vpõ the thurstye. I shal poure my spyrete vpõ thy sede/and myne encrease vpon thy stock. They shal growe together/lyke as ỹ grasse/& as the Willies by the waters syde. b* One wyll saye: I am the Lordes. Another will call vnder the name of Jacob. The thyrde shal describe wyth hys hande vnto the Lorde/and geue hym selfe vnder the name of Israel.

Moreouer/thus hath the Lorde spoken: euen the Kynge of Israel/and his auenger/the Lorde of Hostes: I am ỹ fyrst & the last/and without me is there no God. For what

b*One wyll saye. &c. As who is he/that euer was lyke me/which am from euerlastinge? Let him shewe his name/and do where thorow he may be likened vnto me. Let him tell you forth planely thinges/that are past & for to come: yee & ỹ without any feare or stoppe. For haue not I euer tolde you hytherto/& warned you? Ye can beare me recorde youre selues. Is there any God excepte me? or any maker/that I shulde not knowe hym?

Wherfore all caruers of Idoles are but vayne/& their labour lost. They must beare recorde them selues/that (seyng they can nether se ner vnderstande) they shalbe confounded. Who shulde now make a God/or fashiõ an Idole/that is profytable for nothynge? Beholde/all the felowshyppe of thẽ must be brought to confusyon. Let all the workmasters of them come & stande together from amonge men: they must be abashed and confounded one with another. The smith taketh yron/and tempereth it with hoate coales/& fashyoneth it with hammers/& maketh it wt all the strength of his armes: yee sometyme he is faynt for very hunger/and so thurstye/ỹ he hath no more power. c*The carpẽter (or ymage caruer) taketh meat of the tymbre: & spredeth forth hys lyne: he marketh it wyth some coloure: he playneth it/he ruleth it/and squareth it/& maketh it after the ymage of a man/and accordyng to the bewtye of a man: that it maye stande in the temple.

Moreouer/he goeth oute to hewe downe Cedre trees: He bryngeth home Elmes and Okes/and other tymbre of the wod. Or elles the fyre trees which he planted hym selfe/& soch as the rayne hath swelled/whych wod serueth for men to burne. Of this he taketh and warmeth hymselfe withall: he maketh a fyre of it to bake bred. And afterwarde maketh a God there of/to honoure it: & an Idole to knele before it. One pece he burneth in ỹ fyre/with another he rosteth flesh ỹ he maye eate roste hys bely full: wyth the thyrde he warmeth hym selfe/& sayeth: Aha/I am well warmed/I haue bene at the fyre. And of the residue he maketh hym a God/and an Idole for hym selfe. He kneleth before it/he worshyppeth it/he prayeth vnto it/& sayeth: deliuer me/for thou art my God.

Yet men nether consydre ner vnderstande/because their eyes are stopped/that they can not se: and their hertes/that they cannot perceaue. They pondre not in their myndes/for they haue nether knowledge ner vnderstandyng/to thyncke thus: I haue brent one pece in the fyre: I haue baked bred with the coles there of/I haue rosted flesh with all/& eaten it: shall I now of the residue make an abhomynacyon/& fall downe before a rottẽ pece of wod?

Esai.xv. Israel shulde saye: here & there/and all the worlde ouer are there of the Lordes people/yee euẽ amongest the Heathen.

c*Let the christen heare note how lyuely the prophete paynteth oute the vanitie of ymages. For it is to be feared that oure superstycyon/concernyng soch thinges/passeth & excedeth the. superstitiõ of the Jewes. Unes eupdent it is/that the Jewes in oure tyme can in no wyse be persuaded to become Christen/so long as we fall downe & knele before ymages. Their answere is/ỹ they & we both (yf we be of God) shulde in no condicyõ do any thing that is openly & in so many places forbydde of god The Turckes & Saracenes also mock vs therfore. The honoure of God (saye they/and trueth it is) ought we to seke/& to stycke by his worde: and nether to adde therto/ner take awaye/nei

God graũte vs Christ a better trade & cõuersacyõ of lyuing/then that we shulde with oure exãple be an offence ether to Jew or Sarace/ & an occasiõ to kepe thẽ frõ the fayth of Christ: And geue the symple eyes to perceaue the falsehed of ỹ flatterer/ which for increaugment their blindnes/ exhorte thẽ to soch superstycyon. of wodde: The keppyng of dust/ and folishnesse of herte hath turned thẽ a syde: so that none of them can haue a fre conscience to thynke: maye not I erre?

Consyder this (O Jacob & Israel) for thou art my seruaunt. I haue made the/ that thou mightest serue me. O Israel/ forget me not. As for thyne offences / I dryue them awaye lyke the cloudes/ and thy synnes as the myst. Turne ỹ agayne vnto me/ & I will deliuer ỹ.

Be glad ye heauẽs/ whom the Lorde hath made/ let al that is here beneth vpõ ỹ earth/ be ioyfull. Reioyse ye moũtaynes & woddes/ with all the trees that are in you: for ỹ Lord shall redeme Jacob/ and shewe his glory vpõ Israel. For thus sayth ỹ Lorde thy redemer/ euen he that fashioned the from thy mothers wombe: I am ỹ Lorde/ which do all thinges my selfe alone. I only haue spred oute the heauens and I only haue layde the foundacyon of the earth. I destroye the tokens of witches/ & make the Sothsayers go wrõge. As for the wyse/ I turne them backwarde/ & make their connynge folyshnesse.

But I set vp the purpose of my seruauntes/ and fulfill d* the councell of my messaũgers. I saye to Jerusalẽ: turne agayne: And to the cyties of Juda/ be ye buylded agayne: and I repayre their decayed places. I saye to the ground: be drie. And I dryye vp thy water floudes. I saye to Cyrus: thou art myne herdman: so that he shall fulfill all thinges after my will. I saye to Jerusalem: be thou buylded/ & to the temple: be thou fast grounded.

¶ The delyuerance of the people by Cyrus. The cõmyng of Christ and callyng of the Gentyles.

¶ The .xlv. Chapter.

THus sayeth the Lorde vnto Cyrus his anoynted/ whom he ledeth by the righ hande: ỹ the people maye fal downe before him: I wil lowse the gyrdle of kings: ỹ they shal open ỹ gates before thyface / & not to shut their dores. I wil go before the/ & make ỹ croked streyght I shall breake the brasen dores/ & burst the yron barres. I shal geue the the hyd treasure & the thinge whych is secretly kepte: ỹ thou maiest knowe / that I ỹ God of Israel haue called the by thy name: & that for Jacob my seruauntes sake/ and for Israel my chosen. For I called the by thy name / & ordened the or euer thou knewest me: Euen I the Lord/ before whom there is none other: for without me there is no God. I haue prepared the or euer thou knewest me: that it myght be knowne from the rysynge of the sunne to the goynge downe of the same/ ỹ all is nothing without me. For I am the Lorde/ & there is els none. It is I that created the lyght and darcknes/ I make peace & trouble: yee euen I the Lorde do all these thynges. a* The heauens aboue shall droppe downe/ & the cloudes shall rayne ryghtuousnes. The earth shall open it selfe/ and bryngе forth healthy / & therby shall ryghtuousnes florish. Euẽ I the Lorde shall bryngе it to passe.

a* Some reade/ Ye heauens/ sende downe youre dew frõ aboue/ & let the cloudes rayne &c. The Prophete desyreth that kyng Cyrus may come/ & helpe the people of Israel/ vnder Cyrus figurig Christ & vnder Israel the Churche. As though he shuld saye: wolde God the heuenly powers wolde so geue their grace/ as the earthly wolde not refuse to receaue it: so that hereafter our heauen be not of brasse/ for oure synnes sake: Deute. xxviij. b

Wo be vnto hym that chydeth wyth hys maker/ the potsherde wt the potter: Sayeth the claye to the potter: What makest thou? or thy worcke seruyth for nothynge? Wo be vnto him/ ỹ sayeth to his father: Why begettest thou? And to hys mother: why bearest thou? Thus sayeth the Lorde / euen the holy one & maker of Israel: Aske me of thynges for to come/ concernynge my sonnes: and put me in remembraũce/ as touchynge the worckes of my handes: I haue made the earth/ & created man vpon it. Wyth myne handes haue I spred forth heauen/ and geuen a cõmaundmẽt for all the Host therof. I shall wake him vp wt ryghtuousnesse/ & order all hys wayes. He shall buylde my cytye / and lett out my prisoners: & ỹ nether for gyft nor rewardes/ sayeth the Lorde of Hostes.

The Lord hath sayde morouer: The occupiers of Egypte/ the marchauntes of ỹ Morians and Sabees/ shall come vnto the with trybute/ they shalbe thyne / they shall folow the/ & go with cheynes vpon their fete. They shall fall downe before the/ and make supplicacyon vnto the. For God (without whõ there is none other God) shall be with the. O how prokoũde art thou O God/ thou God & Sauioure of Israel: Confounded be ye/ and put to dishonour: go hence together with shame/ all ye that be worckmasters of errour: (that is worshippers of Idols) But Israell shalbe saued in the Lorde/ which is the euerlastinge saluacion: They shall not come to shame ner confusyon/ worlde without ende.

For thus sayeth the Lord: euen he ỹ created heauen/ the God that made the earth/ ỹ fashioned it/ & sett it forth: I haue not made it for naught/ but I made it to be enhabited Euen I the Lorde / wythout whom there is none other. I haue not spokẽ secretly/ nether in darcke places of the earth. It is not for naught/ that I sayde vnto the sede of Jacob: seke me. I am ỹ Lord/ which whẽ I speake/ declareth the thing that is ryghtuous & true. Let them be gathered & cometogether / lett them drawe nye hyther / that are escaped of the people: Haue they eny vnderstandynge/ that set vp the stockes of their Idols/ & praie vnto a God/ ỹ can not helpe them? Lett men drawe nye / let them come hyther / and aske coũcell one at another/ & shewe forth: What is he/ that tolde this before? or/ who spake of it/ euer sence the begynnynge? Haue not I ỹ Lorde done it; wythout whom there is none other

C Goddes grace/ the rayne of saluacyõ wolde fall on vs / & ryghtuousnes droppe downe frõ heauen / to make oure herte fertile & frutefull that Christ our sauyour/ whiche is the ryghtuousnes of the chosen / wolde come forth of the earth / and bryngе forth the blossomes of saluacyõ. This peticion doth ỹ Lorde promes to performe.

D sayinge: Euen I the Lorde shall bryngе it to passe.

other God: the true God and Sauioure / & there is els none but I: And therfore turne you vnto me (all ye endes of ỹ earth) so shall ye be saued / for I am God / and there is els none. I sweare by my selfe: out of my mouth cõmeth the worde of ryghtuousnesse / & that maye no mã turne: but all knees shall bowe vnto me / and all tunges shal sweare by me / sayinge: Verely in the Lorde is my ryghtuousnes and strength. To hym shall men come: but all they ỹ thyncke scorne of hym / shalbe cõfounded. And the whole sede of Israel shalbe iustifyed / & prayse in ỹ Lorde.

¶ Idolatry is reproued. The health that cometh by Christ is prophecyed.

¶ The. xlvj. Chapter.

a* Bell & Nabo were Idoles of the Babylonyans. These sayth the Prophete shalbe ouerthrowen by the hoste of Cyrus.

NEuertheles a* Bell shall fall / and Nabo shalbe broken: whose ymages are a burthen for the beastes & cattell / to ouerlade them / and to make them weery. They shal syncke downe / and fall together: for they maye not ease thẽ of their burthen / therfore must they go in to captyuyte.

Herken vnto me / O house of Iacob / and all ye that remayne yet of ỹ housholde of Israel: whom I haue borne frõ youre mothers wombe / & brought you vp from your birth / tyll ye weere growen: I I whych shall beare you vnto youre last age: I haue made you / I wyll also norysh you / beare you and saue you. Whom wyll ye make me lyke / in fashiõ or ymage / ỹ I maye be lyke him? Ye fooles (no doute) wyll take out syluer & golde oute of youre purses / & weye it / and hyre a goldsmith to make a God of it / ỹ mẽ maye knele downe & worshippe it. Yet must he be taken on mens shoulders & borne / & set in his place / that he maye stande & not moue. Alas ỹ men shulde crye vnto him / which geueth no answere: and delyuereth not the mã ỹ calleth vpon him / from his trouble.

¶ Idolatrye and destroye Babylon / & set the Israelytes at lybertye. He shulde fulfyll that which the Lord had deuised & decreed. ¶ The. xlvij. Chapter.

Sapnchi humiliab

BUt as for ỹ (O daughter thou virgin Babylon) a* Thou shalt syt in ỹ dust thou shalt sit vpõ ỹ ground / & not in a trone (O thou mayden of Chaldea) Thou shalt no more be called tẽder & pleasaũt. Thou shalt bring forth ỹ b* querne & grinde meele / put downe thy stomacher make bare thy knees / & shalt wade thorow ỹ water ryuers. Thy shame shalbe discouered / and thy preuyties shalbe sene. For I wyll auenge me of the / and no man shall lett me: sayeth oure redemer / which is called ỹ Lord of Hostes / the holy one of Israel.

a* To syt in the dust is / to be brought lowe / to be poorely arayed & decked / to syt without põpe / & to fall from her estate & degree / as it is sayd Iona. iij. c. The Prophete here describeth the destruccyon of Babylõ / vnder the fygure of a proude quene: which was delycyously & dentely brought vp / & after fell into extreame power / mysery & wretchednes; b* he vnderstandeth by the querne / or (as some reade) mylle: seruyle poore / & vile estate & condycyõ.

Syt styll / holde thy tunge / & get the in to some darcke corner / O daughter Chaldea / for thou shalt nomore be called lady of kingdomes. I was so wroth with my people / ỹ I punished myne enheritaunce / & gaue thẽ in to thy power. Neuertheles / thou shewedest thẽ no mercy / but euen the very aged men of thẽ / didest thou oppresse ryght sore wyth thy yocke / & thou thoughtest thus. I shalbe lady for euer. And beside all ỹ / thou hast not regarded these thinges / nether cast / what shulde come after. Heare now therfore / thou wylfull / ỹ sittest so careles / & speakest thus in thine herte: I am alone / & wout me is there none: I shall neuer be wydowe / ner desolate agayne. And yet both these thinges shall come to the vpõ one daye in the twynckling of an eye: Namely wyddowhead / and desolacyon. ¶ The.xlviij.Chapter.

HEare this/O thou house of Jacob: ye that are called by the name of Israel/& are come out of one stocke ẅ Juda: which sweare by ỹ name of the Lorde/& beare witnesse by the God of Israel (but not ẅ treuth & ryght) whych are called fre men of the holy cytie/ as they that loke foȝ confoȝth in ỹ God of Israell/whose name is the Lorde of hostes.

The thinges ỹ I shewed you euer sence the begynnynge: Haue I not bȝought them to passe/immediatly as they came out of my mouth/& declared them? And they are come? Howbeit I knewe that thou art obstynate/ & that thy neck hath* an yȝon veyne/ and ỹ thy bȝowe is of bȝasse. Neuertheles I haue euer sence ỹ begynning shewed the of thingȝ foȝ to come/ and declared them vnto the/ oȝ euer they came to passe: that thou shuldest not saye: myne Idoll hath done it/my carued oȝ cast ymage hath shewed it. Heare and consyder all these thinges whether it was ye ỹ ꝓphecyed them: But as foȝ me/ I tolde the beforе at the begynnynge/ new and secrete thinges/that thou knewest not of: And some done now not of olde tyme/ wherof thou neuer herdest/ before they were bȝought to passe: that thou canst not saye: I knewe of them. Moȝouer there be some wher of thou hast nether herde ner knowne/ nether haue they bene opened vnto thine eares afoȝe time Foȝ I knew that thou woldest maliciously offende/ therfoȝe haue I called the a transgressoure/ euen from thy mothers wombe.

Neuertheles foȝ my names sake/ I haue withdȝawen my wȝath/ & foȝ myne honours sake I haue ouersene the/ so that I haue not rooted the out. b* Beholde I haue pourged the/ and not foȝ moneye. I haue chosen the in ỹ fyre of pouerte/ And that only foȝ myne awne sake/foȝ I geue myne honoure to none other/ that thou shuldest not defyle me.

Herken vnto me O Jacob/ & Israel whom I haue called. I am euen he that is/I am ỹ first and the last. My hande is the foundacyon of the earth/& my right hande spanneth ouer the heauens. As soone as I called them they were there. Gather you all together/ & herken: Which of yonder goddes hath declared this/that the Lorde wyll do by the kynge of Babylō (whome he loueth & fauoureth) and by ỹ Caldees his arme? I my self alone haue tolde you thys beforе. Yee I shall call him and bȝinge him foȝth/& geue him a ꝓsperous iourneye. Come nye and heare this: haue I spoken eny thynge darckly sence the begynnynge? when a thynge begynneth/ I am there.

Wherfoȝe the Lorde God with his spȝete hath sent me/And thus saieth the Lorde God thine auenger/ the holy one of Israell: I am the Lorde thy God/ whych teach ỹ ꝓfitable thinges/& leade ỹ the waye/ that thou shuldest go. Yf thou wilt now regarde my cōmaundement/thy welthynes shalbe as the water streame: & thy rightuousnes as ỹ waues flowynge in the see. Thy sede shalbe lyke as the sande in the see/ & the frute of thy body/ lyke the grauel stones therof: Thy name shall not be roted out/ noȝ destroyed beforе me. Ye shall go awaye from Babylon/ and escape the Caldees with a mery voyce. This shalbe spokē of/ declared abȝode/ & go foȝth vnto the ende of the woȝlde: so that it shalbe sayde: The Lorde hath defended his seruaūte Jacob/ that they suffred no thurste/ when they traueyled in the wildernesse. He claue ỹ rockes a sonder/ and the water gusshed out. As foȝ the vngodly/ they haue no peace/ saieth the Lorde.

a* By thys he meaneth that ỹ people of Israel were stubburne/frowarde/rebellyous/ vntractable/ vnruly and shamelesse.

b* Some reade: Beholde I haue purȝyed the: but not as syluer: I haue chosen the out of ỹ fournesse of affliccyon. Foȝ myne awne sake/ Foȝ myne awne sake haue I done thys: foȝ lyke whome wolde they pollute me: truly I will not geue my glorye to any other. Herkē. &c. The same expounde it thus. I wold not suffer the wholly to perysshe: foȝ yf I had pȝoued and purȝyfied the as golde & syluer is pȝoued and purȝyfyed/ from which all maner of dȝosse is cleansed/ there shulde nothing haue remayned in the: very fewe/ ye none shuld haue bene saued: But I brought the vnder/ & pȝoued the in the fournesse of afflicci on/that is/ I wȝapped the in captiuite & bondage in Egypte/ from whych I afterwarde delyuered the. And this haue I done foȝ myne awne sake.

that is/ onely foȝ myne awne name & glorye/ of myne awne gentylnes & louyng kyndnes/ not foȝ any of thy merytis & deseruynges/ which were none at all. Foȝ how wolde the gentyles & heathen haue polluted/ defyled/ & blaspheмed my name/ yf I had roted out myne awne people: & so haue made ỹ trueth of the promeses whiche I had determined to fulfyll in Christ vayne & vntrue: Foȝ as well thys prayse of my trueth/ as the glorye of the blessing ꝓmesed in the seade of Abȝaham & Dauid/ wyll I not geue vnto another people oȝ nacyon. The health of the woȝlde shall come of the Jewes. Joh. iiij. & from none other. ¶ The Jewes are reproued / and also called.

THus saieth the Lorde: Where is ꝑ bill of your a* mothers deuorcement / that I sent vnto her or who is the dettor / to whō I solde you? Beholde / for youre awne offences are ye solde: and because of youre transgression / is youre mother forsaken. For why wolde no man receaue me / when I came? and when I called / no man gaue me answere. Was my hande clene smytē of / ꝑ it might not helpe? or had I not power to delyuer? lo / at a worde I dryncke vp ꝑ see / & of water floud I make drie lande: so ꝑ for wāt of water / ꝑ fish corruppe and die of thurst. As for heauen / I clothe it with darcknesse / & put a sack vpon it.

A procata mō pro nos adeo mō.

a* God was not the cause why the cōgregacyon of the Jewes (whych is vnderstande by mother) and was once hys spouse) was dyuorced & forsakē: but their awne offences dyuorced them / and was the cause why they were solde to the dettor & geuen ouer into the hādes of the Gentyles or Heathen / and sparpled amōgest the Medyans / Persyans / Babytonyans / Grecyens / & Romaynes.

*The Lord God hath geuē me a wel lerned tunge / so ꝑ I can cōforte thē which are troubled / yee & ꝑ in due season. The Lord God hath opened myne eare / therfore can I not saye naye / ner with drawe my self / but I offre my backe vnto ꝑ smyters / & my cheks to ꝑ nyppers. I turne not my face frō shame & spittynge / for the Lorde God helpeth me / therfore shall I not be confounded. I haue hardened my face like a flynt stone / for I am sure / ꝑ I shal not come to confusyon. Myne aduocate speaketh for me / who wyl then go with me to lawe? Let vs stande one agaynst another: yf there be eny that wyl reason with me / let him come here forth to me. and holde hym by his God. But take hede/ ye haue all kyndled a fyre / & gyrded youre selues w̄ ẏ flame: Ye walcke in ẏ glistrynge of youre awne fyre/ and in the flame that ye haue kyndled. This cometh vnto you fro my hande/ namely that ye shall slepe in sorowe.

b* As who saye: ye your selues haue kyndled ẏ fyre of my vēgeaūce/ with youre offences: I was no causer therof: ye must therfore suffer the punyshmēt therto belōgyng. For it cōmeth of youre awne deserupng that I so laye my hād vpon you and punish you.

¶ The.li. Chapter.

¶ Consolaciō & cōforth is promysed vnto ẏ faithfull.

HErken vnto me / ye that holde of ryghtuousnes / ye that seke the Lorde. Take hede vnto the stone/ wherout ye are hewen/ and to the graue wherout ye are dygged. Consydre Abraham youre father/ and Sara that bare you: how that I called hym alone / prospered him well/ & encreased him: how ẏ Lorde comforted Syon / and repayred all her decaye: makynge her deserte as a Paradyse / & her wyldernesse as the garden of the Lorde. Myrth and ioye was there/ thanckesgeuing and the voyce of prayse. Haue respecte vnto me then / O my people/ & leye thyne eare to me: for a lawe & an ordynaunce shall goo forth fro me/ to lyghten the Gentyles. It is hard by / ẏ my health & my ryghtuousnesse shall goo forth/ and the people shalbe ordred with myne arme.

The Ilandes (that is the Gentyles) shall hope in me/ & put their trust in myne arme. Lyft vp youre eyes towarde heauen/ & loke vpon the earth beneth. For the heauens shall vanish awaye lyke smoke / & the earth shall teare like a clothe/ & they that dwell therin/ shall perysh in lyke maner. But my health endureth for euer / & my ryghtuousnes shall not ceasse. Therfore herken vnto me / ye ẏ haue pleasure in ryghtuousnȝ / thou people that beareſt my lawe in thyne herte. Feare not the curse of men/ be not afrayde of their blasphemies & reuylynges: for wormes and mothȝ shal eate thē vp like cloth & woll. But my ryghtuousnesse shall endure for euer / & my sauyng health frō generacion to generacion. Wake vp/ wake vp/ and be stronge: O thou a* arme of the Lorde: wake vp/ lyke as in tymes past/ euer & sence ẏ world begāne.

a* The arme of the Lord here sygnifyeth Christ/ and the redemption of the worlde and the puttynge awaye of erroures / that cometh by him. For this prayeth the prophet that it maye come.

Art not thou he/ that hast wounded that proude lucifer/ & hewē the dragon in peces? Art not thou euen he/ which hast dryed vp ẏ depe of the see / which hast made playne the see grounde / that the delyuered myght goo thorow? That the redemed of ẏ Lord/ which turned agayne/ might come with ioye vnto Syon / there to endure for euer? That myrth and gladnesse might be with thē: that sorowe & wo might flee from them? Yee I/ I am euen he / that in all thynges geueth you consolacion. What art thou then / ẏ feareſt a mortall mā/ the chylde of mā/ which goeth awaye as doeth ẏ floure? And forgetteſt the Lorde that made the/ that spred out the heauens/ and leyde the foundacyon of the earth. But thou art euer afrayde for the syght of thyne oppressoure/ which is ready to do harme: Where is the wrath of the oppressoure? It cōmeth on fast/ it maketh haste to apeare: It shall not perish/ that it shulde not be able to destroye/ nether shall it fayle for faute of norischynge. I am the Lorde thy God/ that make the see to be styll/ and to rage: whose name is the Lorde of Hostes. I shall put my worde also in thy mouth/ & defende the with the turnynge of my hande: that thou mayeſt plante the heauens/ & leye the foundacyons of the earth/ and saye vnto Sion: thou art my people.

Awake/ awake/ and stande vp/ O Jerusalem/ thou that from the hand of ẏ Lorde/ hast dronken out the b* cuppe of his wrath: thou that hast supped of/ and sucked out the slombrynge cuppe to the botome. For amōge all the sonnes whom thou hast begotten / there is not one that maye holde the vp: and not one to leade the by the hande / of all the sonnes that thou hast norysshed. Both these thynges are happened vnto the / but who is sory for it. Yee/ destruccyon/ wastynge/ hunger and swerde: but who hath comforted the? Thy sonnes lye comfortles at ẏ heade of euery strete lyke a taken venyson/ & are ful of ẏ terrible wrath of ẏ Lord/ & punishmēt of thy God. And therfore thou miserable & dronkē (howbeit not w̄ wyne) Heare this: Thus sayeth thy Lorde: thy Lorde & God / the defender of his people: Beholde/ I wil take ẏ slombrynge cuppe out of thy hande/ euen ẏ cuppe w̄ the dregges of my wrath: ẏ from hence forth thou shalt neuer drynke it more/ & wyl put it in their hande ẏ trouble ẏ: which haue spoken to thy soule: stoupe downe / that we maye go ouer the: make thy body eauen w̄ the grounde/ and as the strete to go vpon.

b* The cuppe of the Lordes wrath/ sygnifyeth the afflyccyon that we suffre/ because we haue done agaynst ẏ wyll of ẏ Lord: and the vengeaunce that he taketh of hys: for their offences. Psal. lxxv.

¶ A consolacyon & comforth to the people of God.

¶ The.lij. Chapter.

VP Syon vp / take thy strength vnto the: put on thyne honest rayment O Jerusalem/ thou cytye of the holy one. For from thys tyme forth / there shall no vncircumcysed ner vncleane person come in the. Shake the frome the dust/ aryse and stande vp/ O Jerusalem. Pluck out thy neck from the bonde/ O thou captyue daughter Syon. For thus sayeth ẏ Lorde: ye are solde for naught/ therfore shal ye be redemed also without eny mony.

For thus hath ẏ Lorde sayde: My people wente downe afore tyme in to Egipte / there to be straungers. After warde dyd the kynge of the of the Assyrians oppresse them/for naught. And now what profyt is it to me (sayth the Lorde) þ my people is frely caried awaye/& brought in to heuynes by their rulers/ and my a*name euer styll blasphemed: sayeth the Lorde. But þ my people maye knowe my name/I my selfe will speache in that daye. Beholde/here am I. O how bewtifull are þ fete of the Embassytoure/þ bringeth þ message frō the moūtayne/& proclameth peace: that bringeth the good tydings/& preacheth health/& sayeth vnto Sion: Thy God is the king. Thy watchmē shal lyft vp their voyce/ wyth loude voyce shall they preach of hym: for they shall se him present/when þ Lorde shall come agayne to Sion.

a* Of blasphemynge or dyshonouryng hys name/and what it signyfyeth/ ye shall finde in Ezech. xxxvi.e

Be glad/O thou desolate Jerusalem/& reioyce together: for the Lord will comforte his people/he wyll deliuer Jerusalem. The Lord wil make bare b*his holy arme/& shew it forth in þ syght of all the Gētiles/& all the endes of the earth shall se the sauyng health of oure God. Beholde/my seruaunt shall deale wysely/ therfore shall he be magnyfyed/ exalted and greatly honoured. Lyke as þ multitude shal wōdre vpō him/because d* his face shalbe so deformed & not as a mans face/& his bewtie lyke no man: Euen so shall the multytude of the Gētyles loke vnto him/& the kyngs shall shut their mouthes before him. For they that haue not bene tolde of him/shall se hym/and they þ herde nothīg of him/ shal beholde him.

d* Hys face shalbe so deformed & not as a mans face. &c. That is/Hys bylage shalbe more deformed then other mēnes: and hys bewtye fowler then the bewtye of the sonnes of men. The whole sentence meaneth/ that many men shalbe astonyed when they shall se Christ oure saueour (whych was excedyng beutyfull before all the sonnes of men. Psalm. xlv. a) so wyckedly and vyolently intreated of the Jewes: spytte vpon/shourged/crowned wyth thorne/and all be bloudyed: yee and greatlyer humbled/ contemned/and dysspyled/ then euer was any mortall man.

*Wt who geueth credence vnto oure preachyng? Or to whō is the arme of the Lorde knowne? He shall growe before the Lorde like as a braūch/& as a rote in a drye ground/he shall haue nether bewtye nor fauoure. Whē we loke vpon him/there shalbe no fayrnesse: we shall haue no lust vnto him. He shalbe the most symple/ and dyspysed of all/ which yet hath good experience of sorowes & infirmyties. We shall reken him so symple & so vile/ that we shall hyde oure faces frō him. How be it (of a treuth) he only taketh awaye oure infirmite/and beareth oure payne: Yet we shall iudge him/as though he were plaged & cast downe of God: where as he (not with stādyng) shall be wounded for oure offences/ & smytten for oure wickednes. THus saieth ỹ Lord: Kepe equite/& do right/for my sauing health shal come shortly/& my ryghteousnes shalbe opened. Blessed is ỹ man ỹ doth this/& the mãs childe whych kepeth the same. He ỹ taketh hede/that he vnhalowe noe ỹ Sabboth (that is) he that kepeth him self that he do no euel. Then shal not the straunger/which cleaueth to the Lorde/saye: Alas the Lorde hath shut me cleane out from his people. Nether shall the gelded man saye: lo/ J am a drie tre. For thus sayeth the Lorde/ B first vnto the gelded ỹ kepeth my Sabboth: Namely: that holdeth greatly of the thynge that pleaseth me/and kepeth my couenaunt: Vnto them wyll J geue in my houshold and within my walles/a better heretage & name

then

then yf they had bene called sonnes & daughters. I will geue them an euerlasting name/ that shall not perysh. Agayne/ he sayeth vnto the straungers that are dysposed to sticke to ỹ Lord/to serue him/ & to loue his name: That they shalbe no bonde mẽ. And all they/ which kepe thẽ selues/ that they vnhalowe not the Sabbath/namely/ that they fulfyll my couenaunt: Them wyll I bryng to my holy mountayne/ & make thẽ ioyfull in my house of prayer. Their burnt offringes & sacrifices shalbe accepted vpon myne aulter. for my house shalbe an house of prayer for all people.

¶ Thus saieth ỹ Lord God which gathereth D together ỹ scatred of Israell: I will bryng yet another congregacyõ to him. All ỹ beastes of the felde/ & all the beastes of ỹ wod/ shall come to deuoure him. The sheperdes also in lyke maner haue no vnderstandinge/ but euery mã turneth his awne waye/ euery one after his awne couetousnes with al his power. Come (saye they) I will fetch wyne/ so shall we fyll oure selus/ that we maye be dronke. And do to morow/ like as to daye/ yee and moch more.

a * By these blynde watchmen/ vnderstãd the chefe Prelates/ the Scrybes/ & Pharises. &c. which were the peruerters & depryuers of the law of God. These for fylthy lukers sake abolyshed the true seruice of God: & were the chefe causers of the forsakyng of Israel. They were slouggyshe/ and sought not that which was for the edificacyon of the people/ & for the glory of God: but that which was for their awne priuate profet and pleasure. They were slouthful to rote out vice & to plante vertue/ & dryuen in to the profounde & deape sleape of ignorannce/ of idylnesse/ of lecherousnesse/ & of pryde. As oft as the Prelates of the people/ Bysshoppes/ Abbates/ and they that auaunte thẽ selues for relygyous be soch: ther hangeth a great scourge ouer the whole flocke of Christ.

a BUt in ỹ meane season the righteous perisheth/ & no man regardeth it in his hert/ Good godly people are taken awaye/ & no man cõsydreth it. Namely: ỹ the righteous is cõuayed awaye thorow ỹ wicked: that he him selfe myght be in rest/ lye quietly vpon his bed/ & lyue after his awne pleasure. Come hither therfore ye * Math. xỹ. d. charmers childzen/ * ye sonnes of the aduoutrer & ỹ whore: Wherin take ye youre pleasure? Vpõ whom gape ye with your mouth/ & bleare out your tonge? Are ye not childzen of aduoutry/ and a sede of dissimulacyon? Ye B take youre pleasure vnder ỹ okes/ & vnder al grene trees/ ỹ childe beynge slayne in ỹ valleys/ & dẽnes of stone. Thy parte shalbe with ỹ stony rockes by ỹ riuer: Yee euẽ these shal be thy parte. For there thou hast poured meat & drynkoffringes vnto thẽ. Shulde I ouerse that? Thou hast made thy bed vpõ hye moũtaynes/ thou wentest vp thither/ & there hast thou slayne sacrifices. Behynde the dores & postes/ hast thou sett vp thy remembraunce. When thou haddest dyscouered thy selfe to another then me/ when thou wentest downe & made thy bed wyder (that is) when thou diddest carue the certayne of yonder Idols/ & louedest their couches/ where thou sawest thẽ Thou wentest streight to kinges with oyle & dyuerse oyntmentes (that is) thou hast sent thy messaungers farre of/ and yet art thou fallen in to the pyt therby. Thou hast had trouble for ỹ multitude of thine awne waies yet saydest thou neuer: I wyl leaue of. Thou thynkest to haue lyfe (or health) of thy selfe/ & therfore thou beleuest not that thou art sick For whẽ wilt thou be abasshed or feare seing thou hast broken thy promyse/ and remembrest not me/ nether hast me in thyne hert? Thinkest thou/ ỹ I also wil holde my peace (as a fore tyme) ỹ thou feareste me not? Yee verely I wil declare thy goodnes & thy worke but they shall not profyt ỹ whẽ thou cryest/ let thy cholen heape delyuer ỹ. But ỹ wynde shall take them all awaye/ & cary them in to the ayre. ¶ And therfore thus he sayeth: Make redy/ D make redy/ and clense ỹ strete/ take vp what ye can out of the waye that ledeth to my people. For thus saieth the hie & excellent/ euen he that dwelleth in euerlastyngnesse/ whose name is the holy one: * I dwel hye aboue & in the sanctuary/ & with him also/ that is of a contrite & humble spryte: ỹ I maye heale a troubled mynde/ & a contryte herte. For I chyde not euer/ & am not wroth wt out ende. But ỹ blastinge goeth fro me/ though I make the breath. I am wroth with him for his couetousnes & lust/ I smyte him/ I hyde me/ and am angrie/ whẽ he turneth him selfe/ & foloweth ỹ by waye of his awne hert. But yf I may se his right waye agayne/ I make him whole/ I lede him and restore him vnto them whom he maketh ioyfull/ & that were sory for him. I make the frutes of thankesgeuyng. I geue peace vnto them that are farre of/ and to thẽ that are nye/ saye I the Lord/ that make him whole. But the wicked are lyke the ragynge see/ that can not rest/ whose water fometh with the myre & grauel. Euen so the wycked haue no peace/ saieth my God.

¶ The Lorde (by the mouth of the Prophete) reproueth the People for their fastynges/ which were ful of hypocrisye.

¶ The .lviii. Chapter.

ANd therfore crye now/ as loude as I thou canst. Leaue not of/ lyft vp * Ezech. iii. c thy voyce lyke a trompet/ & shewe Jere. xix. a my people their offences/ & ỹ house of Jacob their synne. For they seke me dalye & wyll knowe my wayes/ euen as it were a people that dyd ryght/ and had not forsaken the statutes of their God. They argue with me concernynge ryght iudgement/ and wyll pleate at the lawe with their God. Wherfore fast we (saye they) and thou seist it not? we put oure lyues to straytenesse/ and thou regardest it not?

Beholde/ when ye *fast/ youre lust remayneth styll: for ye do no lesse violence to youre detters: lo, ye fast to stryke & debate/ & to smyte hym with youre fyst that speaketh vnto you. Ye fast not (as some tyme) yt youre voyce myght be heard aboue. Thynke ye this fast pleaseth me/ that a man shuld chasten hym self for a daye/ & to wrythe his head aboute lyke an hoke in an hearry cloth & / to lye vpon the earth? Shulde that be called fastyng/ or a daye yt pleaseth the Lorde? But this fastynge pleaseth not me/ tyll ye tyme be thou lowse hym out of bondage/ that is in thy daunger: yt thou breake the ooth of wycked bargynnes/ that thou lett the oppressed go fre/ & take from them all maner of burthens. It pleaseth not me/ tyll thou deale thy bred to the hongry/ and brynge the poore fatherlesse home into thy house/ whē thou seist the naked that thou couer hym/ and hyde not thy face from thyne awne flesh.

Then shall thy lyght breake forth as the mornyng/ & thy health florysh ryght shortly: thy ryghtuousnesse shall go before the/ and the glory of the Lorde shall embrace the.

Then yf thou callest/ the Lorde shall answere the: yf thou cryest/ he shall saye: here I am. Yee yf thou layest awaye thy burthens/ and holdest thy fyngers/ and ceasest from blasphemous talkynge/ yf thou hast compassyon vpon the hongrye/ & refreshest the troubled soule: Then shall thy lyght sprynge out in the darcknesse/ & thy darcknesse shalbe as the noone daye. The Lorde shall euer be thy gyde/ and satysfye the desyre of thyne herte/ and fyll thy bones wyth mary. Thou shalt be lyke a freshwatred garden/ and lyke the founteyne of water/ that neuer leaueth D runnyng. Then the places yt haue euer bene waste/ shalbe buylded of yt: there shalt thou laye a foundacyō for many kynredes. Thou shalt be called the maker vp of hedges/ & the buylder agayne of the waye of yt Sabbath.

Yee yf thou turne thy fete frō the Sabbath/ so that thou do not the thynge wlych pleaseth thy selfe in my holy daye: then shalt thou be called vnto the pleasaūt/ holy/ & glorious Sabbath of the Lorde/ where thou shalt be in honoure: so that thou do not after thine awne ymaginacion/ nether seke thine awne wyll/ ner speake thyne awne wordes. Thē shalt thou haue thy pleasure in yt Lord/ which shall carye yt hye aboue yt earth/ and fede the wt the heretage of Jacob thy father: for yt Lordes awne mouth hath so promysed.

a* Thys fast remayneth yet amōge yt Christen for true chastenynge of the body & abstenynge frō vice will we yet nether vnderstāde ner heare of: but still thinke wt the Jewes both that we do God a great pleasure when we fast/ & also that we then fast/ when we abstayne from one thing & fill oure belyes wt another. And verely in thys thynge doth oure superstycyon exceade the superstycyō of the Jewes. For we neuer reade that they euer toke it for a fast to abstayne frō flesh/ and eate ether flesh or whit meate (as they call it)

¶ The Lorde is myghtie to saue/ and readye to heare oure requestes.

¶ The .lix. Chapter.

Beholde/ the Lordes hande is not so shortened yt it can not helpe/ nether is his eare so stopped that it maye not heare. But youre mysdedes haue separated you frō youre God/ & your synnes hyde his face frō you/ yt he heareth you not. For youre hādes are defyled wt bloud/ & youre fingers wt vnrighteousnesse: Your lyppes speake lesynges/ & your tonge setteth oute wyckednes. No man regardeth righteousnes/ & no mā iudgeth truly. Euery man hopeth in vayne thinges/ & ymagyneth dysceate/ cōceaueth weerynesse/ & bryngeth forth euell. They a* brede cockatrice egges/ & weeue ye spyders webb. *Who so eateth of their egges/ dieth. * But yf one treade vpō thē/ there cōmeth vp a serpent. *Their webbe maketh no clothe & they maye not couer thē wt their labours. *Their dedes are yt dedes of wyckednes/ & yt worcke of robbery is in their handes. Their fete runne to euell/ and they make haste to shed innocent bloude. Their coūcels are wycked coūcels/ harme & destruccyō are in their wayes. But the waye of peace they knowe not. In their goinges is no equyte/ their wayes are so crooked/ that whosoeuer goeth therin/ knoweth nothynge of peace.

And this is yt cause yt equite is so farre frō vs/ & yt rightuousnes cōmeth not nye vs. We loke for lyght/ lo, it is darcknesse: for yt mornynge shyne/ le/ we walcke in yt darcke. We grope like yt blinde vpō yt wall/ we grope euē as one yt hath none eyes. We stōble at yt none daye/ as though it were toward night: in the fallyng places/ lyke men yt are half deed. We roare all lyke Beares/ & mourne styll lyke doues. We loke for equyte/ but there is none: for health/ but it is farre frō vs. For oure offences are many before yt/ & oure synnes testifie agaynst vs. Yee we must confesse yt we offende/ & knowledge yt we do amysse: Namely trāsgresse & dissemble agaynst yt Lorde/ & fall awaye frō oure God: bynge presumptuous & traytorous ymaginaciōs/ & casting false matters in oure hertes. And therfore is equyte gone aside/ & rightuousnes standeth farre of: treuth is fallē downe in yt strete/ & yt thinge that is playne and open/ maye not be shewed. Yee yt treuth is laide in prison/ & he yt refrayneth hī self frō euell/ must be spoyled.

When the Lorde sawe this/ it displeased hym sore/ yt there was no where eny equite. He sawe also/ that there was no mā/ which had

Hat is he this/ỹ cometh from Edō/ I with stayned reade clothes of Bosra: (which is so costly cloth) and co- meth in so nymbly w̄ all hys strengeth: I am he that teacheth ryghtuousnes/& am of power to helpe. Wherfore then is thy clothynge read/ & thy rayment lyke his that treadeth in the wyne presse? I haue trodden the presse my self alone / and of all people / there was not one w̄ me. Thus haue I trodē downe myne enemyes in my wrath/ and set my fete vpon them in my indignacyon: And B their bloude sprange vpon my cloothes/and so haue I stayned all my rayment. For ỹ daye of vengeaunce that I haue taken in hande/ & the yeare of my delyueraunce is come. I lyked aboute me / and there was no man to shewe me eny helpe/I fell downe/ & no man helde me vp. Thē I helde me by myne awne arme/and my feruētnesse susteyned me. And thus haue I troden downe the people in my wrath/ and bathed them in my displeasure: In so moch ỹ I haue shed their bloude vpon the earth.

I wyll declare the goodnesse of ỹ Lorde/ ye and the prayse of the Lorde for all that he hath geuen vs / for the greate good that he hath done for Israell: wherch he hath gyuen them of hys awne fauoure/& according to the multytude of hys louyng kyndnesses. For he sayde: These no doute wylbe my people/and no chrystenyng chyldre/and so he was their sauyoure. In their troubles he forsoke them not/but the angell that went forth frō ¶ his presence delyuered them: Of very loue & kyndnesse that he had vnto them/ redemed he them. He hath borne them/ and caried them vp euer/sence the worlde begāne. But after they prouoked hym to wrath and vexed hys holy mynde/he was their enemye/ & fought agaynst them hym selfe. Yet remembred he ỹ olde tyme of Moses & hys people: How he brought them from the water of the see/as a shepherde doth wyth hys shepe: how he had geuen hys holy spyrete amonge them: how he had led Moses by the ryght hande wyth hys glorious arme: how he had deuyded the water before them (wherby he gat hym selfe an euerlastyng name) how he led thē in ỹ depe/ as an horse is led in the playne/ ỹ they shulde not stomble. The spyrete of the Lorde led thē/ as a tame beast goeth in the feilde.

Thus (O God) hast thou led thy people/ D to make thy selfe a gloryous name with all. *Loke downe then from heauen/& beholde the dwellynge place of thy sanctuary & thy glory. How is it/ ỹ thy gelousy/ thy strēgth/ the multitude of thy mercyes & thy louynge kyndnesse/ wyll not be entreated of vs. Yet art thou our father: For Abraham knoweth vs not/nether is Israel acquaynted with vs. But thou Lorde art our father & redemer/ & thy name is euerlastyng. O Lorde wherfore hast thou led vs out of thy waye? wherfore hast thou hardened our hertes/that we feare the not? Be at one wyth vs agayne/ for thy seruaūtes sake that are of the generacyō of thyne heretage. Thy people hath had but litle of thy Sanctuary in possessyon/ for oure enemyes haue takē it in: And we are become euen as we were from the begynnynge: but thou art not their Lorde/ for they haue not called vpon thy name.

The very same sayeng haue ye before in the xi.a and.b

f* But earth shalbe the serpentes meate/that is/wyth earth shall the serpēt be contēt/ & nether styng man/nor hurt him wt her venome.

¶ The.lxvj. Chapter.

¶ God dwelleth not in temples made by mannes hande. He despyseth sacrifyces done without mercy & fayth. God comforteth them that are troubled for his sake. Amonge the Christen/the Sabboth is contynuall.

THus sayeth the Lorde: Heauen is my sete/ & þ earth is my fote stole. a* Where shall now þ house stande that ye wyll buylde vnto me? And where shall be the place/ þ I will dwell in? As for these thinges/ my hande hath made thē all/ & they are all created/ sayeth the Lorde. Which of thē shal I then regarde? Euen hym that is of a lowly troubled spyrete/ & standeth in awe of my wordes. For who so slayeth an ore for me/doth me so greate dishonoure/ as he þ kylleth a man. He that kylleth a shepe for me/ choketh a dogge. He þ bryngeth me meat offrynges/offreth swynes bloude: Who so maketh me a memoriall of incense/ prayseth the thinge that is vnright. Yet take they soch wayes in hande/and their soule deliteth in these abominacyons.

Therfore wil I also haue pleasure in laughynge them to scorne/ and the thinge that they feare/will I bringe vpon thē. For when I called/no mā gaue answere: when I spake they wolde not heare: But dyd wyckednesse before myne eyes/and chose the thinges that dysplease me. Heare the worde of God all ye/ þ feare the thinge which he speaketh. Youre brethren that hate you/ and cast you out for my names sake/saye: Lett the Lorde magnyfye himself/ that we maye se youre gladnesse: and yet they shalbe confounded.

For as touchyng the cytie and þ temple/ I heare the voyce of the Lorde/that wyll reward/ & recompence his enemyes: lyke as when a wyfe bryngeth forth a mā chyld/ or euer she suffre the payne of the byrth and anguysh of the trauayle. Who euer herde or sawe kyces & ceremonyes in ỳ tẽple/ but with righteousnes/ wyth fayth/ & with ỳ spyrete. The same longe that the prophete here syngeth in the latter ende of hys prophecy/ sange he before in the beginning/ euen in ỳ fyrst chapter. Lett ỳ Christen note these .ij. chapters (I meane the fyrst & the last) well/ and then shall they perceaue how greatly God abhorreth soch ypocrytyche workes done without fayth/ all though they seame & apeare outwardly to be most godly.

Saw we soch thynges? doth the grounde beare in one daye? or are the people borne all at once / as Syon beareth her sonnes? For thus sayeth the Lorde: Am I he that maketh other to beare / and beare not my self? Am not I he that beareth / and maketh baren? sayeth thy God. Reioyse wyth Ierusalem/ and be glad wyth her / all ye that loue her. Be ioyful wyth her / all ye that mourned for her. For ye shal sucke cõforte out of her breastes/ and be satisfied. Ye shal taste/ and haue delite in the plenteousnesse of her power. For thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde / I wyll lett peace in to her / lyke a water floude / and the myght of ỳ Heythen like a flowyng streame. Then shall ye sucke / ye shall be borne vpon her sydes / and be ioyful vpon her knees. For lyke as a chylde is comforted of his mother/ so shall I comforte you / and ye shalbe comforted in Ierusalem. And when ye se thys / youre herte shall reioyse / and youre bones shall florysh lyke an herbe.

Thus shall the hande of the Lorde be knowne amonge hys seruauntes / & his indignacyon amonge hys enemyes. For beholde/ the Lorde shall come with fyre / & hys charet shall be lyke a whyrl wynde / that he maye recõpence his vengeance in his wrath and his indignacyon wyth the flame of fyre. For the Lorde shall iudge all flesh wyth the fyre and wyth his swerde/ and there shalbe a greate nombre slayne of the Lorde. Soch as haue made themselues holy and cleane in the gardens / & those that haue eaten swyne flesh/ myce/ and other abhominacyons/ shal be taken awaye together/ sayeth the Lorde. For I wyl come to gather all people & tõges wyth their workes and imaginacyons: these shall come / and se my glory. Vnto them shal I geue a token/ and sende certayne of them (that be delyuered) amõge the Gentiles: in to Celycia/ Affryca and Lidya (where men can handle bowes) in to Italye also and Grecke lande.

The Iles farre of/ that haue not herde speake of me / and haue not sene my glory/ shal preach my prayse amonge the Gentiles and shal bringe all youre brethren for an offrynge vnto ỳ Lorde / out of all people / vpõ horses / charrettes and horse lytters / vpon Mules and cartes to Ierusalem my holy hyll (sayeth the Lorde) lyke as the chyldren of Israel bringe the offrynge in cleane vessels/ to the house of Lorde.

And I shall take out certayne of them for to be preastes and leuytes / sayeth the Lorde. For lyke as the newheauen and the new earth whych I wyll make / shalbe fast stablyshed by me: (sayeth the Lorde) So shal youre sede and youre name contynue* and there shalbe a new Moone for the other/ and a new Sabbath for the other/ and* al flesh shal come to worshipe before me (sayeth ỳ Lorde) And they shall go forth and loke vpon the caryons of them that haue transgressed agayn me. For their worme shall not dye/ nether shal their fyre be quẽched/ & al flesh sh all abhorre them.

b* That is/ there shalbe a perpetual feaste & a perpetuall reaste. They shall not then kepe their Sabboth after the maner of the Iewes. ner ma be differẽce betwene daye & daye: but they shall kepe a cõtynuall Sabboth/ & neuer do seruile worckes/ that is/ synnes. Then shal they alwayes be in the tẽple/ that is/ alwayes shall they prayse God in spyrites trueth/ as wel in aduersytie as in prosperite: They shal nether rẽne vnto Idoles ner any creatures/ but shall worshippe the Lorde only.

¶ So in Joh. x. g Saye ye then vnto hym / whō the father hath sanctified. & c. that is / hath chosen. &c.

THese are the Sermons of Jeremy the sonne of Helkiah the Preste / one of them that dwelt at Anathoth in the lande of Benjamin: when ỹ Lorde had fyrst spoken wyth him / a *in the tyme of Josiah the sonne of Amon kynge of Juda / in the .xiij. yeare of hys kyngdome: and so durynge vnto the tyme of Jehoakim the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda / and vntill the .xj. yeares of Zedekiah the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda were ended: when Jerusalem was take / euē in the fyfth Moneth. The worde of ỹ Lorde spake thus vnto me: Before I facshioned the in thy mothers wombe / I dyd knowe the: And or euer thou wast borne / b *I sanctified the / and ordened the / to be a Prophete vnto the people. Then sayde I: Oh Lorde God / I am vnmete / for I am yet but younge. And the Lorde answered me thus: Saye not so / I am to yonge: for thou shalt goo to all that I shall sende the vnto / & whatsoeuer I cōmaunde the / that shalt thou speake. Be not afrayed of their faces / for I wylbe with the / to delyuer the / sayeth the Lorde.

And with that / the Lorde stretched oute his hande / and touched my mouth / & sayde moreouer vnto me. Beholde I put my wordes in thy mouth / and this daye do I set the ouer the people & kyngdomes: that thou mayest rote out / breake of / destroye / & make waste: and that thou mayest buylde vp and plante

¶ After this / the Lorde spake vnto me saying: Jeremy / what seyst thou? And I sayde: I se a wakyng rodde. Then sayde the Lorde: thou hast sene right / for I wyll watch diligently vpon my worde / to perfourme it.

It happened after warde / that the Lorde spake to me agayne / and sayde: What seyst thou? And I sayde: I do se a seethynge pot / lokinge from out of the north hyther warde.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto me: Out of the north shal come a plage vpon all ỹ dwellers of the lande. For lo / I wil call all the officers of the kingdomes of the north (sayeth the Lorde.) And they shall come / and euery one shall sett his seate in the gates of Jerusalem / and in all their walles rounde a bout & thorow all the cyties of Juda. And thorow them shall I declare my iudgment / vpon all the wyckednesse of those men that haue forsaken me: ỹ haue offred vnto straūge goddes and worshypped the workes of their awne handes.

And therfore *gyrde vp thy loynes / aryse / and tell thē all / that I geue the in cōmaundment. Feare them not / I wyll not haue the to be afrayed of them. For beholde / thys daye do I make ỹ a strōge fensed towne / an yron pyler / and a wall of stele agaynst the whole lande / agaynst the kynges and mightie men of Juda / agaynst the prestes and people of the lande. They shall fyght agaynst the / but they shall not be able to ouercome the: for I am with the / to delyuer the / sayeth the Lorde.

¶ God reherceth his benefytes done vnto the Jewes. Agaynst Prestes & Prophetes / or preachers that cōtemne & despyse God. The Jewes are destroyed / because they forsoke God / & because they ranne a whore huntyng after Idoles.

¶ The. ij. Chapter.

MOreouer / the worde of the Lorde cōmaūded me thus: Go thy waye / crye in the eares of Jerusalem / & saye: Thus sayeth the Lorde: I remembre the for the kyndnesse of thy youth / and because of thy stedfast loue: in that thou folowdest me thorow the wyldernesse / in an vntylled lande. Saye not now: I am not vnclene/and I haue not folowed the Goddes. Loke vpon thyne awne wayes in the woddes / valleys and dennes: so shalt thou knowe/what thou hast done. Thou art lyke a swyft Dromedary/that goeth easely his waye: and thy wãtonnes is lyke a wylde Asse / that vseth the wyldernesse / and that snoffeth and bloweth at his will. Who can tame the? All they that seke the/ shall not fayle/but fynde ẏ in thine awne vnclennes. Lyke as a theefe that is taken with ẏ dede commeth to shame / euen so is the house of Israel come to confusion: the comen people/ their kinges and rulers/their prestes & prophetes. But in the tyme of their trouble/when they saye: stande vp/and helpe vs/ I shal answere thẽ: Where are now thy goddes/that thou hast made ẏ? byd them stande vp/& helpe the in the tyme of nede? For loke how many cities thou hast (O Juda) so many goddes hast thou also.

Wherfore then will ye goo to law wyth me/seynge ye all are synners agaynst me/ sayeth the Lorde? It is but lost labour/that I smyte youre chyldren / for they receaue not my correccyon. Youre awne swearde destroyeth youre prophetes/lyke a deuouryng lyon. If ye be the people of the Lorde / then herken vnto his worde: Am I then become a wyldernesse vnto the people of Israel? or a lãde that hath no light? Wherfore sayeth my people then: we are fallen of / and we wyll come no more vnto the? Doth a mayden forget her rayment / or a bryde her stomacher? And doth my people forget me so lõge? Why boostest thou thy wayes so hylie (to optayne G fauoure ther thorowe) when thou hast yet stayned them with blasphemies?

Upon thy wynges is founde the bloude of poore and innocent people / and that not in corners & holes only/ but opẽly in al these places. Yet darrest thou saye: I am gyltlesse: Tusch/his wrath can not come vpon me. Beholde/ I wyll reason wyth the because thou darrest say: I haue not offended. O how euel wil it be for the/to abyde it: when it shall be knowne / how oft thou hast gone backward? For thou shalt be confoũded/as wel of Egypte/as of the Assirians: yee thou shalt go thy waye from them / and smyte thyne handes together vpon thy head. Because the Lorde shall bringe that confydence and hope of thine to naught / and thou shalt not prospere with all.

God

¶ God beyng mercyfull calleth vnto repentaūce his people/ which he had forsaken for their whoredome with Idoles. He exhorteth Israel vnto repentaunce/ promysyng thē shepherdes that shulde haue the true knowledge of God. The returne of Israel vnto God/ confessyng their offence.

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

A a* That is/ thou hast loued/ worshypped/ & serued many Idoles of the gētyles/ in hilles/ wodes/ valeyes fildes/ & in many other places as we oftē reade in ỳ Byble: & hast forsaken me thy husbād/ cōtracy to the maner of honest maried women/ wherfore thou art worthy to be deuorced. Yet turne & repente & forthinke the earnestly/ & I wyll not styck to receaue the agayne.

IF a man put away his wife/ and she go from him/ & marieth with another/ then the question is: shulde he resorte vnto her eny more after ỳ? Is not this feide then defyled and vncleane? But as for the/ a* thou hast played the harlot with many louers/ yet turne agayne to me/ saieth ỳ Lord. Lift vp thine eyes on euery syde/ & loke/ yf thou be not defyled. Thou hast wayted for them in the stretes/ and as a murtherer in ỳ wildernesse. Thorow thy whordome & shamefull blasphemies/ is the lande defyled.

This is the cause/ that the rayne & euē B nynge dew hath ceased. Thou hast gottē the an whores forehead/ and canst not be ashamed. Els woldest thou saye vnto me: O my father/ thou art he that hast brought me vp/ & led me fro my youth: Wylt thou then put me awaye/ and cast me of for euer? Or wilt thou withdraw thy selfe cleane fro me? Neuertheles/ thou speakest soch wordes/ but thou art euer doinge worse and worse.

¶ *The Lord sayd also vnto me: in the tyme of Iosiah the kynge: Hast thou sene what ỳ shrinkyng Israel hath done? how she hath runne vp vpon all the hylles/ and amōge all thick trees/ and there played the harlot: hast thou sene also (when she had done all thys) how I sayde vnto her: that she shulde turne agayne vnto me/ & yet she is not returned? Iuda ỳ vnfaythfull syster of hers also sawe this: Namely/ that after I had well sene the aduoutrye of the shrynckyng harlot Israel/ I put her awaye/ and gaue her a byll of deuorcement.

For all this/ her vnfaythfull syster Iuda was not ashamed/ but went backe & played the whore also. Yee and ỳ noyse of her whordome hath defyled the whole lande. For she hath commytted her aduoutrye with stones and stockes.

Neuertheles/ her vnfaithfull sister Iuda is not turned vnto me againe with her whole D herte/ but faynedly/ sayeth the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto me. The backsyder Israell is more ryghtuous/ then the vnfaythfull Iuda: & therfore go preche these wordes towarde the north/ and saye: Thou shrenkynge Israell/ turne agayne (sayeth the Lorde) and I wyll not turne my face from you/ for I am mercyfull/ saieth the Lorde/ & I will not alwaye beare displeasure against the: but on this condicion/ that thou knowe thy greate blasphemy: Namely/ that thou hast vnfaythfully forsaken the Lorde thy God/ & hast made thy selfe part taker of straūge Goddes vnder all grene trees/ but hast had no wyll to heare my voyce/ sayeth the Lord. E Ezechiel.xvj.c. Osee.xiiij.a.

*O ye shrinkyng chyldrē/ turne agayne/ sayeth the Lorde: & I wyll be maryed wyth you. For I wyll take one out of the cytye/ & two out of one generacyō from amōge you/ and bryngе you out of Syon: and will geue you herdmē after myne awne mynde/ which shall fede you wyth lernynge and wysdome. Moreouer/ when ye be increased and multiplyed in the lande/ then (sayeth the Lorde) there shall no more boost be made of ỳ arcke of the Lordes Testamēt: No man shall thinke vpon it/ nether shall any man make mencīō of it: for from thence forth it shall nether be vysyted/ ner honoured with gyftes.

Then shall Ierusalem be called the Lordes seate/ and all Heathen shalbe gathered vnto it/ for the name of the Lordes sake/ whych shalbe set vp at Ierusalem. And from that tyme forth/ they shall folow no more ỳ ymagynacyon of their awne frowarde herte.

Then those that be of the house of Iuda/ F shall go vnto the house of Israel: & they shall come together out of ỳ North/ into the same lande that I haue geuē your fathers. I haue shewed also/ how I toke the vp being but a childe/ & gaue the a pleasaūt lande for thyne heretage/ yee & a goodly Hoste of ỳ Heathē: & how I cōmaunded the/ ỳ thou shuldest* call me father only/ and not to shrynche fro me. *Mal.xxiij.c

But lyke as a womā fayleth her louer/ so are ye vnfaythfull vnto me (O ye house of Israel) sayeth the Lord. And therfore ỳ voyce of the chyldrē of Israel was herde on euery syde/ wepinge and walinge: for they haue defyled their waye/ and forgotten God their Lorde.

O ye shrinkynge chyldren/ turne agayne G (saynge: lo/ we are thyne/ for thou art the Lorde oure God:) And so shall I heale youre backsyttynges. The hilles fall/ and all ỳ hie pryde of the mountaynes/ but the health of Israell standeth only vpō God oure Lorde.

Confusyon hath deuoured oure fathers labour from oure youth vp: yee their shepe and bullockes/ their sonnes and daughters. So do we also slepe in oure confusyon/ and shame coūereth vs: for we and oure fathers frō oure youth vp vnto this daye haue synned agaynst the Lorde oure God/ and haue not obeyed the voyce of the Lord oure God.

¶ The true repentaunce or returnynge to God. He exhorteth to the circumcisyon of the herte. The destruccyon of Jewry is prophecyed/ for the malyce of their hertes.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

O Israell

IIsraell/ yf thou wylt turne ȳ/then turne vnto me / sayeth the Lorde. And yf thou wilt put awaye thyne abhominacyons out of my syght/ thou shalt not be moued: And shalt sweare: The Lorde lyueth: in treuth / in equyte and rightuousnesse:and all people shall be fortunable and ioyfull in him. For thus saieth the Lorde/to all Juda & Jerusalem:plowe your lande/and sowe not amonge the thornes.

Be circuncysed in the Lorde/and cut awaye the forefkynne of youre hertes / all ye of Juda/and all the indwellers of Jerusalē: that my indignacyō breake not out like fyre and kyndle/ so that no man maye quench it/ because of the wyckednes of youre ymagynacyons.

a* To mourne in the Scripture sygnyfyeth some tyme to make an vnmeasurable & greuous lamentacion / as when a man for impacience and greefe/ smyteth his awne body/ renteth hys cloth/ teareth his heare &c. So in Matty. xxiiij.c. And then shall all ȳ kinredes of the earth mourne.

Preach in Juda and Jerusalem/ crie out and speake:blowe the trōpettes in the lande crie that euery man maye heare / and saye: Gather you together / and we will go in to stronge cities. Set vp the token in Syon/ spede you/and make no tarienge: for I will bringe a greate plage/and a greate destrucyon from the north. For the spoyler of the Gentiles is broken vp from his place / as a lyon out of his denne/that he maye make the lande waste/and destroye the cyties/ so that no man maye dwell therin. Wherfore gyrde youre selues about w sack cloth/ a* mourne and wepe/ for the fearfull wrath of ȳ Lorde shall not be withdrawen from you.

At the same tyme (sayeth the Lorde) the hert of the kynge and of the prynces shall be gone/the prestes shalbe astonished / and the prophetes shalbe sore afraied. Then sayde I: O Lord God / hast thou then disceaued this people and Jerusalem/sayenge:ye shal haue peace/& now the swearde goeth thorow their lyues: Then shall it be sayde to the people & to Jerusalē: b* there cōmeth a warme wynd from the north thorow the waye of my people/but nether to fanne/ner to clense.

b * Some reade the dye wynde cometh out of ȳ hyghe places of the wyldernesse/by the waye of the daughter of my people &c. They vnderstand by ȳ wind ȳ king of Egypt: And by the waye of his people / the waye which he ledde hys people when they came forth of Egypt: which was throughe ȳ wyldernesse. Exod.xiij.d

c * After that shall there come vnto me a stronge wynde/ & then will I also geue sentence vpon them. For lo/ he commeth downe lyke as a cloude/and his charrettes are lyke a stormy wynde:his horsmē are swifter then the Aegle. Wo vnto vs/for we are destroyed.

c * After that shall there come vnto me a stronge wynde &c. By this winde is vnderstande ȳ kyng of Babylon & his armye.

O Jerusalem / wash thyne herte from wyckednesse / that thou mayest be helped. How longe shall thy noysome thoughtes remayne wyth the?

For a voyce frō Dan and from the hill of Ephraim speaketh out / and telleth of a destruccion. Beholde / the Heathen geue Jerusalem warnynge/and preach vnto her/that her destroyers are cōmynge from farre coūtrees. They tell the cyties of Juda the same also/they shall geue them warnyng in euery place / like as the watch men in the felde. For they haue prouoked me to wrath / sayeth the Lorde.

Thy wayes and thy thoughtes / haue brought the vnto thys / thys is thyne awne wyckednesse & dysobedyence that hath possessed thyne herte: Ah my bely/ah my bely/ (shalt thou crye) how is my hert so sore: my hert panteth within me / I can not be styll/ for I haue herde ȳ cryenge of the trōpettes / and peales of warre.

They crye murthur vpon murthur / the whole lande shall perysh. Immediatly my tentes were destroyed/and my hangynges/in the twinckelinge of an eye. How longe shall I se the tokēs of warre/ and heare the noyse of the trompettes.

Neuertheles this shall come vpon them because my people is become foolysh / and hath vterly no vnderstandynge. They are the chyldren of foolishnes/and wythout enydiscreciō. To do euell/they haue wytt ynough: but to do wel/they haue no wysdome. I haue loked vpon the earth / and lo/it is waste and voyde. I loked towarde heauen / and it had no shyne.

I beheld the mountaynes / and they trēbled/and all the hylles were in a feare. I loked aboute me/ and there was no body / and all the byrdes of the ayre were awaye. I marked well / and the plowed felde was become waste: yee all their cities were brokē downe at the presence of the Lorde / and indygnacion of hys wrath.

For thus hath the Lorde sayde: The whole lande shalbe desolate / yet wyll I not then haue done. And therfore lett the earth mourne / and lett the heauen be sory aboue: for the thinge that I haue purposed and taken vpon me to do / shall not repente me / and I wyll not go from it. The whole lande shall fle/for the noyse of the horsmen and bowmē: they shall runne in to dennes in to woddes/ and clymme vp the stony rockes. All the cytyes shalbe voyde/ and no man dwellinge theryn.

¶ In Jewrye is there no ryghtwes or faythfull man founde/ether amongest the people/or the rulars/for whose sake the Lorde shulde spare the cytye: wherfore Jewry is destroyed of the Assyrians.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

A LOke thorow Jerusalem/beholde and se: Seke thorowe her stretes also wythin/ yf ye can fynde one mā/that doth equall and ryght/ or that laboureth to be faythfull: and I shall spare him(sayeth ỹ Lorde)For though they can saye: ỹ Lord liueth/yet do they sweare to a*The lokīg of God is hys approuyng and alowynge/as it is sayde in Genesy.a dilceaue:Where as thou(O Lorde)lokest only vpon fayth and treuth.

They mynistre not the lawe/ they make no ende of the fatherlesses cause/they iudge not the poore accordynge to equite.

Shulde I not punish these thynges/sayeth ỹ Lorde? shulde I not be auenged of all soch people/as these be? Horrible and greuous thynges are done in the lande.

A ¶ The.vj. Chapter.

GOme out of Jerusalem / ye strōgs children of Ben Jamin: blowe vp the trompettes ye Tecuytes / sett vp a token vnto Bethcarem / for a plage and a great mysery pepeth out from the North.

I wil licken the daughter Syō to a fayre and tendre woman / and to her shall come the shepherders with their flockes. Their tentes shall they pitch rounde aboute her / and euery one shall fede* thē ẏ are vnder his hād. Make batell agaynst her (shall they saye)

B Aryse / lett vs go vp / while it is yet daye.

Alas / the daye goeth awaye / & the nyght shadowes fall downe: Arise / lett vs go vp by nyght / and destroye her stronge holdes / for thus hath the Lorde of hoostes commaūded.

Hew downe her trees / and lett vp bulworkes agaynst Jerusalem. This is the cite that must be punished / for in her is all malyciousnes. Lyke as a condyte aboundeth in water / euen so this cytye aboundeth in wyckednes. Robbery and vnryghtuousnesse ys herde in her / sorow & woundes are euer there in my sight. Amende the (O Jerusalem) lest I withdrawe my herte from the / and make the desolate: & thy lande also / ẏ no man dwel in it. For thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes:

a* The relydue of Israel shalbe gathered / as the remnaunt of grapes.

And therfore turne thyne hande agayne in to the backet / like ẏ grapegatherer. But vnto whō shall I speake / whō shall I warne that he maye take hede? Their eares are so vncircuncysed / that they maye not heare.

Beholde / they take the worde of God but for a scorne / & haue no lust therto. And therfore b* I am so full of thyne indygnacyō O Lorde) that I maye suffre no longer. Shede out thy wrath vpon the chyldren ẏ are without / and vpon all yonge men. Yee the man must be taken preloner wyth the wyfe / and the aged with the crepel. Their houses wyth their landes and wiues shall be turned vnto straungers / when I stretch out myne hande vpon the inhabitatours of this lande / saieth the Lorde. For from the leest vnto the most / they hange all vpon couetousnes: & from ẏ prophet vnto the prest / they go all aboute wt falsheed and lyes.

D And besyde that / they heale the hurt of my people with swete wordes / sayeng: peace peace / when there is no peace at all. Therfore they must be ashamed / for they haue cōmitted abhominacyon. But how shulde they be ashamed / when they knowe nothing / neyther of shame ner good nurtour? And therfore they shall fall amōge the slayne / and in the houre when I shall vyset them / they shal be brought downe / sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Lorde: go in to the streates / consydre & make inquysycyon for the olde waye: and yf it be the good and right waye / then go theryn / that ye maye fynde rest for youre soules. But they saye: we wil not walcke theryn / and I wyll sett watchmen ouer you / and therfore take hede vnto E the voyce of the trompett. But they saye: we wyll not take hede. Heare therfore ye Gentyles / and thou congregacyon shalt knowe / what I haue deuysed for them. Heare thou earth also: beholde / I wyll cause a plage come vpon this people / euē the frute of their awne ymagynacyons.

For they haue not bene obedient vnto my wordes and to my lawe / but abhorred them. Wherfore bringe ye me incense frō Saba / & swete smellyng Calamus frō farre countrees? Youre burntofferynges displease me / and I reioyse not in youre sacrifyces. Esay.i.b. Esa. lxvi.a. & Jere. vj.c.

And therfore thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde / I wyll make this people fall / & there shall fall from amōge them the father with the chyldren / one neyghboure shall perysh with another.

Moreouer thus sayeth ẏ Lorde: Behold / there shall come a people from the North / & F a greate people shall aryse from the endes of ẏ earth / with bowes & with dartes shal they be weapened: It is a rough & fearce people / an vnmercyfull people: their voyce roareth lyke ẏ see / they ryde vpō horses well apoynted to the batell agaynst the / O daughter Sion. C *What: thinke you thys house ẏ beareth my name/ ys a denne of theues? And these thyngs are not done pryuely/ but before myne eyes/ sayeth the Lorde. Go to my place in Siloh/ wherunto I gaue my name afore tyme/ & loke wel what I dyd to ẏ same place for the wyckednes of my people of Israell. And now/ though ye haue done al these dedes (sayeth the Lord) & I my self rose vp euer by tymes to warne you & to comen wyth you/ yet wolde ye not heare me: I called/ ye wolde not answere. And therfore euen as I haue done vnto Siloh/ so wyll I do to this house/ ẏ my name is geuē vnto (& that ye put youre trust in) ye vnto the place ẏ I haue geuen to you and your fathers. And I shal thrust you out of my syght/ as I haue cast out all youre brethren the whole sede of a Ephraim.

a* Ye vnderstandeth the. x. tribes of Israell whose kyngdome was deuided/ and fell to Jeroboam/ the Ephraite. iij. Reg. xi. c. f. g.

Therfore thou shalt not praye for thys people/ thou shalt nether geue thankes/ nor byd prayer for thē: thou shalt make no intercessiō to me for thē for in no wise wil I heare the. Seyst thou not what they do in ẏ cytyes of Juda/ & without Jerusalem? The chyldrē gather stickes/ the fathers kindle the fyre/ ẏ mothers kneade ẏ dowghe/ to bake cakes for the quene of heauen.

They poure out drinkoffrings vnto straūge goddes/ to prouoke me vnto wrath: How be it they hurte not me (sayeth the Lord) but rather confounde/ & shame them selues.

And therfore thus sayeth ẏ Lorde God: beholde/ my wrath and my indignacion shalbe poured out vpō this place/ vpō men & catell vpon ẏ trees in ẏ felde & all frute of ẏ lande/ & it shall burne so/ ẏ no mā maye quench it.

Thus sayeth the Lord of Hostes/ the God of Israel: Yee heape vp your burntoffringes with youre sacrifyces/ & eate the flesshe. But whē I brought youre fathers out of Egypt/ I spake no worde vnto thē of burntoffrings & sacrifyces: but this I commaunded them/ sayinge: herken & obeye my voyce/ & I shalbe youre God and ye shall be my people: so ẏ ye walcke in all ẏ wayes/ which I haue cōmaunded you/ that ye maye prospere.

But they were not obediēt/ they inclyned not they re eares there vnto/ but went after their awne ymaginacyōs & after the mociōs of their awne wicked herte/ & so turned them selues awaye/ & conuerted not vnto me. And this haue they done/ frō the tyme that youre fathers came out of Egypte/ vnto this daye.

F Neuertheles/ I sent vnto them my seruauntes all the prophetes: I rose vp early & sent them worde/ yet wolde they not herken/ ner offre me their eare/ but were obstynate & worse then their fathers. And thou shalt now speake all these words vnto thē/ but they shal not heare ẏ: thou shalt crye vpō thē/ but they shal not answere ẏ. Therfore shalt thou saye vnto thē: this is the people/ that nether heareth the voyce of the Lorde their God/ ner receaueth his correccyon. Fayth fulnes and treuth is cleane roted out of their mouth.

G Wherfore cut of thyne hearre/ & cast it awaye/ take vp a cōplaynte in the whole lāde for the Lorde shal cast awaye/ & scatre ẏ people/ ẏ he is displeased withall. For the chyldren of Juda haue done euell in my syght/ saieth the Lord. They haue set vp their abhominaciōs/ in the house ẏ hath my name/ and haue defyled yt. They haue also buylded an aulter at b* Topheth/ which is in ẏ valley of the childrē of Hennom: ẏ they might burne their sonnes and daughters/ whych I neuer commaunded them/ nether came it euer in my thought. And therfore beholde/ the dayes shall come (sayeth the Lorde) that it shall no more be called Topheth/ or the valley of the chyldren of Hennom/ but the valley of the slayne/ for in Topheth/ they shall be buryed

b* Topheth is a valleye wher vnto all ẏ deed bodyes & fylthynes of Jerusalem were caried & where Idolatrers offred their chyldren to Moloch.

beburied/because they shal els haue no rowme. Yee the deed bodyes of thys people shall be eaten vp of the foules of the ayre & wilde beastes of the earth / and no man shall fraye them awaye. And as for the voyce of myrth & gladnesse of the cyties of Juda/ & Jerusalē c* the voyce of the bryde grome & of the bryde: I will make them cease / for the lande shall be desolate.

c* That is/ the pypynge & all the pastyme that is vsed before bydes and bridgromes/ at their mariages

¶ The destruccyon of the Jewes. The Lorde moueth the people to amendemēt/ reckenyng vp their synnes. He reprehēdeth the lying doctryne of the prophetes & Prestes/ and their couetousnes also.

¶ The.viij. Chapter.

A ¶ At the same tyme saieth the Lorde the bones of the kinges of Juda/ ỹ bones of his princes/ ỹ bones of ỹ prestes and prophetes/ yee and the bones of the cytyzens of Jerusalem/ shalbe brought out of their graues & layed agaynst the Sunne/ the Moone and all the heauēly hooste: whom they loued/ whom they serued whom they ranne after / whom they sought & worshipped. They shal nether be gathered together nor buryed / but shall lye vpon the earth / to their shame and despisynge.

Luc. xxiij. e. And all they that remayne of thys wycked generacyon/ shal desyre rather to die thē to lyue: where soeuer they remayne/ & where B as I scatre them/ saieth the Lorde of hoostes. This shalt thou saye vnto them also: Thus sayeth the Lorde: Do men fall so / that they aryse not vp agayne? And turne they so farre awaye/ that they neuer conuerte? Wherfore then is thys people and Jerusalem gone so farre backe / that they turne not agayne.

Ezech. xx. c They are euer the longer the more obstynate/ and will not be conuerted.

For I haue loked/ & consydered: but there is no man that speaketh a good worde: there is no man that taketh repentaunce for hys synne/ that will so moch as saye: wherfore haue I done thys? But euery man (as soone as he is turned backe) runneth forth stil/ like C a wilde horse in a battayl. The Storke knoweth hys apoynted tyme/ the Turtledoue/ ỹ Swalow & the Crane consydre the tyme of their trauaile: but my people wil not knowe the tyme of the punyshment of the Lorde. How darre ye saye thē: we are wyse/ we haue the lawe of the Lorde amonge vs?

Beholde/ the dysceatfull pēne of the scrybes/ setteth forth lies: therfore shall the wise be confounded/ they shalbe afraied and takē: for lo/ they haue cast out the worde of the Lorde: what wysdome can then be amonge them? Wherfore/ I wyll geue their wyues vnto aleauntes / and theyr feldes to destroyers.

D For from the lowest vnto the hyest/ they folowe all fylthye lucre: and from the prophet vnto the prest/ they deale all wyth lyes. Neuertheles/ they heale ỹ hurte of my people with swete wordes/ saieng: peace/ peace where there is no peace at all.

Aye for shame/ how abhominable thyng do they? and yet they be not ashamed/ yee they knowe of no shame.

Wherfore in the tyme of their visitacyon/ they shall fall amōge the deed bodyes/ saieth the Lorde.

a* Moreouer I will gather them in (sayeth the Lorde) so that there shall not be one grape vpon the vyne / nether one fyge vpon the fyge tre/ and the leaues shalbe pluckt of.

Then will I cause them to departe/ and saye: why prolonge we the tyme? Let vs gather oure selues together/ & go in to ỹ stronge cyte / there shall we be in rest: for the Lorde oure God hath put vs to sylence/ and b* geuē vs water mixte with gal/ to drincke: because we haue synned agaynst him.

We loked for peace / and we fare not the better/ we wayted for the tyme of healthy/ & lo / here is nothynge but trouble.

Then shal the noyse of his horses be heard from Dan/ the whole lande shall be afrayed at the neyenge of his stronge horses: for they shall go in / and deuoure the lande / wyth all that is in it: the cyties / and those that dwell therin. Moreouer, c* I wyll sende Cockatrices and serpentes amonge you (whych wyll not be charmed) & they shall byte you/ saieth the Lorde.

Sorowe is come vpon me/ and heuynes vereth my hert: for lo/ the voyce of the crīege of my people is herde from a farre countre: Is not the Lorde in Syon? Is not the kyng in her? Wherfore then haue they greued me (shall the Lorde saye) wyth their ymages & foolysh straunge fashyons? The harueste ys gone / the Sommer hath an ende / and we are not helped. I am sore vered / because of the hurte of my people: I am heuy and abashed/ for there is no more Tryacle at Galaad / and there ys no Phylycyen / that can heale the hurte of my people.

a Moreouer I wyll gather the m. & c. The meanynge is: I will gather the Jewes from all the partes of Jewry vnto Jerusalē. There shall no fygge/ grape/ or other fruite remayne in the vyllages or fieldes: & so shall they haue no lust to abyde there/ but shall be fayne to flye to the cyte. Thyther cause I them to flye, & there also famyshed thē & deliuered the into their enemyes handes. Soch punyshment had their synnes deserued.

b Hath geue vs water mixt wyth gall to drincke/ that is/ hath wrapped vs in myserye wretchednes & thraldome.

c I will sende Cockatrices & serpentes. &c. That is I will bringe amonge you a fearce cōpany of soudyars / ỹ whose deadly arrowes & dartes. &c. ye shalbe slayne euē as though ye shulde perish by the strokes or venemous bytynges of Cockatrices & serpentes.

¶ The complaynte & bewaylyng of the Prophete/ for the malice of ỹ people. In ỹ knowledge of God ought we onely to reioyce. The vncyrcumcysyō of the hert.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

A Who wyll geue my head water ynough/ and a well of teares for myne eyes: ỹ I maye wepe night and daye/ for the slaughter of my people? Wold God that I had a cotage some where farre frō folcke/ that I myght leaue my people/ & goo from them: for they be all aduoutrers and a shrynckynge sorte. They bende their tunges lyke bowes/ to shute out lyes: As for the trueth / they maye nothynge awaye with all in the worlde. For they go frō one wickednes to another / & holde nothynge of me / sayeth the Lorde.

B Jeremy. xij. b. Matt. x. c. and Mich. vij. a. Yee one must kepe him selfe frō another / no man may safely trust hys awne brother: for one brother undermyneth another / & one neyghboure begyleth another. Yee one dyssembleth with another / & they deale wyth no trueth. They haue practised their tunges to lye / & taken greate paynes to do mischefe. They haue set their stole in the middest of dysceate / and for very dyssemblynge falshede they will not know me / sayeth the Lorde.

C Ouer. xviij. a Psal. xviij. a. Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of Hoostes: beholde / I will melte them / & trye them / for what shulde I els do to my people? Their tunges are lyke sharpe arowes / to speake dysceate. With their mouth they speake peaceably to their neighboure / but preuely they laye wayte for hym. Shulde I not punysh them for these thynges / sayeth the Lorde? Or shulde I not be auenged of any soche people as this? Upon the mountaynes wyll I take vp a lamentacion and sorowfull crye / and a mournynge vpon the fayre playnes of the wyldernes: Namely / how they are so brente vp / that no man goeth there any moore: Yee a man shall not heare one beast crye there.

D Psal. lxxix. a Mich. iij. c. Byrdes and catell are all gone frō thēce. I wyll make Jerusalem also an heape of stones / and a denne of venymous wormes. And I wyll make ye cyties of Juda so waste / that noman shall dwell therin. What man is so wyse / as to understande this? Or to whom hath the Lorde spokē by mouth / that he may shewe this / and saye: O thou lande / why peryshest thou so? Wherfore art thou so brent vp / & lyke a wyldernesse / that no man goeth thorow? Yee the Lorde hym selfe tolde the same vnto them / that forsoke hys lawe / and kepte not the thinge that he gaue thē in cōmaundement / nether liued therafter: but followed the wyckednes of their awne hertes / and serued straūge goddes / as their fathers taught them.

Deut. xxix. b. Josue. xxiiij. c.

E Therfore / thus sayeth the Lorde of Hoostes / the God of Israel: Beholde / I wyll fede thys people with wormwod / and geue them gall to drincke. I wyll scatre thē also amōge the Heathen / whom nether they ner their fathers haue knowne: & I will sende a swearde amonge them / to persecute them / vntyll I bringe them to naught. Moreouer / thus sayeth the Lorde of Hoostes: loke that ye call for mournyng wyues / & sende for wyse women: that they come shortly / & singe a mournynge longe of you: that the teares may fall out of oure eyes / and that oure eye lyddes maye gushe out of water.

Deut. xxxij. c. Jere. xxiij. c.

For there is a lamentable noyse hearde of Syon: O how are we so sore destroyed? O how are we so pyteously confounded? We must forsake oure awne naturall countre / & we are shot out of oure awne lodgynges. Yet heare the worde of the Lorde (O ye women) and let youre eares regarde the wordes of hys mouth: & ye may lerne youre doughters to mourne / & that euery one may teach her neyghboures / to make lamentacyon. Namely thus: Death is clymmyng vp in at oure wyndowes / he is come in to oure houses / to destroye the chylde before the dore / & the yonge man in the strete.

F

But tell thou planely / thus sayeth the Lorde: The deed bodies of men shall lye vpō the grounde / as the donge vpon the felde / & as the heye after the mower / and ther shalbe no man to take them vp. Moreouer / thus sayeth the Lorde: Let not the wyse man reioyse in hys wysdome / ner the stronge man in hys strength / nether the rych man in hys ryches: But who so wyll reioyse / let him reioyse in this / ye he understandeth / & knoweth me: for I am ye Lord / which do mercy / equyte and ryghtuousnes vpon the earth. Therfore haue I pleasure in soch thynges / sayeth the Lorde. Beholde / the tyme cōmeth (sayeth the Lorde) that I wyll vyset a* all thē / whose forefaynne is vncircumcysed. The Egyptyans / the Jewes / the Edomytes / the Ammonites / the Moabites / and the shauen Madianites / that dwell in the wildernes. For all the Gentyles are vncircūcysed in the flesh / but all the house of Israel are vncircumcysed in the herte.

a* All / that is / as well the Jewes as the Gentyles: for the one is as fre as the other. The Jewes are eueri as well as the Heathē / as touchyng the hert / although they be circumcysed as touchyng ye flesh. Therfore are they herein reckened amōge the vncircumcysed.

C The constellacyōs of the starres are not to be feared. Of the weakenes of Idoles / and of the power of God. Of euell curates.

C The. x. Chapter.

A Heare the worde of the Lorde / that he speaketh vnto ye / O thou house of Israel: Thus sayeth the Lorde: Ye shall not lerne after the maner of the Heathen / & ye shall not be afrayed for the tokens of heauen: for the Heathen are afrayed of soch: yee all ye customes & lawes of the Gentyles are nothynge / but vanyte. They hewe downe a tree in the wod with the handes of the worcke man / and fashyon it wt the axe: they couer it ouer with golde or syluer / they fasten it with nayles and hāmers / ye it moue not. It standeth as styf as ye palme tree / it cā neither speake ner go / but must be borne. Be not ye afrayed of soch / for they cā do nether good ner euel. But there is none lyke vnto the / O Lorde / & greate is ye name of thy power. Who wolde not feare the? Or what King of ye Gētyles wolde not obeye ye? For amōge all the wyse men of the Gentyles tiles/ & in all their kingdomes/there is none that maye be lickened vnto the. They are all together vnlerned and vnwyse. All their cōnynge is but vanyte: namely/ wod / syluer/ which is brought out of Tharsis/ and beatē to plates: and golde from Ophir / a worcke ꝑ is made with ꝑ hande of the craftesman & the caster/clothed with yelow sylck & scarlet: euen so is the worcke of their wyse men alltogether. But the Lorde is a true God/ a lyuynge God/and an euerlastynge kyng. If he be wroth/the earth shaketh: all the Gentyles maye not abyde his indignacion.

* This verse is wrytten in Chalde to shew by the Jewes to the Gētyles of Chalde their confusyon.

* As for their goddes / it maye well be sayde of thē: they are goddes/ ꝑ made nether heauen ner earth: therfore shall they perysh frō the earth / & frō all thynges vnder heauē But (as for oure God) he made the earth w̄ his power/and with his wysdome hath he fynished the whole cōpasse of the worlde/with his discrecion hath he spred out the heauēs.

¶ At his voyce the waters gather together in the ayre/he drawe th vp the cloudes from the vttemost partes of ꝑ earth: he turneth lyghtenynge to rayne/ & bringeth forth ꝑ windes out of their treasures: His wysdome maketh all men fooles. And cōfounded be all casters of ymages/ for that they cast/is but a vayne thynge/and hath no lyfe. The vayne craftesmen with their worckes / that they in their vanite haue made/ shall perish one w̄ another in the tyme of visytacion. Neuertheles/ Jacobs porcion is not soch: but it is he/that hath made all thynges/ & Israell is the rodd of his inheritaunce: The Lorde of Hostes is his name. Put awaye thyne vnclennesse out of ꝑ land/thou that art in the stronge cities. For thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde/ I wyll now thrust out the inhabitours of this land a greate waye of/and trouble them of soch a fashion/that they shal no more be founde.

Alas/how am I hurte? Alas/how paynefull are my scourges vnto me? For I consydre this sorow by my self/ & I must suffre it.

D My tabernacle is destroyed/ & all my coardes are broken. My childrē are gone fro me/ & can no where be foūde. Now haue I none to spreade out my tente/ or to sett vp my hanginges. For the herdmen haue done foolishly/ that they haue not sought ꝑ Lord. Therfore haue they dealt vnwysely wyth their catell/ and all are scatred abrode. Beholde/ ꝑ noyse is harde at hande/ and greate sedicyon out of the north: to make the cyties of Juda a wyldernesse/and a dwellinge place for Dragōs. Now I knowe (O Lorde) ꝑ it is not in mās power to ordre hys awne wayes / or to rule hys awne steppes and goynges. Therfore chasten thou vs/O Lorde/but with fauoure and not in thy wrath / bringe vs not vtterly to naught. Poure out thyne indignacyō rather vpon the Gentiles/that knowe the not/ and vpon the people ꝑ call not on thy name: And that because they haue consumed / deuoured and destroyed Jacob/and haue roted out hys glory.

¶ A curse of thē that obey not the worde of Godde̅s promesse. The people of Juda folowynge the steppes of their fathers/worshyppeth straunge Goddes. The Lorde sayeth that he wyll not heare the Jewes/ & forbyddeth also Jeremy to praye for them.

¶ The.xj. Chapter.

A THis is another Sermon/which ꝑ Lorde commaunded Jeremy for to preach/saying: Heare ꝑ wordes of the couenaunt/ and speake vnto all Juda/and to all them that dwell at Jerusalē. And saye thou vnto thē: Thus sayeth the Lord God of Israel: Cursed be euery one that is not obedyent vnto the wordes of this couenaunt: which I cōmaunded vnto youre fathers/what tyme as I brought them out of Egypte/from the a* yron fornace/ saying: Be obedyent vnto my voyce/ & do accordyng to all that I cōmaunde you: so shal ye be my people/and I wyll be youre God/ and wyll kepe my promyse/that I haue swore vnto youre fathers: Namely / that I wolde geue them a lande whych floweth with mylck and hony / as ye se/ it is come to passe vnto thys daye. Then answered I/and sayde. Amen. It is euen so Lorde/as thou sayest.

a * Egypt was vnto them an yron fornace/ for the greate angupsshe/ greefe/ sorowe/and carefulnes of herte/ whych they there suffred. iij. Reg. viij. c

B Then ꝑ Lorde sayde vnto me agayne: preache this in ꝑ cities of Juda & rounde aboute Jerusalem/& saye: Heare the wordes of this conuenaūt/ ꝑ ye maye kepe them. For I haue diligently exorted youre fathers/ euer sence the tyme ꝑ I brought them out of the Lande of Egipte/vnto this daye. I gaue them warnynge by tymes/ sayenge: herken vnto my voyce: Neuertheles / they wolde not obeye me/nor encline their eares vnto me/ but folowed the wycked ymagynacyons of theyr awne hertes. And therfore haue I accused them as transgressours of all the wordes of this conuenaunt/that I gaue them to kepe/ whych they (not wyth vnderstandinge) haue not kepte.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: It is foūde out/that whole Israell and all these citisens of Jerusalem are gone backe. They haue turned them selues to the blasphemyes of their forfathers / whych had no lust to heare my worde. Euen lyke wyse haue these also folowed straunge goddes / and worshypped them. The house of Israell and Juda haue brokē my couenaunt/ whych I made wyth their fathers. C

Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde/

I wyll sende a plage amonge you / whych ye shall not be able to escape: and though ye crye vnto me / I will not heare you. Then shall the townes of Juda and the cytezyns of Jerusalem go / and call vpon their goddes vnto whom they made their oblacions: but they are not able to helpe them in tyme of their trouble. For as many cyties as thou hast / O Juda / so many Goddes hast thou also: And loke how many stretes there be in the (O Jerusalem) so many shamefull aulters haue ye sett vp / to offre vpon them vnto Baal. But praye not thou for thys people / byd nether prayse ner prayer for them / for though they crye vnto me in their trouble / yet will I not heare them.

b *He speaketh vnto the Jewes / whiche in their Synagoge worshipped many & diuers Idoles / & therby blaspheamed God: And yet thought they to haue redeamed their wyckednesse w the offrynges of their bullockes & fleshly sacrifices / which are here called holy flesh.

b * O thou beloued / why doest thou so shamefull greate blasphemyes in my house? euē as though that holy flesh myght absolue the / specially when thou hast made thy boost of thy wyckednes. The Lorde called the a grene olyue tre / a fayre one / a frutefull one / a goodly one: but now that there is a cōtrary reporte of the abrode / he wyll burne the vp / and destroye thy braunches. For the Lorde of hoostes that planted the hath deuyced a plage for ỹ (O thou house of Israel & Juda) for ỹ euell that ye haue done to prouoke him to wrath / in that ye dyd serupce vnto Baal.

This (O Lorde) haue I lerned of the / and vnderstāde it / for thou hast shewed me their ymaginacios. But I (as a meke lambe) was caried awaye to be slayne: not knowinge / ỹ they had deuised soch a counceil agaynst me sayenge: We wyll destroye hys meate wyth c *wodd / & dryue him out of the d * lande of ỹ lyuing: that his name shal neuer be thought vpon. Therfore I wyll beseche the now (O Lord of hoostes) thou rightuous iudge / thou that tryest the reynes and the hertes: lett me se the auenged of them / for vnto the haue I cōmitted my cause. The Lord therfore spake thus of ỹ citezyns of Anothoth / that sought to slaye me / sayenge: Preach not vnto vs in the name of the Lorde / or els thou shalt dye of oure handes. Thus (I saye) spake the Lord of hoostes: Beholde / I will vilet you. Youre yonge men shall perysh wyth the swearde / your sonnes & your daughters shall vtterley dye of honger / so that none shall remayne. For vpō ỹ cytezyns of Anathoth wil I bring a plage / the yeare of their vilitacion.

c *Wodd / vnderstāde: venomed & poysoned. Some expounde herby the wodde of ỹ crosses of affliciō which ỹ wicked deuyced to wrappe the prophet in / for his tellynge of the trueth.

d *What the land of the lyuing signifieth is shewed in Esay. liij. c.

¶ The Prophete marueleth greatly at the prosperitye of the wycked / although he confesse God to be ryghtuous. The Jewes are forsaken of the Lorde. He speaketh agaynst Curates and preachers that seduce the people. The Lorde threateneth destruccyon vnto the nacyons that bordered vpon Jewrye / whych troubled and vexed it.

¶ The .xij. Chapter.

RIghteous art thou O Lorde / when that I shulde dyspute with ỹ: Neuertheles / lett me talke wyth the in thynges resonable. *How happeneth it / that the waye of the vngodly is so prosperous? and that it goeth so well vn them / which (with out eny shame) offende & lyue in wyckednesse? Thou plantest them / they take rote / they growe / and bryng forth frute. They boost moch of the / yet doest thou not punish them. But thou Lorde (to whom I am well knowne) thou that hast sene / and proued my herte / take them awaye / lyke as a flock is caryed to the slaughter house / and apoynte them for the daye of slaughter.

* Job. xxi. & Abac. i. b.

How longe shall the lande mourne / and al the herbes of the felde perysh / for the wyckednes of them that dwell therin? The catell and the byrdes are gone / yet saye they: tush / God wyll not destroye vs vtterly.

B a * Thus spake the wicked of the Prophete by the waye of rebuke. As though they had sayde by a parable. Whē thou wast but a lytell towne / thou couldest not beare the persecucyō of thyne awne cytezyns and houshold folckes: How wylt thou then beare the princes & cheke rulers of Juda / & the Nobles of Jerusalem? And after / by ỹ peasable sure lāde is vnderstande Anathoth & by the ryde of Jordan Jerusalem. The lytell riuer of Anathoth is not to be compared to the greate flowyng streames of Jordan. If he were dispyced of hys awne auditoures / how shulde he be heared of other / & those greater & excellenter?

a * Seing thou art weery in running with ỹ fote men / how wilt thou then runne with horses? In a peaceable sure lāde thou mayest be safe / but how wilt thou do in the furyous pryde of Jordane? For thy brethren and thy kynred haue all together despised the / & cried out vpon the in thine absence. Beleue them not / though they speake fayre wordes to the. As for me (saye I) I haue forsaken myne awne dwellyng place / & left myne heretage. My life also ỹ I loue so well / haue I geuen in to the handes of myne enemyes. Myne heretage is become vnto me / as a Lyon in the wod. It cried out vpon me / therfore haue I forsaken it. Myne heretage is vnto me / as a speckled bryde / a bryde of dyuerse coloures is vpon it. Go hence / and gather all ỹ beastes of the felde together / that they maye eate it vp.

Dyuerse herdmen haue brokē downe my byneyarde / and troden vpon my porcyō. Of my pleasaunt porciō / they haue made a wildernes & deserte. They haue layed it waste: and now that it is waste / it sygheth vnto me. Yee the whole lande lyeth waste / and no mā regardeth it. The destroyers come ouer the heeth euery waye / for the swearde of ỹ Lord shall consume from the one ende of ỹ lande to ỹ other / and no flesh shal haue rest. They shall sowe wheate / and reepe thornes. They shall take heretage in possession / but it shall do them no good. And ye shalbe confounded of youre awne wynnynges / because of the greate wrath of the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Lorde vpon all myne euell neghbours / that laye hande on myne heretage / which I haue geuen my people of Israel: Beholde / I wil plucke them (namely Israel) out of their lande / & put out ỹ house of Juda his gates: the lande shal be nomore had in reputacion/ & ỹ crie of Jerusalem shal breake out. The lordes shall sende their seruauntes to fetch water/ & when they come to the welles/ they shall fynde no water/ but shal carye their vessels home emptye. They shall be ashamed and confounded/ & shall couer their heades. For the grounde shalbe dried vp/ because there commeth no rayne vpon it. The plowmen also shalbe ashamed/ & shal couer their heades. The Hynde shall forsake the yõge fawne/ ỹ he bringeth forth in the felde because there shalbe no grasse. The wylde Asses shal stande in the Mosse/ and drawe in their wynde lyke the Dragons/ their eyes shall fayle for want of grasse.

B Doutles oure awne wickednesse rewarde vs: But Lorde do thou accordinge to thy name/ though oure transgressyons and synnes be many. For thou art the comforte & helpe of Israel in the tyme of trouble. a* Why wilt thou be as a straunger in the Lande/ and as one that goeth ouer the felde/ & commeth in only to remayne for a night? Why wilt thou make thy self a cowarde/ and as it were a gyaunte that yet maye not helpe? b* For thou art ours (O Lorde) and we beare thy name/ therfore forsake vs not.

a* Why wilt thou be as a straunger. &c. As who saye. Thou behauest thy self vn to vs as a straũger/ or as a wayefaring man: for thou settest not by vs/ nether dyspleasest thy strengthes to helpe vs.

b* Some reade/ but thou/ O Lord/ art in the myddest of vs: & thy name is called on/ of vs.

Then spake the Lorde/ concernynge this people that haue pleasure to go so nymbly vñ their fete/ and leaue not of/ and therfore displease the Lorde: in so moch/ that he wyll now bringe agayne to remẽbraunce al their mysdedes/ and punysh all their synnes. Yee euen thus sayde the Lorde vnto me: Thou shalt not praye to do this people good. For though they fast/ I wyll not heare their praiers. And though they offre burnt offrĩgs & sacrifices/ yet wyll not I accepte thẽ. For I will destroye them with ỹ swearde/ honger and pestilence. Then answerde I: O Lorde God/ the prophetes saye vnto them: Tush/ ye shal se no swearde/ and no honger shal come vpon you/ but the Lord shall geue you continuall rest in this place.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: The prophetes preach lyes vnto them in my name. I haue not spoken wyth them/ nether gaue I them eny charge/ nether dyd I sende thẽ: yet they preach vnto you false visiõs/ charming vanite/ & disceatfulnesse of their awne hert. Therfore thus saieth the Lorde: As for those prophetes that preach in my name (whom I neuertheles haue not sent) and that saye: Tush/ there shall nether batel ner honger be in this lande: Wyth swearde and with hõger shall those prophetes perysh/ and the people to whom they haue preached shalbe cast out of Jerusalem/ dye of honger/ and be slayne wyth the swearde (and there shalbe no man to burye them) both they and their wyues/ their sonnes and their daughters. For thus wyll I poure their wyckednes vpon them. D This shalt thou saye also vnto them: Myne eyes shall wepe without ceasynge daye and night. For my people shalbe destroyed wyth great harme/ and shall perysh wyth a great plage. For yf I go in to the felde/ lo/ it lyeth all full of slayne men: If I come in to the cytye/ lo/ they be all famesshed of honger.

Yee their prophetes also and prestes shal be led in to an vnknowne lande.

Hast thou then vtterly forsaken Juda? (sayde I) Dost thou so abhorre Syon? Or hast thou so plaged vs/ that we can be healed nomore? We loked for peace/ and there commeth no good: for the tyme of health/ & lo/ here is nothynge but trouble. We knowlege (O Lorde) all oure mysdedes/ and the synnes of oure fathers/ that we haue offended the. Be not dyspleased/ O Lorde) for thy names sake/ forgett not thy louynge kyndnes: Remembre the trone of thyne honoure/ breake not the coueuaunt/ that thou hast made wyth vs. Are there eny amonge the goddes of the Gentiles/ that sende rayne or geue the showers of heauen? Dost not thou it O Lorde oure God/ in whom we trust? Yee Lorde/ thou dost all these thinges.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

THen spake the Lorde vnto me/ I and sayde: Though Moses & Samuel stode before me/ yet haue I no herte to thys people. Dryue them awaye/ that they maye go out of my syght. And yf they saye vnto the: Whyther shall we go? Then tell them: The Lorde geueth you thys answere: Some vnto death/ some to the swearde/ some to honger/ some into captyuyte. For I wyl bryng foure plages vpon them sayeth ỹ Lord. The swearde shall strangle them/ the dogges shall deuoure them/ the foules of the ayre/ and beastes of the earth shall eate them vp/ and destroye them. I wyll scatter them aboute also in all kyngdomes & landes to be plaged/ because of Manasseh the sonne of Hezekiah kynge of Juda/ for the thinges that he dyd in Jerusalem. Who shall then haue pyte vpon the/ O Jerusalem? Who shall be sorye for the? Or who shal make intercessiõ/ to opteyne peace for the? seyng thou goest fro me/ and turnest backwarde/ sayeth the Lorde? The Sunne shall fayle her in the cleare daye / when she shalbe cōfounded and faynte for very heuynesse. As for those ỹ remayne / I wyll delyuer them vnto the swearde of their enemyes / sayth the Lorde. O mother / alas that euer thou dydest beare me / an enemye and hated of the whole lande: Though I neuer lente ner receaued vpon vsury / yet all men speake euell vpon me. And the Lord answered me: Lede not I ỹ then vnto good: Come not I to the / whē thou art in trouble: & helpe the / when thyne enemye oppresseth the? Doth one yron hurte another / or one metall that commeth from the North / another? As for youre ryches & treasure / I wyll geue them out in to a praye / not for eny money / but because of all your synne / ỹ ye haue done in all youre coastes. And I will bringe you with youre enemyes in to a lande / that ye knowe not: for the fyre that is kyndled in my indignacyon / shall burne you vp.

O Lorde (sayde I then) thou knowest all thinges / therfore remembre me / & vysett me / delyuer me fro my persecuters: Receaue not my cause in thy longe wrath / yet thou knowest / ỹ for thy sake I suffre rebuke. When I had found thy wordes / I ate them vp gredely: they haue made my herte ioyfull & glad For I call vpon thy name / O Lorde God of Hostes. I dwell not amōge the scorners / neither is my delyte therin: but I dwell only in the feare of thy hand / for thou hast fylled me with bytternes. Shall my heuynes endure for euer? Are my plages then so greate / that they maye neuer be healed? Wilt thou be as a water / that falleth / and can not continue? Upon these wordes / thus sayde the Lorde vnto me: If thou wylt turne agayne / I shall set the in my seruyce: and yf thou wylt take out the thynge that is precious from ỹ vile / thou shalt be euen as myne awne mouth. They shall conuerte vnto the / but turne not thou vnto thē: & so shall I make the a stōge wall of stele agaynst this people. They shal fyght agaynst the / but they shall not preuayle. For I my selfe will be w the / to helpe the / and delyuer the / sayeth the Lorde. And I wyll rydd the out of the handes of the wycked / and delyuer the out of the hande of Tirauntes.

The prophetyeth the mysterye of the Jewes. He sheweth / that the worshyppinge of Idoles & the contēpt of Gods lawe / is the cause of their mysserie. He prophecieth the captiuytie of Babylon / & their deliueraūce frō thence agayne. The callyng of ỹ Gentiles.

They shall perish thorow the swearde and honger / and their bodyes shall be meate for the foules of the ayre / and beestes of the earth. Agayne / thus sayeth the Lorde: Go not vnto thē / that come together / for to mourne and wepe: for I haue takē my peace frō this people (saieth the Lorde) yee my fauoure & my mercy. And in this lande shall they dye / olde and yonge / & shall not be buryed: no man shall bewepe them / no man shall clyppe or shaue him selfe for them.

There shal not one viset another / to mourne with thē for their deed / or to cōforte thē. One shall not offre another the cuppe of cōsolacyon / to forget their heuynes for father & mother. Thou shalt not go in to their feast house / to syt downe / moch lesse to eate or drincke with thē. For thus sayeth the Lorde of Hostes the God of Israell: a * Beholde / I shal take awaye out of this place / the voyce of myrth and gladnesse / the voyce of the bryde grome and of the bryde: yee & that in youre dayes / that ye maye se it.

Now when thou shewest thys people all these wordes / and they saye vnto the: Wherfore hath the Lorde deuysed all thys greate plage for vs? Or what is ỹ offence & synne / that we haue done agaynst the Lorde oure God? Then make thou them this answere: Because youre fathers haue forsaken me (sayeth ỹ Lorde) & haue cleued vnto straūge goddes / whom they haue honoured & worshypped: but me haue they forsaken / & haue not kepte my lawe. And ye vō youre shamefull blasphemyes / haue exceaded the wyckednes of youre fathers. For euery one of you foloweth the frowarde & euell ymagynacion of his awne herte / and is not obediēt vnto me.

Jeremye is smytten and cast in to prysō for preachyng of the worde of God. He prophecyeth the captiuytie of Babylon. He complayneth that he is a mockyng stocke / for the worde of God. He is compelled by the spryte to preache the worde / wyll he wyll he not.

The.xx.Chapter.

WHen a* Phashur ỹ preast / ỹ sonne of Emer / chefe in the house of the Lorde / herde Jeremy preach so stedfastly: he smote Jeremy / & put him in the stockes / that are by the hye gate of Benjamin / in ỹ house of the Lorde. The nexte daye folowyng Phashur brought Jeremy out of the stockes agayne. Then sayde Jeremy vnto hym: The Lorde shall call the nomore Phashur (that is excellent & increasynge) but Magor (ỹ is fearfull & afrayed) euery where. For thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde / I wyll make the afrayed / the thy selfe / and all that fauoure the: which shall perysh with the swearde of their enemyes / euen before thy face.

a* Thys Phashur was the hye byshop of the tēple / the ryngleader of false Prophetes / the chefe heretike taker / ỹ is / the ouerthrower of true godlinesse. The dignite of preesthode geuē vnto him he abused. For he taught not & reproued by the worde / but feared the godly w cruelte. B He is not the greater man ỹ striketh / but he is the stronger that is stryke. He not onely stroke but also presoned hym ỹ wolde him not / but pacyently loked for the helpe of God. It is no newe thynge (ye may se) for Bysshoppes to persecute the Prophetes of the Lorde / for their preaching of the truethe & constancye.

And I wyll geue whole Juda vnder the power of the kyng of Babylon / which shall carie some vnto Babylon preasoners / & slaye some with the swearde. Moreouer / all the substaunce of this lande / all their precyous and gorgeous worckes / all costlynesse / & all the treasure of the Kynges of Juda: wyll I geue in to ỹ handes of their enemyes / which shall spoyle them / and carie them vnto Babilon. But as for ỹ (O Phashur) thou shalt be caried vnto Babilon with all thine houshold / & to Babilon shalt thou come / where thou shalt dye / and be buryed: thou & all thy fauourers / to whom thou hast preached lyes. O Lorde / thou makest me weake / but thou refreshest me / & makest me stronge agayne. All the daye longe am I despysed / & laughed to scorne of euery man: because I haue now preached preached lõge agaynst malicious Tyrãny / & shewed them of destruccion. For the which cause they cast the worde of the Lorde in my teeth / and take me euer to the worst.

¶ Wherfore / I thought from hence forth / not to speake of him / ner to preach eny more in hys name. But the worde of the Lorde was a very burnynge fyre in my hert and in my bones / which whẽ I wolde haue stopped / I might not. For why / I herde so many derisyons and blasphemies / yee euen of myne awne companions / and of soch as were conuersaunte with me: which wente aboute / to make me afrayed / sayinge: vpon him / let vs go vpon him / to feare hym / and make hym holde his tonge: ẏ we maye ouercome him / and be auenged of him.

But the Lorde stode by me / lyke a myghtie giaunte: therfore my persecuters fell / & coulde do nothing. They shall be sore cõfoũded / for they haue done vnwysely / they shall haue an euerlastynge shame. And now / O Lorde of Hostes / thou ryghtuous sercher (which knowest ẏ reynes & the very hertes:) let me se them punished / for vnto the I commytte my cause.

Synge vnto the Lorde / and prayse hym / for he hath deliuered the soule of the oppressed / from the hande of the violent. *b Cursed be the daye / wherin I was borne: vnhappye be the daye / wherin my mother brought me forth. Cursed be the man / that brought my father ẏ tydinges / to make him glad / saying: thou hast gotten a sonne. Lett it happen vnto that man / as to the cyties which the Lorde turned vpsyde downe (whẽ he had hearde lõg the wicked rumoure of thẽ) because he slewe me not / as sone as I cam out of my mothers wombe / & because my mother was not my graue her selfe / that ẏ byrth might not haue come out / but remayned styll in her. Wherfore cam I forth of my mothers wombe? To haue experience of laboure and sorow? and to leade my lyfe wyth shame?

b * What is sygnyfyed by cursing of the daye is shewed in Job. iij. a. This sentẽce & other lyke are not to be taken as examples of impacyence in holy men / but as the confessiõ of the frayltye of man / cõplaynyng thus vnto hym that only can helpe & comforth the.

¶ Heprophecyeth that Zedekiah shall be taken / and the cytye burned.

¶ The.xxi.Chapter.

These are the wordes ẏ the Lorde spake vnto Jeremy what time as kynge Zedekiah sent vnto hym Pashur the sonne of Melchiah / & Sophoniah the sonne of Maasiah preaste / saying: Aske councell at the Lord (we praye the) of oure behalfe / for Nabuchodonosor ẏ kynge of Babylon besegeth vs / yf the Lord (peraduenture) will deale wyth vs / accordynge to his maruelous power / & take hym from vs.

Then spake Jeremy. Geue Zedekiah this answere. Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell: behoide / I will turne backe the weapens / that ye haue in youre handes / wherwith ye fyght agaynst the kynge of Babylon & the Caldees / which besege you rounde aboute ẏ walles / & I will bynge thẽ together into the myddest of this cytie / and I my selfe will fight agaynst you / wt an outstretched hande / & with a mightie arme / in great displeasure and terrible wrath: & wyll smyte them / that dwell in this citie: yee both men & catell shall dye of the pestilence.

And after this (sayeth the Lorde) I shall B delyuer Zedekiah the kynge of Juda / & hys seruaũtes / his people (& soch as are escaped in the cytie / from the pestilence / swearde / & honger) into the power of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon: yee into the handes of their enemyes / into the hãdes of those that folowe vpon their lyues / which shall smyte thẽ with ẏ swearde: they shall not pytie thẽ / they shall not spare them / they shall haue no mercy vpon them.

And vnto this people thou shalt saye: Thus ¶ sayeth the Lord: *behoide / I laye before you the waye of lyfe and deeth. Who so abydeth in this cytie / shall perish: ether wt ẏ swearde / with honger / or with pestilence. But who so goeth out to holde on the Chaldees parte / ẏ besege it / he shall saue his lyfe / and a * shall wynne his soule for a pray. For I haue sett my face agaynst this cytie (sayeth ẏ Lorde) to plage it / and to do it no good. It must be geuen into the hande of the kynge of Babylon / and be brent with fyre.

a Shal winne his soule for a praye / that is shall escape danger: It is all one wyth that which goeth before / he shal safe his lyfe. His soule / that is / hys lyfe / shal be vnto him as a praye: because he should vtterly haue lost it / yf he had bidde in Jerusalem: & by flyinge vnto the Chaldees he should wynne it euẽ as a man winneth a pray in battell.

And vnto the house of the kynge of Juda / saye thus: Heare the worde of the Lorde (O thou house of Dauid) for thus saieth ẏ Lord: Ministre ryghtuousnes / and that soone / delyuer the oppressed from vyolent power: or euer my terrybie wrath breake oute lyke a fyre / and burne so / that no man maye quẽch it / because of the wyckednes of youre ymagynacions. Behoide (sayeth the Lorde) I will come vpõ you / ẏ dwell in the valleyes / rockes & feldes / & saye: Tush: who will make vs afrayed? or who will come into oure houses? For I will vyset you (sayeth the Lorde) because of the wickednes of your inuencios / and will kyndle soch a fyre in youre wod / as shall consume all / that is aboute you.

¶ He exhorteth the kynge of Juda to iudgement and ryghtuousnes. Why Jerusalem is brought into captyuytye. The death of Selum the sonne of Josua is prophecyed.

¶ The.xxij.Chapter.

Thus sayde the Lorde also: Goo A downe into the house of the kyng of Juda / and speake there these wordes / and saye: Heare ẏ worde of the Lorde / thou kyng of Juda that sytteest in the

in the kyngly seate of Dauid: thou and thy seruauntes and thy people/that go in & out at this gate. Thus the Lord commaundeth: kepe equyte and ryghtuousnesse/delyuer the oppressed from the power of the violent: do not greue ner oppresse the straunger/the fatherlesse ner the wyddow/and shede no innocent bloude in this place.

B And yf ye kepe these thinges faythfully/ then shall there come in at the dore of thys house kynges/to syt vpō Dauids seate: they shall be caryed in Charettes and ryde vpon horses/both they & their seruauntes/& their people. But yf ye wyll not be obedient vnto these commaundemētes/I sweare by myne awne selfe(sayeth the Lord)this house shall be waste. For thus hath the Lord spokē vpō the kynges house of Juda: Thou art ỳ head/ as Galaad is in Libanus: What wylt thou laye of it/yf I make the not so waste (& thy cyties also)that no man shall dwell therin? I wyll prepare a destroyer with his weapēs for the/to hew downe thy specyall Cedre trees/and to cast them in the fyre.

And all the people that go by this cytie/ C shall speake one to another: Wherfore hath the Lorde done thus vnto thys noble cytye? Then shall it be answered:* because they haue brokē the couenaunt of the Lord their God/& haue worshipped & serued straunge goddes. Mourne not ouer the deed/& be not wo for them/but be sory for him that departeth awaye: for he commeth not agayne/and seeth his natyue countre no more. For thus sayeth the Lorde/as touchynge a* Selum the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda/whych raygned after his father/and is caryed oute of this place: He shall neuer come hyther agayne/for he shall dye in the place/whervnto he is led captiue/and shal se this lande no more. Wo worth him/that buyldeth hys house with vnrightuousnes/and his parlers with the good ỳ he hath gotten by violence: which neuer recompenseth his neyghbours laboure/ner payeth him his hyre. He thynckeh in him selfe: I wyll buylde me a wyde house/& gorgeous parlers: He causeth windowes to be hewen therin/and the sylynges and geastes maketh he of Cedre/and paynteth them with Zenober. Thinckest thou to raigne/now ỳ thou prouokest me to wrath with the Cedre trees?

Dyd not thy father eate and drincke/and prospere well/as longe as he dealt vp equite and ryghtuousnesse? Yee when he helped the oppressed and poore to their ryght then prospered he well.

Frō whence came this/but only because he had me before his eyes/sayeth the Lorde. Neuertheles/as for thyne eyes & thine hert/ they loke vpon couetousnesse/to shede innocent bloude/to do wronge and violence. And therfore/thus sayeth the Lorde agaynst Jehoakim/the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda: They shall not mourne for him (as they vse to do)alas brother/alas syster: Neither shall they saye vnto hym: Alas syr/alas for that noble prynce. But as an Asse shall he be buried/corrupte and be cast without the gates of Jerusalem.

Clymme vp the hyll of Libanus(O thou daughter Sion)lyft vp thy voyce vpon Basan/crye from all partes: for all thy louers are destroyed. I gaue the warnynge/whyle thou wast yet in prosperyte. But thou sayedest: I wyll not heare. And thys maner hast thou vsed from thy youth/that thou woldest neuer heare my voyce. All thy herdmē shalbe dryuen wyth the wynde/and thy derlynges shalbe caryed awaye in to captyuite: Then shalt thou be brought to shame & cōfusyon/ because of all thy wickednes: thou ỳ dwellest vpon Libanus/& makest thy nest in the Cedre trees. O how greate shall thy mourning be/when thy sorowes come vpon the/as a woman trauelynge with chylde?

As truly as I lyue(sayeth the Lorde) Though b* Conaniah ỳ sonne of Jehoakim kynge of Juda were the sygnet of my ryght hande/yet will I plucke him of: And I wyll geue the in to the power of them that seke to slaye the/and in to the power of them that thou feareste: in to the power of Nabuchodonosor the Kynge of Babylon/and in to the power of the Caldees. Moreouer/I wyll sende the/and thy mother that bare the/in to a straunge lād/where ye were not borne/ and there shall ye dye. But as for the lande that ye will desyre to returne vnto/ye shall G neuer come at it agayne. This man Conaniah shall be lyke an ymage robbed & torne in peces/which pleaseth no man/for all hys apparell. Wherfore both he & hys sede shalbe sent awaye/and cast out in to a lāde/that they knowe not.

O thou earth/earth/earth: heare ỳ worde of the Lorde: Wryte this man amonge the outlawes/for no prosperite shall this man haue all his lyfe lōge. Neither shal eny of his sede be so happie/as to syt vpon the seate of Dauid/and to beare rule in Juda.

Then sayde the Lord vnto me: what seyst thou Jeremy? I sayde: fyges / wherof some be very good / and some so euel / that no man maye eate them.

4. Reg. xxiiij. d

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto B me / after this maner: Thus sayeth ỳ Lorde the God of Israell: lyke as thou knowest ỳ good fyges / so shall I knowe the men led awaye / whom I haue sent out of thys place in to the lande of the Caldees / for their profyte: and I wyll set myne eyes vpon them for the best / for I will bryngе them agayne in to this lande: I wyll buylde them vp / and not breake them downe: I will plāte them / and not rote them out. And I wyll geue them an C herte / to knowe / how that I am the Lorde. They shalbe my people / and I wyll be their God / for they shall returne vnto me ẅ their whole herte.

And lyke as thou knowest the naughtye figes / whych maye not be eaten / they are so euell: Euen so wyll I (sayeth the Lorde) lett Zedekiah the Kynge of Juda / (ye & all his princes / & the relydue of Jerusalem that remayne ouer in this lande / & them also that dwell in Egypte) to be vexed & plaged in all D kyngdomes & landes. And wyll make them to be a reproke / a comen by worde / a laughinge stocke and shame / in all the places / where I shall scatre them. I wyll sende the swearde / honger & pestilence amonge them / vntill I haue cleane consumed them oute of the lande / that I gaue vnto them and their fathers.

¶ Jeremye prophecyeth that they shall be in captyuytye .lxx. yeares / because they contemned and dyspysed the worde of God. He sheweth that after .lxx. yeares the Babyloniens shulde be destroyed. The destruccyon of all nacyons is prophecied. He moueth the Preastes of the nacyons to waylyng.

A Sermon that was geuē vnto Jeremy / vpon all the people of Juda: A In ỳ fourth yeare of Jehoakim ỳ sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda / ỳ was / in the fyrst yeare of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon. Which sermon / Jeremy the prophet made vnto all the people of Juda / and to all the inhabitours of Jerusalem / on this maner.

From the .xiij. yeare of Josiah the sonne of of Amon kynge of Juda / vnto this present daye (that is euen .xxiij. yeare) the worde of the Lorde hath bene cōmytted vnto me. And so I haue spoken to you / I haue rysen vp early / I haue geuē you warnyng in season / but ye wolde not heare me. Though ỳ Lorde hath sent his seruauntes / all the prophetes vnto you in season: Yet wolde ye not obeye / ye wolde not enclyne youre eares to heare.

He sayde: turne agayne euery man from B his euell waye / & from your wicked ymaginacions / and so shall ye dwell for euer in the lande / that the Lorde promysed you & youre

The shepherdes shal haue no waye to flie/ and the rāmes of the flocke shall not escape. Then shall the shepherdes crye ho̱rribly/ and the rammes of the flocke shall mourne: fo̱r the Lo̱rde shall consume their pasture/ and their best feldes shall lye deed because of the ho̱rrible wṟath of the Lo̱rde. They shall fo̱rsake their foldes lyke as a lyon: Fo̱r their landes shalbe waste/ because of the wṟath of the destroyer/ and because of hys fearfull indignacyon.

EE Jeremy

¶ Jeremye moueth the people to amendement. He is taken of the Prophetes and Preastes/ & brought to iudgement. He beinge accused before the Princes answereth/that he had preached only the word of God. The rulars and the people delyuer Jeremye/agaynst the wylles of the Preistes & Prophetes: after the example of Hezekiah/ whych had delyuered Micheah/ that had preached the same thinges that Jeremy had preached. Uziah the Prophete is kylled of Jehoakim/ contrary to the wyll of God.

¶ The.xxvj. Chapter.

IN the begynnyng of the reygne of Jehoakim ỹ sonne of Josiah kyng of Juda/ came this worde frō the Lorde/ saynge: Thus sayeth the Lorde: Stande in the courte of the Lordes house/and speake vnto all them which(oute of the cyties of Juda)come to do worshyppe in the Lordes house / all the wordes that I commaūde the to saye. Loke that thou kepe not one worde backe/ yf(peraduenture)they wyll herken/and turne euery man from his wycked waye:that I maye also[a*] repente of the plage/which I haue determed to brynge vpon them/because of their wycked inuencyons.

a* The Lorde repenteth hym of the plage ỹ he wolde sende when he auengeth it not/ but forbeareth and forgeueth it: and when synners amēd/ and forthynche their offences. Geñ. vi.b. i.Re.xv.c

B And after this maner shalt thou speake vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde: yf ye wyll not obeye me/to walcke in my lawes/which I haue geuen you/ and to heare the wordes of my seruauntes the prophetes/whō I sent vnto you/rysynge vp tymely/ and styll sendynge: If ye wyll not folowe them(I saye) then wyll I do to thys house / as I dyd vnto Siloh / & wyll make this cytie to be abhorred of all the people of the earth. And the preastes/the prophetes & all ỹ people herde Jeremy preach these wordes/ in the house of the Lorde.

Now whē he had spokē out all ỹ wordes/ that the Lorde commaunded hym to preach vnto all the people/then ỹ preistes / the prophetes and all the people toke holde vpon him/and sayde:thou shalt dye. How darrest thou be so bolde/as to saye in the name of the ¶ Lorde:it shall happen to this house as it dyd vnto Siloh: & this cytie shalbe so waste/ ỹ no man shall dwell therin:

And when all the people were gathered aboute Jeremy in the house of the Lord/ the prynces of Juda herde of this rumoure and they came soone oute of the kynges Palace in to the house of the Lorde/ & sat thē downe before ỹ new dore of the Lorde. Then spake the preistes and the prophetes vnto ỹ rulers & to all the people/these wordes: This mā is worthy to dye/ for he hath preached agaynst this citie/as ye your selues haue herde with youre eares.

xix.Reg.xv.g. Jere.xxxvi.b.

Then sayde Jeremy vnto the rulers and to all the people: The Lorde hath sent me to preach agaynst this house and agaynst thys cytie all ỹ wordes that ye haue herde. Therfore amende youre wayes/ and youre aduysementes/and be obedient vnto the voyce of the Lorde youre God: so shall the Lorde repente of the plage/ ỹ he had deuysed agaynst you. Now as for me: I am in youre handes/ do with me/as ye thynche expedient & good. But thys shall ye knowe: yf ye put me to death/ye shall make youre selues/this cytye and all the inhabitours therof/ gyltie of innocent bloude. For this is of a treuth: that ỹ E Lorde hath sent me vnto you / to speake all Mat.xxiij.e these wordes in youre eares.

Then sayde the rulers and the people vnto the preistes and prophetes: This mā maye not be condemned to death/for he hath preached vnto vs in the name of the Lorde oure God. The Elders also of the lande stode vp/ and sayd thus vnto all the people: Micheah Mich.i.a the Morasthite/which was a prophet vnder Ezekiah kyng of Juda/spake to all ỹ people of Juda: Thus sayeth the Lorde of Hostes: F Sion shalbe plowed like a felde/Jerusalem Mich.iij.c shalbe an heape of stones/and the hyll of the Lordes house shalbe turned to an hye wod. Dyd Ezekiah the kyng of Juda & the people of Juda put him to deeth for this? No verely/but rather feared the Lorde/ & made their prayer vnto him. For the which cause also ỹ Lorde repented of the plage/ ỹ he had deuysed agaynst them. Shulde we then do soch a shamefull dede agaynst oure soules? There was a prophete also/that preached styfly in ỹ name of the Lorde/called Uziah the sonne G of Semeiah of Cariathiarim: this mā preached also agaynst this citie and agaynst this lande / accordynge to all as Jeremy sayeth. Now when Jehoakim the kyng wyth all the ij.Reg.xxiij.b. estate and prynces had herde his wordes/the kynge went about to slaye him. Whē Uziah ij.Reg.xix.a. perceaued that/he was afrayed/ & fled/ & de- Mat.ij.c. parted into Egypte.

Then Jehoakim the kyng sent seruaūtes in to the lande of Egypte, Namely: Elnathan ỹ sonne of Achabor/ and certayne men with him in to Egypte/which fetched Uziah oute of Egypt/ & brought him vnto kyng Jehoakim that slewe him with the swearde / & cast his deed body in to the comen peoples graue But Ahikam the sonne of Saphan helped Jeremy/that he came not in to the handes of the people to be slayne.

¶ Jeremye/at the commaundement of the Lord/ sendeth bondes to the kynge of Juda/ and to the other kynges that were nye/ wherby they are monyshed to become subyectes vnto Nabuchodonosor. He warneth the people and the kinges & rulars/that they beleue not false Prophetes.

IN the begynnynge of the reigne of Jehoakim ỹ sonne of Josiah kyng of Juda/ came this worde vnto Jeremy from the Lorde/which spake thus vnto me: Make the bondes & chaynes/ & put them about thy neck/ & sende them to the Kynge of Edom/ the Kynge of Moab/ the Kynge of Ammon/ the Kynge of Tyrus/ and to the Kynge of Sydon: and that by the messaungers/ whych shall come to Jerusalem vnto Zedekiah the Kynge of Juda/ and byd them saye vnto their masters: Thus sayeth the Lorde of Hostes the God of Israel/ speake thus vnto your masters: I am he that made the earth/ the men/ & the catell that are vpon the grounde/ wyth my greate power and outstretched arme/ & haue geuen it vnto whom it pleased me. For thus hath the Lord of hoostes spoken concernynge the pylers/ the lauer/ the seate and the residue of the ornamentes that yet remayne in thys cytye/ whych Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon toke not/ when he caryed awaye Iechoniah the sonne of Jehoakim kynge of Juda/ wyth all the power of Juda and Jerusalem/ from Jerusalem vnto Babylon/ captyue.

b* But yf they be true prophetes. &c. Marcke. The true Prophetes and soch as leane to ỹ word maye w prayer mytygate the vengeaũce that God threatẽneth: But the false Prophetes & preachers as they leane to lyes & preache no nother thynge/ so is their prayer vayne & frutelesse.

Yee thus hath the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israell spoken/ as touchynge the residue of the ornamẽtes of the Lordes house of the kynge of Judaes house/ and of Jerusalem: They shalbe caryed vnto Babylon/ and there they shall remayne/ vntyll I vyset them sayeth the Lorde. Then wyll I bryng them hyther agayne. And thys was done in the same yeare: euen in the begynnynge of the reigne of Zedekiah kynge of Juda.

C The false Prophecy of Hananiah the Prophete. Jeremye sheweth that the prophecye of Hananiah is false/ by the example of the other Prophetes. He being inspired of the Lorde reproueth Hananiah/ prophecyinge hys death.

Then the prophet Jeremy gaue answere vnto the prophete Hananiah/before the preistes & before al the people that were present in the house of the Lorde. And ỹ prophet Jeremy sayde: Amen/the Lord do ỹ/& graunte the thinge/which thou hast prophecied: that he maye bringe agayne all the ornamentes of the Lordes house/ and restore all the preisoners from Babilon in to the place. Neuertheles/herken thou also/what I wil saye/ ỹ thou & all ỹ people maye heare: The prophetes ỹ were before vs in tymes past / whych prophecied of warre/or trouble/ or pestilẽce ether of peace/vpon many nacions & greate kingdomȝ/were proued by this (yf God had sende thẽ in very dede) when the thynge came to passe/which that prophet tolde before.

And I will geue him the beastes in ỹ felde. Then sayde ỹ prophet Jeremy vnto ỹ prophet Hananiah: Heare me (I praye ỹ) Hananiah: The Lord hath not sent the/but thou bringest this people in to a false beleke. And therfore thus saieth the Lorde: beholde/I will sende ỹ out of the lande/& within a yeare thou shalt dye because thou hast falsely spoken agaynst ỹ Lorde. ¶ The. xxix. Chapter.

THis is the Copie of ỹ lettre / that Jeremy the prophet sent from Jerusalem vnto the preisoners: the Senatours/preistes / prophetes/ and all the people / whom Nabuchodonosor had led vnto Babylon: after that tyme that kyng Jechoniah/and his Quene/his chamberlaynes the princes of Juda & Jerusalem the worckmasters of Jerusalem were departed thyther. Whych lettre Elasah the sonne of Saphan and Gamariah the sonne of Helkiah dyd beare / whom Zedekiah the kinge of Juda sent vnto Babylon to Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon: these were the wordes of Jeremies lettre:

Thus hath the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel spokẽ vnto all the preisoners / that were led frõ Jerusalẽ vnto Babilon: buylde you houses to dwell therin: plante you gardens/ that ye may enioye the fruetes therof: take you wyues / to beare you sonnes and daughters: prouyde wyues for your sonnes/ and husbondes for youre daughters / that they maye get sonnes and daughters/ & that ye maye multyplye there. Laboure not to be fewe/but seke after peace and prosperite of the citie / wherin ye be preisoners/ & praye vnto God for it. For in the peace therof/ shal your peace be. For thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: Let not these prophetes and sothsayers that be amonge you disceaue you: & beleue not youre awne dreames. For why / they preach you lyes in my name/ and I haue not sent them, sayeth the Lorde.

But thus saieth the Lorde: When ye haue fulfilled. lxx yeares at Babilon/I wil bring you home / & of myne awne goodnes I wyll carie you hither agayne vnto this place. For I knowe what I haue deuyced for you saieth the Lorde. My thoughtes are to geue you peace / & not trouble (whych I geue you all redie) & ỹ ye might haue hope agayne. Ye shal crye vnto me/ye shall go & call vpon me/ & I shal heare you. Ye shall seke me & fynde me/ Yee/yf so be ỹ ye seke me w̃ your whole hert/ I wil be foũde of you (saieth ỹ Lord) & wil deliuer you out of preison / & gather you together agayne out of all placȝ/ where in I haue scatred you/saieth the Lorde: & wyll bringe you agayne to the same place/ from whence I caused you to be caried awaye captyue.

But where as ye saye/ that * God hath raysed you vp prophetes at Babilon: Thus hath the Lorde spoken (concernynge ỹ kinge that sytteth in the stole of Dauid/and all the people that dwell in this citie/youre brethrẽ that are not gone wyth you in to captyuyte) Thus (I saye) speaketh the Lord of hoostes: Beholde/I wyll sende a swearde / honger & pestilence vpon them/ and wyll make them like vntymely fyges/that maye not be eaten for bitternes. And I wil persecute them with the swearde/with honger & death.

* a Soch prophetes as preached vnto the thynges which they were desirous of/ dyd they greatly allowe: yee euen after they came to Babylõ. In thẽ they reioyced (as though they had bene sent of the Lorde/ and yet were they in deade false Prophetes. But Ezechiel the true prophete of the Lorde/ which preached the cõtrary did they persecute. By the false prophetes they sayd: God hath sent vs Prophetes: and their doctrine dyd they heare & folowe. But the true Prophete dyd they mocke & laugh to scorne: and wolde nether beleue his doctrine/ner geue eare vnto it.

I wyll

I wyll delyuer them vp to be vexed of all kingdomes/to be curled/abhorred/laughed to scorne/ and put to confusyon of all the people/amonge whom I haue scatred thē: & that because they haue not bene obedyēt vnto my commaundementes (sayeth ỹ Lorde) whych I sent vnto them by my seruauntes ỹ prophetes. I stode vp early/ and sent vnto them/ but they wolde not heare/ sayeth the E Lorde. Heare therfore the worde of ỹ Lord/ all ye preconers/whom I sent from Jerusalem vnto Babylon: Thus hath the Lorde of hoostes the God of Jsraell spoken/ of Ahab the sonne of Colaiah/ and of Zedekiah the sonne of Maaliah/ whych prophecye lyes vnto you in my name: Beholde/I wyll delyuer them in to the hande of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon/ that he maye slaye them before youre eyes. And al ỹ preconers of Juda that are in Babylon/ shall take vpō them thys terme of curlynge/ and saye: Now God do vnto the/ as he dyd vnto Zedekiah and Ahab/ whom the kynge of Babylon rosted in ỹ fyre/ because they synned shamefully in Jsraell.

For they haue not onely defiled their neighbours wyues/ but also preached lieng worde in my name/ whych I haue not commaunded them. This I testifie/ & assure/ saieth the Lord. But as for Semeiah the Nehelamite thou shalt speake vnto hym: Thus saieth the Lord of hoostes the God of Jsrael: Because
F thou hast sealed lettres vnder thy name/ vnto all the people that is at Jerusalem/ and to Sophoniah the sonne of Maasaih ỹ prest yee and sent them to all the prestes: where in thou wrytest thus vntohim: The Lorde hath ordened the to be prest in steade of Jehoiada

How happeneth it then/ that thou hast not reproued Jeremy of Anathoth/ whych neuer leaueth of hys prophecyeng. And belyde all thys/ he hath sent vs worde vnto Babylon/ and tolde vs planely/ that oure captyuyte shall longe endure: that we shulde buylde vs houses to dwell therin/ and to plante vs gardens/ that we myght enioye the frutes therof. Whych lettre Sophoniah the prest dyd rede/ and let Jeremythe prophet heare it.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto
G Jeremy/ sayenge: Sende worde to all them
Jere.xxviij.e. that be in captyuyte/ on thys maner: Thus hath the Lord spoken cōcernynge Semeiah ỹ Nehelamite: Because ỹ Semeiah hath prophecyed vnto you wythout my commyssyon/ & brought you in to a false hope/ therfore thus the Lorde doth certyfye you: Behold/ I wyl visit Semeiah ỹ Nehelamite/ and hys sede: so that none of hys shall remayne amonge this people/ and none of thē shall se the good/ that I will do for this people/ saieth the Lorde. For he hath preached falsely of the Lorde.

¶ The retourne of the people from Babylon. God by hys chastenyng sheweth that the people is synfull. The destruccyon of the enemyes of Jsrael.

¶ The.xxx. Chapter.

THese are the wordes/ that ỹ Lorde A shewed vnto Jeremy/ sayenge: Thus saieth the Lorde God of Jsraell: Wryte vp dyligently all the wordes/ that I haue spoken vnto the/ in a boke. For lo/ the tyme commeth (sayeth the Lorde) that I will bryng agayne the preconers of my people of Jsrael and Juda/ saieth the Lorde: For I wyll restore them vnto the lande/ that I gaue to their fathers/ and they shall haue it in possessyon.

Agayne/ these wordes spake the Lorde/ concernynge Jsrael and Juda: Thus sayeth ỹ Lord: We heare a terrible crye/ feare & disquietnesse. For what els doth this signyfie/ that I se? Namely/ ỹ all stronge men smyte/ euery man hys hande vpon hys loynes/ as a woman in the payne of her trauayle. Who euer sawe a man trauayle with chylde? Enquere therafter/ & se. Yee all their faces are maruelous pale. Jeremy.xlix.a

Alas for this daye/ whych is so dredefull/ that none maye be lyckened vnto it: and alas for the tyme of Jacobs trouble/ from the which he shall yet be delyuered. For in that B daye/ sayeth the Lorde/ I wyll take his yock from of thy neck/ & breake thy bondes. They shall nomore serue straunge Goddes vnder hym/ but they shall do seruyce vnto God their Lorde/ & to Dauid their kyng/ whom I wyll rayse vp vnto them. *And as for the/ O my seruaunt Jacob/ feare not (sayeth the Lord) and be not afrayed/ O Jsrael. For/ lo I wyll helpe the also from farre/ & thy sede from the lande of their captyuyte. *Esay.xliiij.a Ezech.xxxiiij.d Jeremy.xlvi.g

And Jacob shall turne agayne/ he shalbe in rest/ and haue a prosperous lyfe/ and no man shall make him afrayed. For I am with the/ to helpe the/ sayeth the Lorde. And though I shall destroye all ỹ people/ amōge whom I haue scatred the/ yet wyll I not destroye the/ but correcte the/ and that wyth dyscrecyon. For I knowe/ that thou art in no wyse wythout faute. Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde: I am sory for thy hurte and wōdes. There is no mā to medle with thy cause: or to bynde vp thy woundes: there maye no man helpe the. Jere.x.d.Ero. xxxiiij.a. Nahum.i.a care nothinge for the. For I haue geuen the acruell stroke/and chastened the roughly: for that for the multytude of thy myldedes / for thy synnes haue had the ouer hande. Why makest thou mone for thy harme? I my self haue pyte of thy sorowe / but for the multytude of thy myldedes & synnes / I haue done this vnto the. Jere. xiij.d.

And therfore all they that deuoure the/ shalbe deuoured/and all thine enemyes shal be led in to captiuite. All they that make the waste / shalbe wasted them selues: and all those that robbe the / will I make also to be robbed. For I will geue ỹ thy heaith agayne and make thy woundes whole / sayeth the Lorde: because they reuyled the / as one cast awaye and dispysed/ O Syon. Jere. xij.a.f.xx.d.

D For thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde / I will sett vp Jacobs tentes agayne / and defende his dwellinge place. The cytye shalbe buylded in her olde estate / & the houses shall haue their ryght foundacyon. And out of thē shall go thankesgeuynge / and the voyce of ioye. Numer. xxiij.a

I will multiplye them / and they shal not mynysshe: I shall endue them wyth honoure/ and no man shall subdue them. Their chyldren shalbe as a fore tyme/and their congregacion shall contynue in my sight. And all those that vexe them/will I vysett.

A captayne also shall come of them / and a prynce shall sprynge out from the myddest of them: him will I chalenge to my self / and he shall come vnto me. For what is he/ that geueth ouer his hert to come vnto me? sayeth the Lorde. Ye shalbe my people also/and I wylbe youre God. Beholde / on the other syde shall the wrath of the Lorde breake out as a stormy water / as a myghtye whyrle wynde: and shall fall vpon the heades of the vngodly. Wich.v.a. Joan.vi.c. The terryble displeasure of the Lorde shall not leaue of / vntyll he haue done / and performed the intent of hys herte / whych in the[a] * latter dayes ye shall vnderstande. The prophecyeth that the people of Israel shalbe restored agayne vnto their prosperytye. To be turned from synne is the gyft of God. The byrth of Christ is prophecyed. All the wycked shall dye in their wyckednes. The new Testament and couenaunte is prophecyed. The Christen are taught and instruct of the Lorde. Oure synnes shall so be remytted / that they shall not ones be thought on. God promeseth that he wyll cast of the Jewes. The buyldynge agayne of Jerusalem.

¶ The.xxxj. Chapter.

THus sayeth the Lorde: The people A of Israel which escapped in ỹ wyldernes from the swearde / founde grace to come in to their rest. Eue so shall the Lorde now also apeare vnto me from farre/ & saye: I loue the wyth an euerlastinge loue / therfore do I spreade my mercy before the. I wyll repayre the agayne (O thou daughter of Israell) that thou mayest be fast and sure. Thou shalt take thy tabrettes agayne/and go forth with them/that lede the daunce. Numer. xiij.c. Ezech.xvi.b.

Thou shalt plante vynes agayne vpon the hylles of Samaria / and the grape gatherers shall plante, and synge.

And when it is tyme / the watch men vpō the mount of Ephraim shall crye: Arise/lett vs go vp vnto Sion to oure Lorde God/ for thus sayeth the Lorde: Reioyce with gladnes B because of Jacob / crye vnto the head of the Gentiles: speake out/ synge/ and saye: The Lorde shall delyuer his people/the remnaūt of Israell/ and make them whole. Beholde/ I wyll brynge them agayne from out of the northy lande/ and gather them from the endes of the worlde/wyth the blinde and lame that are amonge them / wyth the wemen that be greate wyth chylde/ and soch as be also delyuered: & the company of them that come agayne/shall be greate. Esaye.ij.a.

They departed from hence in heuynes/ but wyth ioye wyll I brynge them hyther agayne. I will lede them by the ryuers of water in a straycht waye/ where they shall not stomble: For I wyll be Israels father / and Ephraim shalbe my fyrstborne. Deut.xxxij.a. Gen.xlviij.d.

Heare the worde of the Lorde/ O ye Gentiles/preach in the Iles / that ye farre of/ & saye: he that hath scatred Israell/ shal gather him together agayne / and shall kepe hym as a shepherde doth hys flocke. For the Lorde shal redeme Jacob/ & rydd him from the hande of the bvolent. And they shall come / and reioyce vpon the hyll of Syon / and shall haue plenteousnes of goodes / whych the Lorde shall geue thē: Namely/ wheate/ wyne/ oyle/ yonge shepe & calues. And their conscyence shalbe as a well watred garden/ for they shal nomore be hongrye.

Then shal the mayde reioyce in the daūce C yee both yonge and olde folkes. For I wyll turne their sorow in to gladnesse / and wyll comforte them and make them ioyfull/ euen from their hertes. I wyll poure plenteousnes vpon the hertes of the prestes / and my people shalbe satisfyed wt good thynges/ sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Lorde: * The voyce of heuynes / weppynge and lamentacyon came vp in to heauen: euen of Rachel mourninge for her * Jere.xij.k.& Mat.ij.c.

for her children/ and wolde not be conuerted because they were a waye.

But now sayeth the Lorde: leaue of from weppynge and cryenge/ wythholde thyne eyes from teares / for thy laboure shalbe rewarded/ sayeth the Lorde. And they shall come agayne out of the lande of their enemyes: Yee euen thy posterite shall haue consolacō in thys (sayeth the Lorde) that thy chyldren shall come agayne in to their awne lande.

Moreouer I herde Ephraym / that was led awaye captyue/ complayne on thys maner: O Lorde/ thou hast correcte me / & thy chastenynge haue I receaued / as an vntamed calfe. Conuerte thou me/ and I shalbe conuerted/ for thou art my Lorde God: Yee as soone as thou turnest me/ I shall reformme my self: and when I vnderstande / I shall a* smyte vpon my thyghe. For verely I haue committed shamefull thynges: O lett my youth beare this reproofe and confusyon.

a* To smyte vpō the thyghe is a tokē of grefe. He meaneth that when the Lorde geueth him vnderstādynge/ he shall come to repentaunce & forthynche hys euell conuersacyon.

Vpon thys cōplaynte/ I thought thus by my self: is not Ephraym my deare sonne? Is he not the childe/ wyth whom I haue had all myrth and pastyme? For sence the tyme that I first commened with him/ I haue him euer in remēbraunce: therfore my very herte dryueth me vnto him / gladly and louyngly wyll I haue mercy vpon him/ saieth ỹ Lord. Get the watchmen/ prouyde teachers for the sett thyne herte vpon the ryght waye/ ỹ thou shuldest walke/ and turne agayne (O thou daughter of Israell) turne agayne to these cityes of thyne. How longe wylt thou goa straye/ O thou shrinking daughter: For the Lorde wyl worke a new thynge vpon earth: b* A woman shall compasse a man.

b* Thys do they commōly expoūde of the redemptyon of Israel / by the symplytude of a womā seaschyng her husbād. As thoughe the Prophete had sayde: The people of Israel/ after they haue of lōge tyme forsaken their spouse God/ shal yet at the last returne & embrace hym w the armes of faith/ charite/ & obedyēce. &c. Some expounde it of ỹ virgyn Mary: And some of the churche the spouse of Christ.

For thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: It will come therto/ that whē I haue brought Juda out of captiuite/ these wordes shalbe herde in the lande and in hys cytyes: The Lorde/ which is the fayre bryde grome of ryghtuousnesse/ make the fruteful O thou holy hyll: And there shal dwell Juda / and all her cytyes / the shepherdes and husbandemen: For I shall fede the hongrye soule/ & refresh al faynte hertz. Whē I herde this I came agayne to myself/ & mused/ like as I had bene waked out of a swete slepe.

Beholde (saieth the Lorde) the dayes come/ that I will sowe the house of Israell and the house of Juda/ wyth mēs & wyth catell. Yee it shall come therto / that like as I haue gone about in tymes past to rote thē out/ to scatre them/ to breake them downe/ to destroye thē and chasten them: Euen so wyll I also go diligently aboute/ to buylde them vp agayne & to plante them/ saieth the Lorde.

Then shall it no more be sayde: the fathers haue eatē a sower grape/ & ỹ chyldrēs teeth are sett on egde: for euery one shall dye for his awne mysdeede/ so that who so eateth a sower grape/ his teeth shalbe set on edge.

F Beholde/ the dayes come (sayeth ỹ Lord) that I wyl make a new couenaunt with the house of Israel & with ỹ house of Juda: not after the couenaunt that I made wyth theyr fathers/ when I toke them by the hande/ and led them out of the lande of Egypte: whych couenaunt they brake/ wherfore I punished them sore/ sayeth the Lorde: But thys shall be the couenaunt that I wyll make with the house of Israel after those dayes/ sayeth the Lorde: I wyll plante my lawe in ỹ inwarde partes of them / & wryte it in their hertes / & wilbe their God/ and they shalbe my people. Heb. p.d. Elay li.b. Jere. xxxj b. c. xxx.d.

And from thence forth shall no mā teach his neighboure or his brother/ and saye: knowe the Lorde: But they shall all knowe me/ from the lowest vnto the heyst / sayeth the Lorde. For I wyll forgeue their mysdedes/ and wyll neuer remembre their synnes eny more. Thus sayeth the Lorde wyych gaue ỹ sunne to be a light for the daye/ & the moone and starres to shyne in the nyght: which moueth the see / so that the floudes therof ware fearce: hys name ys the Lorde of hoostes. Lyke as thys ordynaunce shall neuer be taken out of my syght/ sayeth the Lorde: So shall the sede of Israell neuer ceasse/ but all waye be a people before me.

G Moreouer/ thus sayeth the Lorde: Lyke as the heauen aboue can not be measured/ and as the foundacions of the earth beneth maye not be sought out: So wyll I also not cast out the whole sede of Israel / for that they haue committed/ sayeth the Lorde. Beholde the dayes come sayeth the Lorde/ that the cite of the Lorde shalbe enlarged frō the towre of Hananeel/ vnto ỹ gate of the corner wall. From thence shall the ryght measure be taken before her vnto the hyll toppe of Gareb/ and shall come aboute Gaath / and the whole valley of the deed karcases/ and of the asches/ & all Ceremoth vnto the broke of Cedron: and from thence vnto the corner of the horsgate towarde the East / where as the Sanctuary of the Lorde also shall be set. And when it is now buylded/ & set vp of this facshyon it shall neuer be broken / nor cast downe any more. Ñ. Eldr xlv. a. Zach xiij. b.

¶ Jeremye is cast in to prison/ because he prophecyed that the cytye shulde be taken of the Kynge of Babylon. By the feld that Jeremy bought at the cōmaundement of the Lorde / is sygnyfyed / that the people shulde come agayne to their awne possessyon. The people of God are his seruauntes/ & he is their Lorde. To feare God is Godes gyft/ to thyntet that synnes maye be eschued.

¶ The .xxxij. Chapter.

THese wordes spake the Lorde vnto Jeremy / in the tenth yeare of Zedekiah kynge of Juda / whych was the .xviij. yeare of Nabuchodonosor / what tyme as the kyng of Babilōs Hoste layed seage vnto Jerusalem. But Jeremy the prophete laye bounde in the courte of the prison / which was in the kyng of Judaes house: where Zedekiah the kyng of Juda caused hym to be layed / because he had prophecied of this maner: Thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde: I will delyuer thys cytie in to the hādes of the kynge of Babilon / which shall take it. As for Zedekiah the kynge of Juda / he shall not be able to escape the Caldees / but surely he shal come in to the hādes of the kynge of Babilon: which shall speake with him mouth to mouth / and one of them shall loke another in the face. And Zedekiah shalbe caried vnto Babilon / and there shall he be / vntyll the tyme that I viset him / saieth the Lord But yf thou takest in hāde to fight agaynst ỹ Caldees / thou shalt not prospere.

Jere.xxxiij.a. xxvij.a. xxxviij a

B And Jeremy sayde: Thus hath the Lorde spoken vnto me: Beholde / Hananeel ỹ sonne of Selum thyne Uncles sonne shall come vnto the / and requyre the to redeme ỹ lande / that lyeth in Anathoth vnto thy selfe: for by reason of kynred it is thy parte to redeme it / and to bye it out.

Leuitti.xxv.d Num.xxvij.a. xxxvi.a. Ruth.iiij.a.

And so Hananeel myne vncles sonne came to me in ỹ courte of ỹ prison (accordynge to the worde of the Lorde) and sayde vnto me: Bye my land (I praye the) that lyeth in Anathoth in the coūtre of Benjamin: for by heretage thou hast right to lowse it out for thy selfe / therfore redeme it. Then I perceaued / that this was the cōmaundement of ỹ Lord / and so I lowsed the lande from Hananeel of Anathoth / myne Uncles sonne / and weyed him there the money: euen seuen sycles / & ten syluer pens.

I caused him also to make me a wrytting / and to seale it / and called recorde therby / & weyed him there ỹ money vpō ỹ waightes.

C So I toke the euydēce with the copie (when it was orderly sealed and red ouer) & I gaue the euydence vnto Baruch the sonne of Neriah ỹ sonne of Maasiah in the syght of Hananeel my cosen / & in ỹ presence of the wytnesses / that be named in the euydence / & before all the Jewes that were therby in the courte of the prison.

I charged Baruch also before thē / sayīg: The Lorde of Hostes the God of Israell cōmaundeth the / to take this sealed euydence with ỹ copie / & to laye it in an erthen vessel / that it maye longe contynue.

For the Lorde of Hostes the God of Israell hath determed / that houses / feldes and vyneyardes shalbe possessed agayne in thys lande.

Now when I had delyuered the euydence vnto Baruch ỹ sonne of Neriah / I besought the Lorde / saying: O Lorde God / It is thou that hast made heauen and earth wyth thy greate power and hye arme / and there is nothynge to harde for the. Thou shewest mercy vpon thousandes / thou recōpencest the wickednes of the fathers / in to the bosome of the chyldren that come after them.

D Erod.xxxiiij.a

Thou art the greate and myghtie God / whose name is the Lorde of Hostes: greate in councell / and infinyte in thought: Thyne eyes loke vpon all the wayes of mens chyldren / to rewarde euery one after his waye / and accordynge to the frutes of hys inuencyons: Thou hast done greate tokens and wonders in the lande of Egypt (as we se this daye) vpon the people of Israell and vpon those men: to make thy name great / as it is come to passe this daye: Thou hast brought thy people of Israel out of the lād of Egypt / wyth tokens / with wondres / with a mightie hande / wyth a stretched oute arme and wyth greate terryblenes: and hast geuen them thys lande / lyke as thou haddest promysed vnto their fathers: Namely / ỹ thou woldest geue them a land / that floweth with mylcke and honye.

Exod.vii. vnto ỹ.xv. Chapter

Now when they came therin / and possessed it / they folowed not thy voyce / and walcked not in thy lawe: but all that thou commaundedest them to do / that haue they not done / and therfore come all these plages vpō them.

Beholde / there are bullworckes made now agaynst the cytie / to take it: and it shalbe wonne of the Caldees that besege it / with swearde / wyth honger and death / and loke what thou hast spoken / that same shal come vpon them.

E For lo / all thynges are present vnto the: Yet sayest thou vnto me (O Lorde God) and cōmaundest me / that I shall lowse a pece of lande vnto my selfe / & take witnesses therto: and yet in the meane season the cytie is delyuered in to the power of the Caldees.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me / saying: Beholde / I am the Lord God of all flesshe / is there eny thynge then to harde for me? Therfore thus sayde the Lorde: beholde / I shall delyuer thys cytye in to the power of the Caldees / and in to the power of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon / they shall take it in: For the Caldees shall come / and wynne thys cytye / and sett fyre vpon it / and burne it: wyth the gorgeous houses / in whose parlers they haue made sacrifice vnto Baal / & poured drinck offringes vnto vnto straunge Goddes/to prouoke me vnto wrath.

For seynge the chyldren of Israel/and the chyldren of Juda haue wrought wyckednes before me euer from their youth vp / what haue they els done / but prouoked me wyth the worckes of their awne hãdes? sayeth the Lorde.

Or/what hath this cytie bene els / but a prouokinge of my wrath/euer sence ỹ daye that I buylded it/ vnto this houre? Wherin I cast it out of my syght/because of ỹ great blasphemyes of the chyldren of Israell and Juda/which they haue done to prouoke me: yee they/ their kynges/their prynces/ their Preastes/their Prophetes/ whole Juda / & all the cytesyns of Jerusalem.

When I stode vp early/ and taught them and instructe thẽ / they turned their backes to me/and not their faces. They woide not heare / to be reformed and correcte. They haue sett their Goddes in the house / that is halowed vnto my name/to defyle it. They haue buylded hye places for Baal in the valley of the children of Hennom/to bowe their sonnes and daughters vnto Moloch: which I neuer commaunded them/ nether came it euer in my thought / to make Juda synne with soch abhominacyon.

Moreouer thus hathe the Lorde God of Israel spokẽ/concernynge this cytie/which (as ye youre selues cõfesse) shalbe delyuered in to the hande of the kyng of Babilon/ whẽ it is wonne with the swearde / wyth honger and with pistilence. Beholde/ I wyll gather them together from all landes / wherin I haue scatred them in my wrath/ in my fearfull and greate displeasure: and wyll bringe thẽ agayne vnto this place/ where they shall dwell safely. And they shalbe my people/and I wylbe their God.

And I wyll geue them one herte and one waye/that they maye feare me all the dayes of their lyfe/ that they and their chyldren after them maye prospere. And I wyll sett vp an euerlastynge couenaunt with them/Namely: that I will neuer cease to do thẽ good/ & that I wyll put my feare in their hertes/ so that they shall not runne awaye from me.

Yee I will haue a lust and pleasure to do them good/and faithfully to plante them in thys lande wyth my whole herte/ and with all my soule.

For thus sayeth the Lord: lyke as I haue brought all this great plage vpon thys people: so will I also bringe vpon them all the good/that I haue promysed them. And men shall haue their possessyons in this lande/ wherof ye saye now/ that it shall nether be inhabited of people ner of catell/but be delyuered in to the handes of the Caldees: Yee land shalbe bought for money/ & euidences made ther vpon and sealed before wytnesses in ỹ countre of Benjamin/ & rounde aboute Jerusalem: in the cities of Juda/ in ỹ cyties that are vpon the mountaynes/and in them that lye beneth/ yee & in the cities that are in ỹ deserte. For I wyll bryng their prysoners hither agayne/ sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The prophete is monyshed of the Lord/ to praye for the delyueraunce of the people/ which the Lorde promeseth. God forgeueth synnes and doth graciously to the people/ for his awne renowne. Of the byrth of Christ. The kyngdome of Christ in the churche shall neuer be ended.

¶ The .xxxiij. Chapter.

Moreouer the worde of the Lorde came vnto Jeremy on this maner/ when he was yet bounde in the courte of the prison: Thus sayeth the Lorde/which fulfylleth the thynge that he speaketh/the Lorde whych performeth the thynge that he taketh in hande: euen he/ whose name is ỹ Lord: thou hast *cryed vnto me/ & I haue herde ỹ: I haue shewed greate & hye thynges/ whych were vnknowẽ vnto you.

Jeremy. xx. a. xxxij. a. Jere. vij. a. d Jere. xxxij. a. d Deute. xxx. a Psal. cxix. c. *Gen. xviij. b. *Reg. viij. b.

Thus (I saye) spake the Lorde God of Israel/ concernyng the houses of this cytie/ & the houses of the kynges of Juda: that they shalbe broken thorowe the ordynaunce and weapens/ when the Caldees come to besege them: and they shalbe filled with ỹ dede karcases of men/ whõ I wyll slaye in my wrath & displeasure: when I turne my face frõ this cytie/ because of all her wickednes. Behold/ (sayeth ỹ Lord) I will heale their woundes and make them whole: I wyll open them the treasure of peace and treuth.

And I wyll returne the captyuite of Juda and Israell: and will set them vp agayne/ as they were afore. Frõ all myslodedes (wherin they haue offended agaynst me) I wyll clense thẽ: And all their blasphemyes which they haue done agaynst me/ whẽ they regarded me not/ I will forgeue them.

And this shall get me a name/ a prayse & honoure / amonge all people of the earth/ whych shall heare all the good/ that I wyll shewe vnto them: yee they shall be afrayed and astonnyed at all the good dedes and benefytes/ that I wyll do for them. Moreouer thus sayeth the Lorde: In this place/ wherof ye saye ỹ it shall be a wylderneße / wherin nether people ner catell shal dwell: in like maner in the cytyes of Juda and wythout Jerusalem (which also shalbe so voyde/ that nether people ner catell shall dwell there) Shal ỹ voyce of gladneße be herde agayne/ the voyce of the Brydegrome and of the bryde / the voyce of them that shall synge: Prayse ỹ Lorde of Hostes/ for he is louyng and hys mercy endureth for euer) and the voyce of them that shall offer vp gyftꝭ in the house of the Lorde. For I will restore ẏ captiuyte of this lande/as it was afore / sayeth the Lorde. Thus sayeth the Lorde of Hostes Yt shall come yet therto/ that in this lande/ which is voyde from men and catell / and in all the cyties of the lande/there shall be sett vp shepherdes cotages: in the cyties vpō the mountaynes: and in the cyties that lye vpon the playne/and in the deserte.

In the lande of Benjamin/ in the feldes of Jerusalem/and in the cyties of Juda shal the shepe be nombred agayne/vnder ẏ hande of him/that telleth them / sayeth the Lorde.

¶ Beholde/the tyme cōmeth/sayeth the Lord/ Jeremy.xxiij.a. that I will perfourme ẏ good thynge/which I haue promesed vnto the house of Israell & to the house of Juda. In those dayes and at ẏ same tyme/I wyll bringe forth vnto Dauid/the braunche of ryghteousnes / and he shall do equyte & ryghteousnesse in ẏ lande. In those dayes shall Juda be helped/and Jerusalem shall dwell safe / and he that shall call her is euen God our ryghteous maker. For thus the Lorde promeseth: Dauid shall neuer want one / to syt vpon the stole of the house of Israell: nether shall the prestes and Leuytes want one to offre allwaye before me burntofferinges/to kyndle the meatofferynges/and to prepare the sacrifyces.

And the worde of the Lorde cam vnto Jeremy after this maner: Thus sayeth ẏ Lord: D Gene.xliij.d. Haye the couenaunt which I haue made with daye and nyght be broken / that there shulde not be daye and nyght in due season: Then maye my couenaunt also be broken/ which I made with Dauid my seruaunte/& so he not to haue a sonne to reygne in hys Trone. So shall also the prestes & Leuites neuer fayle/but serue me. For lyke as the Gene.xv.a.& xxij.c. starres of heauen maye not be nombred/nether the sande of the see measured: so wyll I multiplye the sede of Dauid my seruaunt/& of the Leuites my mynisters.

Moreouer/the worde of the Lorde came to Jeremy/saiēg: Considerest thou not what this people speaketh? Two kynredes (saye they) had the Lorde chosen / and those same two hath he cast awaye. For so farre is my people come/ ẏ they haue no hope to come to gether eny more/& to be one people agayne. Therfore thus saieth the Lorde: If I haue made no couenaunt with daye and nyght / & geuen no statute vnto heauē and earth: then wyl I also cast awaye the sede of Dauid my seruaunt: so that I wyll take no prynce out of hys sede / to rule the posterite of Abrahā/ Isaac & Jacob. But yet I wil turne agayne their captiuite/& be mercifull vnto them.

¶ He treateneth that the cytye/and kynge Zedekiah also/shalbe geuen into the handes of the kyng of Babylon. He rebuketh them that brought soche of their brethren into captyuyte / as were pardoned to go at their lybertye.

¶ The xxxiiij. Chapter.

THese are the wordes whych the Lorde spake vnto Jeremy/ what tyme as Nabuchodonosor ẏ king of Babylon / and all hys Hostes (out of all the kyngdomes that were vnder his power) & all his people/ fought agaynst Jerusalem and all the cyties therof. Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell: Goo/ and speake to Zedekiah the kyng of Juda/& tell him: The Lorde sendeth the this worde: Beholde/I will delyuer this cytie in to ẏ hāde of the kynge of Babylon he shall burne it/ & thou shalt not escape his handes/but shalt be led awaye prysoner/& delyuered in to hys power. Thou shalt loke the kynge of Babilon in the face and he shall speake with the mouth to mouth/and then shalt thou goo to Babilon Yet heare ẏ worde of the Lorde/O Zedekiah thou kyng of Juda: Thus sayeth the Lord vnto the: Thou shalt not be slayne wᵗ the swearde/but shalt dye in peace. Lyke as thy forefathers the kynges/ thy progenitours/were brēte: so shalt thou be brēt also/ & in the mournyng they shall saye: oh Lord. For thus haue I determined/ sayeth ẏ Lord.

Then spake Jeremy the prophet all these wordes vnto Sedekiah kynge of Juda in B Jerusalē: what tyme as the kyng of Babylons hoost beseged Jerusalem/and the remnaunt of the cyties: Namely/Lachis & Azecah/ whych yet remayned of the stronge defensed cyties of Juda.

These are the wordes that the Lord spake vnto Jeremy the prophet/ when Sedekiah was agreed with all the people at Jerusalē/ that there shulde be proclamed a lyberte: so that euery mā shulde let his seruaūt & handmayde go fre/Hebrue and Hebruesse / & no Jewe to holde hys brother as a bonde man. Now as they had cōsented / euē so they were obedient/& let them go fre. But afterwarde they repented/ & toke agayne the seruaūtes and hande maydens/whom they had lett go fre/and so made them bonde agayne.

For the which cause the worde of ẏ Lord C came vnto Jeremy from the Lorde him self/ sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell: * I made a couenaunt with youre fathers/when I brought them out of Egypte/ Deutero.xv.e & Exo.xxi.a (ẏ they shulde no more be bondmen) saying: When seuen yeares are out/ euery mā shall let his bought seruaunte an Hebrue go fre/ yf he haue serued him syx yeares. But your fathers obeyed me not and herkened not vnto me. As for you/ye were now turned/and dyd dyd ryght before me/in that ye proclamed/ euery man to let hys neyghboure go fre/& in that ye made a couenaunt before me/in the tẽple that beareth my name: But yet ye haue turned your selues agayne/and blasphemed my name: In thys/ þ euery man hath requyred hys seruaũt & handmaydẽ agayne/ whõ ye had let go quyte and fre/& compelled them to serue you agayne/& to be youre bõde mẽ.

D And therfore thus sayeth the Lorde: ye haue not obeyed me/ euery man to proclame fredome vnto his brother & neyghboure: wherfore/I wyll call you vnto a fredome/sayeth the Lorde: euen vnto the swearde/ to the pestilence/& to honger/& wyll make you to be plaged in all the Kyngdomes of the earth.

Yee those men þ haue brokẽ my couenaunt/ & not kepte the wordes of the appoyntemẽt/ which they made before me: whẽ they hewed the calfe in two/& when there wente thorow Gene.xv.b. the two halfes therof: The Princes of Juda/ the Prynces of Jerusalem/ the gelded men/ the Prestes & all þ people of þ lande/ which wente thorow the two sydes of the calfe.

Those men wyll I geue in to the power of their enemyes/& in to the handes of thẽ that folowe vpon their lyues.

And their deed bodyes shalbe meate for þ foules of the ayre/ and beastes of the felde.

As for Zedekiah the Kynge of Juda and hys Prynces/I wyll delyuer thẽ in to the power of their enemyes/and of them that desyre to slaye them/ and in to the hande of the Kynge of Babylons hoste/ a* which now is depar- a* The Babylonyãs were departed from them to go agaynst the Egipcyans/ whõ when they had vanquesshed/ they returned to fight against Jerusalem.
ted from you: But thorow my commaundemẽt (sayeth the Lord) they shall come agayne before thys cytye/ they shall fyght agaynst it/ wynne it/ and burne it. Moreouer I wil laye the cytyes of Juda so waste/ þ no man shall dwell therin.

The propoundeth the obedyence of the Rechabites/& ther by confoundeth the pryde of the Jewes. The cõmaundement of Jonadab/the father of the Rechabites. He threateneth punyshmẽt vnto the rebellyous Jewes. He promeseth prosperite vnto the Rechabites/ for their obedyence vnto their father.

The.xxxv.Chapter.

THe wordes which the Lorde spake vnto Jeremy/in the raygne of Jehoakim the sonne of Josiah Kyng of Juda/are these: Go vnto þ house iiij.Reg.x.c. of the Rechabites/& call them out/& bringe them to the house of the Lorde in to some cõmodyous place/& geue thẽ wyne to drincke.

Then toke I Jazaniah the sonne of Jeremy the sonne of Habazinias/& his brethrẽ and all hys sonnes/ and the whole housholde of the Rechabytes: and brought them to the house of the Lord/in to the closet of the childrẽ of Hanan the sonne of Jegedaliah þ mã of God: which was by the closet of the Pryn- ces/that is aboue the closet of Maaliah the sonne of Selum/whych is the cheafe of the treasury. And before the sonnes of the kinred of the Rechabites/I set pottes full of wine/ and cuppes/ and sayde vnto them: Drynke wyne. B

But they sayde: we drynke no wyne/ for Jonadab the sonne of Rechab oure father commaunded vs/sayinge: ye and youre sonnes shall neuer drynke wyne/buylde no houses/ sowe no sede/ plante no vynes/ yee ye shall haue no vyneyardes: but for all your tyme ye shall dwell in tentes/ that ye maye lyue lõge in the lãde wherin ye be straũgers. Jere.xxix.b.

Thus haue we obeyed the cõmaundemẽt of Jonadab þ sonne of Rechab oure father/ in all that he hath charged vs/& so we drynke no wyne all oure lyue longe: we/ nor oure wyues/ oure sonnes and oure daughters. Nether buylde we any house to dwel therin/ we haue also amõge vs nether vyneyardes/ ner corne lande to sowe: but we dwel in tentes/ we obeye/ and do accordynge vnto all/ that Jonadab oure father commaunded vs.

But now that Nabuchodonosor þ kinge of Babilon came vp in to the lande/ we saide come/lett vs go to Jerusalem/that we maye escape the hooste of the Caldees and the Assyrians: and so we dwell now at Jerusalem. C

Then came þ worde of þ Lord vnto Jeremy sayenge: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: Go and tell whole Juda & al the inhabitours of Jerusalem: Wyl ye not be refourmed/to obey my wordes? sayeth the Lorde. The wordes which Jonadab þ sonne of Rechab commaunded his sonnes/ þ they shulde drinke no wyne/ are kept and surely kepte: for vnto this daye they drinke no wine but obeye their fathers commaundement.

But as for me/I haue stãd vp early/I haue spoken vnto you/ & geuen you earnest war- Jere.xviij.a. nynge: and yet haue ye not bene obedient vnto me. Yee I haue sent my seruauntes/all þ prophetes vnto you/I rose vp early/ & sent you worde/sayenge: O turne you/euery mã from his wicked waye: amende your lyues/ and go not after straunge goddes/to worshyppe them: that ye maye contynue in the lande/whych I haue geuen vnto you & your fathers/ but ye wolde nether heare me/ ner folowe me. xxv.a.

The childzen of Jonadab Rachabs sonne haue stedfastly kepte their fathers cõmaun- D dement/ þ he gaue them/ but thys people is not obediẽt vnto me. And therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israell: Beholde/I wyll bringe vpon Juda & vpõ euery one that dwelleth in Jerusalem/al þ trouble þ I haue deuysed agaynst them. For I haue Prouer.i.c. spoken vnto thẽ/but they wolde not folowe: Esay.lxv.b. I haue called vnto them/ neuertheles they Jere.vij.b.

wolde geue me no answere. Jeremy also spake vnto the housholde of the Rechabits: Thus sayeth the Lorde of Hostes the God of Jsrael: For so moch as ye haue obeyed ỹ cõmaundement of Jonadab youre father/ & kepte all hys preceptes/ & done accordynge Jere. xxxv.c. vnto all that he hath bydden you: Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of Hostes/the God of Jsrael: Jonadab the sonne of Rechab shall not fayle/ but haue one out of his stocke/to stande alwaye before me.

¶ Baruch wryteth (as Jeremy endyteth) the boke of the curses agaynst Juda & Jsrael. He is sent wyth the boke vnto the people/& readeth it before them all. He is called before the rulars/& readeth it before thẽ also. The rulars shewe vnto the Kynge the wordes of the boke. Jehudi taketh the boke/& readeth a lytell of it/ & after casteth it in the fyre. There is another writtẽ/ at the commaundement of the Lorde.

A IN the fourth yeare of Jehoakim ỹ sonne of Josiah Kynge of Juda/ came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremy/sayinge: Take a boke/ &
Jeremy.xxx.a. wryte therin all the wordes/that I haue spoken to the/ to Jsrael/ to Juda/ and to all the people/from the tyme that I beganne for to speake vnto the (in the raygne of Josiah) vnto thys daye. That when the house of Juda heareth of the plage/ whych I haue deuyled for them/they may peraduẽture turne/ euery man from his wycked waye/ that I maye Jeremy.xviij.a forgeue their offences and synnes.

Then dyd Jeremy call Baruch the sonne of Neriah/ & Baruch wrote in the boke at ỹ Jeremy.xlv.a. mouth of Jeremy/all ỹ wordes of the Lord/ which he had spoken vnto hym. And Jeremy commaunded Baruch/saying: I am in prison/so that I maye not come in to the house of the Lorde: therfore go thou thyther/ and B reade the boke/ that thou hast wryten at my mouth: Namely/the wordes of the Lorde/ & rede them in the Lordes house vpon the fastyng daye: that the people/whole Juda/ & all they that come out of the cytyes/ maye heare. Peraduenture they wyll praye mekely before the face of the Lorde/& turne euery one from his wycked waye. For greate is the wrath and displeasure/ that the Lorde hath taken agaynst this people.

So Baruch the sonne of Neriah dyd/accordyng vnto all that Jeremy the Prophete cõmaunded hym/readyng the wordes of the Lorde out of the boke in the Lordes house. And this was done in ỹ fyfth yeare of Jehoakim the sonne of Josiah Kynge of Juda/ in the.ix.moneth when it was cõmaunded/that Jone.iij.a. all the people of Jerusalẽ shulde fast before the Lorde/& they also that were come from the cytyes of Juda vnto Jerusalem.

¶ Then red Baruch the wordes of Jeremy out of the boke within ỹ house of the Lorde/ Jeremy.xxxvi.d
out of the treasury of Gamariah the sonne of Saphan the Scrybe/which is beside the hyer lofte of the new doore of ỹ Lordes house: that all the people myght heare. Now when Micheah the sonne of Gamariah the sonne of Saphan had harde all the wordes of the Lorde out of the boke/he wente downe to ỹ Kynges palace in to the Scrybes chambre/ for there all the Princes were set: Elisama the Scrybe/Dalaiah the sonne of Semei/ Elnathan the sonne of Acabor/Gamariah ỹ sonne of Saphan/ Zedekiah the sonne of Hananiah/w all ỹ Princes. And Micheah tolde thẽ all the wordes/ỹ he harde Baruch rede out of the boke before the people.

Then all the Princes sent Jehudi ỹ sonne D of Nathaniah/the sonne of Selamiah/ the sonne of Chusi vnto Baruch/sayinge: Take in thyne hande the boke/ wherout thou hast red before all the people/and come. So Baruch the sonne of Neriah toke ỹ boke in his hande/& came vnto thẽ. And they sayde vnto hym: Syt downe/& rede the boke ỹ we may heare also. So Baruch red/that they myght heare. Now when they had harde all the wordes/they were abashed one vpõ another/ & sayde vnto Baruch: We wyll certyfye the Kynge of all these wordes. And they examyned Baruch/saying: tell vs/how dydest thou wryte all these wordes out of hys mouth? Then Baruch answered them: He spake all E these wordes vnto me w̃ hys mouth/and I alone was w̃ him/& wrote them in the boke.

Then sayde ỹ Princes vnto Baruch: Go thy waye/& hide the with Jeremy/so that no man knowe where ye be. And they went in to the Kynge to the courte. But they kepte ỹ boke in the chãbre of Elisama the Scrybe/ & tolde the Kyng all ỹ wordes that he might heare. So the King sent Jehudi to fetch him the boke/which he brought out of Elisama ỹ Scrybes chambre. And Jehudi red it/ỹ the Kynge & all the Princes/ which were about hym/myght heare. Now the Kyng sat in the wynter house/for it was in the.ix. Moneth/ & there was a good fyre before him. And whẽ Jehudi had red thre or foure leaues therof/ Acto.xix.b he cut the boke in peces wyth a pẽne knyfe/ & cast it into the fyre vpõ the herth/ vntyll ỹ boke was all brẽte in the fyre vpõ the harth.

Yet no man was abashed therof/or rente his clothes: nether the Kynge hym selfe/ ner his seruauntes/though they hearde all these wordes. Neuertheles Elnathã/Dalaiah/& F Gamariah besought the Kynge/ ỹ he wolde not burne the boke: notwythstandynge the Kynge wolde not heare them/ but cõmaunded Jerahmeel the sonne of Amalech/ Saraiah ỹ sonne of Ezriel & Selamiah ỹ sonne of Ab-of Abdiel/ to laye handes vpon Baruch the Scrybe/& vpon Jeremy the Prophete: but the Lorde kepte thē out of syght. After now that the Kynge had brent the boke/ & the sermons which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremy: The worde of the Lorde came vnto Jeremy/ sayinge: Take another boke/ and wryte in it all the forsayde sermons: that were wrytten in ỹ fyrst boke/ which Jehoakim the Kynge of Juda hath brente.

And tell Jehoakim ỹ Kyng of Juda: thus sayeth the Lorde: thou hast brente the boke/ & thoughtest within thy selfe: Why hast thou wrytten therin/ that the kynge of Babylon shall come/ and make thys lande waste/ so ỹ he shall make both people & catell to be out of it? Therfore thus ỹ Lord sayeth of Jehoakim the kynge of Juda: There shall none of hys generacyon syt vpon the throne of Dauid. Hys deed corse shalbe cast out/ that the heate of ỹ daye/ & the frost of the nyght may come vpon hym. And I wyll vyset the wyckednes of hym/ of hys sede/ & of his seruaūtes. Moreouer all the euell that I haue promysed them (though they herde me not) wyll I bringe vpon them/ vpon the inhabytoures of Jerusalem/ and vpō all Juda. Then toke Jeremy another boke/ and gaue it Baruch the Scrybe ỹ sonne of Neriah/ which wrote therin out of the mouth of Jeremy: all ỹ sermons ỹ were in ỹ fyrst boke/ whych Jehoakim the kynge of Juda dyd burne. And ther were added vnto them many mo sermons/ then before.

¶ Zedekiah succedeth Cononiah. He sendeth vnto Jeremye to praye for him. Jeremy goinge into the lād of Benjamin/ is taken. He is beaten/ & put in prison. He is deliuered by kynge Zedekiah.

¶ The .xxxvij. Chapter.

Zedekiah ỹ sonne of Josiah/ which was made kynge thorow Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon/ reigned in the lande of Juda/ in ỹ steade of Cononiah the sonne of Jehoakim. But nether he/ ner hys seruauntes/ ner the people in the land wold obeye ỹ wordes of ỹ Lord/ which he spake by ỹ Prophet Jeremy. Neuertheles Zedekiah ỹ king sent Jehucal ỹ sonne of Selemiah & Sophoniah ỹ sonne of Maasiah the Prest to ỹ Prophet Jeremy/ saying: O praye thou vnto ỹ Lord oure God for vs. Now Jeremy walked fre amonge the people at ỹ tyme/ & was not put in prison as yet. Pharaos hoste also was come out of Egypte: whych when the Caldees that beleged Jerusalem perceaued/ they departed from thence.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremy the Prophet/ sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel/ thys answere shall ye geue to the kynge of Juda/ that sent you vnto me for counsell: Beholde/ Pharaos hoste whych is come forth to helpe you/ shall returne to Egypte in to his awne lande: but the Caldees shall come agayne/ and fyght agaynst thys cytye/ wynne it/ and sett fyre vpō it. For thus sayeth the Lord: a* oyscease not youre awne myndes/ thinckyng on this maner: tush/ the Caldees go now their waye from vs: No/ they shall not go their waye. For though ye had slayne the whole hoste of the Caldees/ that belege you/ and euery one of the slayne laye in his tente/ yet shulde they stande vp/ and set fyre vpon thys cyte. Now when the Hoste of the Caldees was broken vp from Jerusalem/ for feare of the Egyptyans armye/ Jeremy went out of Jerusalē towarde ỹ lande of Benjamin/ b* to do certayne busynes there amōge the people. And when he came vnder Benjamyns porte/ there was a porter/ called Jeriah/ the sonne of Selemiah the sonne of Hananiah/ which fell vpon him/ & toke him saying: thy mynde is to runne to the Caldees. Then sayde Jeremy: It is not so/ I go not to the Caldees. Neuertheles Jeriah wolde not beleue hym/ but brought Jeremy bounde before the Princes. Wherfore the Princes were angrye with Jeremy/ caulyng him to be beatē/ & to be layed in prison in the house of Jonathas ỹ scribe. For he was the rular of ỹ prison. Thus was Jeremy put in to the dongeon & prison/ & so laye there a longe tyme. Then Zedekiah the kyng sent for him/ & called hym/ & asked him quyetly in his awne house/ saying: thinkest thou this busynes (that now is in hande) cōmeth of the Lorde? Jeremy answered: yee ỹ it doth: & thou (sayde he) shalt be delyuered in to the kynge of Babylons power.

Moreouer/ Jeremy sayde vnto kyng Zedekiah: What haue I offended agaynst the/ agaynst thy seruaūtes or agaynst thys people/ ỹ ye haue caused me to be put in prison? Where are your prophetes which haue prophecyed vnto you/ & sayde/ that the kynge of Babylō shulde not come agaynst you & this lande? And therfore heare now/ O my Lorde the kynge: let my prayer be accepte before the/ & sende me nomore into the house of Jonathas the Scrybe/ ỹ I dye not there. Then Zedekiah the kyng commaunded to put Jeremy in the fore entrye of the prison/ & dayly to be geuē him a cake of bred/ & els no dighte meate/ vntyll all the bred in ỹ cyte was c* eaten vp. Thus Jeremye remayned in the fore entre of the prison.

¶ By the occyon of the rulers Jeremy is put in to a dongeon. At the request of Abedmelech the Chamberlayne/ the kyng cōmaūdeth Jeremy to be brought forth of the Dongeon. Jeremye sheweth the kynge how he myght escape deeth.

A Saphatiah the sonne of Mathan / Godoliah ỹ sonne of Phashur / Iucal the sonne of Selemiah / and Phashur ỹ sonne of Melchiah perceaued the wordes / that Jeremy had spokē vnto all the people / namely on thys maner:

Jeremy.xxi.b. xxvij.a. Thus sayeth the Lord: Who so remayneth in this cytie / shall perish / ether with ỹ swearde / with honger or with the pestilence: But who so falleth vnto ỹ Caldees / shal escape / *winnynge his soule for a pray / & shall lyue. For thus sayeth the Lorde. Thys cyte (no doute) must be delyuered in to the power of ỹ kynge of Babilō / & he also shal wīne it. Then sayde ỹ prynces vnto ỹ kinge: Syr / we beseech you let this man be put to death / For thus he discourageth the handes of ỹ soudyers that be in this cytie / & the handes of all ỹ people / whē he speaketh soch wordes vnto thē. Thys mā verely laboureth not for peace of the people / but mischefe. Zedekiah the kinge answered & sayde: lo / he is in your handes / for ỹ kynge maye denye you no thynge. Then toke they Jeremy / and cast hym in to the dongeon of Melchiah ỹ sonne of Hamelech / that dwelt in the fore entre of the prison. And they lett downe Jeremy wt coardes in to a dongeon / where there was no water / but myre. So Jeremy stack fast in the myre. Now when Abedmelech the Mozian beyng a chamberlayne in the kingꝭ courte / vnderstode / ỹ they had cast Jeremy in to the dongeon: he went out of the kinges house / & spake to ỹ kinge / (which thē sat vnder ỹ poorte of Ben Jamin) these wordes: My lorde the kinge / where as these men medle wyth Jeremy the prophet / they do him wronge: Namely / in ỹ they haue put him in prison / there to dye of honger / for there is no more bred in the cytye. Then the kinge commaunded Abedmelech ỹ Mozian and sayde: Take from hence.xxx.men whom thou wilt / & drawe vp Jeremy ỹ prophet out of the dongeon / before he dye. So Abedmelech toke the men wt him / & went to the house of Amalech / & there vnder an almery he gatt olde ragges & worne cloutes / and lett them downe by a coarde / in to ỹ dongeō to Jeremy.

*Wynnynge hys soule for a praye: this is expounded before an the.xxi. Chapter.c.

And Abedmelech the Mozian sayde vnto the prophet Jeremy: O put these ragges and cloutes vnder thyne arme holes / betwyxte them and the coardes: & Jeremy dyd so. So they drewe vp Jeremy wyth coardes & toke him out of ỹ dongeon / & he remayned in the fore entrye of the prison. Then Zedekiah the kynge sent & caused Jeremy the prophet be called vnto him / in to the thirde entrye / ỹ was by the house of the Lord. And the kinge sayde vnto Jeremy: I will aske ỹ some what but hyde nothinge fro me. Then Jeremy answerde Zedekiah: Yf I be playne vnto the / thou wilt cause me suffre death: yf I geue ỹ councel / thou wilt not folowe me. So the kinge swore an ooth secretly vnto Jeremy / sayenge: As truly as the Lorde lyueth / that made vs these soules / I wil not slaye the / ner geue the in to the handes of them that seke after thy lyfe.

Jere.xxvij.c.

Then sayde Jeremye vnto Zedekiah: Thus saieth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: If case be / that thou wilt go forth vnto the kinge of Babilons princes / thou shalt saue thy lyfe / and this cytie shall not be brēt yee both thou and thy housholde shall escape with youre lyues. But yf thou wylt not go forth to the kynge of Babylons princes / thē shall this cytie be delyuered in to the handes of the Caldees which shall set fyre vpon it / & thou shalt not be able to escape them. And Zedekiah sayde vnto Jeremy: I am afrayde for the Jewes / that are fled vnto ỹ Caldees / lest I come in their handes / & so they to haue me in derision.

But Jeremy answerde: No / they shal not betraye the: O herken vnto the voyce of the Lord (I beseche the) which I speake vnto ỹ / so shalt thou be well / and saue thy lyfe. But yf thou wilt not go forth / ỹ Lord hath tolde me thys planely: Beholde / all the wemen ỹ are left in the kynge of Judaes house / shall go out to the king of Babilons princes. For they thinke / that thou art disceaued: & that the men in whom thou dydest put thy trust / haue gotten the vnder / & sett thy fete fast in ỹ myre / and gone their waye from the. Therfore all thy wyues wyth their chyldren shall fle vnto the Caldees / & thou shalt not escape their handes / but shalt be the kynge of Babilons prisoner / & thys cytie shall be brent. Then sayde Zedekiah vnto Jeremye: loke ỹ no body knowe of these wordes / & thou shalt not dye. But yf the princes perceaue / that I haue talked with ỹ / & come vnto the / saiēge: O speake / what sayde the kinge to the: hyde it not from vs / & we wil not put the to death. Tell vs (we praye ỹ) what sayde the kinge to the: Se thou geue thē thys answere: I haue humbly be sought the kinge / that he wil lett me lye no more in Jehonathās house / ỹ I dye not there: Then came all the princes vnto Jeremy / and asked hym / And he tolde them / after the maner as the kinge bad hym. Then they helde their peace / for they perceaued nothynge. So Jeremy abode styl in the fore entrie of the prison / vntyll the daye that Jerusalem was wonne.

¶ Nabuchodonosor besegeth Jerusalem. Zedekiah flyeth. He is taken of the Chaldees. Hys sonnes are slayne. His eyes are thrust oute. Jeremy is prouyded for. Abedmelech is delyuered frō captyuyte / because of the confydence that he hath in God.

So Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne / Nabusalban the chefe chamberlayne / Nergalsarezer the treasurer and all the kyng of Babylons lordes / sent for Jeremy / & caused

Jeremy.xl.b Now whyle Jeremy laye yet bounde in the fore entrie of the prison / ỹ worde of ỹ Lorde came vnto him / sayinge: Goo and tell Abedmelech the Mozian: Thus sayeth the Lorde of Hoſtes the God of Israell: Beholde / the cruell and sharpe plage that I haue deuised for this cytie / will I brynge vpon them / that thou shalt se it: but I wyll delyuer ỹ (sayeth the Lorde) and thou shalt not come in the hādes of those men / whom thou feareſt. For doutles I wyll saue ỹ / so that thou shalt not perish with the sweard: but thy lyfe shalbe saued / & that because thou haſt put thy truſt in me / sayeth the Lorde

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

A Jeremy.xliij.a Josue.xviij.d.

THys is the maner how the Lorde intreated Jeremy / when Nabuzaradan the chefe Captayne had let him go fre from Ramah / whyther he had led hym bounde amonge all the prysoners / that were caryed from Jerusalem & Juda vnto Babylon. The chefe Captayne called for Jeremy / and sayde vnto hym: The Lorde thy God spake mightely before of the mysery vpō thys place: Now the Lorde hath sent it / & performed it as he had promysed: For ye haue synned agaynſt the Lorde / and haue not bene obedyēt vnto hys voyce / therfore cōmeth this plage vpon you. Beholde / I lowse the boundes from thy handes thys daye: yf thou wilt now go with me vnto Babylon / vp then: for I will se to the / & prouyde B for the: But yf thou wylt not go wyth me to Gene.xiij.b Babylon / then remayne here. Beholde / all Tobi.i.b. the lāde is at thy wyll / loke wher thou thinkeſt conueniēt & good for the to abyde / there iij.Reg.xxv.c dwell. If thou canſt not be content to dwell alone / then remayne with Godoliah ỹ sonne of Ahicam / the sonne of Saphan: whom the kynge of Babylon hath made gouernoure ouer the cyties of Juda / and dwell with him amonge the people / or remayne where soeuer it pleaseth the. So the chefe Captayne Jere.xxxix.c gaue him his expenses with a rewarde / and let him go. Then wente Jeremy vnto Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam to Mazphah / and dwelt there with him amōge the people that were left in the lande.

Now when the captaynes of the Hoſte of Juda (whych wt their felowes were scatred abrode on euery syde in the lande) vnderſtode ỹ the kyng of Babilon had made Godoliah / ỹ sonne of Ahicam gouernoure in ỹ land / & ỹ mā / wyfe & chylde / yee & the poore men in ỹ lande (that were not led captyue to Babylon) shuld be vnder his iurisdicciō: They cam to Godoliah vnto Mazphah: Namely / Ismael ỹ sonne of Nathaniah / Johanan & Jonathah ỹ sonnes of Careah / Sareah ỹ sonne of Than-of Thanhometh/the sonnes of Ophai ỹ Netophathite/Jezaniah ỹ sonne of Maachati/with their companions. And Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam/ the sonne of Saphan/swore vnto them and their felowes on thys maner: Be not afrayed to serue the Caldees/iiij.Reg.xxv.c. dwell in the lande/and do the kynge of Babylon seruyce/so shall ye prospere. Beholde/

I dwell at Mazphah to be an offycer in the Caldees behalfe/& to satisfye soch as come to vs. Therfore gather you wyne/ corne and oyle/and kepe them in youre ware houses/& dwell in youre cyties ỹ ye haue in keping.

D Yee all the Jewes also ỹ dwelt in Moab vnder the Ammonites/in Idumea and in all the countrees/when they herde/that ỹ kyng of Babylon had made Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam the sonne of Saphan/gouernoure vpon thē ỹ were left in Juda: All the Jewes (I saye) returned oute of all places where they were fled vnto: and came in to the lande of Juda to Godoliah vnto Mazphah/ & gathered wyne & other frutes/ & ỹ very moch.

Moreouer Johanan the sonne of Careah and all the captaynes of the Hoste/that were scatred on euery syde in ỹ lande/ cam to Go-doliah in Mazphah/ & sayde vnto him: kno-west thou not that Baalis kyng of the Am-monites hath sent Jsmael the sonne of Na-thaniah/to slaye the? But Godoliah ỹ sonne of Ahicam beleued them not. Then sayd Jo-hanan the sonne of Careah vnto Godoliah in Mazphah these wordes secretly: Lett me go/I praye the/and I will slaye Jsmael the sonne of Nathaniah/ so that no body shall knowe it. Wherfore will he kyll the/that all the Jewes which resorte vnto the/myght be scatred/and the remnaunt in Juda perishe?
Then sayde Godoliah ỹ sonne of Ahicam to Johanan the sonne of Careah: Thou shalt not do it/for they are but lies/ that men saye of Jsmael.

¶ Jsmael kylleth Godoliah gylefully/& many other with hym. Johanan followeth after Jsmael.

¶ The .xli. Chapter.

A iiij.Reg.xxv.d BUt in the seuenth Moneth it happened/that Jsmael ỹ sonne of Na-thaniah the sonne of Elisama (one of the kynges bloude) came wyth them that were greatest aboute the kyng/ & ten men ỹ were sworne with him: vnto Go-doliah the sonne of Ahicam to Mazphah/ & ate there together. And Jsmael the sonne of Nathaniah wyth those ten men that were sworne to him/ starte vp/ and smote Godo-liah the sonne of Ahicam the sonne of Saphan with the swearde/and slewe him/ whō the kyng of Babylon had made gouernoure of the lande. Jsmael also slewe all the Jewes that were with Godoliah at Mazphah/& all the Caldees that he founde there waytinge vpon him.

The nexte daye after that he had slayne Godoliah (the matter was yet vnknowne)
there came certayne men from Sichem/frō Siloh & Samaria/ to the nombre of .lxxx.
whych had shauen their beerdes/ rent their clothes/& were all heuye/bringyng meat of-fringes/and incense in their handes/to offre it in the house of the Lorde. And Jsmael the B sonne of Nathaniah wēt forth of Mazphah weepynge/to mete them. Now when he met them/he sayde: Go youre waye to Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam. And whē they came in ỹ middest of ỹ citie/Jsmael the sonne of Na-thaniah (wt thē that were sworne vnto hym) slewe them/ euen at the myddest of the pyt.
Amonge these .lxxx. men there were ten/that sayde vnto Jsmael: Oh slaye vs not/ for we haue yet a greate treasure in the felde/ of wheate/barley/oyle & hony. So he spared them/and slewe them not with their brethrē
Now the pyt wherin Jsmael dyd cast ỹ deed bodyes of the men (whom he slewe because of Godoliah) had kynge Asa caused to be iij.Reg.xxv.c.
made/for feare of Baasa ỹ kynge of Jsrael/and the same pyt dyd Jsmael fyll with slayne men. As for the remnaunt of the people/the kynges daughters and all the people ỹ were C yet left at Mazphah/vpon whom Nabusa-radan the cheke Captayne had made Godo-liah ỹ sonne of Ahicam gouernoure: Jsmael the sonne of Nathaniah caryed them awaye prysoners towarde ỹ Ammonites. But whē Johanan the sonne of Careah and all they which had bene captaynes ouer the kynges they toke their companions/ & went out for to fyght wyth Jsmaell the sonne of Natha-niah/& founde him by the waters of Rabim in Gabaon. Now when all the people/whō Jsmael led captyue/sawe Johanan ỹ sonne of Careah & all the other Captaynes of the Hoste/they were glad. So all the people ỹ Jsmael had caryed awaye from Mazphah/were brought agayne.

And when they returned/they came to Jo hanan the sonne of Careah. But Jsmael the sonne of Nathaniah fled frō Johanan wyth D eyght of his sworne companyons/ & wente to the Ammonites. Then Johanan ỹ sonne of Careah & all the captaynes of the Hoste ỹ were wt him/toke the remnaunt of ỹ people/whom Jsmael the sonne of Nathaniah had led awaye (When he had slayne Godoliah ỹ sonne of Ahicam) whō they also had rescued frō hym: fyghting men/wemē & chyldren/ & gelded men/whom they brought agayne frō Gabaon: and wente from thence/& sat them downe

downe at Geruth Camaam/ which lieth beſyde Bethlehē/that they might go into Egipte for feare of the Caldees: of whome they were afrayed/because that Jſmael the ſonne of Nathaniah had ſlayne Godoliah Ahikams

¶ The Captaynes aske councell of Jeremye what they ought to do. Jeremye monyſheth the remnaunt of the people not to go into Egypte.

¶ The.xlij. Chapter.

THen all the rulers/and Johanan the ſonne of Kareah/Jezaniah ỹ ſonne of Oſaiah came with all ỹ people from ỹ leeſt vnto the moſt/& ſayde
Jeremy.xxi.a vnto Jeremy the prophet: O heare oure peJere.xxxvij.a ticion/that thou mayeſt praye for vs vnto ỹ Lorde thy God/and for the remnaunt/wher of there be very few left of many/as thou ſeiſt vs: that the Lorde/thy God may ſhew vs a waye to go in/& tell vs/what we ſhulde do. Then Jeremy the Prophete ſayde vnto thē: Jhaue herde you. Beholde/J will praye vnto God youre Lorde/as ye haue requyred me: and loke what anſwere the Lord geueth you/J ſhall certifye you therof/and kepe no thing back frō you. And they ſayde vnto Je-
Joſu.i.e remy: The Lorde of treuth and faithfulnes
1.Mach.ij.d be oure recorde/that we will do all/that the Jere.xlij.a B Lorde thy God commaundeth vs/whether it be good or euell. We will herken vnto the voyce of oure Lord God to whom we ſende the that we maye proſpere/when we haue folowed the voyce of the Lorde oure God.

And after ten dayes came the worde of ỹ Lord vnto Jeremy. Then called he Johanan the ſonne of Kareah/& all the captaynes of the people that were with him: yee and al the people from the leeſt to the moſt/and ſayde vnto them: Thus ſaieth the Lord God of Jſrael vnto whō ye ſent me/to laye forth your prayers before him: If ye will dwell in thys lande/J ſhal buylde you vp/and not breake you downe: J ſhall plante you/and not rote you out: for J am pacifyed/as concernynge the trouble that J haue done to you. Feare not the king of Babilon/of whom ye ſtande in awe: O be not afrayed of hym/ſayeth the Lorde: for J will be with you/to helpe you/& delyuer you from hys hande. J will pardon you/J will haue mercy vpon you/and bring you agayne in to youre awne lande.

C Neuertheles/yf ye purpoſe not to dwell in this lande/ner to folowe the voyce of the Lorde youre God: but will ſaye thus/we will not dwell here/but go in to Egypte: where we ſhal nether ſe warre/heare ỹ noyſe of batel/ner ſuffre hōger/there wil we dwel. Wherfore heare now the worde of ỹ Lorde/ O ye remnaunt of Juda. Thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes the God of Jſrael: If ye be wholy purpoſed to go in to Egypte/and to be there as ſtraungers: the ſwearde that ye feare/ſhall ouer take you in Egypte: and the honger wher of ye be here afrayed ſhal hāge vpon you in to Egypte/and there ye ſhall dye. For all they/that of lett purpoſe vndertake to go in to Egypte/there to eaſe them ſelues of their myſery/ſhall perysh with the ſwearde/wyth honger and peſtylence: not one of them ſhall remayne/there ſhall none eſcape the plage/ỹ J will bringe vpon thē.

For thus ſaieth the Lorde of hooſtes the God of Jſraell: lyke as my wrath and indygnacyon is come vpon the inhabytatours of Jeruſalē/ſo ſhal my dyſpleaſure go forth vpon you alſo/yf ye go in to Egypte: For D there ye ſhalbe reuyled/abhorred/brought to ſhame and confuſiō: and as for this place/ ye ſhal neuer ſe it more. The Lorde forbydeth you (O ye remnaūt of Juda) ỹ ye ſhall not go in to Egypte.

And forget not ỹ J haue warned you earneſtly this daye els ſhal ye begile your ſelues. For ye ſent me vnto the Lorde youre God/ and ſayde: O praye thou the Lord oure God for vs: and loke what anſwere ỹ Lorde oure God geueth the/that bringe vs agayne/and we ſhal do therafter. Now haue J ſhewed/ and declared vnto you the voyce of the Lord youre God/for the whych cauſe he hath ſent me to you. If ye wyl not folowe it/be ſure/ỹ ye ſhal peryſhe with the ſwearde/with honger & peſtilence: euē in the ſame place/where youre luſt was to go/and dwell.

¶ Johanan carpeth the remnaunt of the people in to Egypte/contrary to the mynde of Jeremye. Jeremy prophecyeth the deſtruccyon of Egypte.

¶ The. xliij. Chapter.

NOw when Jeremy had ended all ỹ wordes of the Lorde God vnto the A people (for their ſakes to whom God had ſent him) Azariah ỹ ſonne of Oſaiah/& Johanan the ſonne of Kareah wt all the proude perſonnes/ſayde vnto Jeremy: Thou lyeſt/the Lorde oure God hath not ſent ỹ to ſpeake vnto vs/that we ſhulde not go in to Egipte/and dwell there: But B Baruch the ſonne of Neriah prouoketh the agaynſt vs/that he myght bringe vs in to ỹ captyuyte of the Caldees: that they myght ſlaye vs/and carye vs awaye priſoners vnto Babylon.

So Johanan the ſonne of Kareah/and all the captaynes of the hooſte/and all the people folowed not the commaundement of the Lorde: Namely/to dwell in the lande of Juda: But Johanan the ſonne of Kareah/and all the captaynes of the hoofte / caryed awaye all the remnaunt in Juda / that were come together agayne from the Heythen (amonge whom they had bene scatred) to dwel in the lande of Juda: Men / wemen / childrē / the kynges daughters: all those that Nabuzaradan the cheke captayne had left wt Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam. They caryed

C awaye also the prophet Jeremy / Baruch the sonne of Neriah / & so came in to Egypte: for they were not obedyēt / vnto the cōmaundement of God. Thus came they to Thaphnis.

Jere. xli. c.

And in Thaphnis the worde of the Lord happened vnto Jeremy / saying: Take great stones in thyne hande / and hyde them in ỹ bryck wall / vnder the doore of Pharaos house in Thaphnis / that all the men of Juda maye se / and saye vnto them: Thus saieth ỹ Lorde of hooftes the God of Israell: Beholde / I wyll sende and call for Nabuchodonofor the kynge of Babilon my seruaunt / & wyll sett his seate vpon these stones that I haue hyd / & he shall spreade his tente ouer them.

Jeremy. xlvi. c.

And when he commeth / he shall smyte the D lande of Egypte with slaughter / wt prefonment / and with the swearde. He shall set fyre vpon the temples of the Egyptians goddes / and burne them vp / & take them selues preſoners. Moreouer he shall araye himselfe wt the lande of Egipte / like as a shepherde putteth on hys cote / and shall departe hys waye from thence in peace. The pylers also of the temple of the Sunne that is in Egypte: shall he breake in peces / and burne the tempels of the Egipcians goddes.

The reproueth the people for their Idolatrye. They that set lyght by the threatenyng of the Lord / are chastened. The destruccyō of Egypte & the Jewes therin / is prophecyed.

C The .xliiij. Chapter.

A THis is the worde that was shewed to Jeremy concerninge all the Jewes / whych dwelt in Egypte: at Magdal / at Thaphnis / at Memphis / & in the lande of Patures. Thus saieth the Lorde of hooftes the God of Israell: ye haue sene all ỹ mysery / that I haue brought vpon Jerusalem / and vpon all the cytyes of Juda: so that this daye they are desolate / and no man dwelling therin: and that because of the great blasphemyes / which they committed / to prouoke me vnto anger: In that they wente backe to do sacrifyce / and worshype vnto straūge goddes: whom nether they / ner ye / ner your fathers haue knowne. Yow be it / I sent vnto them my seruaūtes all the prophetes: I rose vp early / I sent vnto them / & gaue them warninge: O do no soch abhominable thinges / and thinges that I hate. But they wolde not folowe ner herken / to turne from their wyckednes / and to do nomore sacrifice vnto straunge goddes.

Jere. xxv. a. xxix. c.

Wherfore myne indygnacyon and wrath was kyndled / and it brente vp the cytyes of B Juda / the feldes with the stretes of Jerusalē so that they were made waste and desolate / as it is come to passe this daye. Now therfore thus saieth the Lorde of hooftes the God of Israell: How happeneth it / ỹ ye do so greate euell vnto youre awne soules / thus to destroye the men and wemen / childzen and babes of Juda? so that none of you is left / because ye prouoke me vnto wrath wyth the worckes of your awne handes: when ye offre vnto straunge goddes in the lande of Egipte where as ye be gone to dwell: That ye might vtterly perisshe / and that ye myght be reuyled and shamefully intreated of all nacyons. Or haue ye now forgotten the wyckednes of your forefathers / the wyckednes of the kynges of Juda & their wyues / the wyckednes that ye youre selues and your wyues haue done in the lande of Juda / in the cytye and in the lande of Jerusalem?

Yet are ye not sory this daye / ye feare not nether walke ye in my lawe and in my com-
C maundementes / that I haue geuē vnto you and youre forefathers.

Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of hooftes the God of Israell: I am stedfastly aduysed and determed / to punysh you / and to rote out all Juda. As for the remnaunt of Juda that purposly wente in to Egipte / there to ease them of their mysery: I wyll take thē and they shall all be destroyed. In the lande of Egypte shall they perysh beynge consumed with the swearde and with honger. For from the leest vnto the moste / they shall perisch with the swearde & with hōger. Moreouer they shalbe reuyled / abhorred / shamed / and confounded. For I will vysyt them that dwell in Egipte / as I haue vysited Jerusalem: with the swearde / with honger and with pestilence: So that none of the remnaunt of Juda / which are gone to dwell in Egipt shal be left to come agayne in to ỹ lande of Juda all though they thynke to come thyther agayne / & to dwell there. For none shall come agayne / but soch as are fled awaye.

Amos. ix. b. Jere. xlij. c. and. xliij. a. Jere. xxxix.

Then all the men which knewe that their
D wyues had offred vnto straunge goddes / and a greate sorte of wyues that stode there / yee and all ỹ people that dwelt there in Egypte in the cytie of Patures / answerde Jeremy / and sayde: As for the wordes that thou hast spoken vnto vs in the name of the Lord / we will in no wyse heare them: but whatsoeuer goeth out of oure awne mouth / that wyll we do: We will do sacrifice / and offre oblacions vnto the Quene of heauē: lyke as we & our forefathers / oure Kynges and oure heades

But sens we left / to offre / and to do sacrifyce vnto the Quene of heauen / we haue had scarcenes of all thinges / and perish with the swearde & honger. Last of all / when we wemen dyd sacrifyce and offred vnto the Quene of heauē / dyd we make her cakes and poure vnto her drynckoffrynges / to do her seruyce / without oure housbandes wylles?

E
1. Macha. i.b.

Then sayde Jeremy vnto all the people / to the men / to the wemen & to all the folcke / which had geuen him that answere: Did not the Lorde remembre the sacrifyces that ye / youre forefathers / youre kynges and rulers (with all the people) haue offred in the cyties of Juda / in the stretes & land of Jerusalem: and hath he not consydred this in his minde? In so moch / that the Lorde might no longer suffre the wyckednes of youre inuencyons / and the abhominable thinges which he dyd? Is not youre lande desolate & voyde / yee and abhorred / so that no mā dwelleth therin eny more / as it is come to passe this daye?

Dyd not all this happē vnto you / be cause ye made soch sacrifyce / & synned agaynst the Lorde: Ye haue not folowed his voyce / to walcke in his lawe / in hys ordinaunces and statutes.

And all the remnaūt of Juda / that are gone in to Egypte / there to dwell / shall knowe whose wordes shalbe founde true: theirs or myne. Take this for a token / that I wyll visit you in this place / sayeth the Lorde / and that ye maye knowe / how that I (wythoute doute) will performe my purpose vpō you to punysh you. Beholde / sayeth the Lorde / I wyll delyuer Pharao Hophrea kynge of Egypt in to the handes of his enemyes / that seke after his lyfe: euen as I gaue Zedekiah the kynge of Juda in to the handes of Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babylō / which sought after his lyfe.

Esai. xix. a. xxx. a.

Here folowe the wordes of ỹ Lorde to the prophete Jeremy / which he spake vnto the Gentyles. These wordes folowynge preached he to the Egyptyans concernyng the Host of Pharao Necho kyng of Egypte / when he was in Charcamis beside the water of Euphrates: what tyme as Nabuchodonozor the kynge of Babylon slewe him / In the fourth yeare of Jehoakim the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda.

Ye make redy buckler and shylde / ye goo forth to fight: Ye harnesse youre horses / & set youre selues vpon them: Ye set your salettes fast on / ye bryng forth speares / ye scoure youre swordes / & put on your brest plates.

But alas / how happeneth it / that I se you so afrayed? why shryncke ye backe? wherfore are your worthies slayne? Yee they rūne so fast awaye/ that none of them loketh behynde hym. Fearfulnesse is fallen vpon euerychone of them sayeth the Lorde. The lightest of fote shall not fle awaye/ and the worthyes shall not escape.

B Towarde the North by the water of Euphrates/ they shall stomble & fall. But what is he this/ ꝯ welleth vp/ as it were a floude/ roaring & raginge like ꝯ streames of water? It is Egipte that ryseth vp like the floude/ & casteth out the waters with so great noyse.

For they saye: We will go vp/ & wil couer the earth: we will destroye the cytyes/ wyth thē that dwell therin. Get you to horse backe & roll forth the Charrettes/ come forth ye worthies: ye Morians/ ye Libeans with youre buclers/ ye Lideans with youre bowes: So shall this daye be vnto the Lord God of hoostes/ a daye of vengeaunce/ that he maye avenge him of his enemyes. The swearde shal deuoure/ it shalbe satysfyed & bathed in their bloude: a* For the Lorde God of hoostes shall haue a slayne offrynge towarde the North/ by the water of Euphrates. Go vp (O Galaad) and bryng tryacle vnto the daughter of Egipte:

But in vayne shalt thou go to surgery/ for thy wounde shall not be stopped. The heythen shal heare of thy shame/ & the lande shalbe full of thy confusyon: for one stronge man shall stomble vpon another/ how then shulde they not fall both together.

These are the wordes that ꝯ Lorde spake to the prophet Jeremy/ concerning the hoost of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon/ whych was sent to destroye ꝯ lāde of Egypt: Preach out thorow the lande of Egypte/ and cause it be proclamed at Magdol/ Mēphys and Thaphnis/ & saye: Stande styll/ make there dye/ for the swearde shall consume the rounde aboute.

How happeneth it that thy myghtye worthies are fallen? why stode they not fast? Euen because the Lord thrust them downe. The slaughter was greate/ for one fell euer still vpon another. One cryed vpon another: Vp/ lett vs go agayne to oure awne people/ and to oure awne natural countre/ from the swearde of oure enemye.

Crye euen there: O Pharao kynge of Egipte/ the tyme will bryng ledycyon. As truly as I lyue (sayeth the kynge/ whose name is the Lorde of hoostes) it shall come as the mount of Thabor/ & as Lybanus yͤ it stode in the see. O thou daughter of Egipte make redy thy geer to flyt. For Memphys shalbe voyde and desolate/ so that no man shal dwel therin. b* The lāde of Egipte is like a goodly fayre calf/ but one shal come out of the north to pryck her forward. c* Her wagied soudiers that be with her/ are lyke fat calues.

They also shal fle awaye together/ and not abyde: for the daye of their slaughter and the tyme of theyr visitacyon shall come vpon them.

The crye of their enemyes shall make a noyse/ as the blast of a trompett. For they shall entre in with their hooste/ and come with axes/ as it were hewers downe of wod. And they shall cut downe her wod/ sayeth the Lorde/ with out eny discrecyō. For they shall be mo in nombre then the grashoppers/ so that no man shalbe able to tell them. The daughter of Egipte shalbe confounded/ whē she shalbe delyuered in to the handes of the people of the north.

Moreouer thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israell: Beholde I will vyset that restlesse people of Alexandria/ Pharao and Egypte/ yee both their goddes and theyr kinges: euen Pharao/ and all them that put their trust in him. Yee I will deliuer thē into the hādes of those/ that seke after their lyues Namely/ in to the power of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon/ and in to ꝯ power of his seruauntes. And after all these thyngs it shalbe inhabyted as a fore tyme/ sayeth the Lorde.

But be not thou afraied (O my seruaūt Jacob) feare not thou/ O Israell. For lo/ I wil helpe the from farre/ and thy sede from ꝯ lāde of thy captyuyte. Jacob also shall come agayne/ and be in rest: he shall be rych/ and no man shall do him harme. Feare thou nott (O Jacob my seruaunt) sayeth the Lorde/ for I am with the: and wyll destroye all nacyons/ amonge whom I haue scatred the. Neuertheles I wyll not consume the/ but chasten the and correcte the: yee and that with discrecyon: nether wyll I spare the as one ꝯ were fautlesse.

¶ The worde of the Lorde agaynst the Philistines.

¶ The. xlvij. Chapter.

THese are the wordes/ ꝯ the Lorde spake vnto Jeremye the prophete agaynst the Philistines/ before that Pharao smote the cytie of Azah. Thus sayeth the Lord: Beholde/ there shall waters aryse oute of the North: & shall growe to a greate floude/ runnynge ouer and couerynge the lande/ the cytyes/ & them that dwell therin.

And the men shall crie/ & all they ꝯ dwell in ꝯ lande/ shall mourne at the noyse & stampynge of their stronge barbed horses/ at the shakynge of their charettes and at the romblynge of the wheles. The fathers shall not loke to their children/ so feable and wery shall their handes be: at the same tyme/ when he

a* The Caldees kylled the Egyptyās/ at ꝯ floudde of Euphrates/ which was towarde ꝯ North: where as yet their hoste was wonderous greate/ & their horses & charettes many. But ꝯ greater their hoste was/ ꝯ moare cruell was their slaughter: so dyd the Lorde punyshe their wyckednesse/ geuynge them into the handes of the Chaldees: and therfore calleth the Prophete the daye of their slaughter/ the daye of the Lordes vengeaūce/ & them a slayne offring of the Lorde.

b* As though he sayde. Hither to (O Egypte) hast thou bene as a goodly fayre calf/ for thyne aboūdāce of riches. Therfore as bullockes & oxen are stonge wt hornettes & prycked forwarde wt godes (or as some call them gaddes) so shall the Babylonyans stynge and pryck the/ & dryue the to flight & ouerthrow ꝯ. By hym ꝯ shuld come out of the North/ is vnderstāde the kynge of Babilō & hys hoost

c* Her waged soudyars. & ce. The meanyng is/ that the hyred hoste of the Egyptyās gathered of the coastes that borderyd therō/ shulde be fearful & weake: & more deynty & delicious/ then strōg & manfull/ as men fattened lyke stall fedde oren: so ꝯ they shulde also flye with the Egyptiās/ whē their myserye drewe nye/ & when the daye of their visitacyon & punyshmēt shulde come.

when he shal be there / to destroye the whole lande of ỹ Philistines. He shall make waste both Tirus / Sidon and all other that are cwozne vnto them.

For the Lozde wyll destroye all Palestina / and the other Iles / that be deuyded from the countre. Baldnesse is come vpon Azah / Ascalon wyth her other valleys shall kepe her peace.

How longe wylt thou slaye / O thou swearde of ỹ Lozd? Turne agayne in to thy sheeth / reste / and leaue of. But how can it ceasse / when the Lozde him selfe hath geuen him a charge agaynst Ascalon / and rayled it vp agaynst the cyties of the see coast?

¶ The wozde of the Lozde agaynst the Moabytes.

¶ The. xlviij. Chapter.

Thus sayeth the Lozde of Hostes ỹ God of Israel agaynst Moab: wo be to the citie of Nabo / for it shall be layed waste / brought to confusyon & taken. Yee thy strong citie of Kariathiarim shalbe brought to shame / & afrayed: Moab shal nomoze be had in honoure: Wicked councell shalbe taken vpon Helebon. Come (shall they saye (let vs rote them oute / ỹ they maye be nomoze amonge ỹ nombze of the Gentyles / yee that they maye nomoze be thought vpõ: Thus the swearde shal persecute the: A voyce shall crye from Hozonaim: With greate wastynge & destruccyon / is Moab made desolate.

And this crye shalbe herde in all her cyties. At the going vp vnto Luith there shall aryse a lamentacion: & downe towarde Horonaim / there shall be herde a cruell and a deedly crye: Get you awaye / saue your lyues and be lyke vnto the heeth in the wyldernes. For because thou hast trusted in thy stronge holdes & treasure / thou shalt be takẽ a*Chamos with his prestes and prynces shall goo awaye in to captyuite.

The destroyer shall come vpon all cities / none shall escape. The valleys shalbe destroyed / & ỹ feldes shall be layed waste: like as the Lozde hath determed.

b* Make a token vnto Moab / that she gete her awaye spedely: for her cytyes shalbe made so desolate / ỹ no man shall dwell therin. c* Cursed be he that doth the wozcke of ỹ Lozd negligently / and cursed be he that kepeth backe hys swearde from sheddynge of bloude.

Moab hath euer bene ryche and carlesse from her youth vp / she hath sytten and takẽ her ease with her treasure. She was neuer yet put out of one vessell in to another (that is (she neuer wente awaye in to captyuite / therfoze her taste remayneth / & her sauoure is not yet chaunged.

But lo / the tyme cõmeth / sayeth ỹ Lozd / that I shall sende her trussers to trusse her vp / to prepare & season her vessels: yee her tanckerdes rattell and shake to and fro. And Moab shalbe ashamed of Chamos / lyke as Israel was ashamed of Bethel / wherin she put her trust.

Wherfoze do ye thyncke thus: we are mighty / and stronge men of warre? Moab shall be destroyed / & her cyties bzente vp: her chosen yonge men shal be slayne / sayeth ỹ king / whose name is the Lozde of Hostes. The destruccion of Moab commeth on a pace / and her fall is at hande.

All her neyghbours shall mourne for her / and all they that know her name / shall saye: O howhappeneth it / that the stronge staf & the goodly rodd is thus bzoken? And thou daughter Dibon / come downe fro thy glozy / and syt in pouerte. For he that destroyeth Moab / shal come vp to the also / and bzeake downe thy stronge holdes.

And thou that dwellest in Aroer / get the to the strete / & loke about the: aske thẽ that are fled and escaped / and saye: what thynge is happened? O / Moab is confounded and ouercome.

Mourne and crye / tell it out at Arnon / that Moab is destroyed. And mysery shall come vpon the playne lande: Namely / vpon Holon / & Jahazah: vpõ Mephaath & Dibon vpon Nabo and the house of Beblathaim / vpon Cariathiarim and Bethgamul / vpon Bethmaon and Carioth / vpõ Bozrah and al the cytyes in the lande of Moab / whether they lie farre oz neare.

The hozne of Moab shall be smytten downe / & her arme bzoken / saieth the Lozde. Make her dronken / for she magnyfyed her selfe aboue the Lozde / that men maye clappe their handes at her vomyte / and that she also maye be laughed to scozne. O Israell / shalt thou not laugh him to scozne / whẽ he is takẽ amonge theues? Yee because of thy wozdes that thou hast spoken agaynst hym / thou shalt be dzyuen awaye. Ye Moabites shall leaue the cyties / & dwell in rockes of stone / & become like dowues / that make their nestes in holes. Numer. xxiiij. a

As for Moabs pryde / we haue herde of it, she is veryhie mynded. I knowe her stoutnesse / her bostinge / her arogancy & the pryde of her stomack / sayeth the Lozde. For her furiousnes maye nether bybolde her w strẽgth ner dede. Therfoze shall ther mournynge be made for Moab / and euery man shall crye for Moabs sake: a lamentacyõ shalbe made to the men that stande vpon the wall. So will I mourne for the also / O Jazer / and for the / O thou vyneyarde of Sabamah. E Esay. xvi. b. Jeremy. xlix.

The Prophecy

Thy wyne braunches shall come ouer ẏ see/& the braunches of Jazer but vnto ẏ see:
the destroyer shall breake in to thy haruest & grape gatheringe: Myrth & cheare shalbe taken awaye from the tymbrekelde/ and frō
the whole lande of Moab.

There shal be no swete wine in the prelle/the treader shall haue no stomacke to crye/yee there shalbe none to crie vnto him: which a fore tyme were herde frō hesebon to Eleale and Jahaz/ which lifted vp their voyce from Zoar vnto Horonaim:/ that bullock of thre yeare olde. The waters also of Nemrim shalbe dried vp.

¶ Moreouer I wyll make Moab ceasse (saieth the Lorde) from the offrynges & censynge that she hath made vnto her goddes in hye places. Wherfore my hert mourneth for Moab / lyke a crowde playenge an heup songe: and for the mens sake of the brycke wall my herte mourneth also/ euē as a pype that pipeth a dolefull songe: for they shalbe very fewe /and destroyed.

All heades shall be shauen/and al beerdes clypped of: all handes bounde/and al loynes gyrded aboute with sack cloth. Upon all the house toppes and stretes of Moab / there shalbe mournyng: For I wyl breake Moab like an vnprofitable vessell saieth the Lord.
O how fearfull is she? O how mourneth she? O how doth Moab hange downe her head / and is ashamed? Thus shal Moab be a laughinge stocke/and had in derision of all them/that be rounde aboute her.

For thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde/ the Deut. xxviij.c enemye shal come flyenge as an Aegle/and Jeremy.xlix.d spreade his wynges vpon Moab. They shall clymme ouer the walles/& wynne the strōge holdes. Then ẏ mighty mēs hertes in Moab shalbe lyke the herte of a woman trauelyng Jeremy.xlix.d. with childe.

And Moab shalbe made so desolate/¶ that she shall nomore be a people / because she hath sett vp her self agaynst the Lorde.
Feare / pyt / and snare shall come vpon the (O Moab) sayeth the Lorde. Who so escapeth the feare/ shall fall in the pyt: and who so getteth out of the pyt/ shall be taken in the Esaye.xxiiij.c. snare.

For I wyll bringe a yeare of visytacyon vpon Moab/saieth the Lorde. They that are able to flye/ shall stande vnder ẏ shadow of Hesebon. For there shall go a fyre out of Hesebon/and a flame from Sion/ and shall burne vp that proude people of Moab/both before and behynde.

Wo be vnto the (O Moab) for thou people of Chamos shalt perysh: Yee thy sonnes and daughters shall be led awaye captyue.
Yet at the last wyll I bringe Moab out of captyuite agayne/ saieth the Lorde. Thus farre of the plage of Moab.

¶ The worde of the Lorde agaynst the Ammonytes/agaynst Idumea/Damascus/Cedar and Elam.

¶ The.xlix.Chapter.

AS concerninge the Ammonytes/ I thus the Lord sayeth: Hath Israell Ezechi.xxi.d.ẏ
no chyldren / or is he wythout an xxv.a. heyre? Why hath youre kynge thē Amos.i.a.
taken Gad in? wherfore doth his people dwel in his cyties? Beholde therfore/the tyme cōmeth (sayeth the Lorde) that I wyll bringe a noyse of warre in to Rabah of the Ammo-nytes. Lahel shalbe desolate/ and her cytyes brent vp: and the Israelytes shall be lordes ouer those that had them in possession afore/saieth the Lorde. Hesebon shall mourne/ for it shal be roted out of the grounde/sayeth the Lorde. The cytyes of Rabah shall crie out/and gyrde them selues wyth sack cloth: they shall mourne/and runne aboute the walles:
for their kynge shall be led awaye prysoner:
yee his prestes & princes with him. B

Wherfore trustest thou in ẏ water stream̄ that flowe to and fro/ O thou fearce daughter: and thynkest thou art so safe (by reason of thy treasure) that no mā shal come to the?

Beholde/I will bringe a feare vpon ẏ/saieth the Lorde God of hoostes/frō al those that be aboute the: so that ye shall be scatred euery man from another/ and no man shall gather them together agayne that be fled.
But after that/I will bringe the Ammonytes also out of captyuite agayne.

Upon the Edomytes hath the Lorde of Esai.xxi.b. hoostes spoken on thys maner: Is there no Ezech.xxv.b
more wysdome in Themā? Is there no more xxxv.k.xxxv.c. good councell amonge hys people? Is their wysdome then turned clene to naught? Gett you hence/turne youre backes/crepe downe in to the depe/ O ye cytesyns of Dedan.

For I will bringe destrucciō vpō Esau/ye and the daye of hys visitacion. If ẏ grape gatherers came vpon the / shulde they nott leaue some grapes? If the nyght robbers came vpon the/shulde they not take so moch as they thought were ynough?

But I will make Esau bare/and disco- C uer his secretes / so that he shall not be able to hyde them. His sede shalbe wasted awaye yee his brethren and his neghbours/ and he himself shall not be left behynde.

Thou shalt leaue thy fatherlesse chyldren Jeremy.xxv.b
behynde the / and I wyll kepe them and thy Eze chiel.ir.b.
wydowes shall take their comforth in me. i. Petr.iiij.c.
For thus hath the Lorde spoken: Beholde/they that mē thought were vnmete to drinke of the cuppe/haue dronken with the fyrst: & thynkest thou then to be free?

No/

No/no:thou shalt nether be quyte nor free but thou must dryncke also: For why/ I haue swore by my selfe(sayeth the Lord) that Bozrah shal become a wyldernesse/ an open shame/a laughinge stocke and curlynge: & her cyties shalbe a contynuall deserte.

D For I am perfectly informed of ỹ Lord/ that he hath sent a message all ready vnto ỹ Heathen. Gather you together/and go forth agaynst them: make you ready to the battayle / for lo: I wyll make the but small amonge the Heathen/ & lytle regarded amõge men.

Abdye.i.a. Elaye.xlvij.b. Jere.xlviij.d.

Thy hye stomack & the pryde of thy herte haue deceaued the/ because thou wylt dwell in the holes of stony rockes / & haue the hye mountaynes in possession. Neuertheles though thy nest were as hye as the Aegles/ yet wyll I cast the downe/ sayeth the Lorde. Moreouer Idumea shall be a wyldernesse: who so goeth by it/ shalbe abashed / & wonder at all her miserable plagȝ. Like as Sodome/ Gomor/ and the cyties that laye there aboute/ were turned vp syde downe (sayeth the Lorde) so shall no body dwell in Idumea/ and no man shall haue his habitacion there. Beholde/ lyke as the Lyon cõmeth vp from the pleasaunt medowes of Jordane vnto the grene pastures of Etham / so wyll I dryue him/ and make him runne agaynst her. But who is the[a] * yong man that I wyll ordeyne therto? Who is lyke vnto me? What is he ỹ wyll stryue with me? What shepherde maye stande in my handes?

a *By this younge man do somevnderstãd Alexander the great conquestar / whych ouercame all landes.

Therfore heare the councell of the Lorde/ that he hath taken vpon Idumea: & his purpose/ that he hath deuyced vpon the cytesyns Eof Theman: The leest of ỹ flocke shall teare them in peces/ & loke what fayre thyng they haue/ they shal make it waste/ & them selues also. At the noyse of their fall the earth shall quake/ ỹ crye of their voyce shalbe herde vn to the redd see. Beholde / the enemye shall come & fle vp hyther/ lyke as it were an Aegle/ & spreade his wynges vpõ Bozrah. Then shall the hertes of the worthyes in Edom be as the herte of a woman trauelyng of chyld. Vpon Damascus/ Hemath & Arphad shall come confusion/ for they shall heare euell tydynges: they shall be tossed to and fro lyke ỹ see that can not stãde styll. Damascus shalbe sore afrayde/ & shall fle/ tremblynge shall come vpon her. Sorowe & payne shall ouer take her as a woman trauelynge of chylde. But how shuld so worshipfull and glorious a citie be forsaken? Yeare therfore: her yõge men shall fall in the stretes / and all her men of warre shall be taken awaye in that tyme/ Fsayeth the Lorde of Hostes. I wyll kyndle a fyre in the walles of Damascus/ which shal consume the palace of Benhadad.

As for Cedar and the kyngdom of Hazor/ whom Nabuchodonozor the kyng e of Babylon smote downe / the Lorde hath spoken thus vpon them: Aryse/ and get you vp vnto Cedar/ and destroye the people towarde the east. Their tentes & their flockes shall they take awaye / yee their hangynges and their vessell. Their Camels also shall they carye awaye wyth them. They shall come aboute them on euery syde with a fearfull crye. Elay.xxi.f.

Fle/ get you soone awaye/ crepe in to caues/ that ye may dwell there: O yee inhabitours of Hazor sayeth the Lorde: for Nabuchodonosor ỹ kinge of Babilon hath holden a councell concernynge you / and concluded his deuyce agaynst you. Aryse/ and gett you vp agaynst yonder ryche and careles people (saieth the Lorde) whych haue nether gates ner dore barres / & that dwell not together. Their Camels shalbe stollen / & the droues of their catell dryuen awaye.

Moreouer/ these that be shaue wil I scatre to warde al the wyndes/ and bringe them to destruccyon: yee and that thorow theyr awne kamyliers / sayeth the Lorde. Hazor also shall be a dwellynge for Dragons/ and an euerlastynge wyldernesse: so that no body shall dwel there/ and no man shal haue there his habytacion.

G These are the wordes/ that the Lord spake to the prophet Jeremy concernynge Elam / in the begynnynge of the reygne of Zedechiah kynge of Juda. Thus saieth the Lord of hoostes: Beholde / I wyll b* breake the bowe of Elam/ & take awaye their strength: & vpon Elam I wyl bringe the foure windes from the foure quarters of heauen/ and wyl scatre them agaynst the same foure wyndes. And there shall be no people / but some of Elam shall fle vnto them.

b *The Elamytes were good bowemen in battell: and therfor is their bowe prophecied to be broke, &c. By whych is meant that they shulde be ouercome in battell of their enemyes/ & scatered abroade vnto the foure coastes of the earth.

For I wil cause Elam to be afrayed of their enemyes/ and of them that seke their lyues: and wyll bringe vpon them the indignacion of my wrath / sayeth the Lorde. And I wyll persecute them with the swearde so longe til I haue brought them to naught. I wyll sett c* my stole in Elam/ I wyll destroye both the king and the princes from thence/ sayeth the Lorde. But in processe of tyme/ I wil bringe Elam out of captyuytye agayne / saieth the Lorde.

c *That is (as some thick) Alexaunder the great conquestar/ that wãne Elam.

The prophecyeth the destruccyon of Babylon/ & the delyuraunce of Israel/ which was in captyuytye.

The.l. Chapter.

THe wordes that the Lorde spake vnto the prophet Jeremy/ concernyng Babylon/ and the lande of ỹ Caldees: preach amõge ỹ Gẽtiles/ lett youre voyce be heard/ make a token: I Elay.xiij.a. xlviij.a. Jere.xxv.b. xxx.a.

crie out/ kepe no sylence/ but saye: Babilon shall be wonne/ Bel shalbe confounded/ and Merodach shalbe ouercome.

Yee their goddes shall be brought to shame and their ymages shall stande in feare. For out of the north there shall come a people agaynst her/ whych shall make her lande so waste/ ꝑ no body shall dwell therin: nether man ner beast/ for they shall flye & departe from thence. a* In those dayes & at that time saieth the Lorde/ the children of Israell shal come/ they & the children of Juda/ weppynge & makinge haste/ & shall seke the Lord their God. They shall aske the waye to Sion/ thyther shall they turne their faces/ & come and hange vpon the/ in a couenaunt that neuer shall be broken.

a *Here prophecyeth he the cõming agayne of the people frõ the captiuitie of Babylon/ after ꝑ generall sycence geuen them of kyng Cyrus. ij Pacal. xxvi. g. ij. Esdr. i. a.

My people hath bene a lost flocke/ my shepherdes haue disceaued them/ and haue made them go astraye vpon the hilles. They haue gone frõ the moũtayne to ꝑ litle hyll/ & forgotten their folde. All they ꝑ came vpon B them/ haue deuoured them: & their enemies sayde: We haue made no faute agaynst thẽ/ for they haue displeased the Lorde/ yee euen the Lorde which is the bewtie of their righteousnes/ and ꝑ defended their fathers. Yet shall ye fle from Babilon/ & departe out of ꝑ lande of the Caldees/ and ye shall be as the rammes that go before the flocke. For lo/ I Jeremy. l. g will wake vp an hoost of people from ꝑ northren lande/ & bringe them vpon Babilon: these shal laye sege to it/ & winne it: Their arowes shall not mysse/ like as a connyng archer shuteth not wronge. And the Caldees shalbe spoyled/ & all they that spoyle them/ shalbe satisfied/ saieth the Lorde: because ye Esay. xlvij. a. were so chearfull and glad/ to treade downe myne heretage/ & fulfilled youre pleasures/ as the calues in the grasse: & triumphed ouer them like the bulles/ when ye had gotten the victory. Youre mothers shalbe sore confoũded/ & they ꝑ bare you/ shall come to shame. She shall be the leest sett by amõge the nacions/ boyde waste/ & dryed vp. No man shal be able to dwell there/ for the feare of the Lorde/ but she shall be whole desolate. All they that go by Babilon/ shall stande still/ & C be abashed/ & shall wondre at all her plages.

Jeremy. xviij. b xlv. b. xlvi. c. Go forth in your araye agaynst Babylon rounde aboute/ all ye that can hãdle bowes: shute at her/ spare no arowes/ for she hath synned agaynst the Lorde. Crye out: vpon her/ vpon her/ agaynst her roũde aboute: she shall yelde her selfe/ her foũdacios shall fall/ & her walles shall come downe/ for it shalbe the vengeaunce of the Lorde. Reg. xix. g. wyll bringe Israel agayne to his pleasaunt Esay. xiij. d. pasture/ that he maye fede vpon Charmel & Basan/ and be satysfyed vpon the mount of Ephraim & Galaad. In those dayes & at the same tyme (sayeth the Lorde) ꝑ the offence of Israel be sought for/ there shall none be founde: Yf men enquere for the synne of Juda/ there shalbe none: for I wyl be mercyfull vnto them/ whom I suffre to remayne ouer.

Go downe (O thou auẽger) in to the enemyes lande/ & vysyt them that dwell therin: downe with them/ and smyte them vpon the backes/ sayeth the Lorde: do accordynge to all/ that I haue commaunded the. There is gone aboute the lande a crye of a slaughter & greate murthur/ namely on thys maner: How happeneth it/ that the hammer of the whole worlde is thus brokẽ & broken in sonder? How chaunceth it/ that Babylon is become a wyldernes amonge the Heathen on this maner? I my selfe haue layed wayte for the/ and thou art taken: vnawarres art thou trapped & snared: for why/ thou hast prouoked the Lorde vnto anger: The Lorde hath opened hys house of ordynaunce/ & brought forth the weapẽs of hys wrath. For the thing that is done in the lande of the Caldees/ it is the Lorde of hoostes worcke.

These thynges shall come vpon her at the last/ they shal breake into her preuy chambres/ they shall leaue her as bare as stones/ E that be layed together vpon heapes. They shall so destroye her/ ꝑ nothinge shalbe left. They shall slaye all their mightie souldyers/ & put thẽ to death. Wo be vnto them/ for the daye & tyme of their vysitacyon is at hande. As ſoone as he letteth his voyce be herde/ the waters in ẏ ayꝛe warce fearce: He dꝛaweth vp the cloudes from the endes of the earth. He turneth the lyghtenynges to rayne/ he bꝛingeth ẏ wyndes out of their ſecrete places By the reaſon of wyſdome/ all men are become fooles. Confounded be all the caſters of ymages: foꝛ the thinge that they make is but diſceate/ and hath no bꝛeath. Vayne is it and woꝛthy to be laughed at: and in the tyme of viſitacyon it ſhall peryſh.

Neuertheles/ ẏ poꝛcyon of Jacob is none ſoch: but he ẏ made al thynges/ whoſe name is the Lorde of hooſtes/ he is the rodde of his enherytaunce. Thou bꝛeakeſt my weapens of warre/ and yet thoꝛow the I haue ſcatred the nacions & kyngdomes: Thoꝛow the haue I ſcatred hoꝛſe and hoꝛſe man/ yee the charrettes/ and ſoch as ſat vpon them: Thoꝛow the I haue ſcatred man & woman/ olde and yonge/ bacheler and mayden. Thoꝛow the I haue ſcatred the ſhepherde and his flocke/ ẏ huſbond man and his catell/ the pꝛynces and the rulers. Therfoꝛe wyl I rewarde the citie of Babylō and all her citezyns the Caldees/ with all the euell whych they haue done vnto Sion: yee that ye youre ſelues ſhall ſe it/ ſaieth the Lorde. Beholde/ I come vpon the (thou[b]* noyſome hill) ſaieth the Lorde/ thou that deſtroyeſt all landes. I wyll ſtretch out my hande ouer the/ and caſt the downe from the ſtony rockes: and will make the a bꝛente hill/ ſo that nether coꝛner ſtones/ ner pinnacies/ ner foundacyon ſtones ſhalbe taken enymoꝛe out of the/ but waſte and deſolate ſhalt thou lye foꝛ euer moꝛe/ ſayeth the Lorde.

Set vp a token in the lande: blowe ẏ trōpettes amonge the Heithen/ pꝛouoke the nacyons agaynſt her/ call the kyngdomes of Ararat/ Menni/ and Aſcanes agaynſt her: nombꝛe out Taphſar agaynſt her/ bꝛinge as greate a ſoꝛte of hoꝛſes agaynſt her/ as yf they were greſhoppers. Pꝛepare agaynſt them ẏ people of the Medes wt their kinges pꝛynces & all their chefe rulers/ yee and the whole lande that is vnder them.

The lande alſo ſhall ſhake & be afrayed/ when the deuyce of the Lorde ſhal come fōꝛth agaynſt Babilon: to make the lande of Babylon ſo waſte/ that no man ſhal dwel eny moꝛe therin. The Woꝛthies of Babilon ſhal ieaue ẏ batell/ & kepe them ſelues in ſtronge holdes/ their ſtrength hath fayled them/ they ſhalbe like wemen. Their dwellynge places ſhal be bꝛent vp/ their barres ſhalbe bꝛoken D One purſeuaunt ſhal mete another/ yee one poſte ſhal come by another/ to bꝛinge ẏ kyng of Babilon tydinges: ẏ his cytie is taken in on euery ſyde/ ẏ foꝛdes occupyed/ the fenny bꝛent vp/ and the ſoudyers ſoꝛe afrayed.

Foꝛ thus ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes the God of Iſrael: the daughter of Babilon hath bene in her tyme like as a thꝛeſhinge flooꝛe but ſhoꝛtly ſhal her harueſt come. Nabuchodonoſoꝛ the kinge of Babylō hath deuoured & deſtroyed me/ he hath made me an emptye veſſell. He ſwalowed me vp lyke a dꝛagon/ & fylled hys bely wt my delycates: he hath caſt me out/ he hath taken my ſubſtance awaye & the thinge that was left me hath he caryed vnto Babilon/ ſayeth the daughter ẏ dwelleth in Syon: yee and my bloude alſo vnto the Caldees/ ſayeth Jeruſalem. Therfoꝛe thus ſayeth the Lorde: Beholde/ I wyll defende thy cauſe/ & auenge the: I will dꝛynke vp her ſee/ & dꝛye vp her water ſpꝛynges. E

Babilon ſhall become an heape of ſtones a dwellinge place foꝛ dꝛagons/ a fearfulnes and wondꝛynge/ becauſe no man dwelleth there. They ſhall roare together lyke lyons/ and as the yonge lyons when they be angrie/ ſo ſhall they bende thē ſelues. In their heate I ſhal ſett dꝛinke befoꝛe them/ & they ſhalbe dꝛoncken foꝛ ioye: Then ſhall they ſlepe an euerlaſtinge ſlepe/ and neuer wake/ ſaieth ẏ Lorde. I ſhall carie them downe to be ſlayne like ſhepe/ like wethers and gootes. O/ how was Selach wonne? O/ how was the glozy of the whole lande taken? how happeneth it/ that Babilon is ſo wondꝛed at amonge ẏ Heathen? The ſee is riſen ouer Babilon/ and hath couered her with his greate waues. Her cytyes are layed waſte/ the lande lyeth vnbuylded and voyde: it is a lande where no man dwelleth/ and where no man traueleth thoꝛow. Moꝛeouer/ I will vyſet Bel at Babylon: and the thynge that he hath ſwalowed vp/ that ſame ſhall I plucke out of his mouth. & earth with all that is therin/ shall reioyce ouer Babylō/whē the destroyers shall come vpon her from the Nozth/ sayeth the Lozde.

Like as Babylon hath beatē downe and slayne many out of Israel/ so shall there fall many/and be slayne in all her kyngdome. Ye that haue escaped the swearde / haste you/ stande not styll/remembze the Lozde afarre of:and thincke vpō Jerusalem/ foz we were ashamed to heare the blasphemyes:oure faces were couered wyth shame/ because the straunge aleaūtes came into the Sanctuary of the Lozde. Wherfoze beholde (sayeth the Lozde) the tyme commeth / that I wyll vyset the ymages of Babylon / and thozow the whole lande they shall mourne and fall. Though Babylon clymmed vp into heauē/ and kepte her power an hye:yet shal I sende her destroyers/sayeth the Lozde.

A pyteous crye shall be heard from Babylon/and a greate misery from the lande of the Caldees:when the Lozde destroyeth thē/ and when he dzyueth out the hye stomack & proude boasting/wherwith they haue bene as furyous as the waues of greate water floudes/and made greate crakes with their wozdes. Foz the destroyers shall come vpon her (euen vpon Babylon) whych shall take her wozthyes/and breake their *bowes:foz God is dysposed to auenge hym selfe vpon them/and sufficyently to recompence them. Yee (sayeth the Lozde) I wyll make their Pzynces/their wyse men/ their chefe rulers and all their wozthyes/dzonckē:so that they shall slepe an euerlastynge slepe/and neuer wake: Thus sayeth the Kynge/ whose name is the Lozde of hostes.

Mozeouer/thus sayeth the Lozde of Hostes: The thycke wall of Babylō shalbe bzoken/and her proude gates shalbe bzent vp. And the thynge that the Gentyles & the people haue wzought with greate trauayle and laboure / shall come to naught and be consumed in the fyze.

Thys is the charge that Jeremy gaue vnto Saraiah ỹ sonne of Neriah/the sonne of Maasiah/when he went towarde Babylon with Zedekiah the Kynge of Juda/in the.iiij yeare of his raigne. Now this Saraiah was a peaceable Pzince. Jeremy wzote in a boke all the mysery that shulde come vpon Babylon/yee and all these sermons that be wzytten agaynst Babylon / and gaue Saraiah thys charge: When thou comest vnto Babylon / se that thou reade all these wozdes/ and saye: O Lozde/thou art determed to zote out this place / so that nether people ner catel shal dwel there eny moze/but to lie waste foz euer: and when thou hast redde out the boke/bynde a stone to it/& cast it in the myddest of Euphzates/and saye: Euen thus shall Babylon synche/& be thrust downe with the burthen of trouble/that I will bzinge vpon her: so that she shal neuer come vp agayne. Thus farre are the pzeachinges of Jeremy.

The repeteth the takynge of Zedekiah. Jerusalem is take of the Chaldees. Zedekiahs sonnes are kylled before hys face/and hys eyes put oute. The cytye is burned. The temple is spoyled and robbed. They that were left in Jerusalem are caryed to Babylon. Kyng Jehoakim is brought forth of prison/& fed like a king.

The.lij. Chapter.

Zedekiah was.xxj.yeare olde/ whē he was made kynge/ & he raigned xi. yeare in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamutal/ Jeremies daughter of Lobnah. He liued wickedly before the Lozde euen as Jehoakim dyd. Wherfoze the Lozde was angrie at Jerusalem & Juda/so longe tyll he had cast thē out of his pzesence. And Zedekiah fell from the kyng of Babylon. But in ỹ.ix.yeare of his raygne/In the tenth Moneth/the tēth daye of the Moneth it happened/ that Nabuchodozor the kynge of Babylon wt all his Hoste came before Jerusalē/& besieged it/& made them bulwozckes roūde aboute it. And this besegynge of the cytye endured vnto the.xj. yeare of kynge Zedekiah.

A iiij.Re.xxiiij.d. ij.Para.xxxvj

Jere.xxxix.a. iij.Re.xxv.a.

And in the fourth Moneth/ the ix daye of ỹ Moneth / there was so greate hōger in ỹ cytie: that there were no moze vytayles foz the people of the lande. So all the soudyers B brake awaye/& fled out of the cytie by night thozow the waye of ỹ pozte betwene the two walles by the kynges garden. Now the Caldees had compassed the citie rounde aboute/ yet wente these men their waye to warde ỹ wylderneße.

B Jere.xxxviij.b xxxix.a.

And so the Caldees folowed vpon them/ and toke Zedekiah the kynge in the felde of Jerycho / when hys hoost was runne from him. So they caryed the kynge awaye pzesoner to Reblath / vnto the kynge of Babilon in the land of Hemath/ where he gaue iudgment vpon him.

Jere.xxxix.b.

The kyng of Babylō also caused Zedekiahs sonnes to be slayne before his face/ yee & put all the pzinces of Juda to death at Reblath. Mozeouer he put out the eyes of Zedekiah/caused him to be bounde wt cheynes/ to be caried vnto Babylon: and lett him lye in pzeson tyll he dyed.

Now the tenth daye of the fyfth Moneth in the ix yeare of Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon/Nabusaradan the chefe captaine and the kynge of Babylons seruauntes came vnto Jerusalem/ & bzent vp the house of the Lozde. He bzent vp also ỹ kynges palace/all the houses & all the gozgeous buildinges dynges in Jerusalem. And the whole hoost of the Caldees that were with the chefe Captayne/brake downe all the walles of Jerusalem rounde aboute.

As for the poore people and soch folke as D yet was left in the cytie/which also were fallen to the Kynge of Babylon/yee and what people as yet remayned: Nabuzaradan the chefe Captayne caryed them awaye presoners. But the poore people of the countre/ dyd Nabuzaradan the chefe Captayne leaue in the lande/to occuppe the vyneyardes and feldes. The Caldees also brake the brasen pylers that were in the house of the Lorde/ yee the seate and the brasen lauer that was in the house of the Lorde: and caryed all the metall of them vnto Babylon. They toke awaye also the Cauldrons/shouels/flesh hokes/sprynklers/spones/and all the brasen vessell that was occuppyed in the seruyce: w the balens/colepannes/sprynklers/pottes/ candelstyckes/spones and cuppes: wherof some were of golde/and some of syluer.

The chefe Captayne toke also the two
E pylers/the lauer/the.xij.brasen bullockes that stode vnder the seate/whych Kyng Salomon made in the house of the Lorde: and all the vessell conteyned so moch metall/that it myght not be weyed. For euery pyler was xviij.cubytes hye/and the rope that wente
2.Reg.xxv. aboute it/was.xij.cubytes/and foure fyngers thycke and rounde: Now vpon the rope were brasen knoppes/& euery knoppe was fyue cubytes hye: & vpon the knoppes were whopes/and pomgranates rounde aboute of cleane brasse.

After thys maner were both the pylers fashyoned wyth the pomgranates/wherof there were an hundreth and.xcvj.which hanged vpon the whoopes rounde aboute. The F chefe Captayne also toke Sariah the hye preste/and Sophoniah that was chefe next him/and the thre kepers of the treasury. He toke out of the cytie a chamberlayne whych was a captayne of the souldyers/and seuen men that were the kynges seruaūtes/which were founde in the cytie: and Sepher a captayne that vsed to muster the men of warre: with.lx.men of the countre that were take in the cytie. These Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne toke/and caried them to the kyng of Babylon vnto Reblath: and the Kynge of Babylon caused them to be put to death at Reblath in the lande of Hemath. And thus Juda was ledde awaye captyue/out of hys awne lande. Thys is the summe of the people/whō Nabuchodonosor ledde awaye captyue.

In the seuenth yeare of his reygne/he ca- G
ried awaye of ỹ Jewes/thre thousand & thre and twenty. In the.xviij.yeare Nabuchodonosor caryed awaye from Jerusalem eight hundreth and.xxxij.persones. In the.xxiij. yeare of Nabuchodonosor Nabuzaradan ỹ chefe Captayne/toke awaye seuen hundreth xlv.Jewes presoners. The whole summe of all the presoners/is foure thousande & syxe hundreth.

In the.xxxvij.yeare after that Jehoacin the kynge of Juda was caryed awaye in the xxv.daye of the.xij.Moneth/Euilmerodach Kynge of Babylon (the same yeare that he reigned) gaue Jehoacin the kynge of Juda his pardon/& let him out of prison/& spake louyngly to hym. And set his trone aboue ỹ trones of the other Kynges that were wyth him in Babylon. He chaunged also ỹ clothes of his prison/yee and he ate with him all his lyfe longe. And he had a contynuall lyuynge geuen him of the kynge of Babylon/ euery daye a certayne thynge alowed him all the dayes of his lyfe/vntyll he dyed.

I Chaunced in the .xxx. yeare the fifth daye of the .iiij. Moneth / that I was amōge the prysoners by the ryuer of Cobar: a* where the heauēs opened / and I sawe a vysyon of God. Now the fyfth daye of the moneth made out the fyfth yeare of Kyng Joacins captyuytye. At the same tyme came ỹ wozde of the Lozde vnto Ezechiel ỹ sonne of Buzi the Preste / in the lande of the Caldees by ỹ water of Cobar / where the hande of ỹ Lozd came vpon hym.

B And I loked / & beholde a stormy wynde came out of the Nozth with a greate cloude full of fyre / whych with hys glystre lyghtened all rounde aboute. And in the myddest of the fyre it was all cleare / & as it were ỹ lyckneste of foure beastes / whych were fashyoned lyke a man: sauyng / that euery one had foure faces and foure wynges.

Their legges were streyght / but their fete were lyke bullockes fete / and they glystered / as it had bene fayre scoured metall. Vnder their wynges vpon all the foure cozners they had mens handes. Their faces & their wynges were towarde the foure cozners: yet were the wynges so / that one euer touched another. When they wente / they turned them not aboute: but echone wente streyght forwarde.

Vpon the ryght syde of these foure / their C faces were lyke the face of a man / and the face of a Lyon: But vpon the left syde / they had the face of an oxe / and the face of an Aegle. Their faces also and their wynges were spred out aboue: so that two winges of one touched euer two wynges of of another / & wyth the other they couered their body. Euery one when it wente / it wente streyght forward. Where as the spzete led them / thyther they wēt / & turned not about in theyr going.

The fashyon and countenaunce of the D beastes was lyke hoate coales of fyre / euen as though burnynge cressettes had bene amōge the beastes: and the fyre gaue a glystre / and out of the fyre there wente lyghtenynge. When the beastes wente forwarde and backwarde / one wolde haue thought it had lyghtened. Now when I had well considered the beastes / I sawe a wozcke of wheles vpō the earth with foure faces also lyke the beastes.

The fashyon and wozcke of the wheles was lyke the see. The foure wheles were coyned and made (to loke vpō) as it had bene one whele in another. When one wente forwarde / they wente all foure / and turned thē not about in their going. They were large / greate and horryble to loke vpon. Their bodyes were full of eyes round about them all foure. When the beastes wente / the wheles wente also with them: And whē the beastes lyft them selues vp frō the earth / the wheles were lyft vp also. Whyther soeuer the spzete wente / thyther wente they also / and the wheles were lyft vp / and folowed them: for the spzete of lyfe was in the wheles. When the beastes went forth / stode styll / or lyft them selues vp from the earth: then the wheles also wente / stode styll / and were lyft vp / for the bzeth of lyfe was in the wheles.

Aboue ouer the heades of ỹ beastes there was a fyrmament / whych was fashyoned as it had bene of the most pure Chrystall / & that was spred out aboue vpon their heades: vnder the same fyrmament were their winges layed abzode / one towardanother / and two wynges couered the body of euery beast. ¶ The ryddle of the hearres / by which is sygnifyed the destruccyon of the people. The cawses of the anger of God towarde the people. The Lorde discloseth the ryddle of the hearres.

¶ The.v. Chapter

And thou sonne of man / take the then a sharpe knyfe / namely / a rasoure. Take ỹ / & shaue the hearre of thy head and beerd: Then take ỹ scoales & the waight / & deuyde the hearre a sunder. And burne the thirde parte therof in the fyre in the myddest of the cytte / & cut the other thirde parte in peces with a knyfe. As for the thirde parte that remayneth / cast it in the wynde / & then shewe ỹ bare knyfe.

Yet afterwarde take a lytle of the same / and bynde it in thy cote lappe. Then take a curtesy of it / and cast it in the myddest of the fyre: & burne it in the fyre. Out of the same fyre shall there goo a flame / vpon the whole house of Israell. Moreouer / thus sayde the Lorde God: This same is Jerusalem. I sett her in the myddest of the Heathen & nacions: that are rounde aboute her / but she hath despysed my iudgmentes more then the Gentiles them selues / & broken my commaundemētes more then ỹ nacyons / that lye roūde aboute her: For they haue cast out myne ordinaunces / & not walcked in my lawes. Therfore / thus sayeth the Lord God: For so moch as ye with youre wickednesse farre exceade the Heathen / that dwell rounde aboute you: (For ye haue not walcked in my lawes / nether haue ye kepte myne ordinaūces) Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God.

¶ I wyll also come vpon the / for in the myddest of the wyll I syt in iudgment / in ỹ syght of the Heathen / & wyll handle the of soch a fashion / as I neuer dyd before / and as I neuer will do from that tyme forth / and that because of all thyne abhominacyons. For the fathers shall be fayne to eate their awne sonnes / & ỹ sonn̄ their awne fathers. Soch a courte will I kepe in the / & the whole remnaunt wyll I scatre in to all the wyndes.

Deut.xxviij.e Tren.iiij.e. iiij.Reg.xvi.f.

Wherfore as truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lord God) seyng thou hast defyled my Sanctuary / with all maner of abhominacyons & wt all thy shamefull offences: For this cause will I also destroye the. Myne eye shall not ouer se the / nether will I spare the.

One thirde parte within the / shall dye of the pestilence and of honger: Another thirde parte shall be slayne downe rounde aboute the / with ỹ swearde: The other thirde parte ỹ remayneth / will I scatre abroade towarde all the wyndes / and drawe out the swearde after them. Thus I wyll perfourme my indignacion & set my wrath agaynst them / and ease my selfe. So that whē I haue fulfylled myne anger agaynst thē / they shall knowe that I am the Lorde / whych with a feruent gelousy haue spoken it. Moreouer I wyll make the waste and abhorred / before all the Heathen that dwell aboute the / & in the sight of all them / that go by the: so that whē I punish the in my wrath / in myne anger / & with ỹ plage of my whote displeasure: thou shalt be a very abhominacion / shame / a galyng & wondrynge stocke / amonge the Heathē that lye aboute the. Euē I the Lorde haue spokē it / and it shall come to passe / when I shute amonge them the perlous dartes of honger / which shalbe but death: Yee therfore shall I shute them / because I wyll destroye you. I will encrease hunger / & mynish all the prouisyon of bred amonge you.

Plages and mysery wyll I sende you / yee & wylde beastes also to destroye you. Pestilence and bloudshedynge shall come vpon you / and the swearde wil I bringe ouer you. Euen I the Lorde / haue sayde it.

¶ He sheweth that the people shalbe plaged for the synne of Idolatrie. He prophecyeth the repentaunce of the remnaunt of the people / and their delyueraūce. The destruccyon of the frowarde is prophecied.

¶ The.vj. Chapter.

And the worde of ỹ Lord came vnto me / sayinge: Thou sonne of man / turne thy face to the mountaynes of Israel / that thou mayest prophecie vnto them / & saye: Heare the worde of the Lorde God / O ye mountaynes of Israel: Thus hath the Lorde God spokē to the mountaynes / hilles / valleys and dales.

A Ezech.xxxvi.e

Beholde / I wyll bringe a swearde ouer you / & destroye youre hye places: I will cast downe youre aulters / & breake downe youre tēples. Youre slayne men wyll I laye before youre goddes / and the deed carcases of the chyldren of Israel wyll I cast before their ymages / youre bones wyll I destroye rounde aboute youre aulters / and dwellynge places.

B The cyties shalbe desolate / the hyllchapels layed waste: youre aulters destroyed / and broken: youre goddes cast downe / and taken awaye / youre tẽpels layde eauẽ wyth the grounde / youre awne worckes cleane roted oute.

Youre slayne men shall lye amonge you / that ye maye learne to knowe / how that I am the Lorde. Those that amonge you haue escaped the swearde / wyll I leaue amonge the Gentyles / for I wyll scatre you amõge the nacyõs. And they that escape from you / shall thincke vpon me amonge the Heathẽ / where they shalbe in captiuyte.

Baruch. iij.c

As for that whorysh & vnfaythfull herte of theirs / wherwyth they runne awaye from me / I wyll breake it: yee and put oute those eyes of theirs / that commytte fornicacyon C with their Idols.

Then shall they be ashamed / and displeased wyth their selues / for the wyckednesses and abhominacyõs / which they haue done: and shall learne to knowe / how that it is not in vayne / that I the Lorde spake / to bringe soch misery vpon them.

The Lorde sayde moreouer vnto me: Smyte thyne handes together / and stampe with thy fete / and saye: Wo worthy all the abhominacions and wickednesses of the house of Israel / for because of them / they shall perish with the swearde / with hõger and with pestilence. Who so is farre of / shall dye of the pestilence: he that is nye at hande / shall perish with the swearde: and the other that D are beleged / shall dye of honger.

Thus wyll I satisfye my wrothfull displeasure vpon them. And so shall ye learne to knowe / that I am the Lorde / when youre slayne men lye amonge youre goddes / and aboute youre aulters: vpon all hye hylles & toppes of mountaynes / amonge all grene trees / amonge all thycke okes: euen in the places / where they dyd sacrifyce to all their Idols. I wyll stretch myne hande oute vpon them / and wyll make the lande waste: So that it shall lye desolate and voyde / from the wildernesse of Deblathah forth / thorow all their habitacyõs: to learne thẽ for to knowe / that I am the Lorde.

C The ende of all the lande of Israell shall sodenly come. The cause of the destruccyõ therof. The prophete is cõmaunded to shewe ỹ summe of the euelles that are at hande.

C The .viij. Chapter.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto A me on this maner: The I call / O thou sonne of man. Thus sayeth the Lorde God vnto the lande of Israel: The ende commeth / yee verely the ende commeth vpon all the foure corners of the earth.

But now shall the ende come vpõ the: for I wyll sende my wrath vpon the / & wyll punish the: accordynge to thy wayes / and reward ỹ after all thy abhominacyõs. Myne eye shall not ouerse the / nether will I spare the: but rewarde ỹ / accordyng to thy wayes / and declare thy abhominacyons. Then shal ye knowe / that I am the Lorde. Exec. viij. b. ix. c

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde / one mysery and plage shall come after another: the ende is here. The ende (I saye) that wayteth for the / is come all ready / the houre is come agaynst the / that dwellest in ỹ lãde. B

The tyme is at hande / the daye of sedicyõ is hard by / and no glad tydynges vpon the moũtaynes. Therfore / I wyll shortly poure out my sore displeasure ouer the / and fulfyll my wrath vpon the. I wyll iudge the after thy wayes / and recompence the all thy abhominacyons. Exec. viij. b. ix. c

Myne eye shall not ouerse the / nether C will I spare the: but rewarde the after thy wayes / and shewe thy abhomynacions / to learne you for to knowe / how that I am the Lorde that smyteth. Beholde / the daye is here / ỹ daye is come / the houre is runne out / a* the rodde florisheth / wylfulnesse wareth grene / malicious violence is growne vp / & the vngodly waren to a staf. Yet shall there no complaynte be made for them / ner for the trouble that shall come of these thynges.

a * The rodde florisheth. Thys rodde sygnifyeth the kyng of Babilõ / which was in his flowers / & in hys cheefe pryde and shuld euẽ now come to destroye Jerusalem.

The tyme cõmeth / the daye draweth nye: Who so byeth / lett hym not reioyce: he that selleth / let him not be sory: for why. Trouble shall come in the myddest of all rest: so that the seller shall not come agayne to the byer / for nether of them both shall lyue. For the vision shall come so greatly ouer all / that it shall not be hyndered: No man also with hys wickednesse shall be able to saue hys awne lyfe. The trompettes shall ye blowe / and make you all ready / but no man shall goo to the battel / for I am wroth with all the whole multitude.

The swearde shalbe without / pestilence C and honger wythin: so that who so is in the felde / shalbe slayne with the swearde: and he that is in the cytie / shall perish wyth honger and pestilence. Deut. xxxij. d.

And soch as escape and fle from amonge them / shall be vpon the hylles / lyke as the doues in the felde: euery one shalbe afrayed / because of his awne wickednesse.

All

All handes shalbe let downe / and all knees shalbe weake as the water: they shall gyrde them selues with sack cloth / feare shall fall vpō them. Their faces shalbe confounded / *& their heades balde: their syluer shall lye in the stretes / & their golde shalbe delyed: *Yee their siluer & golde maye not deliuer them / in the daye of the fearfull wrath of the Lorde.

*Esay.xv.d.

*Sopho.i.d. Eccli.v.b. Prouer.xi.a.

They shall not satysfye their hōgry soules / neither fyll their emptye belyes therwith: For it is become their awne decaye thorow their wickednes: because they made therof not only costly Jewels for their pompe & pryde / but also abhominable ymages and Idoles. For this cause wyll I make them to be abhorred. Moreouer / I will geue it into the handes of the straungers to be spoyled: & to the wycked / for to be robbed / and they shall destroye it. My face wyll I turne frō them / my treasury shalbe defiled: for ỹ theues G shall go in to it / & suspende it. I wyll make clene riddaūce / for ỹ lāde is whole defyled wt vnrighteous iudgement of innocēt bloude / & the cite is full of abhominacyons. Wherfore / I wyll bringe the most cruell tyrauntes frō amonge the Heathen / to take their houses in possessiō. I wyll make the pompe of the proude to cease / & they shall take in their Sanctuary. When this trouble commeth / they shall seke peace / but they shall haue none. One myschefe & sorow shall followe another / & one rumoure shall come after another: Then shall they seke visyons in vayne at their Prophetes. The lawe shalbe gone from the prestes / & wysdome from the elders. The Kynge shall mourne / the Princes shalbe clothed wyth heuynesse / and the handes of the people in the lande shall tremble for feare. I wyll do vnto them after their awne wayes / & accordynge to their awne iudgemētes wyll I iudge them: to lerne them for to knowe / that I am the Lorde.

¶ An apperaunce of the similitude of God. Ezechiel is brought vnto Jerusalem in the spryte. The Lorde sheweth the Prophete the Idolatries of the house of Israel and cheafely of the Prestes.

¶ The. viij. Chapter.

IT happened / that in ỹ sixte yeare the fifth daye of the syxte moneth I sat in my house / & the Lordes of the councell of Juda with me: and the hande of the Lorde God fell euen there vpō me. And as I loked vp / I saw as it were a lyckenesse of fyre frō hys loynes downe warde / and from hys loynes vpwarde it shyned maruelous cleare. This similitude stretched out an hande / & toke me by the hearrye lockes of my head / & the spryte lyft me vp betwixte heauē & earth: & God brought me in a vysyon to Jerusalem / into the entrye of the a*inner porte ỹ lyeth towarde ỹ north: there stode an ymage / with whom he ỹ hath all thinges in his power / was very wroth.

a* The hyll Sion was walled rounde about and that wall whych cōpassed it was called the outward wall: About the temple was there another wall / that was called the inwarde wall: which although it were outwarde frō the tēple / yet was it inwarde frō ỹ wall whych compassed the hyll. The space betwene the inwarde wall & the temple / was called the inner courte. Therin were many portes / and in the north porte therof was Ezechiel set: for that place was holy / & therin dyd they vse to worshyp God: but wt the filthynes of this hateful ymage of Baal (whiche the Prophete here calleth the ymage of prouocacyon / because it prouoked the Lord to vengeaūce) had they defyled it: as superstitiō doth commōly defile euē the moost holyest thinges / & such as appeare moost godlie.

And beholde / the glory of the God of Israel was in the same place: euē as I had sene it afore in the felde. And he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man / O lyft vp thyne eyes / and loke towarde the north. Then lyft I vp C myne eyes towarde the north / and beholde: beside the porte northwarde / there was an aulter made vnto the ymage of prouocacyō in the very entryng in. And he sayde further more vnto me: Thou sonne of mā / seist thou what these do? Seist thou the greate abhominacyōs that the house of Israel cōmytte in this place: which ought not to be done in my sanctuary? But turne the aboute / and thou shalt se yet greater abhominacyons. And with that brought he me to the courte gate: & when I loked / beholde / there was an hole in ỹ wall. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of mā / dygge thorow ỹ wall. And whē I dygged thorow ỹ wall / beholde / there was a doze. And he sayde vnto me: Go thy waye in / & loke what wycked abhominacyons they do there. So I went in / & sawe: & beholde / there were al maner ymages of wormes & beastes / all Idoles & abhominacyōs of the house of Israel paynted euery one rounde about the wall. There stode also before the ymages. lxx. lordes of the coūcell of the house of Israel: & in the myddest of them stode Jaazaniah the sonne of Saphan: And euery one of thē had a censoure in his hāde / and out of the incense / there went a smoke / as it had bene a cloude. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of mā / hast thou sene what the Senatoures of the house of Israel do secretly / euery one in his chambre: For they saye: Tush / ỹ Lorde seyth vs not / the Lorde regardeth not the worlde. And he sayde vnto me: Turne the yet agayne / and thou shalt se the greate abhominacyōs that they do. And wyth that he brought me to the doze of the porte of the Lordes house / towarde ỹ north. And beholde / there sat women mournynge for b* Thamus. Then sayde he vnto me: hast thou sene this / thou sonne of man? Turne ỹ aboute / & thou shalt se yet greater abhominacyons. And so he brought me into the inwarde court of the Lordes house: & beholde at the porte of the Lordes house / betwixte ỹ fore entrye & the aulter / there were fyue and twenty men / that turned their backes vpon the tēple of the Lorde / & their faces towarde the easte / & these worshypped the sonne.

And he sayde vnto me: hast thou sene this / thou sonne of man? Thynketh the house of Israel / that it is but a tryfle / to do these abomyna-

Therfore wyll I also do some thinge in my wrothfull displeasure/ so that myne eye shall not ouerse them/ neyther wyll I spare them. ¶ The destruccyō of Idolatrers/ & the conuersacyō of the ryghtwes. They that shalbe saued are marcked. They that are vnmarcked are slayne. A cōplaynte of the Prophete for the destruccyon of the people.

¶ The.ix.Chapter.

A HE cryed also with a loude voyce in myne eares/saying: Come here ye rulers of the cyte/euery man with his weapened hande to the slaughter. Then came there sixe men out of ỹ strete of the vpper porte towarde the north/ & euery man a weapen in his hande to the slaughter. There was one amōgest them/ that had on hym a lynen rayment/ & a writers pynckhorne by his syde.

B Thele wente in/ & stode besyde the brasen aulter: for the glory of the Lorde was gone awaye from the Cherub/ & was come downe to the thresholde of the house/ & he called the man that had the lynen rayment vpō him/ & the writers pynckhorne by hys syde/ & the Lorde sayde vnto him: Go thy waye thorow the cyte of Ierusalem/ & set thys marcke ⸫ Thau vpō the foreheades of thē/ ỹ mourne & are sory for all the abhomynacyons/ that be done therin. And to ỹ other he sayde that ¶ I myght heare: Go ye after hym thorow the cyte/ slaye/ ouerse none/ spare none: kyll & destroye both olde men & yonge/ maydēs/ chyldren/ and wyues.

But as for those/ ỹ haue this marcke ⸫ Thau vpon them: se that ye touch them not/ & begynne at my Sāctuary. Then they begāne at the elders/ which were in the tēple/ for he had sayde vnto thē: When ye haue defyled the tēple/ & fylled the courte with the slayne/ then go youre waye forth. So they wente out/ & slewe downe thorow the cyte.

D Now when they had done the slaughter/ and I yet escaped: I fell downe vpon my face/ & cryed/ sayinge: O Lorde/ wylt thou then destroye all the residue of Israel/ in thy sore displeasure/ that thou hast poured vpon Ierusalem? Then sayde he vnto me: The wyckednesse of the house of Israel & Iuda is very greate: so that the lande is full of bloude/ & the cyte full of vnfaythfulnesse: for they saye: Tush the Lord regardeth not ỹ earth/ he seyth vs not. Therfore wyll I vpō them/ myne eye shall not ouerse thē/ nether wyll I spare thē/ but wyll recōpense their wyckednesse vpō their heades. And beholde/ the man ỹ had the lynen rayment vpō him/ & the writers pynckhorne by his syde: tolde all the matter how it happened/ & sayde: Lorde/ as thou hast commaunded me/ so haue I done.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

AND as I loked/ beholde in the firmamēt ỹ was aboue the Cherubyns there appeared ỹ symylitude of a stole of Saphir vpon them: Then sayde he that sat therin/ to hym that had the lynen rayment vpon him: Crepe in betwene the wheles that are vnder the Cherubyns/ and take thyne hande full of hoate coales out from betwene the Cherubyns/ & cast them ouer ỹ cyte. Now the Cherubyns stode vpon the right syde of the house/ when the man wente in/ & the cloude fylled the vnnermer courte. But the glory of the Lorde remoued frō the Cherubyns/ and came vpon the thresholde of the house: so that the tēple was full of cloudes/ and the courte was full of the shyne of the Lordes glory. Yee & the sounde of the Cherubyns wynges was hearde into the fore courte/ lyke as it had bene the voyce of the almyghtye God/ when he speaketh. Now when he had bydden the man that was clothed in lynen/ to go and take the hoate coales from the myddest of the wheles/ whych were vnder the Cherubyns: he wente & stode besyde the wheles. Then ỹ one Cherub reached forth his hande from vnder the Cherubyns/ vnto the fyre that was betwene the Cherubyns/ and toke therof/ & gaue it vnto hym that had on the lynen rayment in his hande: which toke it/ & went out. And vnder the wynges of the Cherubyns/ there appeared the lickenesse of a mans hande: I sawe also foure wheles beside ỹ Cherubyns/ so ỹ by euery Cherub there stode a whele. that the one face was the face of a Cherub/ the seconde of a man/the thyrde of a lyon/ the fourth of an Aegle/& they were lyfted vp aboue. This is the beast/ that I sawe at the water of Cobar. Now when the Cherubyns wente/the wheles wente with them/& whē the Cherubyns shoke their wynges to lyft them selues vpwarde/ ỹ wheles remayned not behynde/but were w them also. D Eze.xlv.xlvij.a Then the glory of the Lorde was lyft vp from the threshold of the temple/ & remayned vpō the Cherubyns: And the Cherubins shackred with their winges/& lyft thē selues vp from the earth: so that I sawe when they went / and the wheles wyth them. And they stode at the east syde of the porte that is in the house of the Lorde. So the glory of the Lorde was vpon them. This is the beast that I sawe vnder the God of Israel/by the water of Cobar. And I perceaued/ ỹ it was the Cherubyns. Euery one had foure faces/ and euery one foure wynges/ & vnder their wynges/as it were mens handes. A MOreouer/ the spyrete of the Lorde lyft me vp/& brought me vnto the east porte of the Lordes house. And beholde/ there were .xxv. men vnder the dore amonge whom I sawe Iaazaniah the sonne of Azur/ and Pheltiah the sonne of Bananiah/ ỹ rulers of the people. Then sayde the Lorde vnto me: Thou sonne of man: these men ymagyn myschefe/ and a wycked coūcel take they in this cite/saying: tush / there is no destruccyon at hande/ let vs buylde houses: this Ierusalē is the cauldron/& we be the flesh. Therfore shalt thou prophecye vnto thē/ yee prophecie shalt thou vnto them/ O sonne of man. And wyth that fell the spyrete of the Lorde vpon me/& sayde vnto me: Speake/ thus sayeth the Lorde:

Now whē I preached/ Pheltiah ỹ sonne of Bananiah dyed. Then fell I downe vpō my face/ and cryed with a loude voyce: O Lorde God/ wylt thou then vtterly destroye all the remnaunt in Israel? And so the worde of the Lorde came to me on this maner: thou sonne of man: thy brethren/ thy kynfolke/ and the whole house of Iuda/ which dwell at Ierusalē/ saye: They be gone farre frō the Lord/ but the lande is geuē vs in possessyon. Therfore tell them/ thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll sende you farre of amonge the Gentyles/ and scatre you amonge the nacyōs/ & I wyll halowe you but a lytle / in the landes where ye shall come. ¶ The.xij.Chapter.

A THe worde of the Lorde came vnto me/sayinge: Thou sonne of man/ thou dwellest in the myddest of a frowarde housholde: whych haue eyes to se/and yet se not: eares haue they to heare/ & yet heare they not/ for they are an obstinate housholde. Therfore (O thou sonne of man) make thy gere redy to flit/and go forth by fayre daye lyght/that they maye se. Yee euen in their syght shalt thou go from thy place to another place: yf peraduēture they wyll consider/ that they be an vnobedyent housholde. Thy gere that thou hast made redy to flyt wythall/ shalt thou beare out by fayre daye lyght/ that they maye se: and thou thy self shalt go forth also at euen in their syght/ as a man doth when he flitteth. Dygge thorow the wall/ that they may se/ & beare thorow it the same thing/ ý thou takest vp in their sight. As for thy self/ thou shalt go forth in the darcke. Hyde thy face ý thou se not the earth/ for I haue made the a shewtokē vnto the house of Israel. Now as the Lorde cōmaunded me/ so I dyd: the gere ý I had made redy/ brought I out by daye. At euen I brake downe an hole thorow the wall with my hande: & when it was darcke/ I toke the gere vpō my shoulders/ and bare them out in their sight.

C And in the morynge/ came the worde of the Lorde vnto me/ sayinge: Thou sonne of man/ yf Israel ý frowarde housholde aske the/ and saye: what doest thou there? Then tell thē: Thus sayeth ý Lorde God: This punishment toucheth the chefe rulers at Ieru salem/ & all the house of Israel/ that dwell amonge them: Tell them: I am youre shewtoken: lyke as I haue done/ so shall it happen vnto you: Flyt shall ye also/ and go into captyuyte. The chefest that is amonge you/ shall lade his shoulders in the darcke/ & get him awaye. Ye shall breake downe ý wall/ to carye stuf therthorow: Ye shall couer his face/ that he se not the grounde/ with his eyes. My lyne wyll I spreade out vpon him/ & catch him in my net/ & cary hym to Babylon/ in the lande of the Caldees: whych he shall not se/ & yet shall he dye there. As for al his helpers/ & all his Hostes/ that be about him/ I wyll scatre thē towarde all the wyndes/ & drawe out a swearde after them. So when I haue scatred them amōge the Heathen/ and strowed them in the landes/ they shall knowe/ that I am ý Lord. But/ I will leaue a lytle nombre of thē frō the swearde/ hunger and pestilence: to tell all their abhominacyons amonge the Heathē/ where they come: that they maye know/ how that I am the Lorde.

Moreouer/ the worde of the Lorde came vnto me sayinge: Thou sonne of man: wyth a fearfull tremblynge shalt thou eate thy bred/ with carefulnesse & sorowe shalt thou drynke thy water. And vnto the people of the lande/ speake thou on this maner: Thus sayeth the Lorde God/ to them that dwell in Ierusalem/ & to the lande of Israel: Ye shall eate youre bred wt sorowe/ & drynke youre water with heuynesse: Yee the lande with ý fulnesse therof shalbe layde waste/ for the wickednesse of thē that dwell therin. And the cyties that now be well occuppyed/ shall be voyde/ and the lande desolate: that ye maye know/ how that I am the Lorde.

Yet came the worde of the Lorde vnto me F agayne/ sayinge: Thou sonne of mā/ what maner of bywarde is that/ which ye vse in ý lande of Israel/ sayinge: Tush/ seynge that the dayes are so slacke in commynge/ all the visyons are of none effecte: Tell them therfore/ thus sayeth ý Lord God: I wyll make ý bywarde to ceasse/ so that it shall nomore be comenly vsed in Israel.

But saye this vnto them: The dayes are at hāde/ that euery thynge which hath bene prophecyed/ shalbe fulfylled. There shall no visyon be in vayne/ nether eny prophecye fayle amonge the chyldren of Israel: For it G is I the Lord/ that speake it: & whatsoeuer I the Lorde speake/ it shall be perfourmed/ and not be slacke in commynge.

Yee euē in youre dayes (O ye frouwarde housholde) wyll I deuyse some thynge/ and bringe it to passe/ sayeth the Lord God. And the worde of the Lorde cam vnto me saying: Beholde/ thou sonne of man: The house of Israel saye in this maner: Tush as for the vision that he hath sene/ it wyll be many a daye or it come to passe: Is it farre of yet/ ý thynge that he prophecyeth. Therfore saye vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: All my wordes shall nomore be slacke: Loke what I speake/ ý same shall come to passe/ sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The worde of the Lorde agaynst false prophetes/ which teach the people the councelles of their awne hertes.

¶ The.xiij.Chapter.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto A me/ sayinge: Thou sonne of man. Speake prophecie agaynst those prophetes/ that preach in Israel: & saye & saye thou vnto them that prophecye out of their awne hertes: Heare ye worde of ye Lord/ thus sayeth ye Lorde God: Wo be vnto those folish prophetes/ ye folowe their awne spyrete and speake where they se nothing. a* O Jsrael / thy prophetes are lyke the foxes vpon ye drye felde: For they stande not in ye gappes nether make they an hedge for the house of Jsrael/ ye men might abyde ye parel in ye daye of ye Lord. Vayne thinges they se/ & tell lyes/ to mayntene their preachynges with al. The Lorde (saye they) hath spoke it/ whan in verydede the Lord hath not sent them. Vayne visyons haue ye sene/ and spoken falle prophecyes/ when ye saye: the Lorde hath spoken it where as I neuer sayde it.

O Jsrael/ thy prophetes. &c.

a The preachers of mēnes tradicios doth the Prophete compare vnto foxes/. whych seyne a seruice of God/ and increase ceremonyes: and teache awaye to please God/ by soche worckes as they enryche themselues with. By the hedge here maye ye vnderstande prayer done in fayth.

Jere. vij. b.

Therfore/ thus sayeth the Lorde God: Because youre wordes be vayne/ & ye seke out lyes: Beholde/ I wil vpō you/ sayeth ye Lord. Myne handes shal come vpō the prophetes ye loke out vayne thinges/ & preach lies: they shal not be in the counceli of my people/ ner writtē in ye boke of ye house of Jsrael/ nether shall they come in the lande of Jsrael: that ye maye knowe/ how that I am the Lord God. And that for thys cause: they haue disceaued my people/ and tolde thē of peace/ where no peace was. One setteth vp a wal/ and they dawbe it wt lowse claye. Therfore tell them which dawbe it with vntempered morter/ ye it shal fal. For there shal come a great shower of rayne/ greate stones shall fal vpon it/ and a sore stormе of wynde shal breake it/ so shal ye wal come dawne. Shal it not then be saide vnto you: where is now the morter/ that ye dawbed it with all? Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll breake out in my wroth full displeasure with a stormy wynde/ so that in myne anger there shall come a myghtye shower of rayne/ & hayle stonz in my wrath/ to destroye withall.

Matth. vij. c.

C As for the wall/ that ye haue dawbed with vntempered morter/ I wil breake it downe/ make it eauen with the grounde: so that the foundacyon ther of shal remoue/ & it shal fal yee & ye youre selues shal perysh in ye middest therof: to lerne you for to knowe/ that I am the Lord. Thus wyll I perfourme my wrath vpon thys wall/ and vpon them that haue dawbed it wyth vntempered morter/ & then wyll I saye vnto you: The wall is gone/ and the dawbers are awaye. These are the prophetes of Jsraell/ which prophecye vnto the cytie of Jerusalem/ and loke out vysions of peace for them/ where as no peace is/ sayeth the Lorde God. Wherfore (O thou sonne of man) sett thy face agaynst the daughters of thy people/ whych prophecye out of their awne hertz: & speake thou prophecie against them/ and saye: Thus sayeth the Lord God:

Wo be vnto you/ that sowe pylowes vnder all arme holes/ and bolsters vnder ye heades both of yonge and olde/ to catch soules wyth all. For whan ye haue gotten the soules of my people in youre captyuite/ ye promyse them lyfe/ and dyshonoure me to my people/ for an hand full of barly/ and for a pece of bred: whan ye kyll the soules of them/ that dye not/ and promes lyfe to them/ that lyue not: Thus ye dyssemble with my people/ that beleueth your lyes.

Ezech. xij. a.

Ose. iiij. b.

Wherfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde/ I will also vpon the pyllowes/ wher wyth ye catch the soules in flyenge: thē wyll I take from youre armes/ and let the soules go/ that ye catch in flyenge. Youre bolsters also will I teare in peces/ & delyuer my people out of youre hand: so that they shall come no more in youre handes to be spoyled/ and ye shall knowe/ that I am the Lorde. Seing that with youre lyes ye discomforte the herte of the righteous/ whom I haue not discomforted: Agayne: For so moch as ye corage the hande of the wycked/ so that he maye not turne from his wicked waye/ and lyue: therfore shall ye spye out nomore vanyte/ ner prophecye youre awne gessinges: for I wyl delyuer my people out of youre hande/ that ye maye knowe/ how that I am the Lorde.

¶ The Lorde denyeth his worde to ye people for their synnes sake. The dysppylers of the worde doth the Lorde sometyme deceaue by false prophetes. A comforth of them that rodde vnto Babylon.

¶ The .xiiij. Chapter.

THere resorted vnto me certayne of the elders of Jsrael/ and sat downe by me. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me/ sayeng: Thou sonne of man/ these men beare their Idols in their hertes/ and go purposly vpon the stomblynge block of their awne wyckednesse: haw darre they then aske councell at me? Therfore speake vnto them/ and saye: thus sayeth the Lorde God: Euery man of the house of Jsraell that beareth hys Idols in hys herte/ purposynge to stomble in hys awne wyckednesse/ and commeth to a prophet/ to enquere eny thynge at me by hym: vnto that man wyll I the Lorde myself geue answere/ accordynge to the multytude of hys Idols: that the house of Jsraell maye be snared in their awne hertes/ because they be clene gone fro me/ for their Idols sakes.

Ezech. xx. a.

B Wherfore/ tell the house of Jsraell: thus sayeth the Lord God: Be conuerted/ forsake youre Idols/ and turne youre faces from all your abhominacyons. For euery man/ (whether he be of ye house of Jsrael or a straūger/ that sogeourneth in Jsraell) whych departeth fro me/ & carieth Idols in hys herte/ purpopurposing to go still stombling in his awne wickednesse/& commeth to a Prophet/for to aske councell at me thorow him: vnto ỹ man wyll I the Lorde geue answere / by myne

C awne selfe. I wyll set my face agaynst that man/& will make him to be an example for other/yee & a comen byworde: and wyll rote

Job.xij.c. how that I am the Lorde. And yf that Prophete be dysceaued / when he telleth hym a worde: then I the Lorde my selfe haue dysceaued that Prophet/& wyll stretch forth myne hande vpon him/to rote him out of my people of Israel: and they both shalbe punyshed
D for their wyckednesse. Accordyng to ỹ synne of hym that asketh/ shall the synne of ỹ Prophete be: ỹ the house of Israel be led no more fro me thorow errour/& be no more defyled in their wyckednesse: but that they may be my people/& I their God/ sayeth the Lorde God. And the worde of the Lorde came vnto me/sayinge: Thou sonne of man/when the lande synneth agaynst me / & goeth forth in wyckednesse: I wyll stretch out myne hande vpon it/& destroye all the prouysyon of their bred/and sende derth vpon them/to destroye

Jere.xv.a. thē/yet shall they in their righteousnesse delyuer but their awne soules/sayeth ỹ Lorde
E God. If I brynge noysome beastes into the lande/to waste it vp/& it be so desolate/that no man maye go therin for beastes: yf these thre men also were in the lande / as truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lorde God) they shall saue nether sonnes ner daughters/but be only delyuered them selues: and as for the lande/ it shall be waste.

F Or yf I bringe a swearde into the lande/ & charge it to go thorow the lande: so that I slaye downe man & beast in it/ & yf these thre men were therin: As truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lord God) they shall delyuer nether sonnes ner daughters / but only be saued them selues. If I sende a pestilēce into the lande/ & poure out my sore indignacyon vpon it in bloude/so that I rote out of it booth mā and beast/& yf Noe/ Daniel & Job were therin: as truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lorde God) they shall delyuer nether sonnes ner daughters / but saue their awne soules in their righteousnes. Moreouer/ thus sayeth the G Lorde God: Though I sende my soure trou-
Jere.xxvij.b. blous plages vpon Jerusalem: the swearde honger/perlous beastes & pestilence/ to destroye man & beast out of it: yet shal there be a remnaūt saued therin/ which shall bringe forth their sonnes and daughters. Beholde/ they shall come forth vnto you / & ye shall se their waye/ & what they take in hande / & ye shall be comforted/as touching all the plages that I haue brought vpon Jerusalem. They shall comforte you/ when ye se their waye and worckes: & ye shall knowe/ how that it is not wythout a cause / that I haue done so agaynst Jerusalem/as I dyd/sayeth the Lorde God.

C As the vnprofytable wod of the vyne tree is cast in to the fyre/so sayth he that Jerusalem shalbe brent.

C The.xv. Chapter.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto me/sayinge: Thou sonne of man: What cōmeth of the vyne amōge all other trees? & of the vyne stock amonge all other tymbre of ỹ groue? Do men take wodd of it/to make any worcke wᵗ all? Or maye there a nayle be made of it / to hange any thynge vpon? Beholde/ it is cast in the fyre to be brent / the fyre consumeth both the endes of it/ the myddest is brent to asshes. Is it mete then for any worcke? No.

Seing then/ ỹ it was mete for no worke/ being whole: moch lesse may there any thing be made of it/when the fyre hath consumed & brent it. And therfore thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God: Like as I cast the vyne into the fyre for to be brent/as other trees of the wod: Euen so wyll I do with them that dwell in Jerusalem/& set my face agaynst thē: they shall go out frō the fyre/& yet the fyre shall consume them. Then shall ye knowe / that I am the Lorde/when I set my face agaynst them/& make the lande waste: because they haue so sore offended/sayeth the Lorde God.

C The prophete entending to speake of the abhompnacyons of Jerusalem: doth fyrst shewe the benefytes of God toward it. Jerusalem is reproued of vnkindnes/for her fornycacyon with Idoles. He iustifieth the wyckednes of other people in cōparyson of the synnes of Jerusalem. The cause of the abhompnacyons in to which the Sodomytes felle. Mercy is promysed to the repentaunt.

C The.xvj. Chapter.

AGayne/ ỹ worde of the Lord spake vnto me / sayinge: Thou sonne of man/shewe the cyte of Jerusalem their abhompnacyons/& saye: thus sayeth the Lorde God vnto Jerusalem: Thy progeny and kynred came out of the lande of a* Canaan/thy father was an Amorite/thy mother a Cethyte. In the daye of thy byrth whē thou wast borne/ ỹ stringe of thy

Then came I by the/ and sawe the troden downe in thyne awne bloude / & sayde vnto the: thou shalt be pourged from thyne awne bloude/

a* Wherfore he vpbreadeth vnto the Jewes the name of straunge nacyons is before sayde in the.i. chap. of Esay. c b* Nauell may sygnyfye the delyres and delectacyōs of mā/ which are healed by the worde & feare of God: as it is sayd Deuter. iij.b. But feare the Lorde & departe from euell / so shall thy nauel be Exo.i. were they most abiect & vyle/& no man had cõpassyon on thẽ. Then was the daye of their byrth. And in like case after ỹ destrucciõ of Jerusale & i their imprysonment at Babylon. At both theis tymes were they motheries & helpeles/cõcernyng their awne streght: but were yet cared for of God & receaued by his mercy. The Prophet borroweth his facyõ of speakinge of the maner of mothers/after ỹ byrth of their chyldẽ: which fyrst diligently nauyll & wash thẽ with salt/& then swadle them. & c. Soch help had Israel none in their aduersyties in Egypt & Babylon but laye ouerwhelmed in their fylthynesse & myseryes/& were regarded as bastardes & vnmercyfully intreated of all men. Ther was no man but only God that toke thought for thẽ or holpe thẽ: & that dyd he only of his mere mercy/ wythout any of their deserupnges.

c* By this sewtye are sig

bloude/ frõ thyne awne bloude (I saye) shalt thou be clensed. So I planted the/as ỹ blose come of thy selde: thou art growen vp/ and waren greate: thou hast gotten a maruelous pleasaũt beutie/ thy brestes are come vp/ thy hearre is goodly growen / where as thou wast naked and bare afore.

Now whan I wente by the/ & loked vpon the: beholde/ thy tyme was come/ yee euẽ the tyme to bowe the. Then spred I my clothes ouer ỹ/ to couer thy dishonestie: yee I made an othe vnto the / and maryed my selfe wyth the (sayeth the Lorde God) and so thou becamest myne awne. Then washed I the wyth water / and pourged thy bloude from the. I anoynted the with oyle/ I gaue the chaunge of raymentes / I made the shues of Taxus lether: I gyrthed ỹ aboute wt white sylcke/ I clothed the with kerchues/ I decked the wt costly apparell / I put rynges vpon thy fyngers: a chayne aboute thy necke / spanges vpon thy fore heade / eare rynges vpõ thyne eares/ and set a butifull crowne vpon thyne head. Thus wast thou deckte with syluer & golde/ & thy raymẽt was of fyne white sylke/ of nedle worke & of dyuerse colours.

Thou dydest eate nothynge but symnels/ honny & oyle: maruelous goodly wast thou & beutiful/ yee euẽ a very Quene wast thou In so moch / that thy c* beuty was spokẽ of amonge the Heythen/ for thou wast excellẽt in my beuty/ whych I put vpon ỹ sayeth the Lorde God. But thou hast put confidẽce in thyne awne beuty/ & played the harlot/ when thou haddest gotten the a name. Thou hast committed whordome / wyth all that wente by the/ & hast fulfilled their desyres: yee thou hast takẽ thy garmẽtes of dyuerse colours/ & decke thyne aulters therwith / where vpõ thou myghtest fulfyll thyne whordome / of soch a fashion/ as neuer was done / ner shalbe. The goodly ornamentes & Jewels which I gaue the of myne awne golde and syluer/ hast thou taken/ and made the mens ymages therof/ & commytted whordome withall.

Thy garmentes of dyuerse colours hast thou taken/ and deckte them therwith: myne oyle & incense hast thou set before them. Thy meate which I gaue the/ as symnels/ oyle & hony: (to fede the withall) that hast thou sett before them/ for a swete sauoure. And thys came also to passe / sayeth the Lorde God: Thou hast takẽ thine awne sonnes & daughters/ whom thou haddest begotten vnto me: and these hast thou offred vp vnto thẽ / to be their meate. Is this but a small whordome of thine (thinckest thou) that thou slayest my chyldren/ and geuest them ouer/ to be brent vnto them? And yet in all thy abhymynacions and whordome/ thou hast not remembred ỹ dayes of thy youth / how naked & bare thou wast at that tyme/ and troden downe in thyne awne bloude. After all these thy wyckednesses (wo wo vnto the/ sayeth ỹ Lorde) thou hast buylded thy stewes and brodel houses in euery place: yee at the head of euery strete hast thou builded the an aulter. Thou hast made thy beuty to be abhorred/ thou hast layed out thy legges to euery one ỹ came by / & multiplied thyne whordome. Thou hast cõmytted fornicacyon with the Egyptyans thy neyghbours/ which had moch flesh: and thus hast thou vsed thine whordome/ to anger me.

Beholde / I wyll stretch out myne hande ouer the/ and will mynish thy stoare of fode/ and delyuer the ouer in to the wylles of the Philistines thine enemyes/ which are ashamed of thy abhomynable waye. Thou hast played the whore also wyth the Assyryans/ which myght not satysfie the: yee thou hast played the harlot / & nothad ynough. Thus hast thou still cõmytted thy fornycacyon frõ the lande of Canaan vnto the Caldees / and yet thy lust not satisfyed. How shulde I circumcyse thyne herte (sayeth the Lorde God) seynge thou doest all these thinges/ thou pryncyous whore: buyldynge thy stewes at the head of euery strete/ & thy brodell houses in all places? Thou hast not bene as an other whore/ that maketh booste of her wynning but as a wife ỹ breaketh wedlocke/ & taketh other in steade of her husbonde. Gyftes are geuen to all other whores / but thou geuest rewardes vnto all thy louers: and offrest thẽ gyftes/ to come vnto the out of all places/ & to commytte fornycacion with the. Is it come to passe with the in thy whordomes contrary to the vse of other women: yee there hath no soch fornicacion bene committed after the/ seynge that thou profrest gyftes vnto other/ and no rewarde is geuen the: thys is a contrary thynge.

Therfore heare the worde of the Lorde/ O thou harlot: thus sayeth the Lorde God: For so moch as thou hast spent thy moneye/ and discouered thy shame/ thorow thy whordome wyth all thy louers / and wyth all the Idols of thy abhomynacyons in the bloude of thy chyldren/ whom thou hast geuen thẽ: Beholde therfore/ I wyll gather together all thy louers/ vnto whom thou hast made thy selfe comen: yee and all them whom thou fauoureste/ and euery one that thou hatest: and wyll discouer thy shame before thẽ/ that they all maye se thy fylthynes. ii. Reg. xxi. c. & xvij. c.

Moreouer/ I will iudge ỹ as a breaker of wedlocke and a murthurer / and recompẽce the thine awne bloude in wrath and gelousy. I wil geue the ouer in to their power/ ỹ E shal breake downe thy stewes/ and destroye thy thy brodell houses: they shall strype the out of thy clothes / all thy fayre & beutyfull Jewels shall they take from the / & so let the syt naked & bare: yee they shall bringe the comē people vpon the / which shall stone ẏ / & slaye the downe wyth their sweardes. They shall burne vp thy houses / and punysh the in the syght of many wemen. Thus wyll I make thy whordome to ceasse / so that thou shalt geue out no mo rewardes.

Leuit.xx.b
xviij.Reg.xxv.b

Shulde I make my wrath to be still / take my gelousy from the / be content / & nomore to be dyspleased: seing thou remembrest not the dayes of thy youth / but hast prouoked me to wrath in all these thynges? Beholde therfore / I wyll bringe thyne awne wayes vpō thyne heade / sayeth the Lorde God: how be it / I neuer dyd vnto the / accordyng to thy wyckednesse & all thy abhomynacyons. Beholde / all they that vse comen prouerbes / shall vse this prouerbe also agaynst ẏ: soch a mother / soch a daughter.

Ezech.xvi.a

Thou art euen thy mothers awne daughter / that hath cast of hir housband & hir children: Yee thou art the syster of thy systers / which forsoke their husbandes & their chyldren. Youre mother is a Cethyte / and youre father an Amorite. Thyne eldest syster is Samaria / she and her daughters that dwell vpon thy left hande.

F

But thy yōgest sister that dwelleth on thy ryght hande / is Sodoma & her daughters. Yet hast thou not walked after their wayes / ner done after their abhomynacyons: but in all thy wayes thou hast bene more corrupte then they. As truly as I lyue / sayeth ẏ Lorde God: Sodoma thy sister wt her daughters / hath not done so euell / as thou & thy daughters. Beholde / the synnes of thy syster Sodoma were these: Pryde / fulnesse of meate / aboundaunce & idilnesse: these thynges had she & hir daughters. Besydes that / they reached not their hande to the poore & nedy / but were proude / and dyd abhomynable thinges before me: therfore I toke them awaye / whē I had sene it. Nether hath Samaria done halfe of thy synnes / yee thou hast exceaded them in wyckednesse: In so moch that in cōparyson of all the abhomynacyons whych thou hast done / thou hast made thy systers good wemen.

Jere.iij.c

As for their captyuyte / namely the captyuyte of Sodoma & her daughters: the captiuyte of Samaria and her daughters: I will bryng them agayne / so wyll I also bryng agayne thy captiuite amonge thē: that thou mayest take thyne awne confusion vpō the / and be ashamed of all that thou hast done / & to comforte them. Thus thy systers (namely) Sodoma & her daughters: Samaria and her daughters shalbe brought agayne to youre olde estate. When thou wast in thy pryde / & before thy wyckednesse came to lyght: thou wouldest not heare speake of thy syster Sodoma / vntyll the tyme that the Syriās with all their townes / & the Phylystynes with all that lye roūd aboute them / brought the to shame & confusyon: that thou myghtest beare thyne awne fylthynes & abhominacyō / sayeth the Lorde.

For thus sayeth the Lorde God: I shulde (by ryght) deale with the / as thou hast done. Thou hast despysed the ooth / & broken the couenaunte. Neuertheles / I wyll remēbre the couenaunt that I made wyth the in thy youth / in so moch ẏ it shalbe an euerlasting couenaunt: so that thou also remembre thy wayes / & be ashamed of thē: then shalt thou receaue of me thy elder & yōger systers / whō I wyll make thy daughters / and that besyde thy couenaunt. And so I wyll renue my co- Jere.xxxi.e uenaunt with the / that thou mayest knowe Ebr.viij.b
that I am the Lorde: ẏ thou mayest thincke vpon it / be ashamed / and excuse thine awne confusyon no more: when I haue forgeuen the / all ẏ thou hast done / sayeth ẏ Lord God.

¶ The.xvij.Chapter.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me / sayinge: Thou sonne of man: put forth a darcke speakyng and a parable / vnto the house of Israel / & saye: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: There came a great a* Aegle with greate wynges / yee with myghtye longe wynges / and full of fethers of dyuerse coloures / vpon the moūt of Libanus / & toke a braunch from a Cedre tree / & brake of the toppe of hys twygge / & caryed it into the lande of Canaan / & set it in a cyte of marchaūtes. He toke also a braūch of the lande / & plāted it in a frutefull groūd / he brought it vnto greate waters / & set it as a wyllye tree therby. Then dyd it growe / & was a greate bynestocke / but lowe by the grounde: thus there came of it a byne / and it brought forth blossomes / & spred out braunches. But there was another Aegle / a great one / whych had greate wynges & many fethers: & beholde / the rotes of thys byne had an hunger after him / & spred out his braunches towarde him / to water hys frutes: Neuertheles it was planted vpon a good groūd besyde greate waters: so that (by reason) it shulde haue brought out braūches & frute / & haue bene a goodly byne. Speake thou therfore / thus sayeth the Lorde God: Shall this byne prospere? shall not his rotes be pluckte out / oute his frute be broke of/hys grene braūches withered & fade awaye: yee whout ether strōg arme or many people/shal it be plucked vp by ỹ rotes. Beholde/it was planted: shall it prospere therfore. Shall it not be dryed vp and wythered/ yee euen in the shutinge out of his blossomes/as soone as the D eaū wynde bloweth?

Moreouer/ ỹ worde of ỹ Lord cam vnto me saying: Speake to that frowarde houlholde: knowe ye not/what these thynges do sygnyfye? Tell them: Beholde/the Kynge of Babylon came to Jerusalem/ and toke the Kynge and hys Prynces/and ledde them to Babylon.

He toke of the Kynges sede/and made a couenaunt wyth hym/ and toke an othe of hym: The Prynces of the lande toke he with hym also/that the lande myght be holden in subiectiō/and not to rebelle/but kepe the couenaunt/and fulfyll it. But he fell from hym/& sent hys Embassytours in to Egypt that he myght haue horses and moche people. Shulde that prospere? Shulde he be kepte safe/that doth soch thinges? Or shuld he escape/that breaketh his couenaunt? As truly as I lyue sayeth the Lorde God: He E shall dye at Babylon/in the place where the Kyng dwelleth/that made him King: whose othe he hath despysed/ and whose couenaūt he hath broken. Nether shall Pharao wyth hys greate host and multytude of people/ mayntayne him in the warre: when they cast vp dyches/and set vp bulwarkes to destroye moch people. For seing he hath despysed the othe/ and broken the couenaunt (where as he yet gaue hys hande therupon) and done all these thynges/ he shall not escape. F

Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: As truly as I lyue/I wyll brynge myne othe that he hath despised/and my couenaūt that he hath broken/ vpon hys awne head. I wyll cast my net about him/ and catch hym in my yarne. To Babylon will I carye him/ there wyll I punnysh hym/ because of the greate offence that he made me. As for those that fle frō hym out of the hoost/they shalbe slayne with the swearde. The residue shalbe scatred towarde all the wyndes: and ye shall G knowe/ that I the Lorde haue spoken it.

b Thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll also take b*a braunche from an hye Cedre tree/ & wyll set it/& take the vppermost twygge/ that yet is but tendre/and plante it vpon an hye hyll: Namely/ vpon the hye hyll of Siō will I plante it: that it maye brynge forth twygges/and geue frute/ and be a greate Cedre tree: so that all maner of foules maye byde in it/ and make their nestes vnder the shadowe of his braunches.

And all the trees of the felde shall knowe that I the Lorde haue brought downe the hye tree/ and sett the lowe tree vp: that I haue dryed vp the grene tree/ and made the drye tree to florysh: Euen I the Lorde that spake it/haue also brought it to passe.

The sheweth that euery man shall beare his awne synne. To hym that amendeth/ is saluacyon promesed. Deeth is prophecyed to the ryghtwelse/ whych turneth backe from the ryght waye.

¶ The .xviij. Chapter.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me/on this maner: what meane ye by this comen prouerbe/ that A ye vse in the lād of Israel/ saying: The fathers haue eaten soure grapes/ & the chyldrens teth are set on edge? As truly as I lyue/sayeth the Lorde God/ye shall vse this byworde nomore in Israel.

Beholde/all soules are myne. Lyke as ỹ B father is myne/ so is the sonne myne also. The soule that synneth/shall dye. If a man be godly/ & do ỹ thynge that is equall and ryght/he eateth not vpō the hylles: he lyfteth not hys eyes vp to the Idols of Israel: he defyleth not his neyghbours wyfe: he medleth with no menstruous woman: he greueth no body: he geueth his detter his pledge agayne he taketh none other mans good by violence: he parteth his mete with the hongrye: he clotheth the naked: he lendeth nothynge vpō vsury: he taketh nothynge ouer: he withdraweth his hande from doinge wronge: he hādleth faithfully betwixte man & man: he walketh in my commaundementes/ and kepeth my lawes/& performeth them faythfully:) This is a righteous mā/he shall surely lyue sayeth the Lorde God.

If he now gett a sonne/that is a murthurer/a sheder of blonde: yf he do one of these thinges (though he do not al) he eateth vpon the hilles: he defyleth his neghbours wyfe: he greueth the poore & nedy: he robbeth & spoyleth: he geueth not ỹ detter his pledge agayne he lifteth vp his eyes vnto Idols/ & medleth with abhominable thinges: he lendeth vpō vsury/& taketh more ouer. Shall thys man lyue? He shal not liue. Seynge he hath done all these abhomynacyons/ he shall dye hys blonde shalbe vpon him.

Now yf this man get a sonne also/ that C seith all his fathers synnes/ whych he hath done: and feareth/nether doth soch lyke: Namely/he eateth not vpon the mountaynes: he lyfteth not hys eyes vp to the Idols of Israel: he defyleth not his neghbours wyfe: he vexeth no man: he kepeth no mans pledge: he nether spoyleth/ner robbeth eny man: he dealeth his meate with the hungrye: he clotheth the naked: he oppresseth not the poore: he receaueth no vsury/ner any thynge ouer: he kepeth

b* By thys braūche vnderstande oure ladye/ & by ỹ hye Cedar tree the tribe of Juda/ of whych she came: by the vppermost twigge is vnderstāde Christ/ & by the hyll of Siō is figured the church.

he kepeth my lawes / & walcketh in my cõmaundementes: Thys man shal not dye in hys fathers synne / but shall lyue wythout fayle. As for his father: because he oppressed and spoyled hys brother / and dyd wyckedly amonge his people: lo / he is deed in his awne synne. And yet saye ye: Wherfore thẽ shulde not thys sonne beare hys fathers synne?

℈ Therfore: because ỹ sonne hath done equite & right / hath kepte all my cõmaundementes / & done them: therfore shall he lyue in dede. The same soule that synneth / shal dye. The sonne shall not beare the fathers offence / nether shal the father beare the sonnes offence. The ryghteousnes of the righteous shall be vpõ him / & ỹ wickednes of ỹ wicked shalbe vpon him self also. But yf the vngodly wyll a* Shall not be thought vpõ. The Sophysters haue a proper solucyõ for thys text & soch like / which testifye ỹ God so forgeueth ỹ he wyll not after call agayne his forgeuenes and punyshe. True it is (saye they) God forgeueth the synne / but not the punishment due vnto the sinne. Seuẽ yeares punyshment (as they prate) must we abyde in purgatory for euery synne / when it is forgeuen. If thys be not to mock with god & his holy worde / I wote not what is mockage. If God can & do (as they affyrme) geue me forgeuenes of my synne / he may geue me punyshmẽt due vnto my sinne / so ỹ he nether geue me to moche nor to lytell payne therfore / & yet not once thynche on my synne / surely he hath a wõderfull remembraunce. And ỹ he wyll not thincke on it / the text doth here openly affyrme. By this sophystrye might the kynge geue a man his pardõ for theft and after hange him vp. For he myght saye: Syr I forgaue you youre theft / but not your hangynge which is due vnto your theft. Suche pardon wolde they be lothe to haue that fyrst ymagyned it. If the kynge which is but a man / be moare faythfull than to deale so with his prysoners / whõ he forgeueth: how shulde God then which is our heuenly father / & which is euen goodnes it selfe / haue suche a sotteli / fayned / and vnperfect forgeuenes / that shuld after punysh? But her of wyll I now speake no moare / lest ye shulde happye smell / that thys solucyon were ymagyned to pycke mennes purses / thorow Masse pence / Dirige grotes / Trentalles / yeare myndes / moneth myndes. &c. Because that although God can & maye forgeue the synne / yet must soch thynges obtayne the forgeuenes of the punishmẽt due therunto: Or ỹ the prestes benefyces were not sufficiẽt for thẽ to lyue on / without soch pyllage: or yet that the poore people coulde by any other meane be myncked from that thynge / wherwyth they / their wyues / their housholde and chyldren shulde lyue.

¶ The .xix. Chapter.

¶ The captyuytye of Iehoahaz & of Iehoacin is signyfyed by the lyons whelpes / & by the lyon. He setteth out the prosperitye of the cytye of Jerusalem that is past / & the myserye therof that is present.

But mourne thou for the princes of Israel / & saye: Wherfore laye thy mother that lyoness amonge the lyons / & norished her yonge ones amõge the lions whelpes? One of her whelpes she brought vp / and it became a lyon: it lerned to spoyle / and to deuoure folke. The Heathen herde of hym / and toke him in their nettes / and brought him in chaynes vnto the lande of Egypte.

Now when the damme sawe / that all her hope and cõforth was awaye / she toke another of her whelpes / and made a lyon of him: which wente amonge the lyons / & became a fearce lyon: lerned to spoyle and to deuoure folcke: he destroyed their palaces / and made theyr cytyes waste. In so moch that the whole lande and euery thynge therin / were vtterly desolate / thorow ỹ very voyce of hys roaringe.

Then came the Heathen together on euery syde oute of all countrees agaynst hym / layed their nettes for him / and toke hym in their pytte. So they bounde him with chaynes / and brought him to the kynge of Babilon: which put him in prison / that his voyce shulde nomore be herde vpon the mountaynes of Israel. As for thy mother / she is lyke a vyne in thy bloude / planted by the water syde: her frutes and braunches are growen out of many waters / her stalkes were so stroge / ỹ mẽ might haue made staues therof for officers: she grew so hie in her stalkes.

So whan men sawe that she exceaded ỹ heygth & multytude of her braunches / she was roted out in displeasure / and cast downe to the grounde. The East wynde dryed vp her frute / her stronge stalkes were broke̅ of / wythered wythered and brent in the fyre. But now she is planted in the wylderneſſe/ in a dry and thurſtye grounde. And there is a fyre gone out of her ſtalckes/ which hath brent vp her braunches and her frute: ſo that she hath no mo ſtronge ſtalckes/ to be ſtaues for offycers. This is a pyteous & mylerable thinge.

¶ The Lorde denieth that he wyll anſwere the when they praye/ for the offence of vnkindnes which he here obiecteth. He promeſeth that his people ſhal returne from captyuytye. By the wodd that ſhulde be brent is ſignified the burnynge of Jeruſalem.

¶ The.xx.Chapter.

A Ezech.xliij.a. IN the.xvij.yeare the.x.daye of the v.moneth/ it happened/ that certayne of the elders of Iſrael came vnto me/ for to alke councell at ỹ Lorde/ & ſat them downe by me. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me on this maner: Thou ſonne of man: ſpeake vnto the elders of Iſrael/ & ſaye vnto the: Thus ſayeth ỹ Lord God: Are ye come hyther to alke eny thynge at me: As truly as I lyue (ſayeth the Lorde) I wyll geue you no anſwere. Wylt thou not reproue them (thou ſonne of man) wilt thou not reproue the: Shew the ỹ abhomynacyons of their forefathers/ & tell the: Exo.xx.b. Thus ſayth the Lorde God: In the daye whē I chooſe Iſrael/ and lyft vp myne hande vpon the ſede of the houſe of Jacob/ & ſhewed my ſelfe vnto them in the lande of Egypte: Yee when I lyfte vp myne hande ouer them/ and ſayde: I am the Lorde youre God/ euen in ỹ daye that I lyft vp myne hande ouer them/ to bringe them out the lande of Egypte/ into a lande that I had prouyded for them/ whych floweth with mylcke & hony/ & is a pleaſaūt B Deute.vij.a. lande amonge all other: Then ſayde I vnto them: Caſt awaye euery man the abhomynacyons that he hath before hym/ and defyle not youre ſelues with the Idoles of Egypte/ for I am the Lorde youre God.

But they rebelled agaynſt me/ and wold not folowe me: to caſt awaye euery man the abhomynacyons of his eyes/ and to forſake the Idoles of Egypte. Then I made me to poure my indygnacyō ouer them/ and to ſatisfye my wrath vpon them: yee euen in the myddeſt of the lande of Egypte. But I wold not do it/ for my names ſake: that it ſhulde not be vnhalowed before the Heathē/ amōge whom they dwelt/ & amōge whom I ſhewed my ſelfe vnto them that I wolde bringe thē out of the lande of Egypte. Now when I had caryed them out of the lande of Egypte/ and brought them into the wylderneſſe: I gaue Exodi.xx.xxi. xxiij. Deute.iiij.b. Gala.iij.b. Leui.xviij.a. Exod.xvi.c. xxi.c.xxxij.c them my commaundementes/ & ſhewed thē my lawes: which whoſo kepeth ſhall lyue in them. I gaue them alſo myne holy dayes/ to be a tokē betwixte me & thē/ & therby to know/ that I am the Lorde/ which haloweth them.

And yet the houſe of Iſrael rebelled agaynſt me in the wilderneſſe/ they wold not walcke in my commaundementes/ they haue caſt awaye my lawes (which whoſe kepeth ſhuld lyue in them) and my Sabboth dayes haue they greatly vnhalowed. Nume.xliij.b. Exod.xvi.f

Then I made me to poure out my indygnacyon vpō them/ & to conſume them in the wylderneſſe. Yet I wolde not do it/ for my names ſake: leſt it ſhuld be dyſhonoured before the Heathen/ from the which I had caryed them awaye. But I ſwore vnto them in the wylderneſſe/ that I wolde not bringe thē in to the lande/ which I gaue them: a lande that floweth with mylcke and hony/ and is a pleaſure of all landes: and that becauſe they refuſed my lawes/ and walcked not in my commaundementes/ but had vnhalowed my Sabbathes/ for their herte was gone after their ydoles. Neuertheleſſe myne eye ſpared them/ ſo that I wolde not vtterly ſaye thē/ and conſume them in the wyldernes. Moreouer/ I ſayde vnto their ſonnes in the wylderneſſe: walcke not in the ſtatutes of youre forefathers/ kepe not their ordynaunces/ & defyle not your ſelues with their ydoles/ for I am the Lorde youre God. But walcke in my ſtatutes/ kepe my lawes & do them/ halowe my Sabbathes: for they are a tokē betwixte me & you/ that ye maye know how ỹ I am the Lorde. Notwythſtandynge/ their ſonnes rebelled agaynſt me alſo: they walckednot in my ſtatutes they kepte not my lawes to fulfyl thē (which he ỹ doth ſhall lyue in them) nether halowed they my Sabboth dayes. Then I made me agayne to poure out my indygnacion ouer them/ & to ſatisfie my wrath vpon them in the wylderneſſe. Neuertheleſſe I wythdrewe my hande for my names ſake/ leſt it ſhulde be vnhalowed amōge the Heathē/ before whō I had brought them forth. I lyft vp myne hande ouer them alſo in the wylderneſſe/ that I wolde ſcatre them amonge the Heathen/ & ſtrowe them amonge the nacyons: becauſe they had not kepte my lawes/ but caſt aſide my commaūdementes/ vnhalowed my Sabbathes/ and lyft vp their eyes to their fathers Idoles. Therfore I gaue them alſo commaundemētes not good/ & lawes thorow the which they ſhulde not lyue/ & I vnhalowed them in their awne gyftes (whē I appoynted for my ſelfe all their fyrſtborne) to make them deſolate: that they myght know/ how that I am the Lorde. Ezech.xviij.b. Leui.xviij.a. Galat.iij.b. Roma.x.a. D Exod.xiij.a.

Therfore (O thou ſonne of man) tell the houſe of Iſrael/ thus ſayeth the Lorde God: E Beſyde all thys/ youre forefathers haue yet blaſphemed me more/ and greatly offended agaynſt me: For after I had brought them in to the lande/that I promysed to geue them/ when they sawe euery hye hyll & all ỹ thicke trees:they made there their offrynge/ & prouocked me with their oblacyons/makynge swete sauoures there/and poured out their drinckoffringes. Then I asked them: what haue ye to do wall/ that ye go thyther? And therfore is it called the hye place vnto thys daye. Wherfore/speake vnto ỹ house of Israel:Thus sayeth the Lorde God: ye are euẽ as vnclene as youre forefathers/& cõmytte whordome also with their abhomynacions.

In all youre ydoles/ where vnto ye brynge your oblacyõs/& to whose honoure ye burne youre chyldren:ye defyle youre selues/euen vnto this daye:how darre ye then come/and aske any question at me? O ye housholde of Israel: As truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lorde God) ye get no answere of me: & as for the thynge that ye go aboute/ it shall not come to passe/where as ye saye: we will be as the Heathen/& do as other people in the lande/ wod and stone will we worshyppe.

As truly as I lyue/sayeth the Lord God/ I my selfe will rule you wyth a myghtye hande/with a stretched out arme/& with indignacõ poured out ouer you:& will bringe you out of the nacyons and landes/ wherin ye are scatred:and gather you together with a myghtye hande/with a stretched out arme & with indignacyon poured out vpon you: & wyll bringe you in to the wyldernesse of the people/& there I wyll reason with you face to face. Like as I punyshed youre forefathers in the wyldernesse/ so wyll I punysh you also/sayeth ỹ Lorde God. I wyll bringe you vnder myn iurisdicciõ/ & vnder the bonde of the couenaũt. The forsakers also and the transgressours will I take frõ amonge you/ & bringe them out of the lande of youre habytacyõ:as for the lande of Israel/they shal not come in it:that they maye knowe/how that I am the Lorde.

Gen.ij.c.xxv.d Ezech.xviij.a

Go now then (sayeth the Lorde God) ye house of Israel/cast awaye/& destroye euery man his Idoles:then shall ye heare me/& nomore blaspheme my holy name with your offringes and Idoles. But vpõ my holy hill/ euen vpon the hye hyll of Israel shall all the house of Israel and all that is in the lande/ worshyppe me:and in the same place wyll I fauoure thẽ/and there wyll I requyre your heueoffrynges/and the fyrstlinges of your oblacyons/with all youre holy thynges.

Deutero.xij.a xviij.b.

I will accepte youre swete sauoure/whẽ I bringe you from the nacions/ and gather you together out of the landes/wherin ye be scatred: that I maye be halowed in you before the Heathen/ and that ye maye knowe/ that I am the Lorde/ whych haue brought you in to the lande of Israel:yee into ỹ same lande/that I swore to geue vnto youre forefathers. There shal ye call to remembraunce your awne wayes & all your ymaginacõs/ wherin ye haue bene defiled: & ye shalbe displeased with youre awne selues/for al your wyckednes/that ye haue done. And ye shall knowe/that I am the Lorde:when I entreate you after my name/ not after youre wycked wayes/ ner accordynge to youre corrupte worke: O ye house of Israel/sayeth ỹ Lord. Jeremy.viij.a xviij.a.xxxi.c.

Moreouer/the worde of the Lorde came vnto me/saying:Thou sonne of man/set thy face towarde the south/& speake to ỹ south wynde/& saye to the wod towarde the south: Heare the worde of the Lorde/thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God:Beholde/I will kyndle a fyre in the/that shall consume the a* grene trees wt the Drye. The.xxj.Chapter.

THe worde of the Lord came to me/ A saynge: Thou sonne of man/ set thy face towarde Jerusalẽ/speake agaynst the Sãctuary/ & prophecye agaynst the lande of Israel/ saye to the lande of Israel: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde/I wyll vpon the/ & wyll drawe my swearde out of ỹ sheath/& rote out of ỹ both the rightuous & the wycked. Seinge then ỹ I wyll rote out of the both the ryghtuous & wicked/therfore shall my swearde go out of his sheath agaynst all flesh frõ the north to the south: that all flesh may knowe/ how ỹ I the Lorde haue drawen my swearde out of the sheath/ & it shall not be put in agayne.

Mourne therfore (O thou sonne of man) ỹ thy loynes crack withall/yee mourne bitterly for them: And yf they saye/ wherfore mournest thou? Then tell them: for the tidinges that cõmeth/at the which all hertes shal melt/all handes shalbe letten downe/all stomackes shall faynte/& all knees shall waxe feble. Beholde/it commeth & shalbe fulfylled/sayeth the Lorde God. B

Agayne/ the worde of the Lorde came vnto me/saynge: Thou sonne of man/ prophecye/and speake: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: speake/ ỹ swearde is sharpened & well scoured. Sharpened is it for ỹ slaughter/ & C scoured

Cscoured that it maye be bright. a* O the destroyege (tak of my sonne) shal bring downe al woode. He hath put hys swearde to the slaughtinge) ỹ good holde maye be taken of it. This swearde is sharpened & dyght) that it maye be geuē into ỹ hande of ỹ manslayer.

a *Some reade: Shal we reioyce oure selues? He despyseth the staffe of my sonne) and all wod. The Talde readeth: the tribe of my sonne: that is to saye) the trybe of Juda. Or) shall ỹ staffe of my sonne dispise al wod: That is: Shall the trybe of Juda dyspyse all the other:

The worde of the Lorde came yet vnto me agayne sayenge: Thou sonne of man) make the two stretes) that the swearde of ỹ kynge of Babylon maye come. Both these stretes shall go out of one lande. He shall set him vp a place) at the heade of ỹ strete shall he chose hym out a corner. Make ỹ a strete) ỹ the swearde maye come to warde Rabath of the Ammonites) & to the stronge cytye of Jerusalem. For the kynge of Babylon shall stande in the turnynge of the waye) at the head of the two stretes: to aske councell at the sothesayers) castinge the lottes wyth his arowes) to aske councel at the Idols) and to loke in the lyuer. O thou shamefull wicked gyde of Israel whose daye is come: euen the tyme that wickednesse shall haue an ende: Thus saieth the Lorde God: take a waye the myter) and put of the crowne) and so is it a waye: the humble is exalted) and the proude brought lowe. Punysh) punish) yee punysh them wyll I) & destroye them: and that shall not be fulfylled vntil he come) to whom the iudgment belōgeth) and to whom I haue geuē it. C In the haue they dyscouered their fathers shame/in the haue they vexed wemẽ in their sickneſſe. Euery man hath dealte shamefully with his neyghbours wyfe/& abhominably defyled his daughter in lawe. In ỹ hath euery mã forced his awne syster/ euẽ his fathers daughter: yee gyftes haue bene receaued in the/ to shede bloude. Thou haſt taken vsury and encreace/ thou haſt oppreſſed thy neyghbours by extorciõ/ and forgotten me/ sayeth the Lord God. Beholde/ I haue smytten* my handes vpon thy couetouſneſſe/ ỹ thou haſt vſed/ and vpon the bloude whych hath bene shed in the. Is thy herte able to endure it/ or may thy hãdes defende thẽ selues/ in the tyme that I shall bringe vpon the?

*That is to wete/ in token of greate wofulnes.

D Euen I the Lord that speake it/ wyll bringe it also to paſſe. I wyll scatre the amonge the Heathen/ & strow the aboute in the landes/ & wyll cauſe thy fylthyneſſe to ceaſſe out of the: yee and I wyll haue the in poſſeſſyon in the syght of the Heathen/ that thou mayeſt knowe/ that I am the Lorde.

And the worde of ỹ Lord came vnto me/ sayinge: Thou sonne of mã/ the house of Israel is turned to drosſe. All they that shulde be braſſe/ tynne/ yron/ & leade/ are in the fyre become drosſe. Therfore/ thus sayeth ỹ Lord God: For so moche as ye all are turned in to drosſe/ beholde: I wyll bringe you together vnto Jerusalem/ lyke as syluer/ braſſe/ yrõ/ tynne and leade are put together in the fornace/ and the fyre blowẽ there vnder to melt them: Euen so wyll I gather you/ put you in Lyke as the syluer is melted in the fyre/ so shal ye also be melted therin: that ye may knowe/ how that I the Lorde haue poured my wrath vpon you.

They vexe ỹ poore & nedye & oppreſſe the straunger agaynſt ryght. And I sought in the lande for a man/ that wolde make vp the hedge/ and sett hym selfe in the gappe before me in the landes behalfe/ that I shulde not vtterly deſtroye it: but I coulde fynde none. Therfore wyll I poure out my cruell dyſpleaſure vpon them/ and burne them in the fyre of my wrath: their awne wayes will I recompence vpon their heades sayeth the Lorde God.

C Of the fornycacyon/ that is to saye/ of the Idolatry of Samaria & Jerusalẽ: vnder the names of Oholah & Oholibah. In comparyson of Samaria he sheweth that the fornycacyon of Jerusalẽ is the filthyer. The deſtruccyon of Jerusalem is prophecied. The aduoutrye of both the whores is founde oute. Their deſtruccyon.

C The. xxiij. Chapter.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto me/ sayinge: Thou sonne of man/ A there were two wemen/ that had one mother: These (whẽ they were ponge) beganne to playe the harlottes in Egypte. There were their breſtes broſed/ and the pappes of their maydenhead deſtroyed. The eldeſt of them was calied[a]* Oholah and her pongeſt syster[b]* Oholibah. These two were myne/ and bare sonnes and daughters. Their names were/ Samaria/ & that was Oholah: & Jerusalem/ that was Oholibah: As for Oholah she begãne to go a whoring/ when I had taken her to me. She was sett on fyre vpon her louers the Aſſirians/ which had to do with her: euẽ the prynces & lordes/ that were decke in coſtly araye: fayre yõge men/ luſty ryders of horſes.

Ezech. xx. a.

a* That is/ the tabernacle of her: as not belonging vnto me.

b* That is/ my tabernacle in her. That is/ I dwell in her: as in my Sãctuary or holy place.

Thus thorow her whordome/ she cleued vnto all the ponge men of Aſſyria: Yee she was madde vpon them/ and defyled herselfe with all their Idols. Nether ceaſſed she from B the fornicacyon/ that she vſed wyth the Egyptians: for in her youth they laye wt her/ they broſed the breſtes of her maydenhead/ and poured their wordome vpon her. Wherfore/ I delyuered her in to ỹ handes of her louers/ euen the Aſſirians/ whom she so loued. These diſcouered her shame/ toke her sonnes and daughters/ and slewe her with the swearde: An euel name gat she of all people/ and they punyshed her.

Her syster Oholibah sawe this/ & deſtroyed her selfe wt inordynate loue/ more then she/ & exceaded her syster in whordome she loued ỹ Aſſirians (which also laye wt her) namely/ the prynces & greate lordes/ that were clothed wt all maner of gorgious apparell/ all luſty horſmen and fayre ponge perſonnes.

Then

Samaria. Then I sawe/that they both were defyled a lyke. But she increased styll in whordome: for when she sawe men paynted vpon the wall/the ymages of the Chaldees set forth wyth fresh colours/wt fayre gyrdles about them/ and goodly bonettes vpon their heades/lokyng all lyke Prynces (after the maner of the Babylonyās and Caldees in their awne lande/where they be borne) ymmedyatly/as soone as she sawe them/ she brent in loue vpon them/& sent messaungers for thē in to the lande of the Caldees.

Now when the Babylonias came to her/ they laye with her/& defyled her with their whordome/and so was she polluted wyth them. And when her lust was abated from them/her whordome and shame was discouered & lene: then my herte forsoke her/lyke as my herte was gone from her syster also. Neuertheles she vsed her whordome euer ỹ longer the more/ & remembred the dayes of her youth/wherin she had played the harlot in the lande of Egypte: she brent in lust vpō thē/ whose flesh was lyke the flesh of Asses/ & their sede lyke ỹ sede of horses. Thus thou hast renued the filthynesse of thy youth/whē thy louers bresed thy pappes/ & marred thy brestes in Egypte.

Elar lvij.a. Naum.iij.d. Ezech.xvi.e

D Therfore (O Oholibah) thus sayeth ỹ Lord God. I wyll rayse vp thy louers (wyth whō thou hast fatisfyed thy lust) agaynst the/and gather them together rounde about the: namely/the Babylonyans/ & all the Caldees: Pecod/ Schoa and Coa/with all the Assyrians: all yonge and fayre louers: princes and lordes/ knightes & gentlemen/which be all good horsmen: These shall come vpon the wt horses/ charrettes/ & a greate multytude of people: which shalbe harnessed about the on euery syde/ with brestplates/ sheldes & helmettes. I wyll punysh the before them/ yee they them selues shall punysh ỹ/ according to their awne iudgemēt. I wyll put my gelousy vpō the/so that they shall deale cruelly with the. They shall cut of thy nose and thyne eares/and the remnaūt shall fall thorow the swearde. They shall cary awaye thy sonnes and daughters/ & the residue shalbe brent in the fyre. They shall stripe the out of thy clothes/ and cary thy costly Jewels awaye with them.

Thus wyll I make an ende of thy filthynesse & whordome/which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte: so that thou shalt turne thyne eyes nomore after thē/ & cast thy mynde nomore vpō Egypt. For thus sayeth E the Lorde: beholde/I wyll delyuer ỹ into the handes of them/whom thou hatest: yee euē into the handes of thē/with whom thou hast fulfylled thy lust/ whych shall deale cruelly with ỹ: All thy laboure shalt they take with them/and leaue the naked & bare/ & thus the shame of thy fylthy whordome shall come to lyght. All these thynges shall happen vnto the/ because of thy whordome/ whych thou hast bled amonge the Gentiles/ with whose Idoles thou hast defyled thy self. Thou hast walcked in the waye of thy syster/ therfore wyll I geue the her cuppe in thy hande.

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Thou shalt dryncke of thy systers cuppe/how depe and farre so euer it be to the botome. Thou shalt be laughed to scorne/ & had as greatly in derysyon/ as is possible. Thou shalt be full of dronckennes & sorowe/ for the cuppe of thy syster Samaria is a cuppe of destruccyon & wastinge: the same shalt thou dryncke/ and suppe it out euen to the dregges/ yee thou shalt eate vp the broken peces of it/ and so teare thyne awne brestes: For euen I haue spoken it/sayeth the Lorde God.

Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: For F so moch as thou hast forgottē me/ & cast me alyde/so beare now thyne awne fylthynesse & whordome. The Lord sayde moreouer vnto me: Thou sonne of man wylt thou not reproue Oholah & Oholibah? Shewe them their abhomynacyons: namely/ ỹ they haue brokē their wedlocke/ & stayned their hādes with bloude: yee euē with their ydoles haue they cōmytted aduoutry/ & offred them their awne chylorē (to be deuoured) whō they had borne vnto me. Yee and this haue they done vnto me also: they haue defiled my Sāctuary in that same daye/ & haue vnhalowed my Sabboth. For when they had slayne their chyldrē for their Idoles/ they came the same daye into my Sanctuary to defyle it. Lo/ this haue they done in my house. Besyde all this/ thou hast sent thy messagers for men out of farre countrees: & when they came/ thou hast bathed/trymmed and set forth thy self of the best fashyon: thou satteſt vpon a goodly bed/ & a table spred before the: wher vpō thou hast set myne incense & myne oyle.

iiij. Reg. xxi.a. Ezech. xvi.c. Exod. xx.d.

Then was there greate cheare with her/ & the meny ỹ were sent frō farre cōtrees ouer G the desert/ vnto these they gaue bracelettes vpon their handes/ & set glorious crownes vpō their heades: then thought I: no doute/ these will vse their harlotry also with yonder olde whore. And they wēte into her/as vnto a comen harlot: Euen so wente they also to Oholah & Oholibah those fylthy wemen.

Leui. xx.b. Ezech. xvi.d

O ye all that loue vertu & ryghtuousnes/ iudge thē/ punysh them: as aduoutrers and murtherers ought to be iudged & punyshed. For they are breakers of wedlocke/ and the bloude is in their handes. Wherfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: bringe a greate mul-tytude of people vpon them / & make them be scatred & spoyled: these shall stone them / and goze them with their sweardes. They shall slaye their sonnes and daughters and burne vp their houses with fyze.

Thus wyll I destroye all soch fylthynes out of the land: that all wemen may learne / not to do after your vnclennesse. And so they shall laye youre fylthynesse vpō youre awne selues / & ye shalbe punyshed foz the synnes / that ye haue cōmytted wyth youre Idols: & ye shall knowe that I am the Lozde.

The.xxiiii. Chapter.

In the.ix.yeare / in the.x. Moneth / the.x.daye of the Moneth / came the wozde of the Lozde vnto me / saying: O thou sonne of mā / wzyte vp the name of this daye / yee euē the houre of this pzesent daye: when the kyng of Babylon set hym selfe agaynst Jerusalē. Shew that obstinate housholde a parable / & speake vnto thē: Thus sayeth the Lozde God: Set ỹ a pott / set it on / & poure water in to it: put al the peces together in it / all the good peces: the loyne & the shoulder / & fill it with ỹ best bones. Take one of ỹ best shepe / & an heape of bones withall: let it boyle well / and let the bones seth well therin.

Grech.xvñ.a. Ezech.xl.b.

B With that sayde the Lozde God on thys maner: Wo be vnto the bloudy cytye of the pott / wher vpō the rustynesse hangeth / & is not yet scoured awaye. Take out the peces that are in it / one after another: there neade not lottes be cast therfoze / foz the bloude is yet in it. Upon a playne dzye stone hath she poured it / and not vpon the grounde / that it might be couered wt dust. And therfoze haue I letten her poure her bloude vpō a playne dzye stony rocke / because it shulde not be hyd / & ỹ I myght bzynge my wzothfull indygnacyon and vengeaunce vpon her.

Naum.iii.c. Avacuc.ii.a.

C Wherfoze / thus sayeth ỹ Lozde God: O / wo be vnto that bloudthurstye cyte / foz whō I will pzepare a heape of wodde: beare thou ỹ bones together / kyndle thou ỹ fyze / seeth the flesh / let all be well soddē / that ỹ bones maye be suckte out. D there is so moch of it: the rustynesse must be bzent out. Thy fylthynesse is abhomynable / foz I wolde haue clensed the / but thou woldest not be clensed. Thou canst not be pourged frō thyne vnclennesse / tyll I haue poured my wzothfull indignacyō vpon the. Euē I the Lozde haue so deuysed: Yee it is cōme therto alredy / that I will do it. I wyll not go backe / I will not spare / I wil not be intreated: but accozding to thy wayes & ymaginacyons / thou shalt be punyshed / sayeth the Lozde God. And the wozde of ỹ Lozde came vnto me saying: Thou sonne of mā / beholde I wyll take awaye * the pleasure of thyne eyes wt a plage: yet shalt thou nether mourne / ner wepe / ner water thy chekz therfoze: thou mayest mourne by thy self alone / but vse no deadly lamentacyon. Holde on thy bonet / and put on thy shues vpon thy fete / couer not thy face / & eate no mourners bzed.

* That is / thy wyfe.

So I spake vnto the people by tymes in the moznynge / and at euen my wyfe dyed: then vpon the next mozow / I dyd as I was commaunded. And ỹ people sayde vnto me: wilt thou not tell vs / what that signifieth / whych thou doest? I answered them / the wozde of the Lozde came vnto me / saynge: Tell the

Like as I haue done / so shall ye do also: Ye shall not hyde youre faces / ye shall eate no mourners bzed: youre bonnettes shall ye haue vpon youre heades / & shues vpō your fete. Ye shall nether mourne ner wepe / but in youre synnes ye shalbe sozowfull / & one repēte with another. Thus Ezechiel is your

G shewtokē. Foz loke as he hath done / so (whē this commeth) ye shall do also: that ye maye lerne to knowe that I am the Lozde God. But beholde / O thou sonne of man: In the daye when I take from them their power / their ioye & honoure / the lust of their eyes / the burthen of their bodyes: namely / their sonnes and daughters: Then shall there one escape / & come vnto the / foz to shew the. In that daye shall thy mouth be opened to him / which is escaped / that thou mayest speake / & be nomoze domme: Yee and thou shalt be their shewtokē / that they maye knowe / how that I am the Lozde.

They shal cast dust vpon their heades/& lye downe in the asshes. They shall shaue them selues/and put sacke cloth vpon them for thy sake.

They shall mourne for the wyth hertfull sorow/and heuy lamentacyon/yee their children also shall wepe for the. Alas/what citie hath so bene destroyed in the see/as Tyre is? When thy wares & marchaundies came frō ỹ sees/thou gauest all people ynough. The kynges of the earth hast thou made ryche/ thorow the multytude of thy wares and occupienge: But thou art now cast downe in to the depe of ỹ see/all thy resorte of people is perished wyth the. All they that dwell in ỹ Iles are abashed at the/and all their kyngs are afrayed/yee their faces haue chaunged coloure. The marchauntes of the nacyons wonder at the. And now (O thou sonne of man) I haue Ezech.iij.c. made the a watchman vnto the house of Israell: that where as thou hearest eny thynge out of my mouth / thou mayest warne them on my behalfe. If I saye vnto ỹ wicked thou wycked / thou shalt surely dye: & thou geuest hym not warnynge / that he maye bewarre of hys vngodly waye: then shall the wycked dye in hys awne synne / but hys bloude will I requyre of thy hande. Neuertheles yf thou warne the wycked of hys waye / to turne frõ it / where as he yet will not be turned from it then shall he dye because of hys synne / but thou hast delyuered thy soule.

Therfore (O thou sonne of man) speake vnto the house of Israel. Ye saye thus: Oure offences and synnes lye vpon vs / and we be corrupte in them: how shulde we then be restored vnto lyfe? Tell them: As truly as I lyue / sayeth the Lorde God / I haue no pleasure in the death of the wicked / but moch rather that the wicked turne from hys waye & lyue. Turne you / turne you from your vngodly wayes / O ye of the house of Israell. Why / wherfore will ye dye? Ezech.xviij.e.

Thou sonne of man / tell the chyldren of thy people: The ryghtuousnes of ỹ righteous shall not saue hym / whan soeuer he turneth awaye vnfaithfully: Agayne / ỹ wickednesse of ỹ wicked shal not hurt him / whan soeuer he conuerteth from his vngodlynesse. Ezech.xviij.d.

And the ryghtuousnesse of the ryghtuous shall not saue hys lyfe / whansoeuer he synneth. If I saye vnto the ryghtuous / that he shall surely lyue / and so he trust to his awne ryghtuousnesse / and do synne: then shall hys ryghtuousnesse be nomore thought vpon / but in but in the wyckednesse that he hath done he D shall dye. Agayne / yf I saye vnto ỹ wycked:

Esay.lv.b. thou shalt surely dye: & so he turne from his Jere.xviij.a. synnes / & do the thinge that is lawfull and ryght: In so moch that the same wicked man geueth the pledge agayne / restoreth that he had taken awaye by robbery / walcketh in ỹ cõmaundementes of lyfe / & doth no wrõge:
a * How the Sophysters & the vngodly mock out this text / loke before in ỹ. xviij. Chapter. Then shall he surely lyue / & not dye. Yee the synnes that he hath done / a* shall neuer be thought vpõ: For in so moch as he doth now the thinge that is lawfull and ryght / he shall lyue. And yet the children of thy people saye:
Tush / the waye of the Lorde is not ryght / where as their awne waye is rather vnright.
When the righteous turneth frõ his righ-tuousnesse / & doeth ỹ thinge that is wycked / he shall dye therfore. But yf ỹ wycked turne Ezech.xviij.k. from his wyckednesse / doing the thinge that Roma.ij.a. is lawfull & right / he shal lyue therfore. Yet ye saye: the waye of the Lorde is not equall.
O ye house of Israel / I wyll iudge euery one of you after his wayes.

E In the.xij. yeare / the.v. daye of the.x. mo-neth of oure captyuyte / it happened / ỹ one which was fled out of Jerusalem / came vnto me / and sayde: the cyte is destroyed. Now the hande of the Lorde had bene vpon me the euenyng afore this mã (which was escaped) came vnto me / & had opened my mouth / vntyll the mornyng that he came to me: yee he opened my mouth / so that I was nomore domme. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me / & sayde: Thou sonne of man / these ỹ dwell in the wasted lande of Israel / saye:
Abrahã was but one man / & he had the lande in possessyon: now are we many / & the lande is geuen vs to possesse also. And therfore tell F them: Thus sayeth the Lorde: In the bloude Leui.xviij.d. haue ye eaten / youre eyes haue ye lyft vp to Deutero.iij.c. Idoles / and haue shed bloude: shall ye then haue the lande in possessyon?

Ye leane vpon youre sweardes / ye worcke abomynacyõs / euery one defyleth his neghbours wyfe: & shall ye then possesse the lãde?
Saye thou these wordes vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: b* As truly as I lyue
b* As truely as I lyue / is an othe which the Lorde comenly vseth / when he promeseth anything. Numer. xiij.d.e. all ye that dwell in this wyldernesse / shalbe slayne wt the sweard: what so euer is vpõ the feld / wyll I geue vnto ỹ beestes to be deuou-red: those that be in stronge holdes & dennes / shall dye of the pestylence. For I wyll make the lande so desolate and waste / & the pompe of her strength shall come to an ende. The mountaynes in Israel shalbe so waste that noman shall trauayle therby.

G Then shall they lerne to knowe / that I Ezech.xxv.c. am the Lorde / when I make the lande waste and desolate / because of all their abomyna-cyons / that they haue wrought. And thou sonne of man / the chyldrẽ of thy people that talcke of the / by the walles & in the dores of their houses / sayinge one to another: Come / let vs heare / what worde is gone forth from the Lorde: These come vnto the / after the maner of a greate people: yee my people syt downe before the / and heare thy wordes / but they do not therafter: for in their mouthes they shewe them selues / as though they were feruent / but their herte goeth after their awne couetous lucre. And as a baler ỹ hath a swete tune / and is pleasaunt to synge / so shalt thou be vnto thẽ: thy wordes shal they heare / but they wil not do therafter. When this commeth to passe (for lo / it cõmeth in dede) thẽ shal they knowe / that there hath bene a prophet amonge them.

¶ Against Bysshoppes and curates that despyse the flock of Christ / & leake their awne. The Lorde sayeth that he will vyset his dispersed flocke / & gather them together. He reproueth the malyce of certen of the flocke. He promeseth the true shepherde Christ / and with hym peace.

¶ The.xxxiiij. Chapter.

And the worde of ỹ Lorde came vn- J to me / saying: Thou sonne of mã / prophecy agaynst ỹ shepherdes of Israel / prophecy & speake vnto thẽ: Ezech.xiij.a.
Thus saieth the Lorde God: Wo be vnto the Jere.xxiij.b.&
shepherdes of Israel / that fede them selues. xxiij.a.
Shulde not the shepherdes fede ỹ flockes?
Ye haue eaten vp the fatte / ye haue clothed you with the wol: the best fedde haue ye slayne / but the flocke haue ye not norished.
The weake haue ye not holden vp / the sicke haue ye not healed: the broken haue ye not Luc.iij.b. bounde together / the out castes haue ye not brought agayne: ỹ lost haue ye not sought / but churlishly and cruelly haue ye ruled thẽ. i.Petr.v.a.
Thus are they scatred here and there wythout a shepherde: yee al the beastes of ỹ felde deuoure them / & they go astraye.

My shepe go wandringe vpon all mos-taynes and vpon euery hye hyll. Yee they be scatred abrode in all feldes / and there is no man / that careth for thẽ / or seketh after thẽ.
Therfore O ye shepherdes / heare the worde of the Lord. Thus sayeth the Lorde God: As truly as I lyue / for so moch as my shepe are robbed / & deuoured of all the wylde beastes of the felde / hauyng no shepherde: and seing that my shepherdes take no regarde of my shepe / but fede them selues only / and not my shepe: Therfore heare the worde of the Lord C O ye shepherdes: Thus sayeth ỹ Lord God:
Beholde / I my self wyll vpõ the shepherdes / and requyre my shepe from their handes / & make them ceasse from fedynge of my shepe:
yee the shepherdes shall fede them selues no more: For I wyll delyuer my shepe out of their mouthes / so that they shal not deuoure

D them after this. For thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde/I wyll loke to my shepe my selfe/& seke thē. Like as a shepherde amonge the flocke seketh after ỹ shepe that are scatered abroade/euen so wyll I seke after my shepe/& gather them together out of all places/where they haue bene scatred in ỹ cloudy and darcke daye. I wyll bryng them out from all people/and gather them together out of al landes. I wil bryng them in to their awne lande/and fede them vpon the mountaynes of Israel/by the ryuers/and in all ỹ places of the countre. I will fede thē in right good pastures & vpon ỹ hie moūtaynes of Israel shal there foldes be. There shal they lie in a good folde/& in a fat pasture shall they fede: euē vpon ỹ mountaynes of Israell.

John.x.a. Heb.xiij.d i.Pet.v.c.v.a.

I wyll fede my shepe my selfe/and bryng them to their rest/sayeth the Lorde God.

Luc.xiij.d. John.x.a.

Soch as be lost/wyll I seke: soch as go astraye/wil I bringe agayne: soch as be woūded/will I bynde vp: soch as be weake/will I make stroge: soch as be fat & well lyking/those will I preserue/and fede them with the thinge that is lawfull. And as for you (O my shepe) sayeth the Lorde God: I wil put a difference amonge the shepe/amonge the wethers and the goates. Was it not ynough for you/to eate vp the good pasture/but ye must treade downe the residue of youre pastur with your fete also? Was it not ynough for you to drincke cleare water/but ye must trouble the residue also with youre fete?

Mat.xxv.c.

Thus my shepe must be fayne to eate the thynge/that ye haue troden downe wt youre fete/& to drincke it/that ye wt youre fete haue defiled. Therfore/thus sayeth ỹ Lord God vnto them: Beholde/I wyll seuer the fatt shepe from the leane: for so moch as ye haue shot the weake shepe vpon the sydes & shoulders/and runne vpon them with youre hornes/so longe tyll ye haue vtterly scatred thē abrode. I wyll helpe my shepe/so that they shall nomore be spoyled: yee I wyll dyscerne one shepe from another. I wyll rayse vp vnto them one only shepherde: euen my seruaunt[a*] Dauid/he shall fede them/& he shal be their shepherde. I the Lorde wyll be their God/and my seruaunt Dauid shall be their prince: Euen I the Lorde haue spoken it.

a* Christ here and in many other places is called Dauid/ because he was loked for of the Jewes to syt on the seate of Dauid. After in the.xxxvij.c

Moreouer/I wyll make a couenaunt of peace with them/& dryue al euel beastes out of the lande: so that they maye dwell safely in the wylderneße/and slepe in the woddes. Good fortune & prosperite wil I geue them/and vnto all that be rounde aboute my hyll. A prosperous shower & rayne wyll I sende them in due season/that the trees in the wodde maye bring forth their frutes/& ỹ grounde her increase. They shalbe safe in their land/ & shall knowe/that I am the Lorde/whych G haue broken their yocke/and delyuered thē oute of the handes of those/that helde them in subiecc̄yon.

They shal no more be spoyled of the Heathen/ner deuoured wt the beastes of ỹ lande: but safely shall they dwell/and no mā shall fraye them. I will set vp an excellent plante for them/so ỹ they shall suffre no more hunger in ỹ lande/nether beare the reproke of ỹ Heathen eny more. Thus shall they vnderstande/ỹ I the Lord their God am wt them/ & ỹ they (euē the house of Israel) are my people/sayeth the Lorde God. Ye men are my flocke/ye are the shepe of my pasture: and I am youre God/sayeth the Lorde God.

Psal.xcv.a.b.c.

¶ The destruccyon that shall come on the hyll Seir/ that is/on the Idumeans/because they troubled the people of the Lorde.

¶ The xxxv. Chapter.

Moreouer, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me/sayīg: Thou sonne A of man/turne thy face towarde ỹ mount Seir/prophecy vpon it/ & saye vnto it: Thus sayeth the Lorde God) Beholde (O thou mount Seir) I wyll vpon the/I wyll reach out myne hande ouer the/ yee waste and desolate wyll I make ỹ. Thy cyties wyll I breake downe/& thou shalt lye voyde: ỹ thou mayst knowe/how ỹ I am ỹ Lorde. For so moch as thou beareſt an olde enemyte agaynst the chyldren of Israel/and with a cruel hāde hast made them afrayed/ what tyme as they were troubled and punished for their synne: Therfore/a* as truly as I lyue/sayeth the Lorde God/I will prepare the vnto bloude/yee bloude shal folow vpō the: seing thou layest wayte for bloude/ therfore shall bloude persecute ỹ. Thus will I make the mount Seir desolate & waste/& bryng to passe/that there shall no man goo thyther/ner come from thence. Hys mountaynes wyll I fyll wyth his slayne men: thy hylles/dales & valleys shall lye full of thē/ ỹ are slayne with the swearde. I wyl make the a perpetuall wylderneße/so that no man shall dwell in thy cyties: ỹ ye maye knowe/ how that I am the Lorde.

a* As before in the.xxxiij. Chap.f.

And because thou hast sayd: what/b* both these nacyons and both these lādes must be myne/& I will haue thē in possession/where as ỹ Lord was there. Therfore/thus sayeth the Lorde God: As truly as I lyue/I wyll handle the accordynge to thy wrath and gelousy/lyke as thou hast dealt cruelly wt thē: that I maye be knowen amonge them/how I haue punished the. Yee and that thou also mayest be sure/ỹ I ỹ Lord haue herde all thy despytefull wordes/which thou hast spoken agaynst the mountaynes of Israel/saying: Lo/

b* That is to wete/Juda and Israel.

Lo/they are made waste / & geuen vs to de-D uoure. Thus wyth youre mouthes ye haue mayde youre boost agaynst me / yee and multyplyed youre proude wordes agaynst me/whych I haue herde altogether. Where Ezech.xxv.c. vnto / thus sayeth the Lorde God: when the whole worlde is in wealth/then will I make the waste. And like as thou(O mout Seyr) wast glad / because the heretage of ỹ house of Israell was destroyed: euen so wyll I do vnto the also/ ỹ thou & whole Edom shall be destroyed/& knowe, that I am the Lorde.
The promeseth delyueraunce from the Gentiles vnto Israell. The benyfytes done vnto the Jewes are to be ascribed to the mercy of God/not vnto theyr de-serupynges. God renueth our hertes ỹ we may walc-ke in his commaundementes.

The xxxvj. Chapter.

And Thou sonne of man/prophecie vpō
Ezech.vi.c. ỹ moūtaynes of Israel/ & speake:
Heare the worde of the Lorde / O ye mountaynes of Israel: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Because youre enemye hath sayde vpon you: A ha/the hye euerlastynge places are now become ours: prophecy therfore / and speake:thus sayeth the Lord God: Seynge ye be wasted and troden downe on euery syde/ & become a possessyon vnto ỹ residue of the Gentiles/ whych haue brought you in to mens mouthes & vnto an euell name amonge the people: Therfore/heare the worde of the Lord God/ O ye moū taynes of Israel: Thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God vnto the mountaynes & hilles/ valleys and & dales/to ỹ voyde wildernesses & desolat cytyes/whych are spoyled/and had in derisyon on euery syde/amonge the residue of ỹ Hea-
B then: Yee euen thus sayeth the Lorde God:
In the fyre of my gelously haue I taken a deuyce/agaynst the residue of the Gentiles/ & Ezec. xxxv.a. agaynst all Edom: whych haue taken in my lande vnto them selues for a possessiō: which also reioyced from their whole hert wt a dyspiteful stomacke/to waste it/& to spoyle it.

Prophecy therfore vpon the lande of Israell/speake vnto ỹ mountaynes and hilles/to valleys & dales/thus sayeth ỹ Lord God Beholde/ this haue I deuysed in my gelousy & terrible wrath: For so moch as ye haue suffred reprofe of ỹ Heathē/therfore thus saieth the Lorde God: I haue sworne/that ỹ Gentyles which lye aboute you/ shal beare your confusyon them selues. And as for you(O moūtaynes of Israel) ye shal shute out your braūches/ & bryng forth youre frute to my people of Israel/for it is hard by/ that it wil
C come. Beholde/ I come vnto you / and vnto you will I turne me/ that ye maye be tylled and sowen.

I wil sende you moch people/which shal-be all of the house of Israel: the cyties shalbe inhabited/& the decayed places shalbe repay-red agayne. I wyl prouyde you wt moch people and catell/which shall increase & bryng frute. I wil restore you also to your old estate & shewe you more kindnes then euer ye had before: wherby ye shall knowe/that I am the Lorde. Yee people wyll I sende vnto you (O my folke of Israell) whych shall haue the in possessiō/& thou shalt be their inheritaunce so that thou shalt nomore be wythout them.
Agayne/ thus sayeth the Lorde God: For so moch as they saye vnto you: thou art an eater vp of men/ & a waster of thy people: therfore thou shalt eate no mo men / nether destroye thy people eny more / sayeth the Lorde God. D
And I will not suffre the / for to heare thyne awne confusion amonge the Gentiles from henceforth. Thou shalt not beare the reproke of the nacions/ner cast out thyne awne peo ple enymore/sayeth the Lorde God.

Moreouer/the worde of the Lorde came vnto me/sayeng: O thou sonne of man/ whē ỹ house of Israel dwelt vpō their awne groūd they defiled them selues wt their awne waies & ymagynacyons: so that in my syght theyr waye was lyke the vnclennesse of a men-struous woman. Wherfore I poured my wrothfull displeasure vpon them / because of the bloude that they had shed in the lande/& because of their Idols/ wherwith they had defyled them selues. I scatred thē also amōg the Heathen/so ỹ they where strowed about in the landes. According to their wayes and after their awne inuencyons / so dyd I pu- E nysh them.

Now when they were gone vnto the Heathen / & come in amonge them they a* dyshonoured my holy name: so that it was sayde of them: Are these the people of God/ & must go out of their awne lāde? Then spared I my holy name/which the house of Israel had di-shonoured amonge the Gentyles / to whom they came. Therfore tell ỹ house of Israell:
Thus sayeth the Lord God: I do not this for your sakes (O house of Israell) but for my holy names sake / whych ye dyshonoured amonge the Heathen/when ye came to them.
Therfore/ I will halowe my greate name a-gayne/whych amonge the Gentiles is euell spokē of: for ye youre selues haue dishonoured it amonge them. And ỹ Gentiles shal knowe that I am the Lorde / whan I am honoured in you before their eyes/sayeth ỹ Lord God.

As for you/ I wyll take you from amōge the Heathen/and gather you together out of all countrees / and bryng you agayne into your awne lande. Then wyll I poure cleare water vpō you/ & ye shalbe clene: yee frō all your vnclennesse and frō al your Idols shal
I clense you. A new herte also will I geue you / &

a* To dyshonour the name of the Lorde is to blaspheme ỹ name of god amōge the vnfaythfull / as when we shew an apparaunce of godlynes & teach good doctryne/ and yet lyue vnfaythfully. Ro.ij.d.

Esa.xliij.a. Jere.xxxj.c.

you /and a new spyete will I put into you:
F As for that stony herte/I will take it out of Deute.xxx.d. youre body/and geue you a fleshly herte. I will geue my spyete amonge you/ and cause you to walcke in my commaundemētes / to kepe my lawes and to fulfill them.

And so ye shall dwell in the lande/that I gaue to youre forefathers/ and ye shalbe my people/ & I wilbe youre God. I wyll helpe you out of all youre vnclennesse. I wyll call for the corne/ & will increase it/ & will let you haue no honger. I wyll multiplye the frutes of the trees & the increase of ỹ felde for you/so that ye shall beare no more repyroke of hōger amōge the Heathē. Then shall ye remē-bre your awne wicked wayes/ & youre imagynacyons/which were not good: so that ye shall take displeasure at your awne selues/by reason of youre synnes & abhominacyōs.

G But I wyll not do this for youre sakes (sayeth the Lord God) be ye sure of it. Therfore/ O ye house of Israel / be ashamed of your synnes. Moreouer/thus sayeth ỹ Lord God: what tyme as I shall clense you frō all youre offences/then will I make the cytyes to be occuppyed agayne/ & wyll repayre the places ỹ be decayed. The desolate lande shal be buylded agayne/ which afore tyme laye waste in the sight of all thē that wente by.
Then shall it be sayde: this waste lande is become lyke a gardē of pleasure/ & the voyde/desolate and broken downe cytyes/ are now strong/and fensed agayne. Then the residue of the Heathen that lye rounde aboute you/shall knowe that I am the Lorde/which repayre that was broken downe/ and plante agayne/that was made waste. Euen I the Lorde haue spoken it/and will do it in dede.

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll yet once be founde agayne of ỹ house of Israel/& do this for them: I shall increase them as a Jeremy.l.a. flocke of men. Lyke as the holy flocke & the flocke of Jerusalem are in the hye solempne feastes: so shall also the wylde wasted cyties be fylled with flockes of men: and they shall knowe that I am the Lorde.

The prophecieth the bringynge agayne of the people beinge in captyuyte. He sheweth the vnyon of the ten trybes with the two. Christ is the kynge of the Christen people alone/and the only euerlastyng shepherde therof.

The.xxxvij.Chapter.

A The hande of the Lorde came vpon me/ & caryed me out in ỹ spyrete of the Lorde / and let me downe in a playne felde/ ỹ laye full of bones/& he led me round about by them: & beholde/the bones that laye vpō the felde/ were very many/ & maruelous drye also. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of man: thinkest thou these bones maye lyue agayne? I answered:
O Lorde God/thou knowest. And he sayde vnto me: Prophecy thou vpō these bones / & speake vnto them: Ye drye bones/ heare the worde of the Lorde. Thus sayeth the Lorde God vnto these bones: Beholde/ I wyll put B breth into you/that ye may lyue: I will geue yow synowes/ & make flesh grow vpō you/& couer you ouer with skinne: & so geue you Genē.ij.b. breth/that ye may lyue / and knowe/ that I am the Lorde.

So I prophecyed/ as he had cōmaunded 1.Corin.xv. a.
me. And as I was prophecyinge/there came a noyse and a greate mocyon/so that the bones ranne euery one to another. Now when I had loked/beholde/they had synowes/and flesh grewe vpon them: and aboue they were couered with skynne/but there was no breth in thē. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of man/prophecye thou towarde the wynde:
prophecy/ & speake to ỹ wynd: Thus saieth the Lorde God: Come (O thou ayre) from the foure wyndes/and blowe vpon these slayne/ C that they may be restored to lyfe. So I pro-phecied / as he had cōmaunded me: then came ỹ breth into thē/ & they receaued lyfe/ & stode vp vpō their fete/ a maruelous greate sorte.

Moreouer/he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man/ these bones are the whole house of Israel. Beholde/they saye: Oure bones are dryed vp/ oure hope is gone/we are clene cut of. Therfore prophecye thou/ & speake vnto Ezec.xxxiij.b
thē: thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde / I D will opē youre graues (O my people) & take you out of youre sepulcres / & bringe you in to the lande of Israel agayne. So shall ye know that I am the Lord/when I opē your graues/ & bringe you out of thē. My spyete also wyll I put in you/ & ye shall lyue: I wil set you agayne in youre awne lande/ and ye shall knowe/ ỹ I am the Lorde/which haue sayde it/ & fulfilled it in dede.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me/sayinge: thou sonne of man/ take a stycke & wryte vpon it: Vnto Juda & to the chyldrē of Israel his companyons. Then take another sticke/ & write vpon it: Vnto Joseph ỹ stock of Ephraim/ & to all the housholde of Israel his companyōs. And thā/ take both these together in thyne hande/ so shall there be one E stycke therof. Now ỹ the childrē of thy people saye vnto the: wylt thou not shewe vs/what thou meanest by these? Then geue thē this answere: thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God: be-holde/ I will take the stock of Joseph/ which is in the hande of Ephraim & of the tribes of Osee.i.b.
Israel his felowes/ & will put thē to ỹ stock of Juda/ & make thē one stocke/ & they shall be one in my hande. And ỹ two styckes where vpon thou wrytest/ shalt thou haue in thyne hand/that they may se/ & shalt saye vnto thē:

Gog and Magog.

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: beholde / I wyll take awaye the chyldren of Israel frō amonge the Heathē / vnto whō they be gone / & wyll gather them together on euery syde / & bringe them agayne into their awne lāde: yee I wyll make one people of them in the lande / vpon the mountaynes of Israel / and they all shall haue but one kyng. They shall no more be two peoples from hēceforth / neither be deuyded in to two kyngdomes: they shall also defile thē selues nomore with their abhominacyōs / Idoles / & all their wickedoinges. I will helpe them out of all their dwellyng places / wherin they haue synned: and wyll so clense them / that they shalbe my people / & I their God.

G Dauid my seruaunt shalbe their kyng / & they all shall haue one shepherde only. They shall walcke in my lawes / & my cōmaundemētes shall they both kepe and fulfil. They shall dwell in ỹ lande / that I gaue vnto Jacob my seruaūt / where as youre fathers also haue dwelt. Yee euē in the same lāde shall they / their chyldren / & their childers children dwell for euermore: and my seruaūt Dauid shalbe their euerlasting prince. Moreouer / I wyll make a bonde of peace wyth them / which shalbe vnto them an euerlastynge couenaunt. I wyll settle thē also / and multiply them / my Sanctuary wyll I set amōge thē for euermore. My dwellynge shalbe wyth them / yee I wyll be their God / and they shall be my people. Thus the Heathen also shall knowe / that I the Lorde am the holy maker of Israel: whē my Sāctuary shalbe amōge them for euermore.

John. x. b.

The prophecyeth that Gog and Magog shall come with an appoynted hoste in to the lande of promes. Their entent. He reherceth that the cōmyng of Gog was before prophecied of the prophetes. The destruccyon of hym.

The .xxxviij. Chapter.

A And the worde of the Lorde came vnto me / sayinge: Thou sonne of man / turne thy face towarde Gog in the lande of Magog / whych is the chefe prince at Meschech and Tubal: prophecy agaynst him / & saye: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: O Gog thou chefe prince Meschech & Tubal: beholde / I wyll vpon the / and wyll turne the aboute / and put a bytt in thy chawes: I wyll bringe the forth & all thyne hoost / both horse and horsmen / which be all weapened of the best fashō: a great people / that handle altogether speares / shyldes / and swerdes: the Perses / Morpans & with them B the Lybians / which all beare shyldes & helmettes: Gomer and all his hoostes: the house of Thogorma out of the north quarters / and all his hoostes / yee & moch people with the.

Apocali. xx. c.

Therfore prepare the / set thy selfe in araye with all thy people / that are come vnto the by heapes / and be thou their defence. After many dayes thou shalt be vysited / and in the latter yeares thou shalt come in to ỹ lande / that hath bene destroyed with the swearde / & now is replenyshed agayne with dyuerse people vpō the moūtaynes of Israel / which haue longe lyen waste. Yet they be brought C out of the nacyons / & dwell all safe. Thou shalt come vp like a stormy wether / to couer the lande / and as it were a darcke cloude: thou wyth all thyne hostes / & a greate multytude of people with the.

Moreouer / thus sayeth the Lorde God: At the same tyme shall many thinges come in to thy mynde / so that thou shalt ymagyn myschefe / & saye: I will vp to yonder playne lande / seing they syt at ease / and dwell so safely (for they dwell all without any walles / they haue nether barres nor dores) to spoyle D them / to robbe thē / to laye hande vpon their so well inhabyted wyldernesses: agaynst that people / that is gathered together frō amōge the Heathen / whych haue gotten catell and good / and dwell in the myddest of the lande. Then shall Saba / and Dedan / and the marchaūtes of Tharsis wyth all their worthies / saye vnto the: Art thou come to robbe? Hast thou gathered thy people together / because thou wylt spoyle? to take syluer and golde: to cary awaye catell and good: and to haue a greate praye?

Therfore / O thou sonne of man / thou E shalt prophecye / and saye vnto Gog: Thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God: In that daye thou shalt knowe / ỹ my people of Israel dwelleth safe: and shalt come from thy place out of ỹ north partes: thou & moch people with the / whych ryde vpon horses / wherof there is a greate multytude & an innumerable sorte. Yee thou shalt come vpon my people of Israell / as a cloude to couer the lande. This shal come to passe in the a* latter dayes: I wyll bringe ỹ vp in to my lande / that the Heathen maye knowe me / when I get me honoure vpō the O Gog / before their eyes.

a* Of the later or last dayes & what they signifye ye haue in Esa. ij. a.

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Thou art F he / of whom I haue spoken afore tyme / by my seruaūtes ỹ prophetes of Israel / which prophecyed in those dayes & yeares / that I shulde bringe the vpon them. At the same tyme / when Gog commeth vp in to the land of Israel (sayeth the Lorde God) shall my indygnacyon go forth in my wrath. For in my gelously and hote displeasure I haue deuysed / that there shalbe a greate trouble in the land of Israel at that tyme. The very fisches in the see / the foules of the ayre / the beastes of the felde / and all the men that are vpon the the earth / shall tremble for feare of me.

G The hilles also shalbe turned vp syd downe/the stayres of stone shal fall/and all walles shal syncke to the grounde. I will cal for a swearde vpon thē in all my mountaynes / sayeth the Lorde God: so that euery mans swearde shal be vpon another. With pestylence and bloude will I punysh hym: stormy rayne & hayle stones/fyre & brimstone/wil I cause to rayne vpō him & all his heape yee & vpon al that greate people that is with him. Thus will I be magnifyed / honoured/ and knowne amonge the Heathen: & they maye be sure/how that I am the Lorde.

The sheweth the destruccyō of Gog & Magog. The graue of Gog & of his hoste. He prophecieth that Gog & his company shalbe deuoured of byrdes and beastes. Wherfore the house of Israel is wasted. Their bringyng agayne from captyuytye is promesed.

¶ The.xxxix.Chapter.

A Ezech.xxxviij. Therfore O thou sonne of mā/prophecye agaynst Gog/and speake: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde/O Gog:thou chefe prince at Mesech and Tubal/I wyl vpon the/& turne the about/& carie & forth/& leade the frō the north partes/& bring the vp to ỳ moūtaynes of Israell. As for thy bowe/I wyll smyte it out of thy left hande / and cast thyne arowes out of thy ryght hande. Thou with all thyne heape/and all the people that is wt the/must fall vpon the mountaynes of Israell. Then will I geue the vnto the foules & wylde beastes of the felde / to be deuoured: there must B thou lye vpon the felde: for euen I the Lorde haue spoken it/sayeth the Lorde God.

In to Magog / and amonge those that syt so carelesse in the Iles:will I sende a fyre / & they shal know/that I am the Lorde. I will make also the name of my holynesse to be knowne amonge my people of Israel: and I will not lett myholy name be euell spoken of enymore:but the very Heathē also shal knowe/that I am the Lorde / the holy one of Israel. Beholde/it commeth/& shalbe fulfilled in dede/sayeth the Lord God. This is ỳ daye wherof I haue spoken: They that dwell in ỳ cyties of Israel/shall go forth & set fyre vpō the weapens/& burne them: shyldes & speres bowes and arowes/bylles & clubbes: seuen yeares shal they be burnynge therof/ so that C they shall els bringe no stickes from ỳ felde/ nether haue nede to hew downe eny out of the wodde: For they shal haue weapēs ynow to burne. They shall robbe those that robbed them/and spoyle those that spoyled them sayeth the Lorde God.

At the same tyme will I geue vnto Gog/ a place to be buried in/in Israel: euē the valley/where thorow men go from the east to ỳ see warde. Those that trauayle therby/shall abhorre it. There shall Gog and all hys people be buried: and it shalbe called the valley of ỳ people of Gog. Seuen monethes longe shal the house of Israel be burienge of them that they maye clense the lāde. Yee al ỳ people of the lande shall burye them. D it shall be a glorious daye/ when I gett me that honoure/sayeth the Lorde God. They shall ordene men also to be deed buriers/euer going thorow the lande/& appoynte them certayne places to bury those in/ whych remayne vpō the felde/ỳ the lande maye be clensed. From ende to ende shall they seke/and that vij. monethes longe. Now those that go thorow the land/where they se a mās bone/they shal set vp a tokē by it/till the deedburiers haue buried it also/in ỳ valley of the people of Gog. And the name of the citie shalbe called. *Hamonah: Thus shal they make the land clene.

* That is/multytude.

And thou sonne of man: thus sayeth the Lorde God: Speake vnto all the foules & euery byrde/yee and to all the wylde beastes of the felde: heape you together and come / gather you rounde aboute vpon my slaughter/that I haue slayne for you:euen a greate slaughter vpon the mountaynes of Israell: eate flesh/and drincke bloude. Ye shal eate ỳ E flesh of the worthies/and dryncke the bloude Apoca.xix. of the prynces of the lande: of the wethers/ of the lambes/ of the goates/and of the oxen that be al slayne at Basan. Eate the fat your belyfull/and drincke bloud/tyll ye be dronken of the slaughter/ whych I haue slayne vnto you. Fill you at my table/with horses & stronge horsmen: with captaynes and al mē of warre/sayeth the Lorde God.

I will bringe my glory also amonge the F Gentyles / that all the Heathen maye se my iudgement/that I haue kepte/and myhand whych I haue layed vpon them: that ỳ house of Israell maye knowe/ how that I am ỳ Lorde theyr God / from that daye forth. And the Heathen shall knowe / that where as the house of Israell were led in to captyuite: it was for their wickednes sake/because they offended me.

For the whych cause I hyd my face from them/and delyuered them in to the handes of their enemyes/that they myght all be slayne with the swearde. Accordinge to their vnclēnesse and vnfaithful dealinges/ so haue I entreated them / and hyd my face from them. G Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: Now will I bryng agayne the captiues of Jacob and haue mercy vpon the whole house of Israell/ & be gelous for myholy names sake. All their confusiō and offence that they haue done agaynst me/ shall be taken awaye: and so safely shall they dwell in their lande/ that no man shall make them afrayed. And when

I haue brought them agayne from amonge the people/when I haue gathered thē toge-ther out of their enemyes lādes/& am prayed in them before many Heathen:then shal they knowe/that I am ỹ Lorde their God/ which suffred them to be led in to captyuyte amonge the Heathē/but now haue brought them agayne in to their awne lande/and not left one of them yonder.

After that/wyll I hyde my face nomore from them/but wil poure out my spyrete vpō the house of Israel/sayeth the Lorde God. Ezech.xxxvi.d

¶ The restoaringe of the cytye & of the temple that was to come is shewed vnto the Prophete.

¶ The.xl.Chapter.

A IN the xxv.yeare of oure captyuyte/in the beginning of the yeare/ the.x.daye of the moneth:that is ỹ xiiij.yeare/after that the cite was smyten downe:the same daye came the hand of the Lorde vpon me/& caried me forth:euē into the lande of Israel brought he me in the vysyons of God:& set me downe vpō a marueilous hye moūtaye/wherupon there was a buyldynge (as it had bene of a cite)toward the north.

Thither he caried me/ and beholde/there was a mā/whose similitude was like brasse/ which had a threde of flax in his hande/ and a metterodde also. He stode in ỹ dore/& sayde vnto me:marcke well with thyne eyes/her-ken to with thyne eares/ & fasten it in thine hert/whatsoeuer I shall shewe the/for to ỹ intent that they myght be shewed the/ther-fore art thou brought hither. And whatsoe-uer thou seyst/thou shalt certyfye the house of Israel therof.

Beholde/there was a wall on the outside roundc aboute the house:the meterodde that he had in his hand/was six cubytes long & a spanne. So he measured the bredth of the B buylding/ which was a meterodde/and the heygth also a meterodde. Then came he vnto the east dore/& wente vp the stares/& mea-sured the postes of ỹ dore:wherof euery one was a meterodde thicke. Euery chābre was a meterodde longe & brode: betwene the chā-bers were fyue cubytes. The poste of ỹ dore within the porche/ was one meterodde. He measured also the porche of the ynnermer dore/ whych conteyned a meterodde. Then measured he the entrye of the dore/that con-teyned eght cubytes/and his pylers two cu-bytes:and this entrye stode inwarde.

The chambers of the dore eastwarde/were thre on euery syde:a lyke brode and longe. The pylers also that stode of both the sydes/ were of one measure. After this/ he measu-red the wydenesse of the dore/which was.x. cubytes/& the heygth of the dore xiij.cubyts. The edge before the chambres was one cu- C byte brode vpon both the sydes/& the cham-bres six cubites wyde of either side. He mea-sured the dore from the rygge of one chābre to another/whose wydnesse was.xxb. cuby-tes/and one dore stode agaynst another. He made pilers also.ix.cubites hye/roūde about the courte dore Before ỹ inward parte vnto the fore entre of the ynnermer dore/were L. cubytes. The chābers & their pilers within/ rounde about vnto the dore/ had syde wyn-dowes: So had the fore entries also/ whose wyndowes wente rounde about within. And vpon the pylers there stode date trees.

Then brought he me in to the fore courte/ where as were chambres & paued worckes/ made in the fore courte rounde aboute. xxx. chambres vpon one paued worcke. Now the paued worcke was a longe beside the dores/ & ỹ was the lower paued worcke. After this/ he measured the bredth frō the lower dore/ vnto the ynnermer courte of the outsyde/ which had an.C.cubytes vpon the east & the D north parte. And the dore in the vttermost courte towarde the north/measured he after the length & bredth: his thre chambres also on ether side/ with his pylers & fore entries: which had euen the measure of the first dore. His heygth was fyfty cubytes/ ỹ bredth xxb cubytes: his wyndowes & porches with hys date tres/had euen lyke measure as ỹ dore towarde the east: there were.viij. steppes to go vp vpō/& their porche before them. Now the dore of ỹ ynnermer court stode streight ouer agaynst the dore/that was toward the north east. Frō one dore to another/ he mea-sured.C.cubytes.

After that/he brought me to ỹ southside/ where there stode a dore towarde the south: whose pilers and porches he measured/these had the fyrst measure/& wyth their porches they had wyndowes rounde aboute/lyke the first wyndowes. The heygth was.l.cubites/ the bredth.xxb. & steppes to go vp vpon: his porche stode before him/ with his pylers and date tres on either side. And the dore of the ynnermer courte stode towarde the south/& he measured from one dore to another an.C. cubites. So he brought me in to ỹ ynnermer courte/thorow ỹ dore of ỹ south syde: which he measured/ and it had the measure afore sayde. In lyke maner/his chambres/pylers/ and fore entries/had euē the fore sayde mea-sure also. And he had with his porches roūde aboute/wyndowes of.L.cubytes heyght/ & xxb. cubytes brode. The porches roūd about were.xxb. cubytes longe/ and.b. cubytes brode: and his porch reached vnto the vtter-most court: vpon his pylers there were date trees/trees/and.biij.steppes to go vp vpon.

E He brought me also in to ỹ vnmost courte vpon the east syde / and measured the doze / accozdyng to ỹ measure afoze sayd. His chã-bers/pylers/and pozches had euen the same measure/as ỹ fyrst had: & with his pozches he had wyndowes roũde aboute. The heigth was.l.cubytes: the bzedth.xxb.cubytes: His pozches reached vnto the vttermost courte: his pilers also had date trees on eyther syde/ & .biij. steppes to go vp vpõ. And he bzought me to the nozth doze/and measured it/which also had ỹ foze sayd measure. His chãbzes/ pylers and pozches had wyndowes rounde aboute: whose heygth was.l.cubytes / & the bzedth.xxb. Hys pylers stode towarde ỹ vt-temost courte / & vpon them both were date trees/and.biij.steppes to go vp vpon. There stode a chambze also/ whose intraunce was at the doze pylers / and there the burntoffe-rynges were washed.

In the doze pozche / there stode on ether
F syde two tables foz the slaughtynge: to sleye the bzentofferynges / synneofferynges and trespaceoffrynges therbpon. And on the out syde as men go fozth to the nozth doze/there stode two tables. Foure tabłz stode on ether syde of the doze/ ỹ is.viij.tables / wherbpon they slaughted. Foure tables were of hewen stone foz the burntofferynges/of a cubyte & a half longe and bzode / and one cubyte hye: wherbpon were layed the vessels and oznamentes / whych were vsed to the burnt and slayne offerynges/whẽ they were slaughted. And within there were hokes foure fyngers bzode / fastened rounde aboute / to hange flesh vpon/and vpon the tables was layed ỹ offrynge flesh. On the outsyde of the ynner-mer doze were the syngers chambers in the inwarde courte besyde the Nozth doze ouer agaynst ỹ South. There stode one also/be-syde the east doze nozthwarde.

G And he sayde vnto me: This chambze on i.Para.lij.a. the South syde belongeth to the pzestes / ỹ ij.Reg.ỹ.f. kepe the habytacyon: and thys towarde the Nozth / is the Pzestes that wayte vpon the aulter: which be the sonnes of Sadoch/that do seruyce befoze the Lozde in steade of the chyldzen of Leui. So he measured the foze courte/whych had in length an.C.cubytes/ and as moch in bzedth by the foure cozners. Now the aulter stode befoze the house: And he bzought me to the foze entre of the houle/ and measured the walles by the entre doze: wich were fyue cubytes longe on ether syde. The thicknesse also of the doze on ether syde/ was thze cubytes. The length of the pozche was.xx.cubytes/the bzedth.xj.cubytes/and vpon steppes went men vp to it: by ỹ walles also were pylers/on ether syde one.

¶ The disposycyon and denyce of buyldynge agayne the temple/& of the other thynges therto belongyng.

¶ The.xlj.Chapter.

A Fter this he bzought me to ỹ tẽple/ & measured the postes: whych were
A of both ỹ sydes.vj.cubytes thicke/ accozdynge to the wydenesse of the tabernacle. The bzedth of the doze was.x. cubytes and the walles of the doze on either syde fyue cubytes. He measured the length therof/which conteyned.xl.cubytes/and the bzedth.xx. Then wente he in/ and measured the doze postes / whych were two cubytes thicke: but ỹ doze it selfe was syxe cubytes/ & the bzedth of the doze was.viij.cubytes. He measure ỹ length and bzedth therof/ whych were euery one.xx.cubytes/ befoze ỹ tẽple.

And he sayde vnto me: thys is the holyest of all. He measured also the wall of ỹ house/ whych was syxe cubytes. The chambzes ỹ stode roũde aboute ỹ house/ were euery one foure cubytes wyde/& one stode harde vpon another/wherof there were.xxxiij. And there stode postes beneth by the walles rounde aboute the house/to beare thẽ vp: but in the wall of ỹ house they were not fastened: The syde chambzes were the hyer the wyder/ and had steppes thozow them rounde aboute the house. Thus was it wyder aboue/that from the lowest men might go to ỹ hyest & mydd chambers. I sawe also that the house was
B very hye rounde aboute. The foundacyon of the syde chambzes was a meterodde (that is syxe cubytes) bzode. The thicknesse of ỹ syde wall without/conteyned fyue cubytes/ & so dyd ỹ outwall of the chãbzes in the house.

Betwene the chambers/ was the wydenes xx.cubytes roũde about the house. The chambze dozes stode ouer agaynst the out-wall/the one doze was towarde the nozth/ ỹ other towarde the South: & the thycknesse of ỹ outwall was.v.cubytes rounde aboute Now the buyldynge that was separated to-warde the west/ was lxx.cubytes wyde: the wall of the buyldyng was.v.cubytes thicke rounde aboute/& the length foure scoze cu-bytes & ten. So he measured ỹ house which was an.C.cubytes longe/and the separated buyldyng with the wall were an.C.cubytes longe also. The wydnesse befoze the house & of it that was separated towarde the East/ was an.C.cubytes.

And he measured the length of the buyl-C dynge before and behynde wyth the chãbers vpon both the sydes: and it conteyned an.C. cubites. The ynnermer temple/the pozch of the foze courte/the side postes/these thze had syde wyndowes / and pylers rounde aboute ouer agaynst the postes / from the grounde vp to the wyndowes: The wyndowes themselues were syled ouer with bordes: and thus was it aboue the dore/ vnto the vttmost house/ and without also: Yee the whole wall on euery syde both within and without was syled ouer w greate bordes. There were Che-

D rubins and date trees made also/ so that one date tree stode euer betwixte two Cherubins: One Cherub had two faces/ ỹ face of a man lokynge a syde towarde the date tre/ and a lyons face on ỹ other syde. Thus was it made rounde aboute in al the house: Yee ỹ Cherubins & date trees were made frō the groūd vp aboue the dore/ & so stode they also vpon the wall of the temple.

The vyppostes of the temple were foure squared/ and the fashion of the Sanctuary was euen as it apparedvnto me a fore in ỹ vision. The table was of wodde/ thre cubytes hye and two cubytes longe: hys corners/ the length and the walles were of wodde. And he sayde vnto me: This is the table/ that shal stande before the Lorde. The temple & the holyest of al had ether of them two dores & euery dore had two lytle wyckettes which were folden in one vpon another/ on euery syde two. And vpon the dores of the temple there were made Cherubins & date trees/ lyke as vpon the walles: & a greate thicke balke of wodde was before on the out syde of ỹ porche. Vpon both the sydes of the walles of the porche/ there were made depe windowes & date trees/ hauynge beames and balkes/ lyke as the house had.

¶ Of the chambres of the temple for the Preastes/ & the holy thinges.

¶ The.xlij. Chapter.

A Then caryed he me out in to ỹ fore court towarde ỹ north/ & brought me in to the chambre ỹ stode ouer against the backebuyldyng north warde/ which had the length of an. C. cubytes whose dore turned toward the north. The wydenesse cōteyned. L. cubites: ouer against the. xx. cubites of the vnnermer courte/ and against the paued worke that was in ỹ fore court. Besyde all these thre/ there stode pylers/ one ouer against another: And before this chambre there was a walkyng place of x. cubites wyde/ & within was a waye of one cubite wyde/ & their dores towarde ỹ north. Thus the hyest chambres were allwaye narower then the lowest and myddelmost of ỹ building: for they bare chambre vpon chambre/ and stode thre together one vpō another not hauynge pilers lyke the fore court: therfore were they smaller then those beneth and in the myddest/ to reken from the grounde vpwarde.

The wall without that stode by the chambres towarde the vttmost courte vpon the fore syde of the chambres/ was L. cubytes longe: for the length of the vttmost chābres in the fore courte was L. cubites also: but ỹ length therof before the temple was an C. cubites. These chambres had vnder them an intraūce of the east syd/ wherby a mā might go in to them out of the fore courte/ thorow the thicke wal of the fore courte toward the east/ right ouer against the separated buyldinge. Before the same buyldynge vpon thys syde there were chambers also whych had awaye vnto thē/ lyke as the chambers on ỹ north syde of the same length & wydenesse.

Their intraunce/ fashyon and dores were also of the same maner. Yee euen lyke as the C other chamber dores were/ so were those also of the south syd. And before the waye toward the singers steppes on the east side/ there stode a dore to go in at. Then sayde he vnto me: The chambers toward the north & the south whych stande before the backe buyldynge: those be holy habitacyons/ wheryn the preastes that do seruyce before the Lorde/ must eate the most holy offeringes: and there must they laye the most holy offerynges: meatofferinges/ synne offringes & trespace offerynges/ for it is an holy place. When the preastes come therin/ they shal not go out in to ỹ fore courte: but (seyenge they be holy) they shall leaue the clothes of their ministracyon/ and put on other garmētes/ when they haue eny thynge to do with the people.

Now when he had measured al the vnnermer house/ he brought me forth thorow the D east porte/ and measured the same rounde aboute. He measured the east syde w the meterodde/ whych rounde aboute conteyned v. C. meterodes. And the north syde measured he/ which conteyned rounde aboute euen so moch. The other two sydes also towarde the south and the west (which he measured) conteyned ether of them v. C. meterodes. So he measured all the foure sydes where there wente a wall rounde aboute v. C. meterodes longe/ & as brode also whych separated ỹ holy from the vnholy.

The seyth the glory of God goyng in to the Temple/ from whence it had before departed. He menyoneth the Idolatrye of the children of Israell/ for which they were consumed & brought to nowght. He is commaunded to call them agayne to repentaunce.

¶ The.xliij. Chapter.

SO he brought me to ỹ dore/ ỹ turneth towarde the east. Beholde/ then came the glory of the God of A Israell from out of the east/ whose voyce was like a greate noyse of waters/ & the earth was lyghtened with hys glory. His Ezech.x. lyght to loke vpon was lyke the fyrst/ that I sawe/ when I wentè in/ what tyme as the cytye cytie shulde haue bene destroyed: and lyke ỹ vysyon that I sawe by the water of Cobar.

Then fell I vpon my face/but the glory of ỹ Ezechiel.i.a. Lorde came in to the house thorow the East Ezech.x.c.xi.d dore. So a wynde toke me vp/ and brought me into the vnnermer courte: & beholde/the house was full of the glory of the Lorde.

B I herde one speakyng vnto me out of the house/and there stode one by me/ that sayde Esa.vi.a. lxvi.a vnto me: O thou sonne of man/ this rowme Apoca.xxi.c is my seate / & the place of my fote steppes:
where as I wyll dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel for euermore: so that the house of Israel shall nomore defile my holy name: nether they/ ner their kings/ thorow their whor-dome/ thorow their hye places/ & thorow the deed bodyes of their Kynges: whych haue buylded their thresholdes in maner harde vpon my thresholdes/ & their postes almost at my postes: so that there is but a bare wall betwyxte me and them.

Thus haue they defyled my holy name with their abhominacyons / that they haue cõmytted. Wherfore I haue destroyed them in my wrath: But now they shall put awaye their whordome and the deed bodyes of their kynges out of my syght/ that I maye dwell
C amõge thẽ for euermore. Therfore (O thou Zach.ỹ.a. sonne of man) shewe thou the housholde of Israel a temple/ that they maye be ashamed of their wickednesse/ and measure thẽ selues an example therat.

And when they be ashamed of all their worckes / then shewe them the fourme and fashyon of the temple: the commynge in/ the goynge oute/ all the maner and descripcion therof/ yee all the vses and ordynaunces of it/ ỹ they maye kepe & fulfill all the fashiõs
D and customes therof.

This is the descripcyon of the house: Ab-oue vpõ the moũt rounde aboute all ỹ corners/ it shalbe ỹ holyest of all. Beholde/ that is the descripcyon and fashyon of the house.
This is the measure of the aulter (after the true cubyte: whych is a spanne longer then another cubyte) hys botome in the myddest was a cubyte longe and wyde/ and the ledge that wente rounde aboute it/ was a spanne brode. This is the heygth of ỹ aulter: From the grounde to the lower steppes the length is two cubytes / and the bredth one cubyte:
and from the lower steppes to the higher are foure cubytes/ & the bredth but one cubyte.
Exodi.xxvỹ.a. The aulter was foure cubytes hye/ & frõ the aulter vpwarde stode foure hornes / and it was. xij. cubytes longe and. xij. cubytes E brode/ vpõ ỹ foure corners: the couerynge of ỹ aulter was. xiiij. cubytes longe and brode

A When ye deuyde the lãde by the lot / ye shall put aseyde one parte for ỹ Lorde / to be holy frõ other lãdes:
Ezech. xlviij. b namely xxv. M. meterodds lõge / and. x. M. brode. This shalbe holy / as wyde as it is rounde aboute. Of thys parte there shal belonge vnto the Sanctuary. v. C. meterodds in all the foure corners / and. l. cubytes wyde rounde aboute to the suburbes. And from this measure / namely of. xxv. M meterodds longe / & x. M. brode / thou shalt measure measure/wherin the Sanctuary and ỹ holyest of all maye stande.

The relydue of that holy grounde shall be the prestes/ which do serupce in ỹ Sanctuary of the Lorde / and goo in before the Lorde to serue hym / that they maye haue rowme to dwell in.

B As for the Sanctuary/it shall stande for it selfe: & to the Leuites ỹ serue in the house/ there shalbe geuen.xx.habytacyons / of the xxv.M.length & x.M.bredth: ye shall geue also vnto the cytie a possessyon of.v.M.meteroddes brode/ & xxv.M.longe / besyde the parte of the Sanctuary: that shall be for ỹ whole house of Israell. Upon both the sydes of ỹ Sanctuarys parte/ & by the citie/there C shalbe geuē vnto ỹ prynce/whatsoeuer lieth ouer agaynst the cytie/ as farre as reacheth westwarde and eastwarde: whych shalbe as longe as one parte / frō ỹ west vnto ỹ east.

Ezech.xlviij.d.

This shalbe his awne lande in Israel/ ỹ my princes be no more chargeable vnto my people. And soch as remayneth yet ouer in ỹ lande/ shalbe geuē to ỹ house of Israel accordynge to their trybes. Thus sayeth the Lorde God: O ye prynces/ ye haue now oppressed and destroyed ynough: now leaue of/ handle now accordyng to the thinge/ that is equall and lawful: and thrust out my people nomore/ sayeth the Lord God. Ye shal haue a true weyght/ a true a* Ephah/ and a true b* Bath. The Ephah & ỹ Bath shalbe a like.

a* Ephah is a measure of drie thinges.

b* Bath is a measure of moyste thinge.

D One Bath shall cōteyne ỹ tenth parte of an Homer/ & so shall one Ephah do: their measure shall be after the Homer. One Sycle maketh.xx.Geras. c* So.xx.Sicles/ & .xxv. and .xv.Sycles make a pounde. This is the heaueoffrynge/ that ye shall geue to be heaued: namely/ ỹ .xvj. parte of an Ephah / out of an Homer of wheate: and the .xvj. part of an Ephah/ out of an Homer of barly. The oyle shall be measured with the Bath: euen the tent parte of one Bath out of a d* Cor.

c* So.xx.sicles/ & .xv. and xxv. make a pounde. That is.lx.sicles make a pounde. Howbeit euery one of these nombers was wont to haue his proper name alone.

E Ten Bathes make one Homer: for one Homer fylleth ten Bathes. And one lambe from two hundreth sheepe out of the pasture of Israel/ for a meatoffringe/ burntoffering and healthoffrynge/ to reconcyle thē/ sayeth the Lorde God. All the people of the lande shall geue thys heaueofferynge wyth a fre will. Agayne/ it shall be the prynces parte to offre burntofferynges/ meatofferynges and drynckoffrynges vnto the Lorde/ in the holy dayes/ new Moones/ Sabbathes/ and in all the hye feastes of the house of Israel. The F cynoffrynge/ meatoffrynge/ brentofferynge and healthoffrynge shall he geue / to reconcyle ỹ house of Israel. Thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God: The first daye of the fyrst moneth thou shalt take a yonge bullocke wythout blemysh/ and clense the Sanctuary. So the preste shall take of the bloude of the synoffrynge/ and sprenckle it vpon the postes of the house/ and vpon the foure corners of the aulter/ with the dorepostes of the ynnermer courte. And thus shalt thou do also ỹ seuēth daye of the moneth (for soch as haue synned of ignorauunce / or beyng disceaued) to recōcyle the house withall. Upon the .xiiij. daye of ỹ fyrst moneth ye shall kepe Easter. Seuen dayes shall the feast contynue / wherin there shal no sower ner leuēned bred be eatē.

Upon the same daye shal the prynce geue for him selfe and all the people of the lande/ G a bullocke for a synoffrynge. And in ỹ feast of the seuen dayes he shall offre euery daye a bullocke & a ram/ that are without blemish/ for a burntoffrynge vnto the Lorde: and an he gaote daylye for a synoffrynge. For the meatoffrynges/ he shal geue euer an Ephah to a bullocke/ an Ephah to a ram / & an Hin of oyle to an Ephah. Upon the .xv. daye of ỹ seuēth moneth/ he shall kepe the seuē dayes holy one after another/ euē as the other seuē dayes: with the synoffrynge/ burntoffryng/ meatoffrynge/ and with the oyle.

¶ The sacrifices of the Sabboth & of the new mones. Thorow which dores they must go in/ or come out of the temple &c.

¶ The .xlvj. Chapter.

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: the dore of the ynnermer courte towarde ỹ A East / shall be shut the .vj. worcke dayes: but in the Sabboth and in daye of the newe Moone / it shalbe opened. Then shall the prynce come vnder the dore porche/ and stande styll wythout by the dore cheke. So ỹ prestes shall offre vp his burnt and healthoffrynge. And he shall worshype at ỹ doreposte/ & go his waye forth agayne: but the dore shall nomore be shut tyll the euenynge.

On the same maner shall ỹ people of the lande also do their worshipe before ỹ Lorde/ wythout thys dore vpon the Sabbathes & newe Moones. This is now the burntoffe- B rynge / that the prynce shall bringe vnto ỹ Lorde vpō the Sabboth: syxe lambes without blemysh/ and a ram without blemysh/ and an Ephah for a meatoffrynge / with the ram. As for the lābes / he maye geue as many meatoffrynges to them/ as he wyll/ & an Hin of oyle to an Ephah. In the daye of the newe moneth/ it shal be a yonge bullocke without blemysh/ sixe lambes & a ram also without blemish. With the bullocke he shal geue an Ephah/ and wyth the ram an Ephah also for a meatofferyng: but to the lābes/ what he maye come by: And euer an Hin of oyle to C an Ephah. Whē the prynce cōmeth/ he shall go vnder the doze pozche/ and euen theredeparte fozth agayne. But when the people of the lande come befoze the Lozde in the hye soiempne feast / as many as come in by the Nozth doze to do wozshyppe / shall goo oute agayne at the South doze. And they ꝑ come in at the South doze/ shall go fozth agayne at the Nozth doze. There shall none go oute at the doze where he came in / but shall goo fozth ryght ouer on the other syde/ & ꝑ pzince shall go in and out amonge them.

D Upon the solempne and hye feaste dayes/this shalbe the meatofferinge: An Epha to a bullock and an Epha to a ram/ and to the lambes: as many as he wil/ but euer an Hin of oyle to an Epha. Now when the pzynce bzyngeth a burntofferynge oz an healthoffe-rynge wyth a fre wyll vnto the Lozde / the east doze shalbe opened vnto him/ ꝑ he maye do with hys burnt and healthofferynges / as he doth vpon the Sabboth / and when he goeth fozth/ the doze shall be shutt after hym agayne. He shal daylie bzynge vnto ꝑ Lozde a lambe of a yeare olde without blemysh foz E a burnt offringe: this shall he do euery moz-nynge. And foz a meatofferinge he shal geue the sixte parte of an Epha/ & the thyzde parte of an Hin of oyle (to myngle with the cakes) euery mournynge. Yee this shalbe a daylye meatofferinge vnto the Lozde/ foz an euerlastinge ozdinaunce: & thus shal the lambe/the meatofferynge and oyle be geuen euery moznynge/ foz a daylie burntofferinge.

Mozeouer/ thus sayeth the Lozde God:
If the pzynce geue a gyfte vnto eny of hys sonnes/ then shall it be hys sonnes heretage perpetuall/ ꝑ he maye possesse it. But If he Leuitic. xxv.b. wyll geue one of his seruauntes some of his Nume. xxxvi.c heretage/ it shall be his to the fre yeare/ and F then to returne agayne vnto ꝑ pzynce: foz hys in. Reg. xxi.a. heretage shalbe his sonnes only. The pzince
ꝑ. Reg. ix.b. also shall take none of the peoples enherytaunce/ ner put the from their possessyō: but to his awne sonnes shall he geue his possess-syon/ that my people be not scatred abzode/but that euery man maye haue his awne.

And he bzought me thozow the intraunce at the syde of the doze to the habytacyon of ꝑ Sanctuary/ that be longeth to ꝑ pzestes and stode towarde the nozth/ & beholde/ there was a place vpon the West syde/ then sayde he vnto me: This is ꝑ place/ where ꝑ pzestes shall dight the trespace and synoffrynges / & bake the meatofferinges: that they nede not beare them in to the outwarde courte / and G so to vnhalowe the people. So he bzought me in to the vttemost courte/ rounde aboute all the foure cozners. Beholde/ in euery cozner of the foze courte/ there was yet a lytle courte. Yee in all the foure cozners of the courte/ there was made a lytle courte of. xl.
cubytes longe/ and. xxx. cubites bzode: these foure lytle courtes were of one lyke measure/ & there wēt a rygge wall rounde aboute them all foure / vnder the whych there were harthes made rounde aboute. Then sayd he vnto me: This is the kechin / where the mynisters of the house shal dyght the slayne of-ferynges of the people.

¶ The vysyon of the waters that come out of the te-

¶ The. xlvij. Chapter.

AFter thys he bzought me agayne A befoze the doze of ꝑ house: and be-holde/ there gushed out waters frō vnder the postes of the house east-warde (foz the house stode towarde the east) that ranne downe vpon the ryght syde of the house/ which lyeth to the aulter south ward.
Then caried he me out to the nozth doze/ and bzought me fozth there-rounde aboute by the vttemost doze that turneth east warde. Be-holde / there came fozth the water vpon the Zach. xiij.c.
right side. Now whā the man ꝑ had ꝑ mete- & .xiiij.b
rodde in his hande wente vnto the east doze/he measured a M. cubites/ & thē he bzought me thozow the water/ euen to ꝑ ancles: so he measured yet a thousand/ & bzought me tho-row ꝑ water agayne vnto ꝑ knees: yet mea- B sured he a thousande / & bzought me thozow the water vnto the loines. After this he measured a thousande agayne / then was it soch
a ryuer / that I myght not wade thozow it:
The water was so depe/ that it was nedeful to haue swimmed/ foz it might not be waded ouer. And he sayde vnto me: hast thou sene this/ O thou sonne of man? and wyth that/he bzought me to ꝑ ryuer banck agayne.

Now when I came there/ there stode many trees vpon ether syde of the ryuer bācke.
Then sayde he vnto me: This water that flo-weth oute towarde * the East / and runneth downe in to the playne felde/ commeth in to *Some reade/the see: and from the see it rūneth out/ & ma- Galile.
keth the waters whole. Yee all that lyue and moue/ where vnto this ryuer commeth/ shal recouer. And where thys water commeth/there shalbe moch fysh. For all ꝑ cōmeth to this water/ shal be lusty and whole. By this ryuer shall the fyschers stande from Engad-di vnto En Eglaim/ & there spzede oute their lyke as in the mayne see. As foz hys clay & C pyttes/ they shall not be whole / foz why/ it shalbe occuppde foz salt.

By this ryuer vpon both the sydes of the shoze/ there shal growe al maner of fruteful trees/ whose leaues shall not fall of/ nether shall their frute perysh: but euer be zypeat their

their monethes/for their water rūneth out of their Sanctuary. Hys frute is good to eate/and hys leaf profitable for medycyne. Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Let this be the border/wherin ye shall deuyde ỹ lande vnto the.xij.tribes of Israel/with the lyne. Parte it indyfferently vnto one as vnto another: of the which lande I swore vnto youre fathers/ that it shulde fall to youre enheritaunce. Gene.xxij.c.

Thys is the border of the lande vpon the northside/from the mayne see/as men go to Zadada: namely Hemath/Berotha/Sabarim: from the borders of Damascus & Hemath vnto Hazar Tichon/& that lyeth vpon the coastes of Hauerā. Thus ỹ borders frō the see forth/shalbe Hazar Enan/the border of Damascus the North/and the borders of Hemath: that is the North parte.

B The east syde shall ye measure from Haueran and Damascus/from Galead and the lande of Israel by Iordane and so forth/frō the see coast/that lyeth eastwarde: and this is the east parte.

The southsyde is/from Thamar forth to the waters of stryfe vnto Cades/the ryuer/ to the mayne see: and that is the south part. Nume.xx.b Exodi.xvij.b.

The west parte: namely the greate see frō the borders therof/tyll a mā come vnto Hemath: this is the west parte.

This lande shal ye parte amōge you/according to the tribes of Israel/& deuide it to be an heretage for you/& for the straungers that dwell amonge you/& begette chyldren. C The ende of the Prophecye of Ezechiel.

C The boke of the prophete Daniel.

C The Prophete sheweth the captiuite of Jehoakim kynge of Juda. Of the sonnes that were in captyuyte/the kynge commaundeth to chuse which of them shuld be taught the lernyng & language of the Chaldees. They are alowed the kynges fedyng. Daniel abstaineth from the meate of the kynge of Babylon. The science and instruccyon of these chyldren.

C The fyrst Chapter.

IN the thyrde yeare of ỹ raygne of Jehoakim kyng of Juda/came Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon vnto Jerusalem/& beleged it: and the Lord deliuered Jehoakim the kynge of Juda in to his hande/with certayne ornamentes of ỹ house of God/which he caried awaye vnto the lande of Sennar/ to the house of his god/and there he brought them into his goddes treasury. And the kyng spake vnto Aspha naz ỹ cheke chāberlayne/ that he shulde bryng hym certayne of the chyldren of Israell/that were come of the kinges sede & of princes/yonge spryngaldes without any blemysh/but fayre & welfauored/instructe in all wysdome/connynge and vnderstandynge: which were able to stande in the kynges palace/to reade and to lerne for to speake Caldeish. iiij.Reg.xxiiij.a ij.Par.xxxvi.c

Unto these ỹ kyng appoynted a certayne B porcion of his awne meate/& of the wyne/ which he dranche himselfe/to norysh them thre yeare: ỹ afterwarde they myght stande before the kynge. Amonge these now were certayne of the childrē of Juda: namely Daniel/Ananias/Misael and Azarias. Unto these ỹ cheke chamberlayne gaue other names/& called Daniel/Balthasar: Ananias/ Sydrach: Misael/Misach: and Asarias/ Abednago. But Daniel was at a poynt wt him selfe/ỹ he wolde not be defyled thorow ỹ kinges meate/ner ỹ wyne which he dronke. And thys he delyred of the cheke Chamberlayne/lest he shulde defile hymselfe. So God gaue Daniel fauoure and grace before the C cheke chamberlayne/that he sayde vnto him: I am afrayed of my lorde the kynge/whych hath appoynted you youre meate & drincke: lest he spye youre faces to be worse lykynge then ỹ other spryngaldes of youre age/& so ye shall make me lose my head vnto ỹ king. Gene.xliij.k. Tobi.i.b. Judit.xij.a.

Then Daniel answered Melassar/whom ỹ cheke chamberlayne had set ouer Daniel/ Ananias/Misael and Asarias/& sayde: O proue but ten dayes with thy seruauntes/& let vs haue potage to eate/& water to drincke: then loke vpon oure faces/& theirs that eate of the kynges meate. And as thou seist/ sodeale so deale with thy seruaũtes. So he consented to them in this matter/ & proued them .x. dayes. And after the ten dayes/ their faces were better lykinge & fatter/ then all ỹ yõg spryngaldes/ which ate of the kinges meate.

Thus Belassar toke awaye their meate and wyne/ and gaue them potage therfore. God gaue now these foure spryngaldes connynge and lernyng in all scripture and wysdome: but vnto Daniel specyally/ he gaue vnderstandinge of all vysions and dreames. Now when the tyme was expyred/ that the kynge had appoynted to bringe in these yõg spryngaldes vnto hym: the chefe chamberlayne brought them before Nabuchodonosor/ and the kyng communed wyth thẽ. But amonge them all were founde none soch as Daniel/ Ananias/ Misael/ and Asarias. Therfore stode they before ỹ kyng/ which in all wysdome & matters of vnderstanding/ ỹ he enquered of thẽ/ founde thẽ ten tymes better/ then all the sothsayers & charmers/ that were in all hys realme. And Daniel abode styll/ vnto the fyrst yeare of kynge Cyrus.

¶ The dreame of Nabuchodonosor. He calleth vnto hym sothsayers/ and requyreth of them both the dreame and the interpretacyon therof. They answere that they can not shewe it. The kynge commaundeth all the wyse men of Babylon to be slayne. Daniel requyreth tyme to solute the questyon. The Lorde openeth the mystery vnto Daniel. Daniel is brought vnto the kyng & sheweth him his dreame & the interpretacyon therof. Of the euerlastynge kyngdome of Christ. The stone Christ. Daniel is exalted & promoted of the kynge.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

In the seconde yeare of the raigne of Nabuchodonosor/ had Nabuchodonosor a dreame/ where thorow his spyrete was vexed/ and his slepe brake from him. Then the kynge commaunded to call together al the sothsayers/ charmers/ witches & Caldees/ for to shewe the kyng his dreame. So they came/ & stode before the kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto them: I haue dreamed a dreame/ & my spyrete was so troubled therwith/ ỹ I haue clene forgotten/ what I dreamed. Upon this the Caldees answered the kynge in the Syrians speach:* O king/ God saue thy lyfe for euer. Shewe thy seruaũtes the dreame/ & we shall shewe the/ what it meaneth. The kyng gaue ỹ Caldees their answere/ & sayde: It is gone fro me: Yf ye wyll not make me vnderstande the dreame with the interpretacyon therof/ ye shall dye/ & youre houses shalbe pyled. But yf ye tell me the dreame & the meanyng therof/ ye shall haue of me giftes/ rewardes & greate honoure: only/ shewe me the dreame and the sygnyfycacyon of it. They answered agayne/ and sayde: the kynge must shewe his seruauntes the dreame/ and so shall we declare what it meaneth. Then the kyng answered/ sayinge: I perceaue of a trueth/ that ye do but prolonge the tyme: for so moch as ye se/ ỹ the thinge is gone frome. Therfore ye wyll not tell me ỹ dreame/ ye shall al haue one iudgemẽt. But ye fayne & dyssemble wt vayne wordes/ which ye speake before me/ to put of ỹ tyme. Therfore tell me ỹ dreame/ & so shall I knowe/ yf ye can shewe me/ what it meaneth. Upon this/ ỹ Caldees gaue answere before the kyng/ and sayde: there is no man vpõ earth/ ỹ can tell the thynge/ which the kynge speaketh of: yee there is nether kynge/ prynce ner Lorde/ that euer asked soch thinges at a sothsayer/ charmer or Caldeer: for it is a very harde matter/ ỹ the kinge requyreth. Nether is there any/ that can certyfye the kynge therof/ excepte the goddes: whose dwelling is not amõge the creatures.

For the which cause the kyng was wroth with greate indignacion/ and cõmaunded to destroye all the wyse men at Babylon: & the proclamaciõ went forth/ that the wyse men shulde be slayne. They sought also to slaye Daniel with his cõpanyons. Then Daniel enquered Arioch the kinges stewarde/ of the iudgement and sentẽce/ that was gone forth alredy to kyll soch as were wyse at Babylõ. He answered and sayde vnto Arioch beinge then the kynges debyte: Why hath the kynge proclamed so cruell a sentence? So Arioch tolde Daniel the matter. Upon this/ wente Daniel vp/ and desyred the kynge/ that he myght haue leysoure/ to shewe the kynge the interpretaciõ: & then came he home agayne & shewed the thinge vnto Ananias/ Misael & Asarias his companyõs: ỹ they shulde beseche ỹ God of heauẽ for grace in this secret/ that Daniel & his felowes with other soch as were wise in Babylõ/ perished not. Then was the mystery shewed vnto Daniel in a vysyon by night. And Daniel praysed ỹ God of heauẽ. Daniel also cried loude/ & sayde: O that the name of God myght be praysed for euer and euer/ for wysdome & strength are hys awne: he chaungeth the tymes and ages: he putteth downe kynges/ he setteth vp kynges: he geueth wysdome vnto the wyse/ & vnderstandinge to those that vnderstande/ he openeth the depe secretes: he knoweth the thinge that lyeth in darcknesse/ for the light dwelleth with him. I thancke the/ & prayse the (O thou God of my fathers) ỹ thou hast lent me wysdome & strength/ & hast shewed me the thinge/ that we desyred of ỹ/ for thou hast opened the kynges matter vnto me.

Upon this went Daniel in vnto Arioch/ whom the kynge had ordened to destroye the wise at Babylon: he went vnto him/ & sayde: destroye not soch as are wyse in Babylon/ bu

but bringe me in vnto ỹ kynge/ and I shall shewe the kynge the interpretacyon. Then Arioch brought Daniel in to the kyng in all the haste/and sayd vnto him: I haue founde a man amonge the preconers of Juda / that shall shewe the kynge the interpretacyon. Then answered the kynge/ & sayde vnto Daniel/ whose name was Balthasar: Art thou he/that canst shewe me the dreame/which I haue sene/ & the interpretacyon therof? Daniel answered the kyng to his face / & sayde: As for this secrete / for the whych the kynge maketh inquisycion: it is nether the wyse/ the sorcerer/the charmer ner ỹ deuell coniurer/that can certyfye the kynge of it: Only God in heauen can open secretes / & he it is/ Mat.xi.c. that sheweth the kynge Nabuchodonosor/ what is for to come in the latter dayes.

Thy dreame/ & that which thou hast sene in thyne head vpon thy bed/is this: O kyng/ E thou dydest cast in thy mynde / what shulde come herafter: So he that is the opener of mysteryes/ telleth the / what is for to come. As for me/this secrete is not shewed me/for eny wysdome ỹ I haue/more then eny other lyuyng: but only ỹ I myght shewe the kyng the interpretacyon/ & that he myght knowe ỹ thoughtes of his awne herte. Thou kyng sawest/ and beholde: there stode before the a greate Jmage/ whose fygure was marueilous greate/and his bysage grymme. The Jmage head was of fyne golde / hys brest & armes of syluer / hys body & loynes were of copper/ his leggs were of yrõ / his fete were parte of yron/and parte of earth.

This thou sawest/ tyll the tyme that (with Mat.xxi.c. out eny handes) there was hewen of a stone Luc.xx.b. which smote the Jmage vpon the fete / that were both of yron and earth / and brake thẽ to poulder: then was the yron/the earth/ the copper/the syluer and golde broken altogether in peces: and be came lyke the chaffe of corne / that the wynde bloweth awaye from the somer floores / that they can no more be founde. But ỹ stone that smote the Jmage / became a greate mountayne / which fulfylleth the whole earth: This is ỹ dreame. And now wyll we shewe before the kynge / what it meaneth.

O kynge / thou art a kynge of kynges: F For the God of heauẽ hath geuẽ the a kyng- Dani.v.d. dome/ryches/ strength and maiesty: & hath delyuered the all thynges / that are amonge ỹ chyldrẽ of men: the beastes of the felde / & the foules vnder the heauẽ/and geuẽ the dominyon ouer them all. Thou art that golden head. After ỹ there shall aryse another kingdome / which shall be lesse then thyne. The thyrde kyngdome shalbe like copper/ & haue domynacion in all lãdes. The fourth kyngdome shall be as strõge as yron. For lyke as yron breaketh and beateth all thynges: Yee euen as yron beateth euery thynge downe/ so shall it beate downe and destroye.

Where as thou sawest the fete and toes/ parte of earth and parte of yron: that is a deuyded kyngdome / whych neuertheles shall haue some of the yron grouñde mixte with it/ for so moch as thou hast sene the yron mixte with the claye.

The toes of the fete that were parte of yron and parte of claye / sygnifyeth: that it shalbe a kyngdome partely strong and partely weake. And where as thou sawest yron mixte wyth claye: they shall myngle them selues with the sede of symple people / & yet not contynue one with another/ like as yron wyll not be souldered with a potsherde.

In the dayes of these kyngs/ shall the God G of heauen set vp an euerlastyng kyngdome Esai.ix.b. which shall not perish/ & his kyngdome shal not be geuen ouer to another people: yee the same shall breake & destroye all these kyngdomes/ but it shall endure for euer.

And where as thou sawest/ that wythout eny handes there was cut out of the mounte a stone/which brake the yron/the copper/ ỹ Hebr.xij.c. earth/the syluer and golde in peces: by that hath the greate God shewed the kyng/ what wyll come after this. This is a true dreame/ and the interpretacyon of it is sure.

Then the kynge Nabuchodonosor fell downe vpon his face/and bowed him selfe vn to Daniel/and cõmaunded that they shulde offre meatoffrynges and swete odoures vnto hym. The kynge answered Daniel / and sayde: yee of a treuth youre God is a God aboue all goddes/a Lorde aboue all kyngs/ and an opener of secretes: seynge thou canst discouer this mysterie. So the kynge made Daniel a greate man / and gaue hym many and greate gyftes.

He made hym ruler of all the countrees of Babylon/and lorde of all the nobles/ that were at Babylon. Now daniel intreated the kynge for Sydrach / Misach and Abednago/ so that he made them rulers ouer all the offyces in the lande of Babylon: But Daniel hym selfe remayned styll in the courte by the kynge.

¶ The kynge setteth vp a goulden Jmage/ which he cõmaundeth to be worshyped. Sydrach/ Misach/and Abednago are accused/because they dispysed ỹ kinges cõmaundement. They are brought vnto the kynge & commaunded to worshyp the Jmage. They refuse to do it and are put in to a burnynge ouen. By beleue in God they are delyuered from the fyre. Nabuchodonoser confesseth the power of God after ỹ syght of the myracle.

¶ The. iij. Chapter.

Nabu-

NAbuchodonosor the kynge caused a goldē Image to be made/which was.lx.cubytes hye/and syx cubytes thycke. This he made to be set vp in the felde of * Dura in the lande of Babylon & sent oute to gather together the dukes/lordes and nobles/the iudges and officers/ý debytes & shreues/ with all the rulers of the lande: that they might come to the dedicacion of the Image which Nabuchodonosor the kynge had set vp. So the dukes/ lordes and nobles/the iudges and officers/ debytes and shreues with al the rulers of the lande gathered them together/and came vnto the dedycatynge of the Image / that Nabuchodonosor the kynge had set vp.

* After the Greke. Some reade: in the fylde that maye be inhabited: wherupon Josephus in the.x. boke of his antiquyties the. xij. Chap. sayeth: in a very greate fylde.

Now when they stode before the Image/ which Nabuchodonosor set vp/ý bedel cried out with al his might: O ye people/kynredes and tunges/to you be it sayde: that when ye heare the noyse of the trompettes/ which shalbe blowen/with the harpes/shawmes/ Psalteries/Symphonies and all maner of Musick: ye fall downe and worshype ý golden Image/that Nabuchodonosor the kyng hath set vp. Who so then falleth not downe & boweth him self / shall euen ý same houre be cast in to an hote burnynge ouen. Therfore/when all the folcke herde the noyse of ý trompettes that were blowen/with the harpes/shawmes/Psalteries/ Symphonies & all kynde of Melody: then all ý people/kynredes and nacyons fell downe / and bowed them selues vnto the golden Image / ý Nabuchodonosor the kynge had set vp.

Now were there certayne men of the Caldees / that wente euen then and accused the Jewes/and sayde vnto the kynge Nabuchodonosor: O king/God saue thy lyfe for euer. Thou beynge kynge hast geuen a commaūdement/that all men when they heare noyse of the trompettes/harpes/ shawmes / psalteries/ symphonyes and all the other melodies: shall fall downe and bowe them selues towarde the golden Image: who so then fell not downe and worshipped not/that he shulde be cast in to an hote burnynge ouen. Now are there certayne Jewes / whom thou hast set ouer the offyces of the lande of Babylon: namely/Sydrach/ Mysach & Abednago. Dani.ij.g.

These men(O kynge) regarde not thy commaundemēt yee they wyl not serue thy goddes, ner bowe them selues to the goldē Image/that thou hast set vp.

Then Nabuchodonosor in a cruell wrath and displeasure/cōmaunded that Sidrach/ Misach and Abednago shulde be brought vnto hym. So these men were brought before ý kynge. Then Nabuchodonosor spake vnto them/and sayd: what? O Sidrach Misach and Abednago / wyll not ye serue my goddes: nor bowe youre selues to the golden Image/that I haue set vp: well/be redy hereafter / when ye heare the noyse of the trompettes blowe wyth the harpes/shawmes/ psalteries/symphonies and all ý other melodyes: that ye fall downe/ & worshyppe the Image which I haue made. But yf ye worshyppe it not/ye shall be cast immediatly in to an hote burnyng ouen. Let se/ what God is there / that maye delyuer you oute of my handes? Sydrach / Misach and Abednago answered the kynge/ & sayde: O Nabuchodonosor/we ought not to consente vnto ý in this matter/for why: oure God whō we serue/is able to kepe vs frō the hote burnynge ouē (O kynge) and can right well delyuer vs out of thy handes. And though he wyll not/ yet shalt thou knowe (O kyng) that we will not serue thy goddes/ner do reuerence to the Image/which thou hast set vp. Then was Nabuchodonosor full of indignacyon / so ý ý countenaūce of his face chaūged vpō Sidrach/Misach/and Abednago. Therfore he charged and commaunded / that the ouen shulde be made seuen tymes hoter / then it was wonte to be: & spake vnto the strongest worthies that were in his hoste / for to binde Sidrach/Misach and Abednago/ & to cast them in to the hote burnynge ouen. Numer.xvi.g. C

So these men were bounde in their cotes hosen/shues wyth their other garmentes / & cast in to the hote burnynge ouen: for ý kinges commaundement was so strate/and the ouen was excedinge hote. As for the men ý put in Sydrach/Mysach & Abednago / the flāme of ý fyre destroyed thē. And these thre mē Sydrach/Misach & Abednago fell downe in the hote burnynge ouen / beinge faste boūde. Then Nabuchodonosor ý kyng marueled/and stode vp in all hast: he spake vnto hys councell and sayde: dyd not ye cast these thre men bounde in to the fyre? They answered/and sayde vnto the kynge: Yee O kinge. He answered and sayde: lo for all that/yet do I se foure men goynge lowse in the myddest of the fyre /and nothinge corrupte: and the fourth is lyke an angell to loke vpon. Upon this went Nabuchodonosor vnto the mouth of the hote burnynge ouen: he spake also / & sayde: O Sydrach/ Mysach & Abednago/ ye seruauntes of the hye God: go forth/ and come hither. And so Sydrach/Mysach / & Abednago wēte out of ý fyre. Then ý dukes lordes and nobles / and the kynges councell came together to se these men/vpon whō the fyre had no maner of power in their bodyes: In so moch that the very hearre of their head was not burnte/ & their clothes vnchūaged: Yee there was no smel of fyre fell vpō them. Elay.xlij.a. Dani.v.b. D

Then

Then spake Nabuchodonosor / and sayd: Blessed be the God of Sidrach / Misach & Abednago: which hath sent hys angell / & defended his seruautes / that put their trust in him: that haue altered ỹ kynges cõmaundement: and ieoperde their bodies therupon: rather then they wolde serue or worshype eny other God / excepte their awne God only. Therfore I wyll and commaunde / that all people, kynredes and tunges / which speake any blasphemy agaynst ỹ God of Sidrach / Misach / and Abednago / shall dye / and their houses shalbe pylled: Because / there is no God that maye saue / as this. So the kynge promoted Sidrach / Misach / and Abednago / in the lande of Babylon.

¶ Nabuchodonosor dreameth agayne. Daniel interpreteth it. Nabuchodonosor is put out of his realme / and eateth with beastes. He confesseth the power of God / and is restored into his kyngdome.

¶ The .iiij. Chapter.

A Nabuchodonosor kynge vnto all people / kynredes and tunges ỹ dwell vpõ ỹ whole earth: peace be multiplyed amõge you. I thought it good to shewe the tokens and maruelous worckes / that the hye God hath wrought vpon me. O how greate are his tokens / and how mightie are hys wonders? His kyngdome is an euerlastynge kyngdome / and his power lasteth for euer and euer.

Psal. lv. b Dani. vij. d Luc. i. c

I Nabuchodonosor beyng at rest in myne house / and florishynge in my palace / sawe a dreame / whych made me afrayed: and the thoughtes that I had vpon my bed / with the vysyons of myne head / troubled me. Then sent I out a cõmission / ỹ all they which were of wysdome at Babylon shulde be brought before me / to tell me the interpretacyon of the dreame. So there came the soythsayers / charmers / Caldees and coniurers of deuels: to whom I tolde the dreame / but what it betokened / they coulde not shewe me: tyll at ỹ last / there came one Daniel (otherwyse called Balthasar / accordyng to the name of my God) which hath ỹ spryte of the holy goddes / in him: to whom I tolde the dreame / saying: O Balthasar / thou prince of Southesayers:

B For so moch as I knowe / that thou hast the spryte of the holy Goddes and no secrete is hyd from the: tell me therfore / what the vysyon of my dreame (that I haue sene) maye sygnifye. I sawe a vysyon in my head vpon my bed: and beholde / there stode a tre vpon the grounde / whych was very hye / greate and myghtye: the heygth reached vnto the heauen / and the bredth extended to all the endes of the earth: his leaues were fayre / he had very moch frute / so that euery man had ynough to eate therin.

The beastes of the feld had shadowes vnder it / and the foules of the ayre dwelt in the bowes therof. Shortly / all creatures fed of it. I sawe in my head a vysyon vpon my bed: & beholde / * a watcher came downe frõ heauen / & cryed myghtely / saying. Hew downe ỹ tre / breake of his braunches / shake of his leaues / and scatre his frute abrode: that all the beestes maye get them awaye frõ vnder him / and the foules from his brauches. Neuertheles leaue the grounde of his rote styll in the earth / and bynde him vpon the playne felde / with cheynes of yron and stele. Wyth the dew of heauen shall he be wet / & he shall haue his parte in the herbes of the grounde with other wylde beastes. ¶

* That is / an aungel / after the Hebrue.

That mans herte of his shall be takẽ frõ him / and a beastes herte shall be geuẽ him / tyll seuẽ yeares be come and gone vpõ hym.

This erande of ỹ watcher / is a cõmaundment grounded and sought out in the councell of him / that is most holy: to learne men for to vnderstande / that ỹ hyest hath power ouer the kyngdomes of men / & geueth thẽ / to whom it lyketh hym / & bryngeth the very oute castes of men ouer them. Thys is the dreame / that I kyng Nabuchodonosor haue sene. Therfore O Balthasar / tell thou me what it sygnifyeth: for so moch as all ỹ wyse men of my kyngdome are not able to shewe me / what it meaneth. But thou canst do it / for ỹ spryte of the holy Goddes is in the.

Then Daniel (whose name was Balthasar) helde his peace by the space of an houre and hys thoughtes troubled hym. So the kynge spake / & sayde: O Balthasar, lett neither the dreame ner the interpretacyon therof feare the. Balthasar answered / saying: O my Lorde / this dreame happen to thyne enemyes / & the interpretacyon to thyne aduersaryes. As for ỹ tre that thou sawest which was so great & myghtye / whose heygth reached vnto the heauẽ / and hys bredth into all the world: whose leues were fayre / & ỹ frute moch: vnder the which the beastes of ỹ felde had their habitacyon / and vpon whose brauches the foules of the ayre dyd syt.

Euen thou (O kynge) art the tre / greate & stronge. Thy greatnesse increaceth / & reacheth vnto the heauẽ / so doth thy power to ỹ endes of the earth. But where as the kynge sawe a watcher euen an holy angell / ỹ came downe from heauen / and sayde: hew downe the tre / and destroye it: yet leaue the ground of the rote in the earth: and bynde hym vpon the playne feld with cheynes of yron & stele: He shall be wet with the dew of heauẽ / and his parte shall be with ỹ beestes of the feld / tyll seuẽ yeares be come and gone vpõ hym: This (O kynge) is the interpretacion / yee it is the is the very deuyce of him / that is hyest of al / and it toucheth my lorde the kynge.

Thou shalt be cast oute fro men / and thy dwellyng shalbe with the beastes of ỹ felde: *wyth grasse shalt thou be fed lyke an oxe. Thou must be wet with the dew of the heauen: yee seuen yeares shall come / & go vpon the / tyll thou knowe / ỹ the hyest hath power vpon the kyngdomes of men / & geueth them to whom he lyst. Moreouer / where as it was sayde / that the rote of the tree shulde be left styll in the grounde: it betokeneth / that thy kyngdome shall remayne whole vnto the / after thou hast lerned to know / that the power commeth from heauen. Wherfore / O kyng / be contẽt with my coũcell / that thou mayest lowse thy synnes wyth ryghtuousneſſe / and thyne offences wyth mercy to poore people: for soch thynges shall prolonge thy peace. All these thinges touche the Kynge Nabuchodonosor.

Daniel.ij.c. Jere.xxvij.a

¶ So after.xij.monethes / the kyng walked vp & downe in the palace of the kyngdome of Babylon / and sayde: This is the greate cyte of Babylõ / which I my self (with my power & strength) haue made a kynges courte / for ỹ honour of my magestye. Whyle these wordes were yet in the Kynges mouth / there fell a voyce from heauen / sayinge: O kyng Nabuchodonosor / to ỹ be it spokẽ: Thy kyngdome shall departe from the / thou shalt be cast out of mens company: thy dwellyng shalbe with the beastes of ỹ felde / so that thou shalt eate grasse like as an oxe / till seuẽ yeares be come & gone ouer the: euen vntyll thou knowest / ỹ the hyest hath power vpõ the kyngdomes of men / and that he may geue them / vnto whõ it pleaseth hym. The very same houre was this matter fulfilled vpon Nabuchodonosor: so that he was cast oute of mens company / and ate grasse like an oxe. His body was wet with the dewe of heauẽ / tyll his hearres were as greate as Aegles fethers / & his nales like byrdes clawes.

¶ When this tyme was past / I Nabuchodonosor lifte vp myne eyes vnto heauen / and myne vnderstandynge was restored vnto me agayne. Then gaue I thankes vnto the hyghest. I magnifyed and praysed him that lyueth for euermore / whose power endureth alwaye / and his kyngdome from one generacyon to another: in comparison of whom all they that dwell vpon the earth / are to be reputed as nethinge.

Then dyd I Nabuchodonosor / loue / magnyfye and prayse the kynge of heauen: for all his workes are true / and hys wayes right. As for those that go on proudly / he is able to bringe them downe.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

Kynge Balthazar made a greate banckett to his thousande Lordes: wyth all these thousande he made greate chere / & whẽ he was dronckẽ with wyne / he cõmaunded to bringe him the golden & syluer vessels / which his father Nabuchodonosor had taken out of the tẽple at Jerusalem: that the kynge and hys lordes with his quene & concubynes might dринcke therout.

ij.Par.xxxvj.c

So they brought the golden vessell / that was taken out of the temple of the Lordes house at Jerusalem. Then the kynge and his lordes with his quene & concubynes dronke out of them. They dronck wyne / and praysed their Idoles of golde / syluer / copper / yrõ / wodde and stone.

In the very same houre there appeared fingers / as it had bene of a mans hande wrytynge / right ouer agaynst the candelstycke vpon the playne wall in the kynges palace: & the kynge sawe the palme of the hande that wrote. Then chaunged the kyng his countenaunce / and his thoughtes troubled hym / so that the ioyntes of hys body shoke / and hys knees smote one agaynst ỹ other. Wherfore the kynge cryed myghtely / that they shulde bringe hym the charmers / Caldees and conjurers of deuels. The kyng spake also to the wyse men of Babylon / and sayde: Who so cãrede this wrytinge / and shew me the playne meanyng therof: shalbe clothed with purple / haue a cheyne of golde aboute his necke / and rule the thyrde part of my kyngdome.

Upon this / came all the kynges wyse mẽ: but they coulde nether reade the writing / ner shewe the king what it signified. Then was the kynge sore afrayed in so moch / ỹ his coloure chaunged / and hys lordes were sore vexed. So by reason of thys matter / that had happened to the kinge & his lordes / ỹ quene went vp herself into the banckett house / and spake vnto the kynge / sayinge: O kynge / God saue thy lyfe for euer: Let not ỹ thoughtes trouble the/ and let not thy countenaūce be chaunged. For why: there is a man in thy kyngdome / that hath the spyrete of the holy goddes within him / as it was sene in thy fathers dayes. He hath vnderstandyng & wysdome lyke ỹ goddes. Yee the kyng Nobuchodonosor thy father made this man chefe of ỹ sothsayers/charmers/Caldees and deuelcōiurers: because that soche an aboundaunt spyrete/knowledge and wysdome (to expoūde dreames/to open secretes/ & to declare harde dowtes) was founde in him: yee euen in Daniel/whom the kyng named Balthazar. Let this same Daniel be sente for / and he shall tell/what it meaneth.

Then was Daniel brought before the kynge. So the kynge spake vnto Daniel/ & sayde: Art thou that Daniel/ one of the presoners of Juda/ whom my father the kynge brought out of Jewry? I haue heard speake of the / that thou hast the spyrete of the holy goddes/experience and vnderstandyng/and that there hath bene greate wysdome found

Well than / yf thou canst reade thys wrytynge) and shewe me the meanynge therof: thou shalt be clothed with purple/haue a cheyne of golde aboute thy necke / & rule the thyrde parte of my kyngdome.

Daniel answered/ & sayde before ỹ king:

And thou his sonne (O Balthazar) for all this/ hast not submytted thyne herte/ though thou knewest all these thinges: but hast magnyfyed thy selfe aboue the Lorde of heauē/ so that the vessels of his house were brought before the: that thou/ & thy lordes/ wyth thy quene and concubynes/ might drincke wyne therout: And hast praysed the Idoles of syluer and golde/ copper and yron/ of wodd and stone: As for the God in whose hande consysteth thy breth and all thy wayes: thou hast not loaued him. Therfore is the palme of thys hande sent G

Now the interpretacyon of the thynge is thys: Mane/ God hath nombred the kyngdome/ and brought it to an ende: Thetel/ thou art weyed in the balaunce/ and art founde to lyght: Phares/ thy kingdome is delt in partes/ and geuen to the Medes and Perses.

Then commaunded Balthazar / to cloth Daniel wyth purple / to hange a cheyne of golde aboute hys necke / and to make a proclamacyon concernynge hym: that he shulde be the ruler of the thyrde parte of his kyngdome. The very same nyght was Balthazar Esay. xlvij. b. the kinge of the Caldees slayne/ and Darius xxi. a. out of Medea toke in the kyngdome/ beinge Dani. ix. a. lxij. yeare of age.

Daniel is made ruler ouer the lordes. The Imagynacyon of an acte agaynst Daniel. The proclamacyon of the acte/ wherof Daniel is accused vnto the kynge as a transgressour. He is put into a denne of Lyons by the commaundement of the kynge. He is delyuered by fayth in God. Daniels accusars are put vnto the lyons to be toren in sonder. Darius by the proclamacyon of a decree/ magnyfyeth the God of Daniel.

The.vj. Chapter.

IT pleased Darius to set ouer hys kyngdome an. C. and. xx. Lordes/ A which shulde be in all his kyngdome aboute. Aboue these he set thre Prynces (of whom Daniel was one) that the lordes myght geue accomptes vnto them/ & the kynge to be vnbrideled.

But Daniel exceaded all these Prynces & lordes/ for the spyrete of God was plenteous in hym: so that the Kynge was mynded to set hym ouer the whole realme. Wherfore the Prynces and Lordes sought / to pycke out in Daniel some quarell agaynst the kyngdome: yet couide they fynde none occasyō ner faute vpon hym. For why? he was so faythfull/ that there was no blame ner dishonesty founde in him.

Then sayde these men: we will get no quaB rell agaynst this Daniel/ excepte it be in the lawe of hys God. Vpon this/ wente the prynces and lordes together vnto the kynge / and sayde sayde thus vnto him: king Darius God saue thy lyfe for euer. All the greate estates of the realme: as ỹ Prynces/Dukes/Senatours and Judges/are determed to put out a commaundement of the kynge/& to make a sure statute: namely/ỹ who so desyreth any peticyō/ether of any god or mā (within this .xxx. dayes) excepte it be only of the/O king: the same person may be cast into the lyōs denne. Wherfore/O kyng/confyrme thou this statute/and make a wrytinge: that the thynge whych the Medes and Perses haue ordened be not altered ner broken.

So Darius made the wrytinge/and cō-
C firmed it. Now when Daniel vnderstode that the wrytinge was made/he wente in to hys houle: and the wyndowes of his hal towarde Jerusalem stode opē. There kneled he downe vpon his knees/thre tymes a daye: there he made his peticyon/and praysed his God/like as his maner was to do a fore tyme.

Then these men made searche/& founde Daniel makynge hys petycyon/& prayinge vnto his God. So they came to the kynge/& spake before him concernyng hys commaū-dement/saying: O kyng/hast thou not subscribed the statute/ỹ within .xxx. dayes who so requyreth his petycyon of any god or mā but only of thy self/O kynge: he shalbe cast in to the denne of the lyons? The kynge answered/& sayde: yee/it is true. It must be as a lawe of the Medes and Perses/that maye not be broken.

D Then answered they/and sayde vnto the kynge: Daniel one of the preseners of Juda O kyng/regardeth nether ỹ ner thy statute/ that thou hast made/but maketh hys petycō thre tymes a daye. When the kynge herde these wordes/he was sore greued/and wolde haue excused Daniel/to delyuer hym/& put of the matter/vnto the Sunne wēt downe/ to the intent that he myght saue him.

These men perceauyng the kyng{s mynde/ sayde vnto him: knowe this (O kynge) that the lawe of the Medes and Perses is/that ỹ commaundement & statute which the kyng maketh/maye not be altered. Then the kyng Daniel. xiiij.c. bad them bynge Daniel/and they cast hym in to the Lyons denne.

The kynge also spake vnto Daniel/and sayde: thy God/whom thou alwaye seruest/
C euen he shall defende the. And there was brought a stone/and layed vpon the hole of the dēne: this the kynge sealed with his awne ryng/& wyth the sygnet of hys princes: that the kynges commaundement concernynge Daniel/shulde not be broken.

So the kynge wente into his palace/& kepte hym sober all nyght/so that there was no table spred before hym/nether coulde he take any slepe. But by tymes in the morning at the breake of the daye/the kynge arose/ and wente in all haste vnto the denne of the Lyons.

Now as he came nye vnto the denne/he cried with a pyteous voyce vnto Daniel: yee the kynge spake/and sayde vnto Daniel: O Daniel, thou seruaunt of the lyuynge God/ is not thy God (whom thou alwaye seruest) able to delyuer the from the lyons? Daniel sayde vnto the kynge: O Kynge/God saue thy life for euer. My God hath sent his aun- ¶ Daniel. xiij.c. Act. xv.c.

as for the/O kynge/I neuer offended the.

Then was the kynge exceading glad/and cōmaunded to take Daniel out of the denne. So Daniel was brought out of the denne/ & no maner of hurte was founde vpon hym For he put his trust in hys God. And as for those men whych had accused Daniel/the kyng cōmaunded to bynge thē/& to cast thē in the Lyons denne: them/their chyldren and Hester. ix.b. their wyues. So the Lyons had the mastry Daniel. xiij.g of them/and brake all their bones a sonder/ or euer they came at the grounde.

After this/wrote kyng Darius vnto all Daniel. vj.f people kynredes/and tunges/that dwelt in G all lād: peace be multiplied vō you: My cō-maundemēt is/in all my dominyon & kyng-dome/that men feare & stande in awe of Daniels God.

For he is the lyuynge God/whych abydeth euer: his kyngdome shall not fayle/and Daniel. xiij.f. vij.c. his power is euerlastynge. It is he that delyuereth/and saueth: he doth wonders and maruelous workes/in heauē and in earth: Esay. xliij.b. Osee. xiij.b. Daniel. ij.f. he hath preserued Daniel from the power of the Lyons. This Daniel prospered in the reygne of Darius and Cirus of Perlia.

C The .vij. Chapter.

IN ỹ fyrst yeare of Balthazar king of Babylō/saw Daniel a dreame/ and a vilyon was in his head vpon his bedde. Which dreame he wrote/ and the summe of the matter is this: Daniel spake/and sayde: I sawe in my vylyon by nyght/and beholde: the foure wyndes of the heauen stroue vpon the see/and foure great beestes came vp from the see one vnlyke another.

The first was as a lyon/and yet had he Aegles wynges. I sawe/that hys wynges were plucte from him/and he taken awaye from the earth: that he stode vpon hys fete as a man/and that there was geuen him a mans herte.

Beholde/ꝑ ſeconde beaſt was like a beer/ and ſtode vpō the one ſide. Amonge his teeth in hys mouth he had.iij.greate longe teeth/ & it was sayde vnto him: Arise/ eate vp/moch fleſh. Then I loked/ and beholde/there was another lyke vnto a leoparde: thys had wynges as a foule/euen foure vpon the backe. Thys beaſt had foure heades/and there was power geuen him. After this I ſawe in a viſyon by nyght/ and beholde/the fourth beaſt was grymme and horrible/and maruelous ſtronge. It had great yron teeth/it deuoured and deſtroyed/ & ſtamped the reſydue vnder his fete. It was farre vnlyke the other beaſtes that were before it: for it had ten hornes/ wherof I toke good hede.

And beholde/there came vp amōge them/ another lyke horne/before whom there were thre of the fyrſt hornes pluckte awaye. Beholde/this horne had eyes lyke a man/and a mouth ſpeakynge preſumptuous thynges. I loked tyll the ſeates were prepared/and tyll ꝑ olde aged ſat hym downe. His clothing was as whyte as ſnowe/and the hearres of hys head like the pure woll. Hys trone was lyke the fyrye flame/and hys wheles as the burnynge fyre. There drewe forth a fyrie ſtreame/& went out from hym. A thouſande tymes a thouſande ſerued him. x.M. tymes ten thouſande ſtode before him. The iudgement was ſet/and the bokes opened. Then toke I hede there vnto/ becauſe of the voyce of the proude wordes/ which ꝑ horne ſpake. I beheld/tyll the beaſte was ſlayne/and hys body deſtroyed/& geuen ouer to be brent in the fyre.

As for the power of the other beaſtes alſo it was taken awaye/ but their lyues were prolonged for a tyme and ſeaſon. I ſawe in a viſyon by nyght/ and beholde/there came one in the cloudes of heauen lyke the ſonne of a man/which wente vnto the olde aged/ before whom they brought him: Then gaue he hym power & dignite regall/that all people/trybes and tunges ſhulde ſerue him. His power is an euerlaſtinge power/which ſhal neuer be put downe: & his kyngdome endureth vncorrupte. My herte was vexed/& I Daniel had a troubled ſpryte within me/& the viſions of my head made me afrayed: tyll I gat me vnto one of them that ſtode by/to knowe the trueth/concernyng all theſe thinges. So he tolde me/& made me vnderſtande the interpretacyon of theſe thinges.

These foure greate beaſtes/are foure kynges whych ſhall aryſe out of the earth. These ſhall take in ꝑ kyngdome of ꝑ ſayntes of the moſt hyeſt/and poſſeſſe it ſtyll more & more for a longe ſeaſon. After this I requyred diligently to knowe the trueth/concernyng ꝑ fourth beaſt/which was ſo farre vnlyke the other beaſtes/& ſo horrible: whoſe teeth were of yron/and hys nayles of braſſe: which deuoured and deſtroyed/& ſtamped the reſydue vnder hys fete. I deſyred alſo to knowe the treuth/as touchinge the ten hornes that he had vpon his head/ & this other whych came vp afterwarde/ before whoſe face there fell downe thre: whych horne had eyes and a mouth that ſpake preſumptuous thinges/and loked wyth a grymmer vyſage then his felowes. I beheld/& ꝑ ſame horne made battayll agaynſt the ſayntes/yee and gat the victory of them: vntyll the tyme that the olde aged came/that the iudgement was geuē to the chefeſt ſayntes: and till the tyme/ that the ſayntes had the kyngdome in poſſeſſion. He gaue me this anſwere: That fourth beaſt ſhalbe the fourth kingdome vpō earth: it ſhalbe more then all other kyngdomes/ it ſhall deuoure/treade downe/and deſtroye all other landes.

The ten hornes/are ten kinges/that ſhall aryſe out of ꝑ kyngdome/ after whom there ſhall ſtande vp another/ whych ſhalbe greater then the fyrſt. He ſhall ſubdue thre kynges/& ſhall ſpeake wordes agaynſt the hyeſt of all: he ſhal deſtroye the ſayntes of the moſt hyeſt/ and thynche/ that he maye chaunge tymes and lawes. They ſhal be geuen vnder hys power/vntyll a tyme/ two tymes/& half a tyme.

But the iudgement ſhalbe kepte/ ſo that hys power ſhalbe take from him/for he ſhal be deſtroyed/and peryſh at the laſt. As for ꝑ kyngdome/power and all myght that is vnder the heauen: it ſhalbe geuen to the holy people of the mooſt hyeſt/whoſe kyngdome is euerlaſtynge/yee all powers ſhall ſerue & obeye hym. Thus farre extende the wordes. Neuertheles/I Daniel was ſo vexed in my thoughtes/that my countenaūce chaunged/ but the wordes I kepte ſtyll in my herte.

¶ A vyſyon of a ſtryke betwene a rāme & an hegoate. The vnderſtandynge of the vyſion is of the batell betwene the kynge of Perſia and the kynge of the Grecyens. Of the ſhameleſſe kynge Antichriſt.

¶ The.viij. Chapter.

IN the thyrde yeare of the raygne of kynge Balthazar/ there apeared a viſyō vnto me Daniel/after that I had ſene the fyrſt. I ſawe in a vyſyon (& when I ſawe it/I was at Suſis in the chefe cyte/whych lyeth in the lande of Elam) and in the vyſyon/me thought I was by the ryuer of Vlai.

Then I loked vp/and ſawe: and beholde there there stode before the ryuer/a rãme/which had hornes: and these hornes were hye/but one was hyer then another/& the hyest came vp last. I sawe that this ramme pushed with hys hornes/against the west/against the north/and against the south: so that no beastes myght stande before hym/ner defende them from hys power: but he dyd as hym lysted/& waxed greatly. I toke hede vnto this/

B & then came there an he goate from the west ouer the whole earth/and touched not the grounde.

This goate had a maruelous goodly horne betwixte his eyes/and came vnto the rãme/that had the two hornes (whom I had sene afore by the ryuer syde) and ranne fearcely vpõ hym with his myght. I sawe hym drawe nye vnto the ramme/beinge very fearce vpõ hym: yee he gaue him soch a stroke/that he
C brake his two hornes: Nether had the rãme so moch strength as to stande before hym: but he cast him downe/trodde him vnder his fete: & no man was able to delyuer the rãme out of his power.

The goate waxed exceadinge greate/and whẽ he was at the strõgest/his greate horne was broken also. Then grewe there other foure soch like in the steade/towarde the. iiij. Dani.viij.a.xi.a wyndes of the heauen. Yee out of one of the i.Mach.i.a. leest of these hornes/there came vp yet another horne/which waxed maruelous greate: towarde the south/towarde the east/and towarde the fayre pleasaunt lande. It grewe vp to the hoost of heauen/wherof it dyd cast some downe to the grounde/& of the starres also/and trode them vnder fete.

Yee it grewe vp vnto the prynce of the hoost/from whom the daylye offerynge was taken/& the place of his Sanctuary casten downe. And a certayne season was geuẽ vnto it/against the daylye offerynge (because of wyckednesse) that it myght cast downe the verye to the grounde/and so to prospere in all thinges/that is wente aboute.

D Upon this I herde one of ỹ sayntes speakinge/which sayntе sayde vnto one that asked this question: How longe shall this vysyon of the daylye sacrifice & of the wastyng abhominacion endure: that the Sanctuary and the power shall so be troden vnder fote? And he answered hym: Vnto the euenynge & the mornynge/euen two thousande and thre hundreth dayes: then shall the Sanctuary be clensed agayne.

Now when I Daniel had sene this vysiõ/and sought for the vnderstandynge of it: beholde/there stode before me a thynge lyke
E vnto a man. And I herde a mans voyce in the ryuer of Vlai/which cryed/& sayde: O Gabriel/make this mã vnderstande the vision. So he came/and stode by me. But I was afrayed at hys commynge/and fell downe vpon my face.

Then sayde he vnto me: O thou sonne of man/marcke well/for in the last tyme shall thys vysyon be fulfylled. Now as he was speakinge vnto me/I waxed faynte/so that I suncke downe to the grounde. But he toke holde vpon me/& set me vp agayne/saying: Beholde/I wyll shewe the/what shall happen in ỹ last wrath: for in the tyme appoynted it shalbe fulfylled.

The ramme whych thou sawest with the two hornes/is the kynge of the Medes and Perses: but the goate is the kynge of Grekelande: the greate horne that stode betwixte his eyes/that is the pryncypall kynge. But where as it brake/and foure other rose vp in the steade: it signifieth/that out of this people shall stande vp foure kyngdomes/but not so myghtye as it.

After these kyngdomes (whyle vngodynesse is a growinge) there shall aryse a kyng of an vnshamefast face/which shalbe wyse in darcke speakynges. F

He shalbe myghtye and stronge/but not in his awne strẽgth. He shall destroye aboue measure/and all that he goeth aboute shall prospere: he shall slaye the stronge and holy people. And thorow his craftynes/falshed shall prospere in his hande/his herte shalbe proude/and many one shall he put to death in his welthynesse. He shal stãde vp against the Prynce of Prynces/but he shalbe destroyed without hande. And this vysion that ij.Mach.ix.e. is shewed vnto the/is as sure as the euening ij.Esdra.ij.b. & the mornyng. Therfore wryte thou vp this light/for it wylbe longe or it come to passe. Esai.viij.d.

Upon this was I Daniel very faynte/so that I laye sicke certayne dayes: but when I rose vp/I wente aboute the kynges busynesse/and marueled at the vysyon/neuertheles no man knewe of it.

¶ Daniel desyreth to haue that performed of God whych he had promesed concernynge the retourne of the people from their bannyshement in Babylon. A true confession. Daniels prayer is heard. ¶ There appeareth vnto Daniel a mā clothed in lynen/which sheweth him wherfore he is sent.

¶ The.x.Chapter.

A IN the thyrde yeare of Kyng Cirus of Persia/there was shewed vnto Daniel(otherwise called Balthasar) a matter/yee a true matter/ but it is yet a longe tyme vnto it. He vnderstode the matter well/ & perceaued what the vysyon was. At the same tyme / I Daniel mourned for the space of thre wekes/so that I had no lust to eate bred:as for flesh & wyne there came none wythin my mouth: No / I dyd not ones anoynte my self/ tyll the whole thre wekes were out.

Upon the.xxiiij.daye of the first moneth/ I was by the greate floude/called Tigris:I Daniel.viij.b. Apoca.i.f. lyft vp myne eyes/and loked:and beholde/a man clothed in lynen / whose loynes were gyrded vp with fyne golde of Araby: his body was lyke the Chrisolite stone/ his face(to loke vpon) was lyke lyghtenynge/ hys eyes as the flame of fyre/hys armes & fete were lyke fayre glysterynge metall/ but ỹ voyce of his wordes was like ỹ voyce of a multitude.

B I Daniel alone sawe this vision/the men Daniel.iij.e Act.ix.a. that were with me/saw it not:but a greate fearfulnesse fell vpon them/so that they fled awaye/& hyd them selues. I was left there my self alone/& sawe this greate vysyon/so longe tyll there remayned nomore strength within me: yee I lost my coloure clene/ I wasted awaye / and my strength was gone. Yet herde I the voyce of his wordes:and as soone as I herde it/ swyntnesse came vpō me/ & I fell downe flat to the grounde vpon my face. And beholde/an hande touched me/ which set me vp vpon my knees & vpon the Daniel.ix.b. palmes of my handes/ sayinge vnto me: O Daniel / thou well beloued man:take good hede of the wordes/that I shall saye vnto ỹ/ & stāde right vp/for vnto the am I now sent.

And when he had sayde these wordes / I ¶ stode vp tremblyng. Then sayde he vnto me: feare not Daniel:for why sence ỹ first daye that thou set thyne herte to vnderstande/and dydest chasten thy selfe before thy God: thy wordes haue bene herde. And I had come vnto the/ when thou begānest to speake had Iosue.v.b. Daniel.xj.a. not ỹ prince ouer the kyngdome of ỹ Perses withstande me.xxj.dayes. But lo/ Michael one of the chefe princes/ came to helpe me/ hym haue I left by the king of Persia/ & am come to shewe the / what shall happen vnto thy people in the latter dayes: for it wylbe longe yet or the vysyon be fulfylled.

Now when he had spoken these wordes vnto me/ I kast downe my head to ỹ grounde and held my tunge. Beholde/there touched my lyppes one very lyke vnto a man. Then opened I my mouth / & sayde vnto him/that stode before me: O my Lorde/ my ioyntes D are lowsed in the vision/and there is no more strength within me: How may my Lordes seruaunt then talke with my Lorde? seinge there is no strēgth in me/so ỹ I cannot take my breth? Upō this there touched me agayne/one moch lyke a man/and conforted me/ sayinge: O thou man so well beloued / feare Daniel.ix.b. not:be contēt/take a good herte vnto the/ & be strōge. So when he had spoken vnto me/ I recouered / & sayde: Speake on my Lord/ for thou hast refreshed me. Then sayde he: knowest thou wherfore I am come vnto ỹ? now wil I go againe to fight w̄ the prince of ỹ Perses. As soone as I go forth/lo/ ỹ prince of Grekelande shall come. Neuertheles / I wyll shewe the the thinge/ that is fast noted in the scrypture of trueth. And as for all yonder matters / there is none that helpeth me in them/but Michael your prince.

AND in the fyrst yeare of Darius of I Medea / I stode by hym / to comforte hym/ & to strength him / and now will I shewe the the trueth. Beholde/there shall stande vp yet thre kings in Persia/but the fourth shalbe farre richer then they all. And when he is in the chefest power of his riches/ he shall prouoke euery man agaynst ỹ realme of Grekelande. Then shall there aryse yet a myghtye kinge / that shall rule with greate domynyon/ & do what him list. And as soone as his kyngdome co- Daniel.viij.a. meth vp/ it shalbe destroyed/and deuyded to i. begather/& cõfortedher for hys tyme) ſhalbe deliuered vp. Out of the braũches of her rote/there ſhall one ſtande vp in his ſteade: which with power of armes ſhall go thorow the kynges lande of the north/ & handle hym accordyng to his ſtrength. As for their Idols & princes/ with their coſtly Jewels of golde & ſyluer/he ſhall cary them awaye captyues into Egypte/& he ſhall preuayle agaynſt ỹ kyng of the north certayne yeares. And whẽ he is come into ỹ kynges realme of ỹ ſouth/ he ſhalbe fayne to turne agayne into hys awne lande. Wherfore his ſonnes ſhalbe diſpleaſed/and ſhall gather together a myghty greate hooſt of people: and one of them ſhall come/ & go thorow like a waterflowed: then ſhall he returne/ & gofurth with deſpynge & boaſtynge vnto his awne lande.

Then the kyng of the ſouth ſhalbe angry/ and ſhall come forth to fight agaynſt ỹ king of ỹ north: yee he ſhall bringe a greate multytude of people together/ & a greate heape ſhalbe geuẽ into his hande: theſe ſhall he cary awaye with greate pryde/ for ſo moche as he hath caſt downe ſo many thouſandes/ neuertheles he ſhall not preuayle. For the king of the north ſhall gather (of ỹ new) a greater heape of people then afore/ & come forth (after a certayne tyme & yeares) with a mighty hooſte & exceadynge greate good.

At the ſame tyme there ſhall many ſtande vp agaynſt the kinge of the ſouth/ ſo that ỹ wicked chyldren of thy people alſo ſhall exalte them ſelues (to fulfill the viſyon) & then fall. So the kyng of the north ſhall come to laye ſege/ & to take the ſtronge fenſed cities: And the power of them of the ſouth ſhall not be able to abyde hym/ & the beſt men of the people ſhal not be ſo ſtrõge/ as to reſiſt him. Shortely, when he commeth, he ſhall hãdle him as he liſt/ & no man ſhalbe ſo hardy as to ſtande agaynſt him. He ſhal ſtãde in ỹ pleaſaunt cõtre/ which thorow him ſhalbe deſtroyed. He ſhall ſet his face w all his power to optayne his kingdome/ and to be lyke it. Yee that ſhall he do/ and geue hym vnto the daughters amõge wemen/ to deſtroye hym. But he ſhall fayle/ nether ſhall he optayne his purpoſe. After thys ſhall he ſet hys face vnto the Jles/ & take many of thẽ. A prince ſhall ſtoppe him/ to do hym a ſhame/ beſyde the confuſyon that els ſhall come vnto him.

D Thus ſhall he tourne agayne to hys awne lande/ ſtomble/ & fall/ & be nomore founde: ſo he that came vpõ him & dyd hym vyolẽce/ ſhall ſtande in his place/ & haue a pleaſaunt kyngdome: and after few dayes he ſhalbe deſtroyed/ & that nether in wrath/ ner in battell. In hys ſteade there ſhall aryſe a vyle perſon/ not holden worthy of a kynges dygnytye: thys ſhall come in craftely/ and optayne the kyngdome wyth fayre wordes: he ſhall fyght agaynſt the armes of ỹ myghtye (and deſtroye them) yee and agaynſt ỹ prince of the couenaunt.

So after that he hath taken truce wyth him/ he ſhal handle dyſceatfully: that he may get vp/ & ouercome him with a ſmall flocke: & ſo with craftyneſſe to get him to the fatteſt place of the lande/ and to deale otherwyſe/ then ether his fathers or graundfathers dyd. For he ſhall deſtroye the thing/ that they had robbed & ſpoyled/ yee & all their ſubſtaunce: ymagenynge thoughtes agaynſt the ſtrong E holdes/ & that for a tyme. His power & herte ſhalbe ſterred vp w a greate armye agaynſt the kinge of the ſouth: where thorow ỹ king of the ſouth ſhalbe moued then vnto batteil/ with a greate & myghtye hooſt alſo. Neuertheleſſe/ he ſhall not be able to ſtãde/ for they ſhall conſpyre agaynſt him. Yee they ỹ eate of his meate/ ſhall hurte him: ſo ỹ his hooſt ſhall fall/ & many be ſlayne downe.

Theſe two kynges ſhalbe mynded to do myſchefe/ and talke of dyſceate at one table: ỹ. Mac. v. a. but they ſhal not proſpere: for why/ the ende ſhall not come yet/ vnto the tyme apoynted. Then ſhal he go home agayne into his awne lande with great good/ & ſet his hert agaynſt the holy couenaunt/ he ſhalbe buſy agaynſt it/ & then returne home. At ỹ tyme appoynted he ſhall come agayne/ & go towarde the ſouth: So ſhall it happen otherwiſe then at Nume. xxiiij. D. ỹ firſt/ yet ones agayne. And why/ ỹ ſhippes of Cythim ſhal come vpon him/ that he may be ſmytten & turne agayne: that he may take indignacyon agaynſt the couenaunt of holyneſſe/ to medle agaynſt it. Yee he ſhal turne him/ & drawe ſuch vnto him/ as leaue the holy couenaunt.

He ſhall ſet myghty men to vnhalowe the F Sanctuary of ſtrength/ to put downe the daylye offerynge/ & to ſet vp the abhomynable deſolacyon. And ſuch as breake the couenaunt ſhall he flattre wyth fayre wordes. But the people ỹ wyll know their God/ ſhal haue the ouerhande and proſpere. Thoſe alſo that haue vnderſtanding amonge the people ſhall enſourme the multytude: and for a longe ſeaſon/ they ſhalbe perſecuted wyth ſwearde/ with fyre/ with captiuite and with ỹ takynge awaye of their goodes. Now whẽ they fall/ they ſhalbe ſett vp w a lytle helpe: but many ſhall cleue vnto them faynedly.

Ye ſome of thoſe whych haue vnderſtandynge ſhall be perſecuted alſo: ỹ they maye be tryed/ purifyed and clenſed/ tyll the tyme be out: for there is yet another tyme appoynted. The kyng ſhall do what him lyſt/ he ſhal exalte and magnifye him ſelfe agaynſt all/ that is that is God. Yee he shall speake maruelous thyngs agaynst the God of all goddes/ wherin he shall prospere / so longe tyll the wrath be fulfylled/ for the cōclusyon is deuysed alredy. He shall not regarde the God of hys fathers/ but his lust shall be vpon wemen: Yee he shal not care for eny God/ for he shal magnifye him selfe aboue all. In his place shal he worshype the myghtye Idols: and ỹ God whom his fathers knewe not / shall he honoure with golde and syluer/ with precyous stones and pleasaunt Jewels.

Apoca. xv. a.

G Thys shall he do/ seekynge helpe and succoure at ỹ myghtie Idols & straunge Goddes. Soch as will receaue him/ and take him for God/ he shall geue them greate worshype & power: yee and make them lordes of ỹ multytude/ & geue thē the land wyth rewardes. In the latter tyme shall the kynge of ỹ south stryue with him: and the kynge of the north in lyke maner shall come agaynst him wyth charettes/ horsmen and with a greate nauy of shippes. He shall come in to the landes/ destroye and go thorow: he shall entre also in to the fayre pleasaunt lande. Many cyties and countrees shall decaye/ excepte Edom/ Moab & the best of the childzen of Ammon/ which shall escape from his hande. He shall stretch forth his hādes vpon the countrees/ & the lande of Egypte shall not escape hym. For thorow his goynge in / he shall haue dominion ouer the treasures of syluer & golde/ & ouer all ỹ precious Jewels of Egypt/ Lybia and Ethiopia. Neuertheles the tydyngs out of the East & the north shal trouble him: for the whych cause he shall goo forth to destroye & curse a greate multitude. The tyme wherin Oseas prophecyed. Oseas by taking an harlot to his wyfe/ signifieth the Idolatrye of the people. The destrucō of the offspring of Jehu/ and of the Israelytes/ is prophecyed.

The. first. Chapter.

I This is the worde of the Lord/ that came vnto Oseas the sonne of Beery/ in ỹ dayes of Oseas/ Joathan / Ahas & Jezekiah kynges of Juda: & in the tyme of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas kynge of Israell.

First/ when the Lorde spake vnto Oseas he sayde vnto him: Go thy waye/ take an harlott to thy wife/ and get childzen by her: for the lande hath committed greate whordome a* That is/cõsummacion: beaule the kingdome of Jsrael and Juda shulde shortly be consumed.

b* That is/krayle of fygges: be cause of the greate delicyoulnes & voluptuoulnes þ Juda & Jsrael were in.

c* That is/the leade of God.

d* That is/hauing no mercy.

a* Gomer þ daughter of b* Deblaim: which conceaued/and brought forth a sonne. And þ Lord sayde vnto him: call his name c* Jesrael/for I wyll shortly auenge the bloude of Jesrael vpon the house of Jehu / and wyll bringe the kyngdome of the house of Jsrael to an ende. Then wyll I breake the bowe of Jsrael in the valley of Jesrael.

She conceaued yet agayne / and bare a daughter. And he sayde vnto hym: Call her name d* Loruhamah (that is/ not optayning mercy) for I wyll haue no pyte vpõ þ house of Jsrael/but forget them/& put thẽ cleane out of remembraunce. Neuertheleſſe I wyll haue mercy vpon the house of Juda / & wyll saue thẽ/euen thorow the Lorde their God. But I wyll not delyuer them thorowe eny bowe/swearde/batell/horses or horsmen.

Now when she had weaned Loruhamah/ she conceaued agayne/& bare a sonne. Then sayd he: call his name. e* Lo amy. For why? ye are not my people/therfore wyl not I be yours. And though the nombre of the childrẽ of Jsrael be as the sande of the see/whych cã nether be measured ner tolde: yet in the place where it is sayde vnto thẽ/ ye be not my people: euẽ there shal it be thus reported of thẽ: they be the chyldrẽ of the lyuyng God. Therfore youre daughters are become harlottes / and youre spouses haue brokē their wedlocke / I wyll not punysh your daughters for beinge defyled / & youre bydes ỹ became whores: seing ỹ fathers thē selues haue medled w̄ harlottz / & offered with vnthryftes: but the people that wyll not vnderstande must be punyshed.

Though thou b*Jsrael art disposed to playe the harlot / yet shuldest not thou haue offended / O Juda: thou shuldest not haue runne to Galgala / ner haue gone vp to Bethauen / ner haue swore / ỹ Lorde lyueth. For Jsrael is gone backe like a wāton cowe. The Lorde therfore shal make her fede / as ỹ lābe ỹ goeth astraye. And where as Ephraim is become partaker of Idols / wel / let hī go. Their drōckennes hath put thē backe / & brought them to whordome. Their rulers loue rewardes / brynge (saye they) to their awne shame. B O Ephraim/ what shall I do vnto the? O Juda/ how shall I intreate the? seing youre loue is lyke a mornyng cloude/ & lyke a dew that goeth early awaye. Therfore haue I cut downe the Prophetes/ & let them be slayne for my wordes sake: so that thy punyshment shall come to lyght. For I haue pleasure in louyng kyndnesse/ and not in offringe: yee in the knowledge of God/ more then in burnt sacrifice. But euē like as Adam dyd, so haue they broken my couenaunt / and set me at naught. Galaad is a cite of wicked doers/ of malycyous people and bloudshedders. The multytude of the Prestes is lyke an heape of theues/ murtherers & bloudthursty: for they haue wrought abhomynacyon. Horrybie thinges haue I sene in the house of Israel/ there playeth Ephraim the harlot/ & Israel is defyled: but Juda shal haue an haruest for hym selfe/ when I returne the captyuite of my people.

a WHen I vndertake to make Israel whole/ then the vngracyousnesse of Ephraim and the wickednes of Samaria cōmeth to lyght: then go they aboute with lyes. At home/ they be theues: and without they fall to robbynge. They consyder not in their hertes that I remembre all their wickednes. They go about with their awne inuencyons/ but I se them well ynough. They make the kynge and the prynces/ to haue pleasure in their wyckednes & lyes. All these burne in aduoutry / as B it were an ouen that the baker heateth/ whē he hath lefte kneadynge/ tyll the dowe be leuended. Euen so goeth it this daye with oure kynges and prynces/ for they begynne to be woode droncken thorow wyne: they vse familiarite with soch as dysceaue them. They with the ymagynacyō of their herte are lyke an ouen/ their slepe is all the nyght lyke the slepe of a baker/ in the morning is he as hote as the flame of fyre: they are all together as hote as an ouen.

They haue deuoured their awne iudges/ C all their kynges are fallen: yet is there none of them that calleth vpō me. Therfore must Ephraim be mixte amōge ỹ Heathē. Wo be vnto them/ for they haue forsaken me. They must be destroyed / for they haue set me at naught. I am he that haue redemed them/ and yet they dissemble with me. They call not vpō me with their hertes / but lye houlynge vpon their beddes. Where as they come together / it is but for meate and dryncke/ and me wyll they not obeye. I haue taught them / and defended their arme / yet do they ymagin myschefe agaynst me. They turne them selues/ but not a right/ & are become as a brokē bowe. The grapegatherers shall make greate mone/ when ỹ vineyard & figetrees be so vtterly wasted. Yee all the pomgarnettes/ palmtrees/ apletrees/ & the other trees of the felde shall wyther awaye. Thus the mery cheare of ỹ childzen of men/ shall come to confusyon.

Gyrde you/ & make your mone/ O ye prestes: mourne ye ministres of the aulter: goo youre waye in/ and slepe in sack cloth/ O ye officers of my God: for the meat & drinckofferynge shall be taken awaye from ỹ house of youre God. Proclame a fastynge/ call the congregacyon/ gather the elders & all the inhabiters of ỹ lande together in to ỹ house of the Lorde your God/ & crye vnto the Lorde: alas/ alas for this daye. And why? the daye of the Lorde is at hande/ & commeth as a destroyer frō the Almightie. Shal not ỹ meate be taken awaye before oure eyes/ the myrth also & ioye from the house of oure God? The sede shall perish in the grounde/ the garners shal lye waste/ ỹ floores shalbe brokē downe/ for the corne shalbe destroyed. O what a lyghynge make the catell? the bullockes are very euell lykynge / because they haue no pasture: and the shepe are fameshed awaye.

O Lorde/ to the wyll I crye: for the fyre hath cōsumed the goodly pastures of ỹ wylderneffe/ and the flame hath brent vp all the trees of the felde. Yee the wylde beestes crye also vnto the: for the water ryuers are dryed vp/ and the fyre hath cōsumed the pastures of the wylderneffe.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

BLowe out the trompet in Sion/ & crye vpō my holy hill/ that al soch as dwel in the lāde/ maye tremble at it: for the daye of the Lord commeth/ & is harde at hande: a darcke daye / a gloomynge daye/ a cloudy daye/ yee & a stormy daye/ lyke as the mornyng spredeth out vpon the hylles: Namely/ a great & myghtye people: soch as haue not bene sens ỹ beginnynge/ nether shal be after thē for euermore. Before him shal be a consumynge fyre/ and behynde him a burning flame. A HEare thys worde/O ye house of Jsrael/& why? I must make thys mone for you: The byrgyn Jsrael shall fall/& neuer ryse vp agayne: she shalbe cast downe vpō her awne groūde/ & no man shall helpe her vp. For thus sayeth the Lorde God: Where as there dwelt a M. in one cyte/there shalbe left scarce an hundreth therin: & where there dwelt an C. there shall scarce ten be left for ỹ house of Jsrael. Neuertheless/thus sayeth the Lorde vnto ỹ house of Jsrael: Seke after me/and ye shall B lyue/but seke not after Bethel. Come not at Galgal/and go not to Berlaba: for Galgal shalbe caried awaye captyue/& Bethel shal come to naught. Seke the Lorde/that ye maye lyue: lest the house of Joseph be brent with fyre and consumed/& lest there be none to quench Bethel.

Ye turne the lawe to wormwod/and cast downe ryghtuousnes vnto the grounde. The Lorde maketh the. vii. starres and the Oryons/he turneth the nyght into daye/and of Job.ix.a C the daye he maketh darcknesse. He calleth the Amos.ix.b waters of the see/& poureth them out vpon the playne grounde: the Lorde is hys name. He rayseth destruccyō vpon the myghty people/& bryngeth downe the stronge holde: but they owe him euell wyll/ỹ reproueth them opēly: & who so telleth thē the playne trueth/ they abhorre him. For so moch then as ye oppresse the poore/& robbe him of his best substenaunce: therfore/where as ye haue buylded houses of square stone/ye shall not dwell in them. Maruelous pleasaunt vyneyardes shall ye plante/but the wyne of them shal ye not dryncke: and why? as for ỹ multytude of youre wyckednesses and your stoute synnes/ I knowe them right well. Enemyes are ye of the ryghtuous/ye take rewardes/ye oppresse the poore in iudgmement. Therfore ỹ wyse must now be fayne to holde his tunge/ so wycked a tyme is it. Deut.xxviij.c Soph.i.c

D Seke after the thynge that is good/& not euell/so shall ye lyue: yee the Lorde God of hostes shall be with you/accordyng to your awne desyre. Hate the euell/& loue the good: set vp right agayne in the porte: & (no doute) Psal.xcvi.b. the Lorde God of hostes shall be mercyfull Deut.xvii.a vnto the remnaunt of Joseph. If no (sayeth the Lorde God/the God of hostes) there shal be mournynge in all stretes/yee they shall saye in euery strete: alas/alas. They shall call the housbandman to lamentacyon/and soch as can mourne to mournynge. In all E vyneyardes there shall be heuynesse/for I wyll come amonge you/sayeth the Lorde. Wo be vnto them that desyre the daye of the Lorde: Wherfore wolde ye haue it? As for ỹ daye of the Lorde/it shalbe darcke and not cleare: Yee lyke as when a man runneth frō F a lyon/and a Beer meteth with him: or whē he commeth into the house/and leaneth his hande vpon the wall/a serpent byteth hym. Shall not the daye of the Lorde be darcke/ and not cleare? shall it not be cloudy/and no shyne in it?

I hate and abhorre youre holy dayes/and where as ye cense me whē ye come together I will not accepte it. And though ye offre me brentofferynges and meatoffrynges/yet haue I no pleasure therin. As for youre fat thanckofferynges/I wyll not loke vpon thē Awaye with that noyse of thy songes/I wil not heare thy playes of musick: but se that G equyte flowe as the water/and ryghtuousnesse as a myghtye streame. O ye house of Jsrael/gaue ye me offrynges and sacrifyces those .xl. yeares longe in the wyldernesse? yet haue ye sett vp tabernacles to youre Moloch/and Images of youre Idols/yee & the Leui.xx.a starre of your god Rempha/fygures which iij.Reg.xi.f ye made to worshyppe them. C The.vij. Chapter.

THe Lord God shewed me soch a vision: beholde / there stode one that made gresshoppers / euen when ꝑ corne was shutynge forth / after ꝑ king had clypte his shepe. Now whē they vndertoke to eate vp al the grene thinges in the lande / I sayde: O Lorde God / be mercyfull / I beseche the: who shulde els helpe vp Jacob that is brought so lowe? So the Lorde was gracious therin / and the Lorde sayde: wel / it shal not be. Agayne / the Lorde shewed me thys vysyon: behoide / the Lorde God called the fyre to punysh wythall / and it deuoured the great depe: yee it consumed a parte allredy. Then sayde I: O Lorde God / holde thyne B hande: for who shulde els helpe vp Jacob that is brought so lowe? So the Lorde was mercyfull therin / and the Lorde God sayde: well / it shall not be.

Moreouer / he shewed me thys vysyō: beholde / the Lorde stode vpon a plastered wall / * Some call it a lyne. and a masons* trowel in his lande. And the Lord sayde vnto me: Amos / what seist thou? I answered: a masons trowell. Then sayde ꝑ Lorde: beholde / I wyll laye the trowell amonge my people of Israell / & wyll nomore ouer see thē: but the hye hylchapels of Isaac must be layed waste / and the churches of Israell made desolate: and as for the house of Jeroboam / I wyll stande vp agaynst it with the swerde. C Upon thys sent Amasiah the prest to Bethel vnto Jeroboam the kinge of Israel / sayenge: Amos maketh the house of Israel to rebel agaynst the / the lande can not awaye with hys wordes. For Amos sayeth / Jeroboam shall dye with the swerde / and Israell shall be led awaye captyue out of theyr awne lande. And Amasiah sayde vnto Amos Gett the hence (thou that canst se so well) & flie in to the lande of Juda: gett the there thy lyuynge / and prophecy there: and prophecy nomore at Bethell / for it is the kynges chapell / and the kynges courte.

Esai.xxx.b.

D Amos answered / and sayde to Amasiah: As for me I am nether prophet / ner prophetes sonne: but a keper of catell. Now as I was breakinge downe molberies / & goynge after the catell / the Lorde toke me / & sayde vnto me: Go thy waye / and prophecy vnto my people of Israell. And therfore / heare thou now the word of the Lord: Thou saiest: prophecy not agaynst Israell / and speake nothinge agaynst the house of Isaac. Wherfore thus sayeth the Lorde: Thy wife shalbe defyled in the cytye / thy sonnes & daughters shal be slayne with the swearde / & thy lande shalbe measured out with the lyne. Thou thy selfe shalt dye in an vncleane lande / & Israell shalbe dryuen out of his awne countre.

C Agaynst the rulars of Israell. The Lorde sweareth that he will fulfyll the thynges whych he hath determyned agaynst Israell.

THe Lorde God shewed me thys vi- A syon: and beholde / there was a maunde with sommer frute. And he sayde: Amos / what seist thou? I answered: a maunde wyth sommer frute.

Then layde the Lorde vnto me: the ende cometh vpon my people of Israel / I wyll nomore ouerse the. In that daye shall ỹ songes of the temple be turned in to sorow / sayeth ỹ Lorde God. Many deed bodyes shall lye in euery place / & be cast forth secretly. Heare

In that tyme / shall the fayre virgins and the yonge mẽ perysh for thyrst / yee euen they that sweare in the offence of Samaria / and saye: as truly as thy God lyueth at Dan / and as truly as thy God lyueth at Berlaba. These shall fall / and neuer ryse vp agayne.

¶ Agaynst Edom/& the trust that they had in riches.

Ezech.xxviij.b and.xxxv.a. Amos.i.c.

THis is the vysyon that was shewed vnto Abdy: Thus hath the Lorde God spoken vpon Edom: We haue herde of the Lorde that there is an embassage sent amonge the Heathē: Up/let vs aryse/and fyght agaynst them. Beholde/I will make the small amōge the Heathen/so that thou shalt be vtterly dessyled. The pryde of thyne herte hath lyft the vp/thou that dwellest in the stronge holdes of stone/& hast made the an hye seate: Thou sayest in thyne hert: who shall cast me downe to the grounde? But though thou wentest vp as hye as ỹ Aegle/& maydest thy nest aboue amonge the starres: yet wolde I plucke the downe from thence. Yf the theues and robbers came to the by nyght/thou takinge thy rest: shulde they not steale/tyll they had ynough? Yf the grape gatherers came vpon the/wolde they not leaue the some grapes? But how shall they rype Esau/and seke out his treasures?

Jeremy.xlix.c. Amos.ix.a. Abacuc.ij.b.

Yee the men that were sworne vnto the/ shall dryue ỹ out of ỹ borders of thyne awne lande. They that be now at one w̄ the/ shall disceaue the/& ouercome the: Euen they that eate thy bred/ shall betraye the/or euer thou perceaue it. Shall not I at the same tyme destroye the wyse men of Edom/& those that haue vnderstanding/frō the mount of Esau? Thy gyauntes (O Theman) shalbe afrayed/ for thorow ỹ slaughter they shalbe all ouerthrowne vpon the mount of Esau. Shame shall come vpon the/for the malyce ỹ thou shewedest to thy brother Jacob: yee for euermore shalt thou perysh/& that because of the tyme/when thou dydest set thy selfe agaynst him/euen when the enemyes caryed awaye his hoost/and when the aleaūtes came in at his portes/and cast lottes vpon Jerusalem/ and thou thy selfe wast as one of them.

Esay.xxiv.c. 1.Corin.i.c. Exodi.xvij.c. Nume.xx.c.

Thou shalt nomore se the daye of thy brother/thou shalt nomore beholde the tyme of his captiuite: thou shalt nomore reioyse ouer the chyldren of Juda/in the daye of their destruccyon/thou shalt tryumphe nomore in ỹ tyme of their trouble. Thou shalt no more come in at the gates of my people/in ỹ tyme of their decaye: thou shalt not se their mysery in the daye of thier fall.

Thou shalt sende out no mā agaynst their hoost/in the daye of their aduersyte: nether shalt thou stande waytynge any more at the corners of ỹ stretes/to murthur soch as are fled/or to take them preseners/that remayne in the daye of their trouble. For the daye of ỹ Lorde is harde by vpō all ỹ Heathē. Like as thou hast done/so shalt thou be dealte with= all/yee thou shalt be rewarded euē vpō thyne head. For lyke wyse as ye haue dronckē vpō myne holy hyll/so shall all Heathen drynke contynually: yee drynke shall they/& swalowe vp/so that ye shalbe/as though ye had neuer bene.

Jeremy.l.c. Joel.iij.b.

But vpon the mount Syon/there shall a remnaunt escape: these shalbe holy/and the house of Jacob shall possesse euen those/that had thē selues afore in possessyō. Moreouer/ the house of Jacob shalbe a fyre/the house of Joseph a flame/& ỹ house of Esau shalbe the strawe: which they shall kyndle and consume/so that nothynge shalbe left of ỹ house of Esau/for the Lorde himself hath sayde it. They of the South shall haue the mount of Esau in possession: and loke what lyeth vpon the grounde/that shall the Philistines haue: the playne feldes shal Ephraim & Samaria possesse: and the mountaynes of Galaad shall Benjamin haue. And thys hoost shalbe the chyldren of Israels preseners: Now what so lyeth from a* Canaan vnto b* Zareptah/& in c* Sepharad/that shalbe vnder the subiection of Jerusalem: and the cytyes of the south shall enherete it. ¶ The fyrst Chapter.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto Jonas ỹ sonne of Amithai/saying: Aryse/and get the to Niniue that greate cyte: & preache vnto them/how that their wyckednes is come vp before me. And Jonas made hym ready to flē vnto * Tharsis frō the presence of the Lorde/and gat hym downe to Joppa: where he founde a shyppe ready for to go vnto Tharsis. So he payde his fare/& went aborde/that he myght go wyth them vnto Tharsis/from the presence of ỹ Lorde. But the Lorde hurled a greate wynde in to the see/and there was a myghtye tempest in the see: so that the shippe was in ieoperdy of goinge in peces. Then the maryners were afrayde/ and cryed euery man vnto hys god: & the goodes that were in the shyppe/ they cast in to the see /to lyghten it of them. But Jonas gatt hym vnder the hatches / where he B layed him downe and slombred.

* Under the name of Tharsis (as some thincke) is signified some see that was farre of/& whose viage was very longe: so ỹ the saylers therin coulde se no thinge: but the see & the ayre. Joppa is an haue̅ of Jewry/

So the master of the shyppe came to him and sayde vnto hym: why slomberest thou? Vp/call vpon thy God: yf God (happely) wil thynke vpon vs / that we perysshe not. And they sayde one to another: come / lett vs cast Josu.vij.c lottes: that we maye knowe/ for whose cause we are thus troubled. And so they cast lottes/ and the lot fell vpon Jonas.

C Then sayde they vnto him: tel vs/ for whose cause are we thus troubled? what is thyne occupacyon? whence commest thou? what countre man art thou/ and of what nacyon? He answered them: I am an Ebreue / and I feare the Lorde God of heauen / whych made both the see and drye lande. Then were the men exceadingly afrayed/ & sayde vnto hym: why didest thou so? (for they knewe/ that he was fled from the presence of the Lorde / because he had tolde them) and sayde moreouer vnto hym: What shall we do vnto the / that the see maye ceasse from troublinge vs? (for the see wrought and was troublous) he answered them: Take me / and cast me in D to the see / so shall it lett you be in rest: for I wote/ it is for my sake/ that this great tempest is come vpon you.

Neuertheless/ the men assayed with rowynge/ to bringe the shyppe to lande: but it wolde not be / because the see wrought so/ & was so troublous agaynst them. Wherfore they cryed vnto the Lorde/ & sayde: O Lorde let vs not perish for this mans death/ nether laye thou innocent bloude vnto our charge: Deu.xxi.b for thou/ O Lorde/ hast done / euen as thy pleasure was.

So they toke Jonas / and cast hym in to the see/ and the see lefte ragynge. And the men feared the Lorde exceadingly/ doyng sacrifices & makinge vowes vnto the Lorde.

C The.ij. Chapter.

BVt the Lorde prepared a greate fyshe/ to swalow vp Jonas. So was Jonas in the bely of the fysh / thre dayes & thre nightes. And Jonas prayed vnto the Lorde his God/ out of ỹ fyshes bely/ and sayde: In my trouble I called vnto the Lorde/ & he herde me: out of the bely of * hell I cryed / & thou herdest my voyce. Thou haddest cast me downe depe in the myddest of the see / and the floude compased me aboute: yee all thy waues and rowles of water went ouer me/ I thought that I had bene cast awaye out of thy syght: but I wyll yet agayne loke towarde thy holy temple. B

The waters compased me/ euen to the very soule: the depe laye aboute me / & the wedes were wrapte aboute myne head. I went downe to the botome af the hylles / and was barred in wyth earth for euer. But thou / O C Lorde my God / hast brought vp my lyfe agayne out of corrupcyon. When my soule fainted within me/ I thought vpō the Lorde: & my prayer came in vnto the/ euen in to thy holy temple. And Jonas wente to / and entred in to the cytie: euen a dayes iourney/ & cryed/ sayēge: There are yet xl. dayes and then shal Niniue B be ouerthrowen. And the people of Niniue beleued God/ and proclamed fastynge / and arayed them selues in * sack cloth / as well the greate as the small of them. And the tydinges came vnto ỹ kinge of Niniue/ which arose out of his seate / & dyd his apparell of/ and put on sack cloth / and sate hym downe in asshes.

* The arayinge thē in sack cloth was an outewarde signe of great repentaūce/ as in ii.reg. iii.f.

And it was cryed and commaunded in C Niniue/ by the auctorite of the kinge and hys lordes/ sayenge: se that nether man or beest / ore or shepe taste ought at all: and that they nether fede ner drinke water: but put on sack cloth both man and beest/ and crye mightely vnto God: yee se that euery man turne from hys euell waye / and from the wyckednesse/ that he hath in hande. Matth. xii.b. Luc.xi.c

Who can tell? God maye turne/ & repente/ and ceasse from his fearce wrath/ that we D perysh not. And when God sawe their worke/ how they turned from their wicked wayes: he repented on the euell/ whych he sayde he wolde do vnto them/ and dyd it not. Esai.xxxviij.b

Then cried he vpon me/and spake vnto me/ sayinge: beholde/these that go towarde the north/ shall stylle my wrath in the north countre.

And the worde of ꝙ Lorde came vnto me/ C saying: Take of the presoners that are come from Babylon: namely/ Heldai/ Tobiah and Idaia: and come thou the same daye/ and go in to the house of Josiah the sonne of Sophony. Then take golde and syluer/& make crownes therof/and set them vpon the head of Iesua the sonne of Josedeh/the hye prest/ and speake vnto hym: Thus sayeth ꝙ Lorde of hoostes: Beholde the man whose name is Zach.vi.b. the braunche: and he that shall sprynge vp psal.cxxvii.a. after hym/ shall buylde vp the temple of the Lorde. yee euē he shall buylde vp ꝙ tēple of ꝙ Apo.iij.b.v.b. But he shall be fayne to saye: I am no Prophete: I am an husbande man/for so am I taught by Adam from my youth vp. And yf it be sayde vnto him: how came these woūdes then in thyne C handes? He shall answere: Thus am I woūded in the house of myne awne frendes.

Mat.xxvi.e. Mar.xiiij.d Aryse/O thou swearde/vpō my shepherde/ and vpon the Prince of my people/sayeth ỹ Lorde of hostes: Smyte the shepherde/and the shepe shalbe scatred abrode/and so wyll Job.xxiij.a. ¶ The wastynge of the churche vnder the fygure of Jerusalem. Of the kyngdome of the Lorde.

¶ The.xiiij.Chapter.

Beholde/the daye of the Lorde cō- A meth/that thou shalt be spoyled & robbed: for I will gather together all the Heathen/to fyght agaynst Jerusalem: so that the cite shalbe wonne/the houses spoyled/and the wemen defyled. The half of the cyte shall go awaye in to captyuyte/& the residue of the people shall not be caryed out of the cyte. After that shall the Lorde go forth to fight agaynst those Heathē/as men vse to fyght in ỹ daye of battell. Then shall his fete stande vpō the moūt olyuete/that lieth vpō the east side of Jerusalē. And ỹ moūt olyuete shall cleue in two/eastwarde & westwarde/so that there shalbe a greate valley: & the half moūt shall remoue B towarde the north/& the other towarde the south. And ye shall flee vnto the valley of my hylles/for the valley of the hilles shall reach vnto Asal. Yee flee shall ye/lyke as ye fled for Amos.i.a. the earthquake in the dayes of Osiah kinge of Juda. And the Lorde my God shall come/ & all sayntes with him. In that daye shall it not be lyght/but colde & frost. This shall be that specyall daye/which is knowne vnto ỹ Lorde: nether daye ner nyght/but aboute the euenynge tyme it shalbe lyght. In that tyme shall there a* waters of lyfe runne out from Jerusalem: the half parte of them b* towarde the east see/& the other half towarde the vttermost see/& shall contynue both somer & wynter. And the Lorde hym selfe shalbe kynge ouer all the earth.

a* That is/ the vnderstanding of ỹ worde of God.

b* Towarde the east see/and towarde the vtmost see: that is/all the worlde ouer.

C At ỹ tyme shall there be one Lorde only/ and hys name shalbe but one. Men shall go aboute the whole earth/as vpon a felde: frō Gibea to Remmon/& frō the south to Jerusalem. She shalbe set vp/& inhabited in her place: frō Ben Jamyns porte/vnto ỹ place of the fyrst porte/and vnto the corner porte: and from the tower of Hananeel/vnto the kynges wyne presses. There shall men dwel/ and there shalbe no more cursinge/but Jerusalem shalbe safely inhabyted. Thys shalbe the plage/wherwith the Lorde wyll smyte all people/that haue fought agaynst Jerusalem: Namely/their flesh shall cōsume awaye/though they stande vpon their fete: their eyes shalbe corrupt in their holes/and their tunge shall consume in their mouth.

In that daye shall ỹ Lorde make a great sedycion amonge them/so that one mā shal take take another by the hande/ & laye his haoes vpō the hādes of his neyghboure. Juda shall fyght also agaynst Jerusalem/ & the goodes of all the Heathen shalbe gathered together rounde aboute: golde and syluer and a very great multitude of clothes. And so shall this plage go ouer horses/ mules/ cameis/ asses/ & all the beastes that shal be in the host/ lyke as ponder plage was. Euery one ꝑ remayneth then of all ꝑ people/ which cam agaynst Jerusalem/ shall go vp yearly/ to worshype ꝑ kynge (euen the Lorde of hostes) & to kepe the feast of tabernacles. And loke what generacyon vpon earth goeth not vp to Jerusalem/ for to worshype the kynge (euen the Lorde of hostes) vpō the same shall come no rayne. If the kynred of Egypte go not vp/ & come not/ it shall not rayne vpon thē nether.

D This shalbe the plage wherwith ꝑ Lorde wyll smyte all Heathen/ that come not vp to kepe the feast of tabernacles: yee this shalbe ꝑ synne plage of Egypt and the synneplage of all people/ that go not vp to kepe ꝑ feast of tabernacles.

At that tyme shall the rydyng geer of the horses be holy vnto the Lorde/ & the kettels in the Lordes house shall be lyke the basens before the aulter: yee all the kettels in Jerusalem and Juda/ shalbe holy vnto the Lord of hostes: and all they that slaye offerynges/ shall come take of them/ & dight them their in. And at that tyme there shal be no mo Cananites in the house of the Lorde.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

THe heuy burthē/ which the Lorde sheweth agaynst Israel by Malachy. I haue loued you/ sayeth ꝑ Lorde: & yet ye saye: wherin hast thou loued vs? Was not Esau Jacobs brother/ sayeth the Lord? yet haue I loued Jacob/ and hated Esau: yee I haue made his hilles waste/ & his heretage a wildernesse for dragons. And though Edom sayde: well/ we are destroyed/ we wyll goo buylde vp agayne the places that be wasted: yet (sayeth the Lorde of hostes) what they buylded/ that brake I downe: so that it was called a cursed lande/ and a people/ whom the Lorde hath euer bene angrie withall.

Genes.xxv.c. Roma.ix.b. Josue.xxiiij.a.

B Youre eyes haue sene it/ & ye youre selues must confesse/ that the Lorde hath brought the lande of Israel to great honoure. Shuld not a sonne honoure his father/ & a seruaunt hys master? If I be now a father/ where is myne honoure? If I be the Lorde/ where am I feared? sayeth the Lorde of hostes.

Now to you prestes/ ꝑ despyse my name. And yf ye saye: wherin haue we despyled thy name? In this/ that ye a* offre vnclene bred vpon myne aulter. And yf ye wyll saye: wherin haue we offered any vnclene thinge vnto the? In this that ye saye: the aulter of ꝑ Lord is not to be regarded. If ye offre ꝑ blynde/ is not that euell? And yf ye offre the lame and sick/ is not that euell? Yee offre it vnto thy prince/ shall he be contēt with the/ or accepte thy persone/ sayeth the Lorde of hostes?

a* To offer despyled bredde is/ to do any thing by hypocrysye/ & not to glorye God/ as he hath commaunded in hys worde/ but accordyng to the inuencions and dreames of men. D Esee.ix.a.

And now make youre prayer before God/ that he maye haue mercy vpon vs: for soch thinges haue ye done. Shalbe regarde your persones/ thynke ye/ sayeth the Lorde of hostes? Yee what is he amonge you/ ꝑ wyll do so moch as to shut ꝑ dores/ or to kyndle ꝑ fyre vpō myne aulter for naught? I haue no pleasure in you/ sayeth the Lorde of hostes: and as for the meatoffringe/ I wyll not accepte it at youre hande. For from the rysyng vp of the sonne vnto the goinge downe of the same/ my name is greate amonge the Gentiles: yee in euery place shall there sacrifice be done/ & a clene meatoffring offred vp vnto my name: for my name is great amonge the Heathē/ sayeth ꝑ Lord of hostes. But ye haue vnhalowed it/ in that ye saye/ ꝑ aulter of the Lorde is not to be regarded/ & b the thing that is set therupon/ not worthy to be eaten.

D Esay.i.b.

b* Or his worde & hys meate are dispised.

Now saye ye: It is but laboure and trauayle/ and thus haue ye thought scorne at it (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) offerynge robbery/ yee the lame and the sycke. Ye haue brought me in a meatofferyng/ shulde I accepte it of youre hande/ sayeth the Lorde? Cursed beth e dissembler/ whych hath in his flocke one that is male/ and whenhe maketh a bowe/ offereth a spoted one vnto the Lord. For I am a greate kynge (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) and my name is fearfull amonge the Heathen.

¶ Josias holdeth passeouer. After his death is Jechonias hys sonne made kynge in hys steade: whom the kynge of Egypt putteth out/& setteth in his brother Joachim. Jerusalem is destroyed/& Sedechias taken.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

A ND Josias helde the feast of Easter in Jerusalem vnto the Lorde/and slewe the Passeouer the. xiiij. daye of ỹ fyrst moneth. He set the Prestes also in ordre (accordynge to their dayly courses) being arayed in longe garmentes in the temple of the Lorde. And he spake vnto ỹ Leuytes the holy ministers of Israel/that they shulde halowe thẽ selues vnto the Lorde / to set the holy arcke of the Lorde/in the house that King Salomon the sonne of Dauid had buylded/ and sayde: Ye shall no more beare the Arcke vpon youre shulders. Now serue youre Lorde/ & take ỹ charge of hys people of Israel / after youre vyllages and youre trybes: accordynge as Kynge Dauid the Kynge of Israel hath ordened/& accordynge as Salomon his sonne hath honorably prepared: yee loke that ye al do seruyce in the temple / accordynge to the ordring & distribucyõ of the principall men which are appoynted out of the tribes/to do seruice for the chyldrẽ of Israel. Kyll ỹ Passeouer/& prepare offringes for your brethrẽ/ & do accordynge to the commaundement of the Lorde/which he gaue vnto Moses. And vnto ỹ people ỹ was founde Josias gaue. xxx thousande of shepe/lambes/kyddes/& goates/& thre thousande oxẽ. These the Kynge (of his kyngly liberalite) gaue vnto the people/accordynge as he had promysed: & to the Prestes for the Passeouer) he gaue two. M. shepe / & an hundreth oxen. Moreouer/Jechonias & Semeias/& Nathanael brethrẽ/ & Halabias/Jehiel/and Josabad gaue them to the Passeouer/ fyue thousande shepe and fyue hundreth bullockes.

And when these thynges were brought to passe/the Prestes & the Leuytes stode goodly in their ordre/and had the vnleuened bred throwout the trybes. And after the ordring of the pryncipall men in the trybes/they offered vnto the Lorde in the syght of the people/accordyng as it is written in the boke of Moses/& so they rosted the Easter lambe as accordynge was. As for the thanckeoffringe and the other/they dight them in kettels and pottes/& set them before the people wt good wyll/and afterwarde before them selues / & the Prestes. For the Preastes offred the fatt/ vntyll the tyme was expyred/but ỹ Leuites prepared for them selues & for their brethrẽ the chyldrẽ of Aaron. The syngers also ỹ children of Asaph stode in their ordre/accordyng as Dauid had deuised. So did Asaph Zachary & Jduthun/which were appoynted by the kynge. Moreouer the porters & dore kepers stode by ỹ dores & ỹ diligẽtly/so ỹ none wẽt out of his standynge & seruyce: for their brethren (the Leuites) prepared for them. Thus were all thynge perfourmed / that belonged to the offerynge of the Lorde. In that daye they helde the Passeouer/& offred thankoffe-rynges beside the sacrifyce of the Lorde/ accordyng to ỹ cõmaundemẽt of kyng Josias.

So ỹ chyldrẽ of Israel which were then present helde an honorable Passeouer/& the feast of swete bread. vij. dayes lõge. Yee soch a Passeouer was not kepte in Israel/frõ the tyme of the Prophet Samuel. And all the kynge of Israel helde not soch an Easter / as this which kyng Josias helde/& ỹ prestes/ỹ Leuites/the Jewes & all Israel/of all thẽ ỹ were at Jerusalẽ. And in ỹ. xviij. yere of ỹ raigne of Josias was this Passeouer kept. And wt a parfecte herte dyd kyng Josias ordre all hys worckes/before ỹ Lorde/& ỹ thynges ỹ were wrytte̅ of him in times past/cõcerning those ỹ synned & were vngodly agaynst the Lorde before all people / & ỹ sought not the worde of ỹ Lorde vpõ Israel.* After al these actes of kyng Josias/Pharao ỹ kyng of Egypte went vp & came towarde Carcamis by Euphrates/& Josias wẽt to mete him. Then sent the kyng of Egypte vnto Josias sayĩg: what haue J to do wt the/ O Kyng of Juda? J am not sent of the Lorde to fyght agaynst the/for my warre is vpõ Euphrates/go thou thy waye home agayne in all the haste. And Josias wolde not turne agayne vpõ his charet/but vndertoke to fight agaynst him/and herkened not vnto the worde of the prophet/ which he tolde him out of the mouth of God/ but pytcheda battayll agaynst him in ỹ feld of Mageddo. And ỹ princes preached to king Josias. Then sayde the kynge vnto hys seruaũtes: Cary me awaye out of the battayll/ for J am sore wounded. And immediatly his seruauntes toke him awaye out of the front of the battayll. Then sat he vp vpõ ỹ seconde charett/came to Jerusalem/ dyed / and was buryed in his fathers sepulcre. And in all Jewry they mourned for Josias/yee the rulers also with their wyues made lamentacyõ for him vnto this daye: And thys was done euer styll in Israel.

in Ieruſalem/ and rayſed vp a taxe of the people: namely/ an. C. talentes of ſyluer & one talent of golde. The kynge of Egypt alſo made Ioachim his bꝛother kynge of Iuda & Ieruſalem. As foꝛ thē of the kynges counceil wᵭ the kyng him ſelfe and Zaraceles his bꝛother/ he toke thē/ & caried thē awaye pꝛe-ſoners in to Egypt. Fyue & twētie yeare old was Ioachim/ when he was made kyng in ỹ lāde of Iuda and Ieruſalē/ & he dyd euell befoꝛe the Loꝛde. After this/ Nabuchodonoſoꝛ the kyng of Babylon came vp/ bounde him with bandes of yꝛon/ & caried him vnto Ba-bilō. Nabuchodonoſoꝛ alſo toke all ỹ veſſels that were halowed in the temple of ỹ Loꝛd/and all the Iewels/ and caried thē vnto Babylon/ & bꝛought thē in to his awne tēpie at Babilon. Of his vnclennes & vngodlines/ it is wꝛittē in ỹ boke of ỹ actes of the kynges.
And Ioachim his ſonne raigned in his ſtea-F de: He was made kynge beynge .xviij. yeare olde/ & raigned but thꝛee monethes & .x. dayes in Ieruſalē/ & dyd euell befoꝛe the Loꝛd. So after a yeare/ Nabuchodonoſoꝛ ſent & cauſed him be bꝛought vnto Babylon wᵭ ỹ holy veſſels of ỹ Loꝛde/ & made Sedechias his bꝛother kyng of Iuda and Ieruſalem/ when he was .xxi. yeare old: and he raigned .xi. yeare.

And he dyd euell alſo in ỹ ſyght of ỹ Loꝛd/& cared not foꝛ the woꝛdes ỹ were ſpokē vnto him by the pꝛophet Ieremy at ỹ mouth of ỹ Loꝛde. And where as he had made an othe

lon. As foꝛ the houſe of the Loꝛde/ they bꝛēt it/ & bꝛake downe the walles of Ieruſalē/ ſet fyꝛe vpon her towꝛes/ deſtroyed all her noble buyldinges and bꝛought them to naught/ & ỹ people that were not ſlayne wᵭ the ſwerde/they caryed vnto Babilon.

Thus became they pꝛeſoners & bonde mē of the kynge of Babilon/ tyll they were deli-uered & raygned foꝛ them ſelues/ * when the woꝛdes of the Loꝛde were fulfylled/ whych *Iere.xxv.c.

¶ Cirus geueth lycence to the Jewes to returne to Ieruſalem/ & reſtoꝛeth them the veſſelles of the tēple. After ỹ are there letters ſende to Artaxerſes/ which accuſe the Jewes foꝛ buyldynge of the cytie: and ſo is the buyldyng dꝛyuē of, vntyll the .ij. yeare of Darius.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

NOw when kyng Cyꝛus raigned ouer the Perſians/ & when ỹ Loꝛd wolde perfourme the woꝛde that he had pꝛomyſed by the mouth of ỹ of Cyꝛus/ the kynge of Perſians/ ſo that he cauſed thys wꝛytynge to be pꝛoclamed thꝛorow oute hys whole realme/ ſayinge: Thus ſayeth the kynge of Perſians: The Loꝛde of Iſrael that hye Loꝛde hath made me kynge ſels and oꝛnamentes/ that were halowed vnto the Loꝛde (whych Nabuchodonoſoꝛ the kynge of Babilon had caried awaye frō Ieruſalem/ and conſecrated them to hys Idoll and

and ymage)and delyuered them to Mithridatus his treasurer/ & by hym they were delyuered to Salmanasar ỹ debyte in Jewry. And this was the nombre of thē: Two thousande & .iiij. C. syluer boules. xxx. syluer basens. xxx. basens of golde. ij. M. & .iiij. C. bessels of syluer/ and a thousande besyde. All ỹ bessels of golde and syluer were .v. M. viij. C and .lx. These were nombred vnto Salmanasar/ & them that were come agayne with hym to Jerusalē out of the captyuyte of Babylon. *Now in the tyme of Kynge Artaxerses the Kyng of Persia/ these men: Balemus & Mithridatus/ Sabellius/ Rathimꝰ/ Balthemus/ Semelius the Scribe/ & other that dwelt in Samaria & in other places vnder ỹ domynyō therof/ wrote a letter vnto Kynge Artaxerses / wherin they complayned vnto the Kynge of them in Jewry and Jerusalem. The letter was made after this maner:

*i. Eld. iiij. b.

C Syr / thy seruaūtes Rathimus the storry wryter/ Sabellius the Scribe/ & other iudges of the courte in Celosyria & Phenyces. Be it knowne & manyfest to oure Lorde the Kynge/ ỹ the Jewes which are come vp from you vnto vs into the rebellyous & wicked citie/ begynne to buylde it agayne/ & ỹ walles aboute it/ & to set vp the temple of the new. Now yf this cytye & the walles therof be set vp agayne/ they shall not only refuse to geue trybutes and taxes / but also rebell vtterly agaynst the Kynge. And forsomoch as they take this in hande now aboute the tēple/ we thought it reason/ to thynke no scorne of it/ but to shewe it vnto oure Lorde the Kyng/ & to certyfye hym therof: to thintent that yf it please the Kynge/ he may cause it be sought in the bokes of olde: & thou shalt fynde soche warnynge wrytte/ & shalt vnderstande/ that this cytie hath all waye bene rebellyous and disobediēt/ that it hath subdued Kynges and cytyes/ and that the Jewes which dwell ther in/ haue euer bene a rebellyous/ obstynate/ vnfaythfull/ & fyghtyng people/ for ỹ which cause this cytye is wasted. Wherfore now we certyfye oure Lorde the Kynge/ ỹ yf this cytye be buylded & occupyed agayne/ and the walles therof set vp a new/ thou canst haue no passage into Celosyria and Phenices.

D Then wrote the Kynge to Rathimus the storry wryter/ to Balthemus/ to Sabellius the Scribe/ & to the other officers & dwellers in Syria and Phenyces / after thys maner: I haue red the epistle which thou sentest vnto me/ & haue commaunded to make diligēt search/ & haue founde/ ỹ the cytye hath euer resysted Kynges / that the same people are disobedient/ and haue caused moch warre/ & that myghty Kynges haue raygned in Jerusalem / which also haue rayled vp taxes of Syria and Phenices. Wherfore I haue cōmaunded those people / that they shall not buylde the cytye/ that they make no more in it/ and that they proceade no forther with the buyldynge: for so moche as it myght be the cause of warre/ & dysplesure vnto Kynges.

Now when Rathymus and Sabellius the Scrybe/ & the rulers in the lande had red the writinge of Kyng Artaxerses/ they gatt them together/ & came in all the haste to Jerusalem wᵗ an hoost of horsmen/ & wᵗ moche people of fote/ & forbad thē to buylde. And so they left of from buyldynge of the temple/ vnto the second yeare of Kynge Darius.

C Darius maketh a feast. The .iij. sentences of the .iij. younge men/ of which the fyrst is declared.

C The .iij. Chapter.

A Kynge Darius made a great feast vnto his seruauntes/ vnto all hys courte/ & to all ỹ officers of Medea & Perlia/ yee to all the debytes & rulers that were vnder him/ from India vnto Ethiopia/ an hundreth & .xxvij. countres. So when they had eaten & dronken being satysfyed/ and were gone home agayne. Darius the Kyng wēte into his chambre/ layed hym downe to slepe/ & so awaked.

B Then the thre yonge men/ that kepte the Kynges persone/ and watched his body/ cōmoned amonge them selues/ & spake one to another: let euery one of vs saye some thing/ & loke whose sentence is wyser and more excellent then the other/ vnto hym shall Kinge Darius geue greate gyftes/ and clothe hym wyth purple. He shall geue hym vessels of golde to dryncke in/ clothes of golde & couerynges: he shall make him a costely charet & a brydle of golde/ he shall geue hym a bonet of whyte sylke/ & a cheyne of golde aboute hys neck: yee he shalbe the seconde and principall nexte vnto Kynge Darius / and that because of hys wysdome/ and shalbe called the Kynges kynsman.

So euery one wrote his meaning/ sealed it/ & layed it vnder the Kynges pelowe / and sayde: when the Kyng aryseth/ we wyll geue hym oure writinges: and loke whose worde C the Kynge and hys chefe Lordes iudge to be the moost wysely spokē/ the same shall haue the victory. One wrote: Wyne is a stronge thynge. The second wrote: The Kyng is strōger. The thyrd wrote: Women haue yet more strēgth/ but aboue all thinges ỹ trueth beareth awaye ỹ victory. Now when the Kynge was risen vp/ they toke their wrytinges and delyuered them vnto hym / and so he red thē. Then sent he forth to call al his chefe lordes/ all the debytes and rulers of the contrees of Medea and Perlia. And when they were set downe in the councell / the wrytinges were red before them. And he commaunded to call for the younge men / that they myght declare their meanynges thē selues by mouth. So when they were sent for / & came in / the King sayde vnto them: shewe vs and make vs to vnderstande / what the thynges are that ye haue wrytten.

D Then beganne the fyrst (which had spokē of the strength of wyne) & sayde: O ye men / wyne is maruelous stronge / & ouercōmeth them ꝑ dryncke it: it disceaueth the mynde / & bryngeth both the poore man & the Kynge to dotage and vanite. Thus doth it also with the bondman and with the fre / with the poore & ryche: it taketh awaye their vnderstandyng / and maketh them careles and mery / so that none of them remembreth any heuynes / dett or dewtie: It causeth a man to thynke also that the thinge which he doth / is honest and good: & remembreth not that he is a Kynge / nor that he is in auctorite / & ꝑ he ought not to do soch thynges. Moreouer / whē men are drynckynge / they forget all frendshyppe / all brotherly faythfulnes & loue: but as soone as they are dronkē / they drawe out ꝑ swerde & wyl fight: & when they are layed downe frō the wyne / & sorysen vp agayne / they can not tell what they dyd: iudge ye now / is not wyne the strōgest? For who wolde els take in hand to do soche thynges? And when he had spokē this / he helde his tonge.

¶ The declaracyō of the .ij. last sentences of the yōg men / propounded in the Chapter before: of which the last / that is / that verite beareth the victorye in all thinges / is most cōmended & alowed. Darius writeth letters to all the rulers vnder hym / that they shulde ayde Zorobabel to the buyldynge of Jerusalem.

¶ The .iiij. Chapter.

A Then the seconde (which had sayde / that the Kynge was stronger) begāne to speake / saying: O ye men / are not they the strongest and most excellent / that conquere the lande & the see / & all that is in the see & in the earth? Now is the Kynge lorde of all these thynges / & hath domynyō of them all: and loke what he commaūdeth / it is done. If he sende his men forth a warfare / they go / & breake downe hylles / walles & towres. They are slayne / and slaye (other men) them selues / & ouerpasse not the Kynges worde. If they get the victory they bringe ꝑ King all ꝑ spoyle. Like wise ꝑ other that medle not with warres & fyghtinge / but tyll ꝑ grounde: when they reape / they bringe trybute vnto the Kynge. And yf the Kynge alone do but cōmaunde to kyll / they kyll: yf he cōmaunde to forgeue / they forgeue: yf he commaunde to smyte / they smyte: yf he byd dryue awaye / they dryue awaye: yf he commaunde to buylde / they buylde: yf he commaūde to breake downe / they breake downe: yf he cōmaunde to plante / they plante. The cōmen people & the rulers are obediēt vnto hym. And the Kyng in ꝑ meane season sitteth hym downe / eateth / & drynketh / & taketh his rest: then kepe they watch rounde about ꝑ Kyng / & not one of thē darre get him out of ꝑ waye / to do his awne busynes / but must be obediēt vnto the Kyng at a worde. Judge ye now / O ye men / how shulde not he go farre aboue / vnto whō men are thus obediēt? And whē he had spokē this / he helde his tōge. The third whose name was Zorobabel / which had spoken of wemen & of trueth / begāne to saye after this maner: O ye mē / it is not ꝑ greate Kyng / it is not the multitude of men / nether is it wyne ꝑ excelleth: Who is it then ꝑ hath the lordshippe ouer them? Haue not wemen borne ꝑ Kyng / & all the people ꝑ rule those thinges? Haue not wemē borne thē / & brought thē vp / ꝑ plante the vynes / wherout ꝑ wyne cōmeth? They make garmentes for all men / they geue honour vnto all men / & wout wemen cā not men lyue. If they gather golde & siluer & all precious thinges / & se a fayre well fauoured womā / they leaue all to gether / & turne their eyes only vnto ꝑ womā / & gape vpon her / & haue more desyre vnto her / then vnto ꝑ syluer & golde / or any maner of precious thing. A mā leaueth his father ꝑ brought him vp / he leaueth his awne natural coūtre / & cleaueth vnto the womā: yee he ieopardeth his lyfe with the woman / & remembreth nether father / ner mother / ner coūtre. By thys then ye must nedes knowe / ꝑ wemē haue ꝑ domynyon ouer you. ¶ Doth it greue you? A mā taketh his swerde / & goeth his waye to steale / to kyll / to murther / to sayle vpon the see / & seyth a lyō / & goeth in the darcknes: & when he hath stollen / disceaued & robbed / he bringeth it vnto his loue. Agayne / a man loueth hys wyfe better then father & mother: yee many one there be / that rēne out of their wyttes / & become bondmen for their wyues sakes: many one also haue perysshed / & haue bene slayne / & haue sinned because of wemē.

And now beleue me / I knowe a Kynge which is greate in his power / and all landes stande in awe of hym / and no man darre laye hande vpō him: yet dyd I se / that Apame (the daughter of ꝑ greate Kynge Bartacus) the Kynges cōcubyne / sat besyde ꝑ Kynge vpon the ryght hande / & toke of his crowne frō his head / & set it vpon her awne head / & smote the Kynge with her left hande. Moreouer / ꝑ D Kynge loked vpō her with opē mouth: yf she laughed vpō him / he laughed also: but yf she toke any displeasure with hym / the Kynge was fayne to flatter her / & to geue her good wordes / tyll he had gottē her fauour agayne.

D ye men / are not wemen then stronger?

Greate

Greate is the earth/& hye is the heauen that do these thinges. Then the Kyng & ỳ Princes loked one vpon another. So he beganne to speake of ỳ trueth: O ye men are not we mē stronger? Greate is the earth/hye is the heauen/swyft is the course of the sunne/he cōpaseth the heauen rounde aboute/& fetcheth his course agayne to his awne place in one daye. Is he not excellent that doth thys? Yee greate is ỳ trueth/& strōger then all thinges. All the earth calleth vpō the trueth/ the heauen prayseth it/all workes shake and tremble at it/& with it is no vnrighteous thynge. Wyne is vnrightuous: ỳ King is vnrightuous: womē are vnrightuous: all ỳ childrē of men are vnrighteous/ yee all their workes are vnrighteous/& there is no trueth in thē/ in their vnrightuousnes also shal they be destroyed & perysh. As for the trueth / it endureth/& is all waye stronge: it lyueth & cōquereth for euermore worlde without ende.

The trueth accepteth no personnes / it putteth no differēce betwixte riche or poore/ betwyxte the myghtye or symple / but doth right vnto euery man/whether they be euell or good/& all men are louyngly dealt with all in the workes of it. In the iudgemēt of it there is no vnrighteous thinge/but strēgth/ Kyngdom & power & maiesty for euermore. Blessed be the God of trueth.

And with that he helde his tonge/ and all the people cried & sayde: Great is the trueth/ & aboue all. Then sayde the Kyng vnto him: Aske what thou wylt/more then is appoynted in the wrytinge/& I shall geue it the/for thou art founde wyser then thy companyōs: thou shalt syt next me/and be my kynsman. Then sayde he vnto the Kynge: Remembre thy promyse & vowe/which thou hast vowed & promised (in the daye when thou camest to the Kyngdome) to buylde vp Jerusalem/and to sende agayne all the vessels & Jewels/that were taken awaye out of Jerusalem: which Cyrus separated/when he offred in Babylō/ & wolde sende them agayne. And thy mynde was to buylde vp the temple/which the Edomytes brent/ when Jerusalē was destroyed F by the Chaldees. This only (O Kynge) is ỳ thinge that I requyre/ thys is the maiesty/ which I desyre & aske of the: that thou performe the vowe/which thou vō thyne awne mouth hast made vnto the Kynge of heauen.

Then Darius the Kynge stode vp/& kyssed him/& wrote a letter vnto all the debytes and shreues/to all the Lordes & nobles/that they shulde conueye hym forth/& all thē that wolde go vp with hym. He wrote a letter also vnto all the Shreues that were in Celosyria & Phenices/& vnto Lybanus/ that they shuld drawe cedre trees from Libanus vnto Jerusalem/to buylde ỳ citie withall. Moreouer he wrote vnto all the Jewes that were gone out of his realme into Jewry because of the fredome/that no officer/ no ruler/nor Shreue/ shuld come to their dores: & that al their lande which they had conquered/ shuld be fre & not tributary: And that the Edomitz shulde geue ouer the cytyes & villages of ỳ Jewes/which they had takē in: yee and that they shulde yearly geue .xx. talentes to the buyldinge of the temple/vntyll the tyme ỳ it were fynyshed: & to the dayly halowyng of ỳ brentoffringes (as it is commaunded) ten talentes yearly also: And that all they whych come frō Babylon to buylde the cytie/ shuld haue fre lybertye/ they and their chyldren/& all the Preastes.

G He wrote the greatnesse also/& cōmaunded that the holy garment shulde be geuen them/wherin they mynystred: & wrote that commaundementes shulde be geuen to the Leuites/vntill the daye/that the house were fynyshed & Jerusalem buylded vp: and commaunded that all they that watched the cite/ shulde haue their porcyons & wages.

He gaue ouer also all the vessels ỳ Cyrus had separated frō Babylon: & all that Cyrus had geuē in cōmaundemēt / ỳ same charged he also/ ỳ it shulde be done & sent vnto Jerusalem. Now when this ponge man was gone forth/he turned hys face towarde Jerusalē/ & praysed the Kynge of heauē/& sayde: O ỳ cōmeth the victory/ of the cōmeth wysdome & clearnesse/& I am thy seruaūt. Blessed art thou/which hast geuen me wysdome: ỳ will I prayse/ O Lord/thou God of oure fathers.

And so he toke the letters/and wente vnto Babylon: And when he came there/ he tolde this vnto all his brethrē that were at Babylon/& they praysed the God of their fathers/ that he had geuē them refreshyng & lyberte to go vp/& to buylde Jerusalem & ỳ temple (which is there called after the name of the Lorde) and they reioyced with instrumentes and gladnesse seuen dayes longe.

¶ They that returne to Jerusalē are nombred. They begynne to laye the foundacyō of the temple/but are lett by the meanes of enemyes: & so is the buyldynge dryuen of by the space of two yeares.

¶ The .v. Chapter.

A Fter thys were the principall men of all the villages chosen in the trybes & kynredes/ that they shuld go vp with their wyues & chyldrē/ with their seruauntes & maydens / with all their catell and substaunce. And Darius the Kynge sent with thē a thousande horsmē/ to conueye them safely vnto Jerusalē: & their brethrē were glad/ playēg vpō instrumētes/ & syngynge. And these are the names of the men/which wente vp out of ỳ vyllagies/ accoꝛdyng toỳ trybes. The sonnes of ỳ Pꝛestes that pꝛayed God in the temple: The sonnes of Asaph / of whome there were an. C. and xxviij. But the doꝛe kepers were: The chyldꝛen of Elmenus: the chyldꝛen of Ater: the chyldꝛen of Amon: the chyldꝛen of Acuba/ Topa: the chyldꝛen of Tobi: an hundꝛed and xxxix. in all.

The Pꝛestes that serued in the temple: The sonnes of Sei / the sonnes of Galpha/ the sonnes of Tobioch/ the sonnes of Caria/ the sonnes of Sub/ the sonnes of Heiu/ the sonnes of Labana/ the sonnes of Armacha/ the sonnes of Acub/ the sonnes of Catha/ the sonnes of Cetha / the sonnes of Aggab/ the sonnes of Obay/ the sonnes of Anani / the sonnes of Canna/ the sonnes of Geddu / the sonnes of An/ the sonnes of Radin / the sonnes of Delanon/ the sonnes of Nechoba/ the sonnes of Caleba/ the sonnes of Goza / the sonnes of Ozul/ the sonnes of Sinona/ the sonnes of Atra/ the sonnes of Hastem / the sonnes of Asiana/ the sonnes of Manei/ the sonnes of Nasisin/ the sonnes of Accuka/ the sonnes of Agista / the sonnes of Azui / the sonnes of Fauon / the sonnes of Phasalon/ the sonnes of Meeda/ the sonnes of Susa/ the sonnes of Cared/ the sonnes of Barcus/ the sonnes of Sarea / the sonnes of Coeli/ the sonnes of Nasit/ the sonnes of Agista/ the sonnes of Pedon: Salomon his sonnes/ the sonnes of Asophot/ the sonnes of Phazida/ the sonnes of Celi/ the sonnes of Dedon/ the sonnes of Gaddahel/ the sonnes of Zapheus/ the sonnes of Aggia / the sonnes of Sacharet/ the sonnes of Sabathem / the sonnes of Saroneth/ the sonnes of Masit/ the sonnes of Ania / the sonnes of Salus/ the sonnes of Addus/ the sonnes of Suba/ the sonnes of Enra/ the sonnes of Rabotis/ the sonnes of Phalphat/ the sonnes of Malmon. All these minystred in the Sanctuary/ and were seruaūtes of Salomon: euen. iiij. C. and. lxxxij.

Thele folowynge are they/ ỳ went vp frō D Thelmelat Thelarsa (whose Pꝛynces were Carmelā & Careth) & might not shewe foꝛth their cytyes & kynreddes, how they were of Israel: The sonnes of Dalarus/ ỳ sonnes of Tuben/ the sonnes of Nechodaicus. Of the Pꝛestes that executed the office of the Pꝛesthode/ & were not foūde: The sonnes of Obia/ the sonnes of Achitos / the sonnes of Addin/ which maried one of the daughters of Phargelen/gelen/& were named after him. The writing of the same kynred was sought in the regi-ster of their generacio/but it was not foude: & therfore were they forbydde to execute the office of the preshode. Unto the sayde Nehemias & Aththaras/ þ they shulde haue no por-cyon in the Sanctuary/tyll there rose vp an hye Prest/ þ were well instruct in the playne clearnes & trueth. Of all Israel (beside ser-uauntes & maydes) there were. xlij. M. iij. C & .xl. Now were there of seruauntes & may-dens. vij. M. iij. C. & .xxvj. Of syngyng men & syngyng women there were. ij. C. and. lxv. Fourehūdreth & .xxv. C amels. Seuē thou-sande/& .xxxvj. horses. Two hundreth thou-sand & .xlv. Mules. Fyue. M. & .xxv. asses.

E Their heades also & the rulers in the try-bes/when they came to Jerusalem/& wolde buylde & set vp the temple of God agayne in his place/they gaue (after their abilitye/ vn-to the temple/to the treasure & to the seruyce of the Sanctuary. xij. M. poundes of golde/ v. thousande of syluer/and an hundreth Pre-stes garmētes. And so dwelt the Prestes and the Leuytes/and the people that wente out to Jerusalem/& in the countre there about/ the syngers also and the porters/ euery one of Israel in his awne lande.

*i. Esdre. ij. a. So when the seuenth moneth came/and when the children of Israel were euery man at his busynes/they came all wone consen in to the courte/which was before the East dore. And there stode Jesua the sonne of Jo-sedec & his brethren the Prestes/& Zoroba-bel the sonne of Salathiel & hys brethren/ setting vp an aulter/to offre brent sacrifices vpō it/as it is writtē in the lawe of Moses.

There came people also of other coūtrees/ & the heathē out of all lands to set vp þ aul-ter in his place/& offred sacrifices and brent-offringes vnto the Lorde in the morynge. And so they helde the feast of tabernacles/as it is commaunded in the lawe. And dayely offred they as accordyng was/and made the sacrifyces appoynted/ the offrynges also of the Sabbathes & of the new Mones/& all holy feastes. And all they þ vowed offringes vnto the Lorde/beganne at the new Moone of the. vij. moneth to offre vnto God/ for the tēple of the Lorde was not yet buylded. And they gaue vnto the Malons & Carpenters/ money/meate/& drynke with chearfulnesse. F Unto them of Sydon also & Tyre they gaue carres/that they shuld carry Cedre trees frō Libanus to beastes and beames/ and that they shulde make shyppes in the hauen of Joppe/accordyng as it was appoynted and ordeyned by Cyrus Kynge of the perlians.

And in the seconde yeare they came in-to the temple of God at Jerusalem. In the second moneth begāne Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel/& Jesua the sonne of Josedec & their brethren the Prestes & Leuites/and all they that were come vnto Jerusalem out of the captyuyte of Babylon/and layed the foundacio of the temple/in the new Moone of the seconde moneth in the seconde yeare þ they were come into Jewry and Jerusalem. And they appoynted the Leuytes (that were aboue. xx. yeare olde) vnto the seruyce of the Lorde: so Jesua and his sonnes and his bre-thren all the Leuytes stode to gether/ and perfourmed the lawe and ordynaunce in the house of the Lorde.

And the Prestes stode/ and had their gar-mentes & trompettes/ and the Leuytes/ the sonnes of Asaph had Cymbals/ geuynge thankes and prayses vnto the Lorde/ accor-dyng as Dauid the Kynge of Israel had or-deyned. And the song that they dyd synge vn-to the Lord/was after this maner: *O synge *Psal. cxxv. a vnto the Lorde/for he is gracyous/ and hys goodnes vpon Israel endureth for euer. And all the people blew out with trompettes/ & songe with loude voyce/praysyng the Lorde to gether in the rearyng vp of þ house of the G Lorde. *There came also from amonge the *i. Esdr. iij. d. Prestes and Leuites the rulers and elders/ accordynge to the trybes and kynredes (soch as had sene the house afore) to the buylding of this temple with greate crye and greate mournynge/many also with trompettes & greate ioye: In so moch/that the trompettes myght not well be heard for the weppynge & mournynge. For the commen people blewe goodly vpon the trompettes.

*Then came the enemyes of the trybes of *i. Esd. iiij. a. Juda and Benjamin/ to knowe what that trompettynge and noyse of shawmes myght be. And they perceaued that it was they which were come agayne out of captyuyte/ and wolde buylde the temple vp a new vnto the Lorde God of Israel. So they wente to Zorobabel and Jesua/ and to the rulers of the vyllages/ and sayde vnto them: Shall we buylde with you also? For we lyke wyse haue hearde youre Lorde/ and we walke af-ter the same maner/ from the dayes of Al-bazareth the King of Assiria/which brought vs hyther. Then Zorobabel and Jesua and the Rulers of the vyllages of Israel sayde vnto thē: It is not mete/that ye shuld buylde the temple of oure God wyth vs: we oure selues alone wyll buylde vnto the Lord/like as Cyrus the Kynge of the Perlians hath commaunded vs.

But the Heathen in the lande layed them selues agaynst those that were in Jewry/ helde vp the buyldynge frō thē/ layed wayte vpō them preuely/ stopped soche as brought any thinge to them/forbad them to buylde/& hyndered those that made thē passage/ ỳ the buyldynge shulde not be finyshed: & this contynued so longe as Kynge Cyrus lyued: & so they put of the buyldynge for the space of.ij yeares/vntyll the raygne of Kynge Darius.

Aggeus and Zacharyy prophecye. They buylde the temple with out let or hynderaunce/by the commaũdement of Darius.

The.vj. Chapter.

A NOt wythstandynge in the second yeare of ỳ raygne of Darius/Aggeus & Zachary the sonne of Addo prophecyed vpō them in Jewry & Jerusalem/in the name of the God of Israel. Then Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel & Jesua ỳ sonne of Josedec stode vp/& begāne to buylde ỳ house of the Lord at Jerusalem/ when the Prophetes of the Lord helped thē. At the same tyme came Sysennes ỳ vnder Shreue in Syria & Phenices/ w the landLordes & hys companyōs/& sayde vnto thē: Who hath bydde & cōmaunded you to buylde the house/to make the rofe & all other thingz agayne: And who are the worcke men/ that buylde them: Neuertheless the elders of the Jewes had soche grace of the Lorde/ ỳ they wolde not be let(though they were prouoked therto)but buylded on still/vntyll the tyme ỳ Kynge Darius were certyfyed therof/ & an answere receaued from hym. The letter that these men sent vnto Kyng Darius/ was after this maner.

Sysennes the vnder Shreue in Syria & Phenyces/& the landlordes with their companyons/which are headrulers in Syria & Phenyces/sende their salutacyon vnto Darius the Kynge. We certyfye oure Lorde the Kynge / that we came into the lande of Jewry/& went to Jerusalē: where we foūde thē buyldynge the greate house of God & the tēple/with greate costely fre stone and with goodly tymbre for the walles: yee they make greate haste with ỳ worke/& helpe one another/and it goeth forth prosperously in their
B handes/& with greate dylygence & worshyp is it made. Then asked we ỳ elders/who had cōmaunded thē to make vp the house and the buyldyng/ and this we dyd to the intent that we myght certyfye the perfectly/& write vnto the/the names of those ỳ were the rulers of ỳ worcke. So they gaue vs this answere: we are the seruauntes of the Lorde/ whych made heauē and earth: & as for this house/it hath bene buylded & set vp afore tyme by the greate & myghtye Kyng of Israel. But whē oure fathers prouoked God vnto wrath / & synned agaynst the God of Israel / he gaue thē ouer into the power of Nabuchodonosor Kynge of Babylon the Kyng of the Caldees/ which brake downe the house/& bret it/and caried awaye the people preseners vnto Babylon. *Neuertheles/in the fyrst yeare that Kynge Cyrus raygned at Babylon / Cyrus the Kynge wrote & cōmaunded to buylde vp this house agayne: & all the ornamētes that Nabuchodonosor caried awaye frō Jerusalē vnto Babylō/& appropriated vnto his awne temple: these brought Cyrus forth agayne/ & delyuered thē to Zorobabel & to Salmanasar the vnder Shreue/cōmaunding them ỳ they shulde bringe those same ornamētes agayne to Jerusalem in to the temple/and to begynne frō the tyme forth/to buylde the tēple agayne in his awne place. Then Salmanasar layed the foundacyō of the Lordes house at Jerusalem / & euer sence haue they buylded/& yet is it not ended. And therfore/ O Kynge/yf thou thincke st it good/let it be sought in the Lybrarpes & rolles of Kynge Cyrus: yf it be founde then/that it is done w the councell & consent of Kynge Cyrus/and yfoure lorde the Kyng be so mynded/let him wryte vnto vs therof. * i. Esdre.v.c.

*Then cōmaunded Kyng Darius/to seke in the Lybraries: and so at Egbathanis in a lytle cytye in Medea there was founde soche a wrytynge: In the fyrst yeare of the raygne of Cyrus/the same Kyng Cyrus cōmaunded that the house of the Lorde at Jerusalē shuld be buylded agayne(and odoures to be made there cōtinually vnto ỳ Lord)whose heygth shalbe.x.cubytes/& ỳ bredeth .xl. cubytes/& iiij.square with thre hewē stones/with a loft of tymbre of the same countre / yee w a new loft/& the expenses therof to be geuen of the house of Kynge Cyrus. And the ornamentes of gold & syluer/ ỳ Nabuchodonosor toke out of the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem/shalbe set agayne in the tēple at Jerusalē/where they were afore. Sysennes also the vnder shreue in Syria & Phenyces/the Prynces & their cōpanyons/& the other that be head rulers in Syria and Phenyces/ shall not medle nor haue anythinge to do with that place. * i. Esdr. vi.a.& ij. Esdre.iiij.c.

D I Cyrus haue cōmaunded also/that they shall buylde the house of the Lorde whole vp/ & haue ordeyned them/to helpe those that be come out of captyuyte: tyll the house of the Lorde be finyshed: and out of the trybute and taxinge that is yearly rayled vp in Syria & Phenices/dylygētly to geue them a certayne summe to the offerynge of the Lorde: and the same to be delyuered vnto Zorobabel the officer: that he therwithall may ordeyne oxen/ rammes/lambes/& corne/salt/wyne & oyle/ and that contynually euery yeare: after the expences which the Prestes that be at Jerusalē/shew to be made dayly: this shalbe geuē vnto thē without delaye that they maye offer sacrisacrifyces daylye to the hyest God / for the kynge and for his seruauntes / and to praye for their lyues. Lett it be proclamed also on euery syde / that whosoeuer breaketh or despyseth this commaundement of the kynge / shalbe hãged vpõ a galow (made of his awne good) and all his goodes shalbe sealoned vnto ỹ kyng. The Lorde therfore (whose name is there called vpõ) rote out and destroye all the kynges and people / that vndertake by violence to hynder the same / or to deale vncurteously with the house of the Lord at Jerusalem. ¶ Darius the kyng haue ordeyned / that these thynges shalbe done wyth all dylygence.

¶ The temple is fynished and dedycate: and the feast of vnleuened bredde is holden.

¶ The.vij. Chapter.

A When Sylennes the vndershreue in Celosyria / and Phenices / & the other Landlordes with their companyons / obeyed the thynges that kynge Darius had ordened / were dylygent in the holy worckes / and were felow helpers wyth the olde rulers of the Jewes. And so ỹ worcke of the Sanctuary wente forth and prospered / when Aggeus and Zachary prophecyed. And they perfourmed all thynges thorow the commaundement of the Lorde God of Jsrael / & after the deuyce of Cyrus / Darius / and Artaxerles kynges of Persia.

B And thus was oure house fynyshed vnto the .xxiij. daye of the moneth Adder in the .vi. yeare of kynge Darius. And the chyldren of Jsrael the prestes and the Leuites / and the other that were come out of captiuyte / and soch as were ioyned vnto them / dyd accordynge as it is wrytten in the boke of Moses. And in the dedycacion of the temple they offred an hundred oxen / an hundred rammes. iiij. hundred lambes / and .xij. goates for the synnes of all the people of Jsrael / after the ¶ nombre of the trybes of Jsrael. The prestes also & the Leuites stode arayed in the prestly garmentes / after the trybes / ouer all the worckes of the Lorde God of Jsraell accordynge to the boke of Moses / and the porters by all the dores.

And the chyldrẽ of Jsrael (with those that were come out of captyuyte) helde the passeouer the .xiiij. daye of the fyrst moneth / whẽ the prestes and the Leuites were sanctified. They that came out of captyuite / were not all sanctified together: but ỹ Leuites were all sanctifyed together. And so all they that came out of captyuite / kylled ỹ easter lãbe / for their brethren / for the prestes & for them selues. And the chyldren of Jsrael that came out of captyuyte / and escaped from all the abhominacyons of the Heathen / sought the Lorde / & kepte the feast of vnleuened bread vij. dayes longe / eatyng & drinckyng & were mery before the Lorde: that the Lorde had turned the deuyce of the kynge of Assyria / & comforted their handes to the worckes of ỹ Lorde God of Jsrael.

¶ Eldras causeth the people to assemble and come together / and then readeth them the lawe. They kepe the feast of Tabernacles.

¶ The.viij. Chapter.

A And after him / when Artaxerses ỹ kynge of the Persians raigned / there wente vnto hym Eldras the sonne of Saraias / the sonne of Azarias / the sonne of Helchiah / the sonne of Sallum / the sonne of Sadoc / the sonne of Achitob / the sonne of Amarias / the sonne of Azarias / the sonne of Boccus / the sonne of Abisu / the sonne of Phineas / the sonne of Eleazar / the sonne of Aaron the fyrst prest. This Eldras wente vp from Babylon) for he had good vnderstandynge in the lawe of Moses / that was geuẽ of the Lorde God of Jsrael / to be taught & done in dede.) And the kynge fauoured him / & dyd him greate worshipe & honoure / after all his desyres. There went vp with him also certayne of the chyldrẽ of Jsrael / of the prestes / of the Leuites / of the syngers / porters and mynisters of the temple at Jerusalem.

In the .vij. yeare of the raygne of kynge Artaxerles / in the .v. monethe / that is in the vij. yeare of the raygne / they went from Babylon in the new moone of the .v. moneth / & came the hye waye to Jerusalem after hys commaundemẽt / lyke as the Lorde had prospered their iourney. For in these Eldras gat greate instruccyon / that he shuld leaue none of the thynges behynde / which are in ỹ lawe & commaundemẽtes of God. And he taught whole Jsrael all ryghtuousnes & iudgment.

Then came the Secretaries of kyng Artaxerles / and delyuered the wrytynges (that were come from Artaxerles the kyng) to Eldras the preste and reder of the lawe of the Lorde: And thys is the coppye of the letter. Kynge Artaxerles sendeth his gretynge vnto Eldras the prest and reder of the lawe of the Lorde: Of frendshipe & good wyll I haue ordeyned and charged / yf there be eny of the B Jewes / of the prestes and Leuites in my realme / which desyreth and is content to go wyth the vnto Jerusalẽ / that he maye doit. Therfore yf eny be minded to beare the company / let them come together / and goo wyth the (lyke as I am content & my .vij. frendes my councelers:) to se what they do at Jerusalem & in Jewry / & kepe the thinges accordyng as thou hast in ỹ lawe of ỹ Lorde: and to bringe to bryngе the gyftes vnto God the Lorde of Israel/ that I & my frendes haue promysed to Jerusalem/& all the syluer & golde that is in the countre of Babylon/vnto the Lord to Jerusalem/with the thinge that is geuen for the people in the Lordes tẽple at Jerusalẽ: Yee that ỹ same syluer & golde maye be gathered/and oxen/rammes/shepe and goates & other that be longe to these thynges:& that they maye offer sacrifyces vnto the Lorde/ vpon the auiter of their Lorde / whych is at Jerusalem.

And whatsoeuer thou & thy brethren will do wyth the syluer & golde / that do after thy mynde / and after the cõmaundement of the Lorde thy God:& lyke wyse with all the holy vessels/that are geuẽ the for the seruyce of ỹ house of the Lorde thy God:& other thynges whatsoeuer is necessary for the to the worke of the tẽple/that shalbe geuẽ the of ỹ kynges treasure:& loke what thou with thy brethrẽ wilt do with the golde and syluer/that do after the wyll of the Lorde. And I kynge Artaxerses haue commaunded the kepers of ỹ treasures in Syria and Phenices/ ỹ whatsoeuer Esdras the prest and reder of ỹ lawe of the Lorde doth wryte/it shalbe geuẽ him: tyll an.C.talentes of syluer / and of golde in lyke maner: Of corne also an.C.measures/ and tyll an hundreth vessels of wyne/& other plenteous thynges without nombre. Let all thynges be done after the lawe of ỹ hyest God/that the wrath of God aryse not in the reaulme of the king and of his sonnes. I cõmaunde you also/that ye requyere no taxe ner trybute of ỹ prestes/Leuytes/syngers/ and mynisters of the temple/ner of the writers:and ỹ no man haue auctorite to medle eny thynge agaynst them. As for the(O Esdras)let thou iudges & arbytrers in ỹ whole lande of Syria and Phenices/after the wysdome of God: & learne all soch as are ignoraunt in the Lawe of God thy Lorde / & lett all thẽ that offende agaynst the lawe / be punyshed:whether it be wyth death/ w payne/ to be cõdemned in money/or to be banished.

Then sayde Esdras ỹ wryter. * Blessed be the God of oure fathers / that hath geuen so good a mynde and wyll in to the herte of the kynge / to magnifye his house that is at Jerusalem/and hath made me to be accepted in the syght of the kyng/of his councell/ of his frendes & of hys nobles. And so I was stedfast in my mynde/accordynge as the Lorde my God helped me / and I chose oute men of Israel to go vp with me. * And these are the heades(after their kynred) & houses of their fathers)that wente vp with me from Babylon/out of the kyngdome of Artaxerses: Of ỹ sonnes of Phares/ Gersonius. Of ỹ sonnes of Siemarith/Amenus. Of the sonnes of Dauid/Accus/the sonne of Cecilia.

Of the sonnes of Phares/Zachary:& with hym there turned agayne an hundred and fyftie men. Of the sonnes of the captayne of Moabilon/Zaraei/and with him.ij.C. and l.men. Of ỹ sonnes of Zachnes/ Jechonias Zecholy/and with hym.ij.C.and.l.men. Of the sonnes of Salamaalias/Gotholie/and lxx.with him. Of ỹ sonnes of Zaphacia.Zarias Miheli/& with hym.lxx. Of ỹ sonnes of Job/Abdias Jeheli/and with hym.ij.C.& xij.men. Of the sonnes of Bania/Salimoth the sonne of Josaphia/and with hym an.C.& lx.men. Of the sonnes of Beer/Zachari Bebei/and with him.ij.C.and.viij.men. Of the sonnes of Elead/Johannes Ezechan/& with hym.C.& x.men. Of ỹ sonnes of Adonicam those that were the last / and these are their names: Eliphalam the sonne of Gebel and Semeias/ and with him.lxx.men. All these called I together by ỹ wather Thia/ where we pitched oure tentes thre dayes/and there I mustered them.

As for the sonnes of the prestes and Leuites/I founde none there. Then sent I vnto Eleazar/and Eccelom / and Malman / & Malobam/and Enaathan/& Samea / and Joribimathan/ Eunagan / Zachary / Mosollamum(these were the leders & men of experyence) and I sent them worde/that they shulde come vnto Loddeus/whych was by ỹ place of the treasury/& commaunded them that they shuld speake vnto Loddeus and to his brethren & to those that were in the treasury/to sende vs soch men/as might execute the prestes office in the house of the Lorde oure God. And wyth the myghtye hande of oure Lorde God/ they brought vnto vs men of good experience/from amõge the sonnes of Moolius/the sonne of Leui/the sonne of Israel/Sebebeiam & the sonnes & hys brethren Asbin and Anin/ of whom there were xviij. From amonge the chyldren of ỹ sonnes of Cananeus/ & their sonnes were.xx.men. And of them that serued in the temple/ whõ Dauid had ordeyned/& the pryncypall men that mynistred for the worcke vnto the Leuites in the temple.ij.C.and.xx.men/ whose names are all tokened vp in wrytynge.

Then commaunded I a fastynge vnto ỹ yonge men before the Lorde / that I myght desyre of him a prosperous iourney & a good waye for vs/yee for vs/for oure chyldrẽ and for ỹ catell/because of ỹ layenges awayte/ and I durst not requyre of the kynge men of horse & of fote/to conueye vs safely agaynst oure enemyes/for we had sayde vnto ỹ king/ that the power of the Lorde oure God shuld be with them/that seke him with their whole herte.

herte. And therfore we beſought God oure Lorde earneſtly becauſe of theſe thinges/ & he was mercyfull vnto vs/ and hearde oure prayer. And I ſeparated from amonge ỹ rulers of the people/ & from the Preſtes of the temple. xij. men/ & Sebeia & Aſania/ & ten men of their brethrẽ with them. And I weied them the golde & the ſyluer & all the Preſtly ornamentes of the houſe of oure God/ which ỹ King/ & his coũcell/ & his Princes/ & whole Iſrael had geuẽ. And when I had weyed it/ I gaue thẽ an. C. & .l. talẽtes in ſyluer/ & .C. talentes of ſyluer veſſell/ an. C. talẽtes of gold/ & of goldẽ veſſell ſeuẽ tymes twentye/ & veſſels of other metall (yee of good metall) xij. & glyſteringe as the golde/ & ſayde vnto thẽ: ye alſo are holy vnto the Lord/ & the veſſels are holy/ & the golde and the ſyluer is promyſed vnto the Lorde ỹ God of oure fathers. Be diligent now & kepe it/ vntyll the tyme that ye delyuer it to the rulers of the people/ to the Preſtes/ to the Leuites/ & to the principall men of the cities of Iſrael in Jeruſalem/ & in the chambre of the houſe of oure God.

So ỹ Preſtes & ỹ Leuites which receaued of me the golde/ the ſilver and the veſſell/ brought it to Jeruſalẽ into the temple of the Lorde. And from thẽce we brake vp the. xij. daye of the fyrſt moneth/ tyll we came to Jeruſalẽ. And when the thyrde daye was paſt/ the weyed golde & ſyluer was delyuered in ỹ houſe of the Lorde ỹ fourth daye/ vnto Marimoth the ſonne of Jor the Preſte/ and with him was Eleazar the ſonne of Phineas/ and with thẽ were Joſabdus the ſonne of Jeſnet/ Medias & ỹ ſonne of Banus/ & certayne of the Leuytes to the nombre & to the waygh: and the waygh of them was written vp the ſame tyme. As for thoſe that were come out of captyuyte/ they offred ſacrifyce vnto the Lorde the God of Iſrael: euẽ. xij. oxen for all Iſrael. lxxvj. rammes. lxxij. ſhepe. xij. goats for ſynne. xij. kyne for a thankoffrynge/ all to the ſacrifice of the Lorde. And ỹ Kynges cõmyſſyõ delyuered they vnto the ſtewardes and debytes of the Kynge/ and to the vnderſhreues in Celoſyria and Phenices.

Now when theſe thynges were done/ the rulers came vnto me/ and ſayd: The generacyon of Iſrael/ the Princes/ the Preſtes and Leuites/ the ſtraunge people & indwellers of the land/ haue not put awaye their vnclẽneſſe/ from the Cananites/ Hethites/ Pherezites/ frõ the Moabites/ Egyptyãs/ & Edomytes. For both they and their ſonnes haue mengled them ſelues with the daughters of them/ & the holy ſede is myxte with the outlandyſh Heathen/ & ſens the begynnynge of their raygne haue the rulers & heades bene partetakers of their wyckednes.

*As ſoone as I had heard theſe thynges/ I immediatly I rente my holy garmentes/ and pulled out the heare of my heade & my beerd/ & ſat me downe ſorouful & heuy. So all they that were moued thorow the worde of ỹ God of Iſrael/ came vnto me: & I ſat ſtyll full of heuyneſſe vntill the euenyng ſacrifice. Then ſtode I vp frõ faſting/ hauyng rente clothes and the holy garmẽt/ kneled downe vpõ my knees/ helde out my handes vnto the Lorde/ & ſayde: O Lorde/ I am confounded & aſhamed before thy face/ for oure ſynnes are become many vpon oure heades/ & oure wyckednes are exalted vnto ỹ heauẽ: for ſens ỹ tyme of oure fathers we are in greate ſinne vnto this daye. And for the ſynnes of vs and oure fathers/ we w oure brethren & w oure Preſtes haue bene delyuered vnto ỹ Kynges of the earth/ in to ỹ ſwerde/ & in to captiuite/ & became a ſpoyle with confuſion & ſhame vnto this daye. And now O Lorde God/ how greate is the mercy that we haue gottẽ of ỹ: in ỹ thou haſt left vs a rote & a name in the place of thy Sanctuary/ to diſcouer oure lyght in the houſe of the Lorde oure God/ & geuẽ vs meate at all tymes of our miniſtracion. And when we were in captyuyte/ we were not forſakẽ of the Lorde oure God: but he made the kynges of Perſia gracious and fauourable vnto vs/ ſo that they gaue vs bitayles & meate/ yee & leaue to buylde vp the tẽple of oure Lorde God agayne/ to repayre the waſted places of Sion/ and to dwell in Jewry and Jeruſalem. And now O Lorde/ what ſhall we ſaye/ hauyng all theſe thinges in poſſeſſyon? For we haue broken thy commaundementes/ whych thou gaueſt vnto vs by the handes of thy ſeruaũtes ỹ prophetes/ ſayinge: The lande that ye go vnto/ & that is geuen you for an heritage to haue in poſſeſſyon/ is defyled with the vnclennes & fylthynes of the Heathen/ & with their abhominacion haue they poluted it all together. Therfore ſhall ye not ioyne youre daughters vnto their ſonnes/ ner mary youre ſonnes vnto their daughters: Moreouer/ ye ſhall neuer ſeke to make peace w thẽ/ ỹ ye maye increaſe & eate ỹ beſt in the lande/ & ỹ ye maye deuyde the inheritaũce of the lande vnto youre chyldrẽ for euermore. As for the thinge that now happeneth vnto vs/ it commeth all for oure wicked worke & greate ſinnes/ yet haſt thou geuen vs ſoche a rote/ that we are come agayne into our awne lãd: & we are ſo wicked ỹ we haue broke thẽ thy ſtatutes & cõmaundemẽtes agayne/ & mengled oure ſelues w the vnclẽnes of ỹ outlãdiſh Heathẽ. 1.Esd.x.a *And when Esdras with this prayer had knowledged the synne/weping/& lyēge flatt vpon the grounde before the tēple/there gathered vnto hym from Jerusalem a greate multytude of men & wemen/of yonge men & maydēs/for there was a very great weping & mournynge in the congregacyon. So whē Jechonias the sonne of Jehell one of the children of Israel cried/he sayd vnto Esdras: we haue synned agaynst the Lorde/because we haue maried outlandysh wemen of the Heathen. Now art thou ouer all Israel. We will sweare an othe therfore vnto the Lorde/that we shall put awaye all oure wyues/ which we haue takē of the Heathē/w̄ their childrē: like as it is appoynted ye by oure fore elders. Stande vp then/open thou it/and declare it playnely vnto vs/according to the lawe of ye Lorde: for the matter belongeth vnto the/& we wyll helpe the/quicte thy selfe mānly. So Esdras arose/and toke an othe of the rulers of the Prestes/& of the Leuites/& of Israel/ to do after these thinges: and they sware.

¶After Esdras had reade the lawe/ the people put awaye their straūge wyues: and then returneth euery man merely vnto his awne dwellynge.

¶The.ix.Chapter.

1.Esd.x.a THen Esdras stode vp frō the courte of the tēple without/& went in to the chamber of Jonathas ye sonne of Nasabus/& remayned there/& ate no meate/nor dronke dryncke/for ye multytude of the wyckednes of the people. And there was made a proclamacyō in all Jewry & at Jerusalē/for all soch as were gathered at Jerusalē out of captyuyte/ ye whosoeuer came not to Jerusalē within two or .iij. dayes (according to the iudgemēt of ye olde lordes of councell) his goodes shulde be taken from him/& be excluded from the congregacyō of ye captyuyte. And in thre dayes were all they of the tribe of Juda & Benjamin gathered to gether at Jerusalem/the.xx.daye of the.ix moneth. And ye whole multitude sat trēbling in the courte of the tēple/for it was winter. So Esdras arose vp/& sayde vnto them: ye haue done vnrightuously/in that ye haue taken outlandysshe wyues to mariage/& so to increase ye synnes of Israel. And now knowledge the same/& geue prayse vnto the Lorde God of oure fathers/& perfourme his wyll/ departynge frō the Heathen of the lande/& B from the outlandysh wyues. Then cryed the whole multytude with loude voyce/& sayde: lyke as thou hast spoken/so wyll we do: but for so moch as the people are many/and the wynter here/we may not stande without the house: agayne/this worcke is not a thynge/ that can be fynyshed in a daye or two/for we be many ye haue synned in these thinges: Ordene therfore/ ye the rulers of the multitude & all they that dwell with vs/& as many as haue outlandysh wyues/the Prestes also & iudges of euery place may stande in ye tyme appoynted/tyll they lowse vp the wrath of the Lorde in his busynes.

Then Jonathas ye sonne of Ezeli/& Ozias and Thecam receaued the charge of thys matter/& Bozozamus/& Leius/& Sabatheus helped them therto. After this/all they stode vp ye were come out of captyuyte. And Esdras the Prest chose vnto him the princypall men frō amonge the fathers accordyng to their names/& in ye new mone of the tenth C moneth they satt together/to examen thys matter. And so the matter was a determyng (cōcerning the men ye had outlandisch wyues) vntyll ye new mone of the fyrst moneth. And of the Prestes ye had mixte them selues with outlandysh wyues/there were founde: Of ye sonnes of Jesu the sonne of Josedec and hys brethrē/Maazeas/Eleazar/Joribus & Joadeus/which offred them selues to put awaye their wyues/& to offre a rāme for their ignoraūce. And of ye sonnes of Semmeri/Malcleas/& Elies/& Jeelech Azarias. Of ye sonnes of Fosera/Limolias/Hismaen/Nathanea/ Jussio/Jeddus/& Tallas. And of the Leuites Josabdus/Semeis/& Colnis/Caletas/Facteas/Colnas/& Elionas. Of the syngers of the Sanctuary/Eliarib/Zackarus. Of the porters/Sallumus & Tolbanes. And of Israel/of the chyldrē of Foro/Oli/& Remias/ & Geddias/& Melchias/Michelus/Eleazarus/Jemmebias/and Bannas. And of the chyldren of Jolaman/Chanias/Zachari/ Jezrelus/Joddius/Erimoth & Elias. And of the sonnes of Jathoim/Eliadas/Liasamus/& Zochias/Larimoth/Sabdis & Tebedias. And of the sonnes of Zebes/Johannes/Amanias/Zabdias/& Emmeus. And of the sonnes of Bannus/Olammus/Maluchus/Jeddus/Jasub/Asabus & Jerimoth. And of ye sonnes of Addin/Naatus/& Moostias/& Caleus/& Raanas/Maasuas/Mathathias/Besel/Bannus and Manasses.

And of the sonnes of Naue/Mones/Ateas/ Melchias/Sameas/Simon/Benjamin/ Malchus & Marras. And of the sonnes of Asom/Carianeus/Mathathias/Bannus/ Eliphalach/Manasses/Semei. Of ye sonnes of Bannus/Jeremy/Moodias/Abramas/Johel/Baneas/Peliaas/Jona/Marimoth/Eliasib/Mathaneus/Eliasis/Ozias Dielus/Semedius/Zambris & Joseph. eneas. All these had taken outlandysh wemē to mariage/ & they put thē awaye with their childrē. The Prestes & Leuytes/ & all they ꝑ were of Israel/ dwelt at Jerusalē & thorow= out all the lande/ in the new moone of the .vij. moneth/ & the chyldrē of Israel were in their dwellinges. And the whole multitude came together vpō the flooze at ꝑ East syde of the holy porte of the tēple. And they spake vnto Eldras the hye Prest & reader/ that he wolde bringe the lawe of Moses/ which was geuē of the Lorde God of Israel. So Eldras the hye Prest brought the lawe vnto the whole multitude/ to mā & womā/ & to all Prestes/ ꝑ they might heare ꝑ lawe/ *in ꝑ new moone of ꝑ .vij. moneth. And he red in ꝑ flore ꝑ is before ꝑ holy porte of ꝑ tēple/ frō ꝑ morning early vnto ꝑ euenyng/ before men & wemē. And they applyed their mynde all vnto ꝑ lawe.

And Eldras the Prest & reader of the lawe stode vp vpō a scaffolde of wodd/ which was made therfore: & vpon his ryght hande there stode by him Mathathias/ Samus/ Ananias/ Azarias/ Uzias/ Ozechias/ & Balsam⁹: Upon his lefte hand stode Faldeus/ Misael/ Malachias/ Abulchas/ Sabus/ Nabadias & Zachary. Then toke Eldras ꝑ boke before the whole multitude/ for he was the prynci= pall/ & had in moost honour of them all. And when he had red out the lawe/ they stode all straight vpon their fete. So Eldras prayed the Lorde the moost hye God/ the Almyghty God of Hostes. And all the people answered: Amen: and helde vp their handes/ fell downe flat vpon the earth/ & prayed the Lord. And Jesus/ Beneas/ Sarebias/ Jaddimus/ Ac= cubus/ Sabbatheus/ Calithes/ Azarias/ Jozadus/ Ananias/ & Philias the Leuites lyft their hādes vpwarde/ & bowed their faces to ꝑ grounde/ & prayed ꝑ Lord: Those were they which taught ꝑ lawe of ꝑ Lord/ & red ꝑ lawe of the Lord in the congregacyō: & eue= ry man set those before ꝑ vnderstode ꝑ lawe. Then spake Atharates vnto Eldras the hye Prest & reder/ & to the Leuites ꝑ taught the multytude/ saying: This daye is holy vnto ꝑ Lorde: & all they that had heard the lawe/ wepte. So Eldras sayde: Departe youre waye then/ & eate the best/ & drinke the swe= test/ & sende gyftes vnto thē ꝑ haue nothing: for this daye is holy vnto the Lorde/ & be not ye sory. Then wente they their waye euery= chone/ ate & droncke/ & were mery/ & sent re= wardes vnto thē that had nothing/ that they also myght eate wt gladnesse: for they were exceedingly reioysed/ thorow the wordes that were red vnto them in the lawe: And so they were all gathered together at Jerusalem to holde the feast/ accordyng to the couenaūt of the Lorde God of Israel.

And the worde of the Lord came vnto me/ saying: go thy waye/ & shew my people their synfull dedes/ & their chyldrē their wycked= nesses/ which they haue done agaynst me/ ꝑ they may tell their chylders childrē the same: for the synnes of their fathers are increased in them. And why? they haue forgotten me/ & haue offred vnto straunge goddes. Am not I euē he/ that brought them out of the lande of Egypte/ frō the house of bondage? But they haue prouoked me vnto wrath/ and despised my coūcels. Pull thou out then the hearre of thy heade/ & cast all euel ouer them/ for they haue not bene obedient vnto my lawe.

done for you? When ye were hongrye in the wyldernes / dyd ye not crye vnto me: Why hast thou brought vs into thys wyldernes / to kyll vs? It had bene better for vs / to haue serued the Egyptiās, then to dye in this wildernesse. Then had I pytye vpō youre mournynges / and gaue you Manna to eate. Ye ate angels foode. When ye were thyrstye / dyd not I hewe ỹ hardstone / & caused water to flowe therout? For the heate I couered you with the leaues of ỹ trees. A good pleasaunt fat land gaue I you: I cast out the Cananites / the Pheresytes and Philystines before you. What shall I do more for you / sayeth the Lorde?

Thus sayth the Almyghtye Lorde: When ye were in the wyldernes / in the water of the Amorytes / beinge a thyrst / & blaspheminge my name / I gaue you not fyre for your blasphemyes / but cast a tree into the water / and made the ryuer swete. What shall I do vnto the / O Jacob? Thou Juda woldest not obeye me. I wyll turne me to another people / and vnto those wyll I geue my name / that they maye kepe my statutes. Seing ye haue forsaken me, I wyll forsake you also. When ye desyre me to be gracyous vnto you / I shall haue no mercy vpon you.* When ye call vpō me / I wyll not heare you. For ye haue defyled youre handes with bloude / and youre fete are swyft to cōmyt manslaughter. Ye haue not forsakē me (in a maner) but youre awne selues / sayth the Lorde.

Thus sayth the almyghtye Lorde: haue I not prayed you / as a father his sonnes / as a mother her daughters / & as a norsse her yōge babes / that ye wolde be my people / & I shuld be youre God: that ye wold be my chyldren / and I shulde be youre awne father?* I gathered you together / as an henne gathereth her chekens vnder her wynges. I shall cast you out fro my face: *When ye offre vnto me / I shall turne my face from you: for youre solempne feast dayes / youre new moones / and youre circumcysyōs haue I forsaken. I sent vnto you my seruauntes the Prophetes / whō ye haue taken and slayne / and torne their bodyes in peces / whose bloude I wyll requyre of youre handes / sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Almyghty Lorde: youre house must be desolate. I wyll cast you out as the wynde doth the strawe: youre chyldren shall not be frutefull / for they haue despyled my commaundement / and done the thinge that is euell before me. Youre houses wyll I geue vnto a people that shall come / & they that neuer herde me shal beleue in me: & they vnto whom I neuer shewed token / shall do the thinge that I cōmaunde thē. They haue sene no Prophetes / yet shall they call their synnes to remembraunce / and knowledge them. I reporte me vnto the grace / ỹ I wyll do for ỹ people which is to come / whose chyldren reioyce in gladnes: & though they haue not sene me wyth bodely eyes / yet in spyrete they beleue the thinge that I saye. And now brother / beholde what greate worshyppe / & se the people that cōmeth from the East / vnto whom I wyll geue the dukedom of Abraham / Isaac and Jacob / of Oseas / Amos / & Micheas / of Joel / Abdy / Jonas / Naum / & Abacuc / of Sophony / Aggeus / Zachary / & Malachi / which is called also an angell (or messenger) of the Lorde.

¶ The.ij. Chapter.

THus sayth the Lorde: I brought this people out of bōdage / I gaue them my cōmaundementes by my seruauntes the Prophetes / whom thou woldest not heare / but despised my cōsels. The mother that bare them / sayeth vnto them: Go youre waye ye chyldren / for I am a wyddowe and forsaken: I brought you vp with gladnesse / but with sorow and heuynes haue I lost you: for ye haue synned before the Lorde youre God / and done the thynge that is euell before him. But what shall I now do vnto you? I am a wyddow and forsaken: go youre waye / O my chyldren / and aske mercy of the Lorde. As for me / O father / I call vpō the for a wytnesse ouer the mother of these chyldren / which wolde not kepe my couenaunt: that thou bryngest them to confusyon / and their mother to a spoyle / that she beare no more. Let their names be scatred abroade amonge the Heathen / let them be put out of the earth / for they haue thought scorne of my couenaunt.

Wo be vnto the Assur / thou that hydest the vnryghtuous bythe. Thou wycked people / remembre what I dyd vnto Sodome & Gomorre / whose lande is turned to pitch and asshes. Euen so also wyll I do vnto all them / that heare me not / sayeth ỹ almyghty Lord. Thus sayeth the Lord vnto Eldras: Tell my people / that I wyll geue them the Kingdome of Jerusalem / which I wolde haue geuē vnto Israel. Their glory also wyll I take vnto me / & geue them the euerlastynge tabernacles / which I had prepared for those.

The tree of lyfe shalbe vnto them a swete smellynge oyntement: they shall nether laboure nor be weery. Go ye youre waye / and ye shall receaue it. Praye for youre selues a few dayes / ỹ they maye dwell therin. Now is the Kyngdome prepared for you / therfore watche. Take heauen and earth to witnesse / for for I haue broken the euell in peces/ & created the good/for I lyue sayth the Lorde.

Mother embrace thy chyldren/and bringe them vp wyth gladnesse: make their fete as fast as a pyler/for I haue chosen the/ sayeth the Lorde.

And those that be deed wyll I rayse vp agayne from their places/ and bringe them out of the graues / for I haue knowne my name in Israel. Feare not thou mother of ỹ chyldren/ for I haue chosen the / sayeth the Lorde. And for thy helpe I shal sende the my seruauntes Elay and Jeremy / after whose cõcell I haue sanctyfyed & prepared for the xij. trees with dyuerse frutes / and as many welles/ flowynge with mylck and hony / and seuen mountaynes/ wherupon there growe roses and lilies/ wherin I wyll fyll my chyldren with ioye. Execute iustyce for the wyddowe/ be iudge for the fatherlesse: geue to the poore: defende the comfortelesse: clothe the naked: heale the wounded and syck: laugh not a lame man to scorne: defende ỹ crepell/ and let the blynde come into the sight of my clearnes. Kepe the olde & younge within thy walles: whersoeuer thou fyndest the deed/ take̅ them/ and burye them/ and I shall geue the/ the fyrst place in my resurrecciõ. Holde styll (O my people) and take thy rest/ for thy quyetnes is come. Feede thy chyldrẽ O thou good norsse / stablysh their fete: As for the seruauntes whom I haue geuen the / there shall not one of them perysh/ for I wyll take them from thy nombre/ vexe not thy selfe.

For when the daye of trouble & heuynes commeth/ other shall wepe and be sorowful/ but thou shalt be mery and plenteous. The Heathen shalbe gelous/ but they shalbe able to do nothinge agaynst the/ sayth the Lorde. My handes shall couer the/ so that thy chyldren shall not se the fyre euerlastynge. Be ioyfull O thou mother with thy chyldrẽ/ for I wyll delyuer the/ sayth the Lorde. Remẽbre thy deed chyldren/ for I shall bringe thẽ out of the earth/ and shew mercy vnto them/ for I am mercyfull/ sayth ỹ Lord almighty.

Embrace thy chyldren / vntyll I come/ & shew mercy vnto them/ for my welles runne ouer/ and my grace shall not fayle.

I Eldras receaued a charge of the Lorde vpon the mount Oreb/ that I shulde go vnto Israel. But when I came vnto Israel they set me at naught/ and despysed the cõmaundement of the Lorde. And therfore I saye vnto you/ O ye Heathẽ that heare and vnderstande: Loke for youre shepherde / he shall geue you euerlastynge rest: for he is nye at hand/ that shall come in the ende of ỹ world. Be readye to the rewarde of the Kyngdome/ for the euerlastynge lyght shall shyne vpon you for euermore. Fle the shadowe of thys worlde/ receaue the ioyfulnes of youre glory. I testyfye my sauyoure openly: O receaue the gyft that is geuen you/ & be glad/ geuynge thanckes vnto hym/ that hath called you to the heauenly Kyngdome.

Aryse vp/ & stande fast: beholde the nombre of those that be sealed in the feast of the Lorde/ which are departed from the shadow of the worlde/ and haue receaued gloryous garmentes of the Lorde. Take thy nombre O Syon/ and shut vp thy purysyed/ which haue fulfylled the lawe of the Lorde. The nombre of thy chyldren whom thou longedest for/ is fulfilled: beseche the power of the Lorde/ that thy people which haue bene called from the begynnynge/ maye be halowed.

I Eldras sawe vpon the mount Sion a greate people / whom I coude not nombre/ and they all praysed the Lorde wyth songes of thankesgeuynge. And in the myddest of them there was a yonge man of an hye stature/ more excellent then all they / and vpon euery one of their heades he set a crowne/ & was euer higher and hygher/ whych I marueled at greatly. So I asked the angell/ and sayde: Syr/ what are these? He answered & sayde vnto me: These be they that haue put of the mortall clothinge and put on the immortall/ and haue testyfyed and knowledged the name of God. Now are they crowned/ & receaue the rewarde.

Then sayde I vnto the angell: what yong personne is it/ that crowneth them / and geueth them the palmes in their handes? So he answered & sayde vnto me: It is the sonne of God/ whom they haue knowledged in the worlde. Then beganne I greatly to cõmende them/ that stode so stedfy for the name of the Lorde. And so the angell sayde vnto me: Go thy waye/ and tell my people / what maner of thynges and how greate wonders of the Lorde thy God/ thou hast sene.

¶ The wonderous worckes which God dyd for the people are recyted. Eldras marueleth that God suffreth the Babylonyans to haue rule ouer his people/ which yet are synners also.

¶ The. iij. Chapter.

IN the thyrtye yeare of the fall of the cytye/ I was at Babylon/ and I laye troubled vpõ my bed / and my thoughtes came vp ouer my hert: for I sawe the desolacyon of Sion/ and the plenteous wealth of them that dwelt at Babylon: and my spyrete was sore moued / so ỹ I beganne to speake fearfull wordes to the most hyest/ and sayde: O Lorde Lorde/ thou spakest at the begynnynge/ when thou plãtedst the earth (and that thy selfe alone) and and gaueſt commaundement vnto the people/ and a body vnto Adam /whych was a creature of thy handes / and haſt brethed in hym the breth of lyfe: and ſo he lyued before the/ & thou leddeſt hym into Paradiſe/ which garden of pleaſure thy ryghthande had plãted/ or euer the earth was made. And vnto hym thou gaueſt commaundement to loue thy waye / which he tranſgreſſed/ and immedyatly thou appoyntedeſt death in hym/ and in hys generacyons. Of hym came nacions/ trybes/ people and kynredes out of nombre.

B And euery people walked after their awne wyll / and dyd nyce thynges before the: and as for thy commaundementes / they deſpyſed them.

But in proceſſe of tyme thou broughteſt the water floude/ vpon thoſe that dwelt in ỹ worlde/ and deſtroyedſt them. And lyke as the death was in Adam / ſo was the water floude alſo in theſe. Neuertheleſſe one of thẽ thou leſteſt: namely Noe with his houſhold/ of whome came all ryghteous men. And it happened that when they that dwelt vpon the earth / beganne to multyplye / and had gotten many childrẽ/ and were a greate people/ they beganne to be more vngodly then the fyrſt.

Now when they all lyued ſo wyckedly before the/ thou dydeſt choſe the a man from amonge them/ whoſe name was Abraham. Hym thou louedeſt/ and vnto hym only thou ſhewdeſt thy wyll/ and madeſt an euerlaſtynge couenaunt wyth hym / promyſinge hym / that thou woldeſt neuer forſake hys ſede. And vnto hym thou gaueſt Iſaac/ vnto Iſaac alſo thou gaueſt Jacob and Eſau. As for Jacob thou dydeſt choſe him/ and put backe Eſau. And ſo Jacob became a greate multytude.

And it happened that when thou leddeſt
C This ſede out of Egypte/ thou broughteſt thẽ vp to the mounte Syon / bowynge downe the heauens / lettynge faſt the earth / mouynge the grounde/ makynge the depthes to ſhake/ and troublynge the worlde: And thy glory wente thorow foure portes of fyre / & earth quakes/ and wyndes/ and colde: that thou myghteſt geue the lawe vnto the ſede of Jacob/ and dylygence vnto the generacyon of Iſrael.

And yet toke ſt thou not awaye from thẽ that wycked hert/ ỹ thy lawe myght bringe forth frute in them. For the fyrſt Adam bare a wycked hert/ tranſgreſſed / and was ouercome/ & ſo be all they that are borne of hym. Thus remayned weaknes with the lawe in the herte of ỹ people/ wyth ỹ wyckedneſſe of the rote: ſo that the good departed awaye/ and the euell abode ſtyll. So the tymes paſſed awaye / & the yeares were brought to an ende. Then dydeſt thou rayſe ỹ vp a ſeruaũt called Dauid/ whom thou commaundedſt to buylde a cite vnto thy name/ and to offre vp incenſe and ſacryfyce vnto the therin. Thys was done now many yeares. Then the inhabyters of the cyte forſoke the/ & in all thyngs dyd euen as Adam and all hys generacyons had done: for they alſo had a wycked herte.

And ſo thou gaueſt thy cyte ouer into the D handes of thyne enemyes. Are they of Babilon then better and more ryghteous then thy people/ that they ſhall therfore haue the dominyon of Syon: For when I came there/ & ſawe their vngodlynes/ and ſo greate wyckednes/ that it coulde not be nombred: yee when my ſoule ſawe ſo many euell doers (in ỹ .xxx. yeare) my herte fayled me/ for I ſawe/ how thou ſuffreſt them in ſoch vngodlynes/ & ſpareſt the wycked doers: but thyne awne people haſt thou roted out/ & preſerued thyne enemyes/ and thys haſt thou not ſhewed me.

I can not perceaue how thys happeneth. Do they of Babylon then better/ then they of Syon: Or is there any other people/ that knoweth the/ ſaue ynge the people of Iſrael: Or what generacion hath ſo beleued thy couenauntes/ as Jacob: And yet their rewarde appeareth not/ & their labour hath no frute. For I haue gone here and there thorow the Heathen/ & I ſe that they be rych & wealthy/ & thynke not vpon thy commaundemẽtes. Weye thou therfore oure wyckednes now in the balaunce / & theirs alſo that dwell in the worlde/ & ſo ſhall thy name be no where founde but in Iſrael. Or where is there a people vpon earth/ ỹ hath not ſynned before the: Or what people hath ſo kepte thy commaundementes: Thou ſhalt fynde / that Iſrael by name hath kepte thy preceptes/ but not the other people and Heathen.

C The Aungell reproueth Eldras/ becauſe he ſemed to enter into the profounde iudgementes of God.

C The.iiij. Chapter.

And the aungell that was ſent vnto A me (whoſe name was Uriel) gaue me an anſwere/ & ſayde: Thy hert hath taken to moch vpon it in thys worlde and thou thynckeſt to comprehende the waye of the Hyeſt. Then ſayde I: Yee my Lorde. And he anſwered me / and ſayde: I am ſent to ſhewe the thre wayes/ and to ſet forth thre ſymylytudes / before the: whereof yf thou canſt declare me one/ I wyll ſhewe the alſo the waye / that thou deſyreſt to ſe: and I ſhall ſhewe the from whence the wycked herte commeth. And I ſayde: Tell on my Lorde. Then ſayde he vnto me: Go thy waye / weye me the weyght of the fyre / or meaſure me the blaſt of the winde/ or call me

agayne the daye that is past. Then answered I and sayde: What man borne is able to do that? Why requyrest thou soch of me? And he sayde vnto me: If I shulde aske the/ how depe dwellynges are in the see? Or how greate water sprynges are vpō the firmamēt? Or how great water sprynges are in the begynnynge of the depe? Or which are the out goinges of Paradyse? Peraduēture thou woldest saye vnto me: I neuer wente downe yet in to the depe nor hell/nether dyd I euer clymme vp in to heauen. Neuertheless now haue I asked the but only of fyre and wynde and of the daye/ where thorow thou hast trauayled/ and from the which thou canst not be separated: and yet canst thou geue me no answere of them.

He sayde moreouer vnto me: Thyne awne thynges/ & soch as are growne vp with the/ canst thou not knowe: how shulde thy vessell then be able to comprehende the waye of the Hyest/ and now outwardly in the corrupte worlde/ to vnderstande the corrupcyō that is euydēt in my sight? Then sayde I vnto hym: It were better that we were not at all/ then that we shulde lyue in wyckednesse/ & to suf-
B fre/ and not to know wherfore. He answered me/ and sayde: I wente in a wod/ & the trees toke soch a deuyce and sayd: Come let vs go/ and fyght agaynst the see/ that it maye departe awaye before vs/ and that we maye make vs yet more woddes.

The floudes of the see also in lyke maner toke this deuyce/ and sayde: Come/ let vs go vp/ and fyght agaynst the trees of the wodd/ that we maye make oure lande the wyder. The thought and deuyce of the wodd was but vayne and nothynge worth/ for the fyre came and consumed the wodd: The thought of the floudes of the see came lyke wyse to naught also/ for the sande stode vp and stopped them.

If thou were iudge now betwyxte these two/ whom woldest thou iustyfye/ or whom woldest thou condemne? I answered & sayd: Verely it is a folysh thought that they both haue deuyled. For the grounde is geuen vnto the wodd/ and the see also hath his place to beare hys floudes. Then answered he me/ & sayde: Thou hast geuen a right iudgement/ why iudgest thou not thy selfe also? For lyke as the grounde is geuen vnto the wod/ and the see to his floudes: euen so they that dwell vpon earth/ may vnderstande nothynge/ but that which is vpon earth: and he that dwelleth aboue the heauēs/ may only vnderstāde the thynges/ that are aboue the heauēs. Then answered I/ and sayd: I beseche ye/ O Lord/ let me haue vnderstandynge: for it was not my mynde to be curyous of thy hye thynges/ but of soch as we daylye medle withall/ namely/ wherfore that Israel is blasphemed of the Heathē/ & for what cause ye people (whō thou euer hast loued) is geuē ouer/ to be punyshed of vngodly nacyōs: & why the lawe of oure fathers is brought to naught/ & ye written couenaūtes come to none effecte/ & we passe awaye out of the worlde as ye gresshoppers/ & oure life is a very feare/ & we are not worthy to optayne mercy. What wyll he do then vnto his name/ which is called vpō ouer vs? Of these thinges haue I asked questyō.

Then answered he me/ & sayde: The more thou searchest/ the more thou shalt maruell/ for the worlde hasteth fast to passe awaye/ & can not comprehende the thynges/ that are promised for the righteous in tyme to come/ for thys worlde is full of vnryghtuousnes and weaknes.

C But as concernynge the thynges wherof thou askest me/ I wyll tell the. The euell is sowne/ but the destruccyon therof is not yet come. Yf the euell now that is sowne/ be not turned vpsyde downe/ & yf the place where ye euell is sowne/ passe not awaye/ then can not the thinge come ye is sowne with good. For the corne of euell sede hath bene sowne in the hert of man from the begynnynge/ and how moch vngodlynes hath he brought vp vnto thys tyme? and how moch shall he yet bringe forth/ vntyll he come into the barne?

Ponder now by thy selfe/ when ye corne of euell sede is cutt downe/ how greate a barne shall it fyll? I answered and sayde: How and whē shal these thinges come to passe? Wherfore are oure yeares few & euell? And he answered me/ sayinge: Haste not thou to moch vpō the Hyest/ for thy hastynes to be aboue him is but vayne/ thou makest to moch a do. Dyd not the soules also of ye ryghtuous aske question of these thynges in their holynes/ sayinge: *How longe shall I hope of this fashyon? When cōmeth the frute of my barne/ and my rewarde? And vpon this Jeremiel ye Archangell gaue them answere/ and sayde: Euen when the nombre of the sedes is fylled in you: for he hath weyed the worlde in ye balaunce: in measure & nombre hath he measured the tyme/ and moueth it not/ vntyll the same measure be fulfylled. Then answered I and sayde: O Lorde Lorde/ now are we all full of synne/ and for oure sake peraduēture it is not/ that the barne of the ryghtuous shall not be fylled/ because of the synnes of them that dwell vpon the earth. *Apoca.vi.b.

So he answered me/ & sayd: Go thy waye D to a womā with chylde/ and aske of her/ whē she hath fulfylled her .ix. monethes/ yf her childebed maye kepe ye byrth any longer with in her. Then sayde I: No Lorde/ that can she not.

not. And he sayde vnto me: In hell the secrete places of soules are lyke the preuy chamber of a woman. For lyke as a woman that trauayleth/ maketh haste/ when the tyme & necessyte of the byrth is at hande: Euen so doth she haste to delyuer it that is cõmytted vnto her. Loke what thou desyrest to se/ it shalbe shewed the from the begynnynge. Then answered I/ & sayde: If I haue founde fauoure in thy syght/ and yf it be possible/ and yf I be mete therfore/ shewe me then/ whether there be more to come then is past/ or more past then is for to come. What is past/ I knowe: but what is for to come/ I knowe not.

And he sayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon the ryght syde/ & I shall expounde the symylytude vnto the. So I stode/ and beholde/ an whote burnyng ouẽ wente ouer before me: & it happened ỹ when the flãme was gone by/ the smoke had the vpper hande. After thys there went ouer before me a watery cloude/ & sent downe moch rayne w̃ a storme: & whẽ the stormy rayne was past the droppes remayned styll. Then sayde he vnto me: lyke as the rayne is more then the droppes/ and as the fyre exceadeth the smoke/ euẽ so the measure of the thynges that are past/ hath the vpperhande. Then wente the droppes & the smoke aboue: and I prayed and sayde: May I lyue (thynkest thou) vntyll that tyme? Or what shall happẽ in those dayes? He answered me/ and sayde: As for the tokens wherof thou askest me/ I maye tell the of them in a parte: but as touchyng *thy lyfe/ I may not shewe the/ for I am not sent therfore.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

NEuertheles/ as concernynge the tokens/ marke this: Beholde/ the dayes shall come/ that they which dwell vpon earth/ shalbe take̅ in a greate nombre/ and the waye of the trueth shalbe hyd/ and the lande shalbe baren from fayth: but iniquyte shall haue the vpperhãd/ lyke as thou hast sene now/ & as thou hast hearde longe agoo. And the lande that thou seist now to haue rule/ shalt thou shortly se waste. But yf God graunte the to lyue/ thou shalt se after the thyrd trõpet/ that the sunne shall sodenly shyne agayne in the nyght/ and the moone thre tymes in the daye/ and bloude shall droppe out of wodd/ & the stone shall geue his voyce/ & ỹ people shalbe vnquyete: & euen he shall rule/ whom they hope not ỹ dwell vpon earth/ & the foules shall flyt/ and the Sodomytysh see shall cast out hys fish/ and make a noyse in the nyght/ which many shall not knowe/ but they shall all heare the voyce therof.

There shalbe a confusyõ also in many places/ and the fyre shalbe oft sent agayne/ and the wylde beastes shall go their waye/ and menstruous wemen shall beare monsters/ & salt waters shalbe founde in the swete: one frende shall fight agaynst another: then shall all wyt and vnderstandynge be hyd and put alyde into their secrete places/ and shalbe sought of many/ and yet not be founde: then shall vnryghtuousnes and voluptuousnes haue the vpperhande vpon earth. One lande also shall aske another/ and saye: Is ryghteousnes gone thorow the? And it shall saye: No. At the same tyme shall men hope/ but nothynge optayne: they shall laboure/ but their wayes shall not prospere.

To shewe the soche tokens I haue leue/ and yf thou wilt praye agayne/ and wepe as now/ and fast seuen dayes/ thou shalt heare yet greater thinges. Then I awaked/ and a B fearfulnes wente thorow all my body/ and my mynde was feble and carefull/ so that I almost sowned withall. So the aungel that was come to talke with me/ helde me/ comforted me/ and set me vp vpon my fete.

And in the seconde nyght it happened/ ỹ Salathiel the Captayne of the people came vnto me/ sayinge: Where hast thou bene? & why is thy coũtenaunce so heuy? Knowest thou not/ that Israel is commytted vnto ỹ/ in the lande of their captyuyte? Up then/ & eate/ and forsake vs not/ as the shepherde that leaueth hys flocke in the hãdes of wycked wolues. Then sayde I vnto hym: Go thy waye fro me/ and come not nye me: and he hearde it/ and as I sayde/ so wẽte he his waye fro me. And so I fasted seuen dayes/ mournynge and wepinge/ lyke as Uziel the aungell commaunded me. And after seuen dayes it happened/ that the thoughtes of my herte were very greuous vnto me agayne/ and my soule receaued the spyrete of vnderstandynge/ and I beganne to talke with the moost hiest agayne/ and sayde: O Lorde Lorde/ of euery wodd of the earth & of all the trees therof/ thou hast chosen the one onely vyneyarde: & of all landes of the whole worlde thou hast chosen the one pyt: and of all floures of the grounde thou hast chosen the one lylye: and of all the depthes of the see thou hast fylled the one ryuer: and of all buylded cytyes thou hast halowed Syon vnto thy selfe: and of all the foules that are created/ thou hast named the one doue: & of all the catell that are made thou hast prouyded the one shepe: and amõge all the multytudes of folckes thou hast gotten the one people/ and vnto this people whõ thou louedest/ thou gauest a lawe/ that is proued of all.

And now/ O Lorde/ why hast thou geuẽ this one people ouer vnto many? & vpon the one one rote thou hast prepared other/ and why hast thou scatred thy one only people amõge many? which treade them downe/ yee which haue euer withstande thy promyses/ & neuer beleued thy couenauntes? And though thou weredst enemye vnto thy people/ yet shuldest thou punysh them with thyne awne handes.

Now when I had spokẽ these wordes/ ỹ angell ỹ came to me the nyght afore/ was sent vnto me/ & sayde vnto me: Heare me/ & herkẽ to the thinge ỹ I saye/ & I shall tell ỹ more. And I sayde: Speake on my Lorde. Then sayd he vnto me: Thou art sore vexed & troubled for Israels sake. Louest thou ỹ people better then him ỹ made thẽ? And I sayde: No Lorde/ but of very grefe & compassyon haue I spoken. For my reynes payne me euery houre/ because I wold haue experiẽce of the waye of the most hyest/ & to seke out part of his iudgemẽt. And he sayde vnto me: ỹ thou mayest not. And I sayde: wherfore Lorde? Where vnto was I borne then? Or why was not my mothers chyldebed then my graue? So had I not sene the mysery & trouble of Jacob/ & ỹ trauayle of my people of Israel.

And he sayd vnto me: Nombre me ỹ thinges that are not yet come: gather me together ỹ droppes/ ỹ are scatred abrode: make me the floures grene agayne/ ỹ are wythered: open me the thinge that is closed: and bringe me forth the wyndes/ that are shut by: Shewe me the ymage of a voyce/ & then shall I declare the ỹ thing/ ỹ thou labourest to knowe. And I sayde: O Lorde/ Lorde/ who maye knowe these thinges/ but he that hath not his dwellynge wyth men? As for me/ I am vnwise: how may I then speake of these thinges wherof thou askest me? Then sayde he vnto me: like as thou canst do none of these thinges that I haue spoken of/ euẽ so canst thou not fynde out my iudgement/ or in the ende the loue that I haue promysed vnto my people. And I sayde: Beholde O Lord/ yet art thou nye vnto them that haue no ende: and what shall they do ỹ haue bene before me/ or we that be now/ or they that shal come after vs? And he sayde vnto me: I will lycken my iudgement vnto a ryng. Lyke as there is no slacknesse of ỹ last/ euẽ so is there no swyftnesse of the fyrst. So I answered and sayde: couldest thou not make those (ỹ haue bene made/ & that be now/ & that are for to come) in one/ that thou myghtest shewe thy iudgement the sooner? Then answered he me/ and sayde: The creature maye not haste aboue ỹ maker/ nether maye the worlde holde thẽ at once/ that shalbe created.

And I sayd: How hast thou sayde then vnto thy seruaunte/ that thou lyuynge maker hast made the creature lyuyng at once/ & the creature bare it? euen so might it now also beare them that be present/ at once. And he sayde vnto me: Aske ỹ chyldebed of a womã/ & saye vnto her: If thou bryngest forth chyldren/ why doest thou it not to gether/ but one after another? Praye her therfore/ to bringe forth ten chyldren at once. And I sayde: she can not/ but must doit one after another.

Then sayde he vnto me: Euen so haue I geuẽ a chyldebed vnto the earth/ for those ỹ be sowen vpõ it by processe of tyme. For like as a ponge chylde may not bryng forth the thynges that belonge to the aged/ euen so haue I ordened the worlde which I made.

And I asked and sayde: Seyng thou hast now geuẽ me a waye/ I will speake before the: for oure mother of whom thou hast tolde me/ is yet ponge/ & now she draweth nye vnto age. He answered me/ & sayde: Aske a woman that beareth chyldrẽ/ & she shall tell ỹ. Saye vnto her: wherfore are not they (whõ thou hast now brought forth) lyke those that were before the/ but lesse of stature? And she shall answere the: They that be borne in the youth of strẽgth/ are of one fashyon: and they ỹ are borne in the tyme of age (when the chyldebed fayleth) are other wyse. Consyder now thy self/ how that ye are lesse of stature/ then those that were before you/ & so are they that come after you/ lesse then ye/ as ỹ creatures which now begynne to be olde/ & haue passed ouer the strength of youth. Then sayd I: Lorde I beseche the/ yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght/ shewe thy seruaunt/ by whom doest thou hyest thy creature?

¶ The .vj. Chapter.

And he sayd vnto me: In the beginnyng when the ground was made: before the worlde stode/ or euer the wyndes blew/ before it thondred & lyghtened/ or euer the foundacyons of Paradyse were layed/ before the fayre floures were sene/ or euer ỹ moueable powers were stablysshed/ before the innumerable multitude of angels were gathered together/ or euer the hyghnesses of the ayre were lyfted vp/ afore ỹ measures of the fyrmamẽt were named/ or euer the chymneys in Sion were hote/ and or the presente yeares were sought out/ & or euer the inuencions of thẽ that now synne/ were put aside/ before they were sealed that now gather fayth for a treasure: then dyd I consyder & ponder all these thinges/ & they all were made thorow me/ & thorow none other: by me also they be ended/ & by none other. Then answered I & sayde: which shall be the partynge asunder of the tymes? Or when shalbe the ende of the fyrst/ and the begynnynge of it that foloweth? And he sayde vnto me: From Abrahã vnto Isaac/ when Jacob and Esau were borne of hym/ Jacobs hande helde fyrst the hele of Esau: for Esau is the ende of this worlde/ and Jacob is the begynnynge of it that foloweth. The hande of mã betwixte the hele and the hand. Other question (Esdras) alike thou not.

I answered then/ and sayde: O Lorde Lord/ yf I haue foũde fauoure in thy sight/ I beseche the/ shewe thy seruaunt the ende of thy tokens/ wherof thou shewdest me part the last nyght. So he answered and sayde vnto me: Stande vp vpõ thy fete/ and heare the perfecte voyce and sounde. There shall come a greate mocyon/ but the place where thou standest shall not be moued. And therfore when thou hearest the wordes/ be not afrayed: for of the ende shall the worde and foundacyon of the earth be vnderstande. And why? the worde therof trembleth and quaketh/ for it knoweth/ that it must be chaunged at the ende. And it happened/ that when
B I had hearde it/ I stode vp vpon my fete/ and herkened: & beholde there was a voyce that spake/ & the sounde of it was lyke the sounde of many waters/ and it sayde. Beholde/ the dayes come/ that I wyll begynne to drawe nye/ and to vyset them that dwell vpõ earth/ and will begynne to make inquysiciõ of thẽ/ what they be that haue hurte equyte wt vnrightuousnes/ and when the lowe estate of Syon shalbe fulfylled: and when the world/ that shall vanysh awaye/ shalbe ouersealed/ then wyll I do these tokens.

The bokes shalbe opened before the firmament/ and they shall se all together/ & the chyldrẽ of a yere olde shall speake with their voyces: the wemen with chylde shall bringe forth vntymely chyldren of thre or foure monethes olde/ and they shall lyue/ & be rayled vp: & sodenly shall the sowne places appeare as the vnsowne/ ẏ full store houses shall sodenly be founde emptye/ and the trõpet shall geue a sounde/ which when euery man heareth/ they shalbe hastely afrayed. At ẏ tyme shall frendes fight one agaynst another lyke enemyes/ and the earth shall stande in feare with them.

The sprynges of the welles shall stande styll/ and in thre houres they shall not renne. Whosoeuer remayneth frõ all these thinges that I haue tolde the/ shall escape/ and se my saluacyon/ and the ende of youre worlde. And the men that are receaued/ shall se it/ they that haue not tasted death from their byrth: and the hert of the indwellers shalbe chaũged/ and turned into another meanyng: for euell shalbe put out/ and dysceate shalbe quẽched. As for fayth/ it shall florish/ corrupcyon shalbe ouercome: and the trueth/ which hath bene so longe without frute/ shalbe declared. And it happened when he talked with me/ that I loked demurely vpon him/ before whom I stode/ and these wordes sayde he vnto me: I am come to shewe the/ the tyme of ẏ nyght for to come.

Yf thou wylt prayе yet more/ & fast seuen dayes agayne/ I shall tell the more thinges/ & greater then before: for thy voyce is hearde before the Hyest: for why? the Myghtye hath sene the righteous dealynge/ he hath sene also thy chastyte/ whych thou hast had euer sence thy youth: and therfore hath he sent me to shewe ẏ all these thynges/ and to saye vnto the: Be of good comforte/ and feare not/ and haste not wyth the tymes that are past to thyncke vayne thynges/ and make not haste of the latter tymes. C

And it happened after thys/ that I wepte agayne/ and fasted seuen dayes in lyke maner/ ẏ I myght fulfyll the thre wekes/ which he tolde me. In the eyght nyght was my hert vexed within me agayne/ and I beganne to speake before the Hyest: for my spyrite was greatly set on fyre/ and my soule was in dystresse/ and I sayde: O Lorde/ thou spakest vnto thy creature from the begynnynge (euẽ the fyrst daye) and saydest: Let heauen and earth be made/ & thy worde was a perfecte worcke. And then was there the spyrite/ and the darcknesses were yet on euery syde/ & sylence: there was no mans voyce as yet from the. Then commaundest thou a fayre lyght to come forth out of thy treasures/ that thy worcke myght appeare and be sene.

Upon the seconde daye thou maydest the spyrite of the fyrmamẽt/ and commaundest it to parte asunder/ & to make a deuysyon betwixte the waters/ ẏ the one parte myght remayne aboue/ and the other beneth. Upon the thyrde daye thou broughtest to passe/ ẏ the waters were gathered in the seuẽth part of the earth: Sixe partes hast thou dryed vp/ and kepte them/ to thyntent that men myght sowe and occuppye husbandrye therin. As soone as thy worde went forth/ the worcke was made. For immedyatly there was great innumerable frute/ and many dyuerse pleasures and delyres of temptacyon/ floures of chaungeable coloure & smell/ and this was done the thyrde daye.

Upon the fourth daye thou cõmaundedst that the Sunne shulde geueth hys shyne/ & the moone her lyght: the starres dydest thou sett in order/ and gauest them a charge: to do seruyce euẽ vnto man/ ẏ was for to be made. Upon the fyft daye thou saydest vnto the seuenth parte (where the waters were gathered) ẏ they shuld bringe forth dyuerse beastes/ D

soules and fyshes. And so it came to passe, that the domme water and without soule, brought forth fyuynge beastes, at the commaundement of God, that all people myght prayse thy wōderous worckes. Then dydest thou preserue two soules, ꝑ one thou caledst Enoch and the other Leuiathan, and dydest separate the one frō the other: for the seuēth parte (namely, where the water was gathered together) myght not holde them bothe. Unto Enoch thou gauest one parte, whiche was dryed vp on the thyrde daye, ꝑ he shulde dwell in the same parte, wherin are a thousande hylles. But vnto Leuiathan thou gauest the seuenth parte, namely the moyst, & hast kepte hym to deuoure what thou wilt, & whan. Upon the sixte daye thou gauest cōmaundement vnto the earth, that before the it shulde bryng forth beastes, catell, & all ꝑ crepe, & besydes this) Adam also, whō thou madest Lorde of all thy creatures: Of hym come we all, and the people also, whom thou hast chosen specially vnto thy selfe. All thys haue I sayde now & spoken before the, that I myght shewe, how that the worlde is made for oure sakes. As for the other people which also come of Adam thou hast sayd that they are nothynge, but be lyke a spetle, & hast lyckened the abundaūce of them vnto a droppe (that falleth) from the rofe of the house.

And now, O Lorde, the Heathen whiche haue euer bene reputed as nothynge, haue begonne to be lordes ouer vs, and to deuoure vs: but we thy people (whom thou hast called the fyrst borne, thy onely begotten, & thy feruent louer) are geuē into their handes and power. Yf the worlde now be made for oure sakes, why haue we not the inheritaunce in possessyon with the worlde? How longe shal this endure?

¶ The Angell sheweth Esdras many thynges to come.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

And it happened after ꝑ I had spokē out these wordes, there was sent vnto me an angell, which had bene by me also the nyghtes a fore, & he sayde vnto me: Up Esdras, & heare ꝑ wordes that I am come to tell ꝑ. And I sayd: speake on Lorde my God. Then sayde he vnto me: The see is set in a wyde place, that it myght be depe & greate: but the entraūce is narow & smal lyke a ryuer. For who wolde go into the see, to loke vpon it, and to rule it? If he wente not thorow the narow, how myght he come into the brode?

Item another: A cyte is buylded and set vpon a brode felde, and is full of all goodes: the entraunce is narow and sodane, lyke as yf there were a fyre at the ryght hande, and a depe water at the left, and as it were onely one strate path betwixte them both, so small that there coulde but one man go there.

Yf thys cyte now were geuen to an heyre, & he neuer wēre thorow the parelous waye, how wold he receaue his enheritaunce? And I sayde: It is so Lorde. Then sayde he: Euē so is Israel also a portyō. And why? for their sakes haue I made the worlde: & when Adā trangressed my statutes, then was ꝑ thinge iudged that was done. Thē were ꝑ entraūces of the worlde made narow, full of sorow and trauayle: They are but few & euyll, full of parels and laboure. For the entraunces of the fore worlde were wyde and sure, and brought immortall frute.

If they now whiche are entred into thys worlde, maye not comprehende the strayte and vayne thinges, moch lesse maye they cōprehende and vnderstande the secrete things: Why disquietest thou thy selfe then, seynge thou art but a corruptible man? And what woldest thou knowe, where as thou art but mortall? And why hast thou not receaued in to thyne herte the thynge that is for to come, but that is present?

Then sande I: O Lorde Lorde, thou hast ordened in thy lawe, ꝑ the ryghteous shulde inherer these thynges, but that the vnfaythfull and vngodly shulde perysshe. Neuertheless the rightuous shal suffre strayte things, and hope for wyde: for they that haue lyued vngodly and suffered strayte thynges, shall not se the wyde.

And he sayde vnto me: There is no iudge aboue God, and none that hath vnderstandynge aboue the Hyest. For there be many that perysshe, because they despyse the lawe of God that is sett before them. For god hath geuen strayte commaundement to soche as come, that they knowe what they do, & how they shulde lyue: and yf they kepte this they shulde not be punyshed.

Neuer theless they were not obedyēt vnto hym, but spake agaynst hym: ymagyned vayne thinges, & purposed to lynne, & sayde moreouer that there was no God, and that God regarded it not. His wayes haue they not knowne, hys lawe haue they despysed, & denyed his promyses: in his statutes & ordynaunces haue they not bene faythfull & stedfast, and haue not perfourmed his worckes.

And therfore Esdras vnto the full, plenty and to the emptye, emptynesse. Beholde, the tyme shall come, that these tokens which I haue tolde the, shall come to passe, and the bryde shall appeare: & ꝑ earth that now passeth awaye, shalbe shewed: and whosoeuer is delyuered from the forsayde euyls, shall se my wōders For my sonne Jesus shalbe opēly declared, with those that be with hym: & they that remayne, shalbe mery in youre hūdred yeares.

After these same yeares shall my sonne Christ dye, and all men that haue lyfe, & the worlde shalbe turned in to the oldesylēce. vii dayes, lyke as in the fore iudgmētes, so that no mā shall remayne. And after seuē dayes, the worlde that yet awaketh not, shalbe rayſed vp, and shall dye corrupte. And the earth shal restore those that haue slepte inher, and so shall the dust those that dwell in silence, & the secrete places shall delyuer those that be cōmitted vnto them. And the most hyest shal be openly declared vpō the seate of iudgmēt, & all mysery shal vanish awaye, & longesuffrynge shalbe gathered together. But the iudgment shall cōtynue, the treuth shall remayne, & fayth shall waxe strōge, & worcke shall folowe, & the rewarde shall be shewed, the ryghtuousnesses shall watch, and the vnryghtuousnesses shall beare no rule.

Then sayde I: Abraham prayed fyrst for the Sodomites, & Moses for the fathers & synned in the wyldernes, & he & came after him for Israell, in the tyme of Achas & Samuel: & Dauid for the destruction, and Salomon for them that came in to the Sāctuary, and Helias for those that receaued rayne, and for the deed, that he myght lyue: & Ezechias for the people in the tyme of Sennacherib: & dyuerse other in lyke maner, which haue prayed for many.

Euē so now seynge & corrupte is growne vp, and wyckednes increased, and the ryghtuous haue prayed for the vngodly, wherfor shall it not be so now also?

He answered me, and sayde: This present worlde is not & ende, there remayneth moch honoure in it, therfore haue they prayed for the weake. But the daye of dome shalbe the ende of this tyme, and the begynnyng of the immortalite for to come, wherin all corruption vanished, all voluptuousnes is lowsed all mysbeleue taken awaye, ryghtuousnes growne, and the verytesprynge vp. Then shall noman be able to saue hym that is destroyed, ner to oppresse him & hath gottē the victory. I answered thē, & sayde: This is my fyrst & last sayinge: & it had bene better, not to haue geuen the earth vnto Adam: or els when it was geuē him, to kepe him that he shulde not synne. For what profyt is it for mē now in this present time to lyue in heynes, & after death to loke for punyshment? O thou Adā, what hast thou done? For though it was thou that synned, thou art not fallen alone, but we all that come of the. For what profyt is it vnto vs, yf there be prompsed vs an immortal tyme, where as we medle with vadly worckes? & & there is prompsed vs an euerlastynge hope, where as we oure selues are euell & vayne? & & there are layed vp for vs dwelliges of health & fredome, where as we haue lyued euell? and that the worshippe of the Hyest is kepte to defende them, which haue led a pacyent lyfe, where as we haue walcked in & most wicked wayes of all? And that there shalbe shewed a paradyse, whose frute endureth for euer, wherin is fredome and medicyne, where as we shall not go in? for we haue walcked in vnpleasaūt places? And that the faces of them whiche haue absteyned, shall shyne aboue the starres, where as oure faces shalbe black and darcke? For whyle we lyued and dyd vnryghtuously, we consydered not, that we shuld suffre therfore afterdeath?

Then answered he me, and sayde: This is the consyderacyon & thought of the battayll, which man hath vpon earth: & yf he be ouercome, he shall suffre as thou hast sayde. But yf he gett the victory, he shall receaue the thynge that I saye For this is the lyfe, wher of Moses spake vnto the people, whyle he lyued, saying: Chose the lyfe, & thou mayest lyue. Neuertheles they beleued hym not, nether the Prophetes after hym. Noner me which haue spoken vnto them that heynes shulde not reach vnto them to their destruccyon lyke as ioye is for to come ouer those, that haue suffered them selues to be enfourmed in saluacion.

I answered then & sayde: I knowe Lorde, that the Hyest is mercyfull, in that he hath mercy vpon them, which are not yet in the worlde, and vpon those also that walcke in his lawe: and that he is pacīēt and longe suffrynge towarde those that haue synned in their worckes: and that he is lyberall to geue where as it requyreth: and that he is of great mercy, for he multiplieth his louynge kyndnesses towarde those that are present, & that are past, and to them which are for to come. For yf he multiplye not his mercies, & world shall not be made lyuynge, wyth those that dwell therin: He geueth also, for yf he gaue not of his goodnesse, that they whiche haue done euell, myght be eased, the ten thousand parte of men shulde not be made lyuynge. And yf the iudge forgaue not those that be healed wit his worde, and yf he wolde destroye the multytude that stryueth, there shulde be very few left in an innumerable multytude.

Esdras prayeth God rather to loke vpon his awne mercye then on the synnes of the people.

The.viii.Chapter.

AND he answered me saynge: The most Hyest made thys worlde for many, but the worlde to come for few. I wyll tell the a symplitude, Eldras: As when thou askest ỹ earth, it shall saye vnto the, that it geueth moch moulde, where of arthen vessels are made, but lytle of it that golde cõmeth of. Euen so is with the worcke of thys worlde. There be many created, but few shalbe preserued. Then answered I & sayde: Then swalowe vp ỹ witt (thou soule) and deuoure the vnderstanding, for thou art agreed to herkẽ & to geue eare, and wyllynge to prophecye: for thou hast no longer space geuen the, but onely to lyue. O Lorde, wylt thou not geue thy seruaũt leue, that we maye praye before the, and that thou mayste geue lede vnto oure herte, & buylde oure vnderstandynge, that there maye come frute of it: and that euery one which is corrupte, and beareth the state & place of a mã, maye lyue?

For thou art alone, & we all are one worck manshype of thy handes, lyke as thou hast sayde, and lyke as the body is fashioned now in the chyldesbed, and thou geuest the membres, and thy creature is preserued in fyre & water: &. ix. monethes doth thy worcke suffre thy creacure, whiche is fashioned in her: but the thynge that preserueth and it that is preserued, shall both bekepte together: & when tyme is, the chyldesbed delyuereth the thing, that is kepte and growne in her.

For thou hast commaunded the brestes to geue mylcke vnto the frute, that the thynge which is created & fashioned, maye be norished for a tyme: and then thou dyspolest & ordrest it with thy mercy, bringest it vp with thy ryghtuousnes, nurturest it in thy law, & rebourmest it with thy vnderstandyng, mortyfiest it as thy creature, and makest it lyuynge as thy worcke. Seynge then ỹ thou destroyest him, which with so great labours is created and fashyoned thorowe thy commaundement, thou coudest lyghtly ordene, also, that the thynge whych is made, myght be preserued.

And this I speake now of all men in generall, as thou knowest: but of thy people, for whose sake I am sory: and of thy inheritaunce: for whose cause I mourne: and of Israell, for whom I am wofull: and for Iacob, for whose sake I am greued: therfore begynne I to praye before the, for my selfe and for them, for I se the fall of vs, euen of vs, that dwell vpon earth. But I haue herde the swyftnes of ỹ iudge, which is to come: therfore heare my voyce, and vnderstande my wordes, and I shall speake before the.

This is the begynnyng of the wordes of Eldras, before he was receaued: O lorde, thou ỹ dwellest in euerlastyngnesse, whose eyes are lyft vp in the ayre, whose stole is exceadyng hye, whose glory & maiesty maye not be comprehended, before whõ the Hostes of heauen stande wyth tremblynge, whose keppynge is turned in wynde and fyre, whose worde is true, whose talckynge is stedfast, whose commaundement is stronge, whose ordinaunce is fearfull, whose loke driech vp the depthes, whose wrath maketh the mountaynes to melt away, and whose trueth beareth wytnes: O heare the prayer of thy seruaunt, and marck with thyne eares the peticion of thy creature.

For whyle I lyne, I wyll speake, and so longe as I haue vnderstandynge, I will answere. O loke not vpon the synnes of thy people, which serue in the trueth. Haue no respecte vnto the wicked studies of the Heathen, but to the desyre of those that kepe thy testimonyes with sorow. Thincke not vpõ those that haue walked raynedly before the, but vpon them, which wt will haue knowne thy feare.

Lett it not be thy wyll to destroye them, which haue had beastly maners, but to loke vpõ them that haue clearly taught thy lawe (Take thou no indignacyon at them, whiche are worse then beastes: but loue them, that alwaye put their trust in thy ryghtuousnes and glory: for we and oure fachers haue all the same sycknes and dysease, but because of oure synnes thou shalt be called mercyfull.

For yf ỹ hast mercy vpon vs, thou shalt be called mercyfull, where as we haue no worckes of ryghtuousnes: for ỹ ryghtuous whych haue layed vp many good workes together, shall out of their dedes receaue reward. For what is man, that thou shuldest take displeasure at him? Or what is the corruptyble mortall generacion, that thou shuldest be so roughe toward him?

For of a trueth there is no man amonge them that be borne, but he hath dealt wyckedly: and amonge the faythfull there is none, which hath not done amysse. For in thys (O Lorde) thy ryghtuousnes and thy goodnes shalbe prayed and declared, yf thou be mercyfull vnto them, whych are not rych in good workes.

Then answered he me and sayde: Some thinges hast thou spoken a ryght, and accordyng vnto thy wordes it shall be. For I wyl not verely cõsydre the worckes of thẽ, which haue synned before death, before the iudgement, before destruction, but I wyll reioyse ouer the worcke & thoughts of the ryghtuous. I wyll remẽbre also the pylgremage, ỹ holy makynge and the rewarde. Lyke as I haue spoken now, so shall it come to passe. For as the housbande man soweth moch sede vpon the grounde, and planteth many trees and yet alwaye the thynge that is sowne or plãted is not all kepte sake, nether doth it all take rote: Euen so is it of them that are sowne in the worlde, they shal not all be preserued,

I answered then & sayde: If I haue foũde grace then let me speake. Lyke as the housbande mans sede perisheth, yf it receaue not rayne in due season, or yf there come to moch rayne vpon it: Euen so perysheth man also, which is created with thy hãdes, and is lyke vnto thyne awne ymage and to thy selfe, for whose sake thou hast made all thynges, and lyckened hym vnto ỹ housbande mans sede. Be not wroth at vs, O Lorde, but spare thy people, and haue mercy vpon thyne awne inheritaũce: O be mercyfull vnto thy creature.

D Then answered he me & sayde: Thynges present are for the present, & thyng⁊ to come for soch as be to come. For thou wantest yet moch, seynge thou mayest loue my creature aboue me: I haue oft times drawne nye vnto the, but neuer to the vnryghtuous. In this also thou art meruelous before the Hyest, in ỹ thou hast humbled thy selfe, as it becõmeth the, and hast not regarded thyne awne selfe, ỹ thou art had in soch honoure amõge ỹ ryghtuous. Therfore shall great wrechidnes and mysery come vpon them, that in the latter tyme shall dwell in ỹ worlde, for they haue walcked in great pryde.

But vnderstand thou for thy selfe, & seke out glory for soch as be like the: for vnto you is paradyse opened, the tre of lyfe is plãted, the tyme to come is prepared, plenteousnes made ready: a cytie is buylded for you, and a rest is prepared, yee perfecte goodnes and wysdome. The rote of euyll is marcked frõ you, the weaknes and moth is hyd frõ you, & in to hell flyeth corrupciõ in forgetfulnes. Sorowes are vanyshed awaye, & in the ende is shewed the treasure of immortalyte. And therfore aske thou nomore questiõs, cõcernynge the multitude of them that perysshe. For they haue taken lybertie, despysed the Hyest, thought scorne of his lawe, & forsakẽ his wayes.

Moreouer, they haue troden downe hys ryghtuous, & sayde in their herte, that there is no God, yee and that wyttyngly, for they dye. For lyke as the thynge that I haue spoken of, is made ready for you: Euẽ so is thirst & payne prepared for them. For it was not his wyl that mã shulde come to naught: but they which be created haue defyled ỹ name of him that made them, and are vnthãckfull vnto him, which prepared lyfe for them. And therfore is my iudgmẽt now at hand. These thyng⁊ haue I not shewed vnto all mẽ, but vnto few: namely vnto the, and to soch as be lyke the.

Then answered I and sayde: Beholde O Lorde, now hast thou shewed me the multytude of the tokens, which thou wilt beginne to do at the last but at what tyme and when thou hast not shewed me.

¶ Esdras hath visyons shewed vnto hym.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

HE answered me then & sayde: Measure thou the tyme dyligently in it selfe, whẽ thou spyest that one parte of the tokens come to passe, which I haue tolde the before: so shalt thou vnderstande, that it is the very same tyme, wherin the Hyest wyll begynne to vyset the worlde, which he made. And when there shalbe sene earthquake and vproare of the people in the worlde, then shalt thou well vnderstande, ỹ the most hyest spake of those thynges, from the dayes that were before the, euen frõ the begynnynge.

For lyke as all that is made in ỹ world, hath a begynnyng and ende, and the ende is manyfest: Euen so the tymes also of ỹ Heyst haue playne beginnynges in wounders and sygnes, and the ende in worckyng and in tokens. And euery one that shalbe saued, and shall be able to escape by hys worckes and by fayth, wherin ye haue beleued, shall be preserued from the sayde parels, and shall se my saupour in my lande and within my borders, for I haue halowed me frõ the world. Then shall they be in carefulnesse, whiche now haue abused my wayes: and they ỹ haue cast them oute despytefully, shall dwell in paynes.

For soch as in their lyfe haue receaued benefytes, and haue not knowne me, and they that haue abhorred my lawe, whyle they had yet fredome, and whẽ they had yet open rowme of amendemẽt and conuersyon, and vnderstode not, but despysed it: ỹ same must knowe it after death in payne. And therfore be thou nomore carefull, how the vngodly shalbe punished, & how the ryghtuous shalbe saued, and whose the worlde is, & for whõ the world, and whẽ it is. Then answered I and sayde: I haue talcked before and now I speake, and wyll speake also herafter, that there be many moo of them whiche perysh, then shalbe saued, lyke as ỹ floude is greater then the droppes.

And he answered me, sayinge: lyke as the felde is, so is also the fede: as the floures be, so are the colours also: soch as the worckmã is, soch is also ỹ worcke: and as ỹ housband man is man is him selfe / so is his houshode and dye also / for it was the tyme of the worlde. And when I prepared for thē ꝑ are now / or euer the worlde was made / where in they shulde dwell / then was there no mā that wythstode me. Now when euery one was / and the maker also in the worlde which is now prepared / & the moneth that ceaseth not / and the lawe which is vnsearcheable / their maners were corrupte. So I consydred the worlde / and beholde / there was parell / because of ꝑ thoughtes ꝑ were come in to it. And I saw / and spared them greatly / and haue kepte me a wynebery of the grapes / and a plante frō amonge many generacyons. Let the multitude perysh then / whych are growne vp in vayne / and lett my grape and wynebery be kepte: euē my plante: for with greate laboure haue I made it vp.

Neuertheles yf thou wilt take vpō the yet seuē dayes mo (but thou shalt not fast in thē) goo thy waye then in to the felde of floures / where no house is buylded / and eate onely of the floures of ꝑ feld / taste not flesh / drincke no wyne / but eate floures onely. Praye ¶ vnto the Hyest contynually / so wyll I come / and talke with the.

So I went my waye and came in to the felde which is called Ardath) like as he commaunded me) & there I sat amōge ꝑ floures / and ate of the herbes of the felde / & ꝑ meate of the same satisfyed me. After seuen dayes I sat vpon the grasse / & my herte was vexed within me lyke as afore: and I opened my mouth / & begāne to talke before the Hiest / and sayde: O Lord / thou ꝑ shewest thy selfe vnto vs / thou hast declared and opened thy selfe vnto oure fathers in the wyldernes / in a place where no man dwelleth / in a baren place / when they came out of Egypt / & thou spakest / sayinge: Heare me O Israel / and marke my wordes thou sede of Jacob. Beholde / I sawe my lawe in you / and it shall bringe frute in you / & ye shalbe honoured in it for euer. For oure fathers which receaued ꝑ law / kepte it not / and obserued not thy ordinaunces and statutes / and the frute of thy lawe was not declared: for it myght not / for why: it was thine. For they that receaued it / perished / because they kepte not the thynge that was sowne in them.

It is a custome when the grounde receaueth sede / or ꝑ see a shipp / or a vessell meate and drincke / that whē it perysheth or is broken wherin a thyng is sowne / or wherin eny thinge is put: the thinges also perishe & are broken / which are sowne or put therin. But ¶ vnto vs it hath not happened so: for we that haue receaued the lawe / perish in synne / and oure herte which also receaued the lawe: not withstandynge the lawe perysheth not / but remayneth in his laboure.

And when I consydred these thynges in my herte after this maner / I loked aboute me with myne eyes / and vpon the ryght syde I sawe a woman / which mourned sore / made greate lamentacion / and wepte wyth loude voyce: her clothes were rent in peces / and she had asshes vpon her heade.

Then let I my thoughtes go / ꝑ I was in / & turned me vnto her / & sayde: wherfore wepest thou: why art thou so sory & discomforted: And she sayde vnto me: Syr / lett me bewayle my selfe & take yet more sorowe: for I am sore vexed in my mynde / & brought very lowe. And I sayde vnto her: what ayleth the: Or who hath done eny thinge to the: tell me. She sayde: I haue bene vnfrutefull and baren / and haue had an housband thirtie yeares. And these .xxx. yeares I do nothinge els daye & nyght and all houres / but make my prayer to the Hyest. After thirtie yeares God herde me thy handmayden / loked vpō my mysery / consydred my trouble / and gaue me a sonne / and I was glad of him / so was my housband also & all my neyghbours / & we gaue greate honoure vnto the Myghtie. And I norysshed him with great trauayle. So whē he grewe vp / and came to the tyme / that he shuld haue a wyfe / I made a feast.

¶ Esdras & the woman that appeareth vnto him cōmen together.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

And it happened ꝑ when my sonne A wente in to hys chamber / he fell downe / and dyed: then ouerthrew we all the lightes / & all my neyghbours rose vp to comforte me. Then toke I my rest vnto the seconde daye at nyght: and when they had all rested / that they myght cōforte me / I rested also / and rose vp by night / and fled / and am come hyther in to this felde / as thou seist: & am purposed not to come in the cytie / but to remayne here / and neither to eate ner drynke / but contynually to mourne and to fast / vntyll I dye.

Then let I my meditacyons & thoughtes fall / that I was in / and spake to her in displeasure: Thou foolysh woman / seyst thou not oure heuynes and mournyng / and what happeneth vnto vs: how Sion oure mother is all wofull and sory / and how she is cleane brought downe and in mysery: seynge we be all now in heuynes / and make oure mone (for we be all soroufull.) As for the heuines that thou takest / it is but for one sonne. Demaunde the earth / and she shall tell the / ꝑ it is she which ought (by reason) to mourne / for the fall of so many that growe vpon her.

For

For from the begynnynge all men are borne ot her/& other shall come: and behoide / they waike allmost all in to destruccion/ & many of them shalbe roted out.

Who shulde then (by reason) make more mournynge/then she/ that hath lost so great amultytude: and not thou / whych art sory but for one. But yf thou woldest saye vnto me: My mournynge is not lyke the mournyng of the earth/for I haue lost the frute of my body/ which I bare with heuynes: but ỹ earth is accordynge to ỹ maner of the earth/ & the present multytude goeth agayne into her / as it is come to passe: Then saye I vnto the: lyke as thou hast borne wyth trauayle & sorowe/ cũ so the earth also frõ the begynnynge geueth her frute vnto man/for him that made her. And therfore withholde thy sorowe and heuynes by thy selfe / and loke what happeneth vnto the/ be are it strongly. For yf thou iudgest the marck & ende of God to be ryghtuous and good/and receauest his councell in tyme /thou shalt be commended therin. Go thy waye then in to the cytye to thy housbande.

And she sayde vnto me: that wyll I not do/
B I wyll not go in to the cytie/ but heare wyll I dye. So I commened more with her /and sayde: Do not so/but be counceled/& folowe me: for how many falles hath Sion? Be of good comforte because of the sorowe of Jerusalem. For thou seyst that our Sanctuary is layed waste / oure auiter broken/ oure temple destroyed / oure playenge of instrumentes & syngynge layed downe / the thankesgeuynge put to sylence/our myrth is banished awaye/ the lyght of oure candelstyck is quenched / the arcke of the couenaunt is taken from vs/all oure holy thynges are defyled/and the name that is called vpon ouer vs/is dishonoured: oure chyldren are put to shame/oure prestes are brent/oure Leuites are caried awaye in to captyuyte / oure virgins are defyled/and oure wyues rauysshed/ oure ryghtuous men spoyled/and oure chyldren destroyed /oure yonge men are brought in bondage/ and oure stronge worthies are become weake: and Sion (whych seale is the greatest of all) is lowsed vp from her worshippe: for she is deliuered in to ỹ hãdes of them that hate vs.

And therfore shake of thy great heuynes/ and put awaye the multitude of sorowes: ỹ the Wyghtie maye be mercyfull vnto the/ and that the Hyest maye geue the rest from thy laboure and trauayle. And it happened/ that when I was talkyng with her/her face dyd shyne and glyster/so that I was afrayed of her/and mused what it myght be. And immediatly she cast oute a greate voyce / very fearfull/so that the earth shoke at the noyse of the woman: and I loked / and beholde/the womã appeared vnto me nomore: but there was a cytie buylded / & a place was shewed from the grounde and foundacion.

Then was I afrayed / & cryed wyth loude voyce/and sayde: where is Uziel the angell/ which came to me at the fyrst? For he hath caused me to come in many cõsyderacyons & hye thoughtes / and myne ende is turned to corrupcion/ and my prayer to rebuke. And as I was speakynge these wordes / he came vnto me/& loked vpon me/and I laye as one that had bene deed/and myne vnderstanding was altered/ & he toke me by the ryght hãde/ and comforted me/ & set me vp vpon my fete/ and sayde vnto me: what ayleth the? and why is thyne vnderstãdyng vexed? & the vnderstãdinge of thy herte/ & wherfore art thou sory? And I sayd: Because thou hast forsaken me: and I haue done according vnto thy wordes/ I wente in to the felde/and there haue I sene thyngs/ ỹ I am not able to expresse. He sayde vnto me: Stande vp and be manly / and I shall geue the exortacyon.

Then sayd I: Speake on to me my Lord/ forsake me not /lest I dye in vayne: for I haue sene that I knewe not / & herde that I do not knowe. Or shall my vnderstandynge be disceaued/and my mynde? But now I beseche the/that thou wylt shewe thy seruaunt of this wõder. He answered me then & sayde: heare me/and I shall enfourme the/& tell the wherfore thou art afrayed / for ỹ Hyest hath opened many secrete thynges vnto the.

He hath sene that thy waye is ryght / and that thou takest sorowe contynually for thy people/and makest greate lamentacyon for Sion: and therfore vnderstande the vysyon which thou sawest a lytle whyle agoo after this maner: Thou sawest a woman mournynge/and thou hast comforted her: Neuertheles now seyst thou the lykenes of the woman no more/but thou thoughtest there was a cytie buylded: and lyke as she tolde the of ỹ fall of her sonne/so is this the answere: The woman whõ thou sawest/is Sion: & where as she tolde the / that she hath bene thyrtye yeares vnfrutefull and baren / those are the xxx. yeares / wherin there was no offerynge made in her.

But after .xxx. yeares Salomõ buylded her/& offred/and then bare the barẽ a sonne. And where as she tolde the/that she norysshed him with laboure/that was the dwellyng of Jerusalem. But where as the sonne dyed in her chamber/ ỹ is the fall of Jerusalẽ. And thou sawest her lyckenesse/how she mourned for her sonne: & what els happened vnto her/ I haue shewed the. And now God seyth/ that thou art thou art lozy in thy mynde/ & suffrest krō thy herte foz her / and so hath he shewed the her clearnesse/and the fayrnes of her bewtye.

And therfoze I bad the remayne in ỹ feld/ where no house is buylded. Foz I knew that the Hiest wolde shew this vnto the/ therfoze I commaunded the to goo in to the felde/ where no foundacyon ner buyldynge is. Foz in the place where the Hyest wyll shewe hys citie/there shall be no mans buyldyng. And therfoze feare not/and let not thyne herte be afrayed/but go thy waye in / and se the glorious and fayze buyldynge / and how greate it is/and how greate thou thynckest it after the measure of thyne eyes/ & then shalt thou heare as moch as thine eares maye compzehēde. Foz thou art blessed aboue many other/ and art called with the Hyest/as ỹ few. But tomozow at nyght thou shalt remayne here/ & so shall the Hyest shewe the visyons of hye thynges/ whych he wyll do vnto them / that dwell vpon earth in ỹ last dayes. So I slepte the same night lyke as he cōmaunded me.

¶ In this Chapter and in the .ij. next ensuynge / he entreateth of certen vysyons and of the interpzetacyons therof.

¶ The .xj. Chapter.

And I sawe I a dzeame: and beholde/ there cam vp krō the see an Aegle/ which had .xij. wyngz & thze headz: And I sawe/and beholde/ he spzed hys wynges ouer all the earth / and all the windes of the ayze blew in them/and so they were put together agayne. And I behelde/ & out of his fethers there grew other lytle contrary fethers: the heades rested/ the head in ỹ myddest was greater then the other / yet rested it with the residue.

Mozouer I sawe / that the Aegle flew wᵗ his wynges/and raygned vpō earth / & ouer all thē that dwell vpon the earth: and I sawe that all thynges vnder heauen were subiecte vnto him/ & no mā spake agaynst him/ no not one creature vpon earth. I sawe also that the Aegle stode vp vpon hys clawes / & gaue a sounde with his fethers / and a voyce sayinge after thys maner: watch not all together/slepe euery man in his awne place/ & watch foz a tyme / but let the heades be pzeserued at the last. Neuertheles I sawe/ that the voyce wente not oute of hys heades / but from ỹ myddest of his body. And I nombzed hys contrary fethers/ & beholde / there were eight of them. And I loked / & beholde vpon the ryght syde there arose one fether / & raigned ouer all the earth. And it happened/ that when it raigned/the ende of it came/ and the place therof appeared no moze. So ỹ nexte folowyng stode vp/ & raygned/ & had a greate tyme: and it happened/that when it raigned/ the ende of it came also/lyke as the fyrst / so that it appeared nomoze.

Then came there a voyce vnto it/ & sayde: Heare thou ỹ hast kepte in the earth so lōge/ this I saye vnto the/before thou begynnest to appeare nomoze: There shall none after the atteyne vnto thy tyme. Then arose the third/ & raigned as ỹ other afoze/ & appeared nomoze also. So went it wᵗ all ỹ residue one after another/so ỹ euery one raigned/ & then appeared nomoze. Then I loked/ & beholde/ in pzocesse of tyme ỹ fethers ỹ folowed were set vp vpō the ryght syde / ỹ they myght rule also: & some of thē ruled / but within a whyle they appeared nomoze: foz some of thē were set vp/but ruled not. After this I loked/ and beholde ỹ .xij. fethers appeared nomoze/ & ỹ two wynges: & there was nomoze vpon the Aegles body/but two heades ỹ rested/ & sixe fethers. Then sawe I also/ ỹ the syxe fethers were parted in two/ & remayned vnder ỹ head/ ỹ was vpō the right syde/ foz ỹ foure continued in their place. So I loked/ & beholde/ they ỹ were vnder ỹ wynges/ thought to set vp thē selues/ & to haue the rule. Then was there one set vp/ but shoztly it appeared nomoze/ & the seconde was sooner awaye then ỹ first. And I behelde/ & lo/ the two thought also by them selues to raigne: & when they so thought/beholde/there waked one of ỹ headz ỹ were at rest/namely/it that was in ỹ myddest/foz ỹ was the greater of the two headz. And then I sawe/ that the two heades were kylled with him / & the head was turned with them that were by him / and ate vp the two vnder wynges/that wolde haue raigned.

But this head put ỹ whole earth in feare/ & bare rule in it/ouer all those ỹ dwelt vpō earth wᵗ moch laboure / & he had the gouernaunce of the wozlde / ouer all the foules ỹ haue bene. After this I loked/ & beholde/the head that was in the middest/sodenly appeared nomoze/lyke as ỹ wynges: then came ỹ two heades/which ruled vpō earth / & ouer those dwelt therin. And I behelde / & lo/the head vpon the ryght syde / deuoured it that was vpō the left syde. And I herde a voyce/ which sayde vnto me: loke befoze the/ & consydze the thyng that thou seist. Then I saw/ & beholde/as it were a lyon ỹ roareth / rennynge hastely out of the wod / & he sent out a mās voyce vnto the Aegle/ & sayde: Heare thou/I wyll talke with the/ & ỹ Hyest shall saye vnto the: Is it not thou ỹ hast the victory of the foure beastes/whō I made to raigne vpon earth and in my wozlde / & that the ende of their tymes might come thozow thē?

And the fourth came/ and ouerwanne all the beastes that were past / and had power ouer the wozlde with greate fearfulnes/ and ouer ouer the whole cõpasse of the earth with the most wicked labour/& so longe tyme dwelt he vpon the earth with disceate / & the earth hast thou iudged not with trueth. For thou hast troubled the meke / thou hast hurte the peaceable & quyete / thou hast loued lyers/ and destroyed the dwellynges of them that brought forth frute/and hast cast downe the walles of soch as dyd the no harme. Therfore is thy wrongeous dealyng and blasphemye come vp vnto the Hyest/and thy pryde vnto the Myghty. The Hyest also hath loked vpõ the proude tymes/ and beholde/ they are ended/and their abhomynacyons are fulfilled. And therfore appeare no more thou Aegle/ and thy horrible winges/and thy wycked fethers/and thy vngracyous heades / and thy synfull clawes/and all thy bayne body: that the earth maye be refreshed/ & come agayne to her self/whan she is delyuered frõ thy violence/ and that she maye hope for the iudgement and mercy of hym that made her.

¶ The.xij. Chapter.

AND it happened when ỹ Lyõ spake these wordꝭ vnto ỹ Aegle/I sawe/ & beholde / the head that afore had the vpperhand/appeared nomore: nether dyd the foure wynges appeare any more/ ỹ came to him/ & were set vp to raigne: and their kyngdome was small & full of vproure. And I saw/& beholde/ they appeared no more/and the whole body of the Aegle was brent/& the earth was in greate feare. Then awaked I out of the traunce of my mynde/& from greate feare/& sayde vnto my spyrete: Lo/this hast thou geuen me/ in that thou searchest out the wayes of ỹ Hyest: lo/ yet am I weery in my mynde/& very weake in my spyrete/& lytle strength is there in me/ for the greate feare ỹ I receaued this night. Therfore will I now beseche the Hyest/that he wyll comforte me vnto the ende: & I sayd/ Lorde Lorde/yf I haue founde grace before thy sight/ & yf I am iustified with the before many other/& yf my prayer be come vp before thy face/ comforte me then/& shewe me thy seruaunt the interpretacyõ & playne difference of this horrible sight/ ỹ thou mayest perfectly cõforte my soule: for thou hast iudged me worthy/to shew me ỹ last of tymes.

And he sayde vnto me: this is the interpretacyon of this syght. The Aegle whome thou sawest come vp frõ the see/ is the kyngdome which was sene in the vysyon of thy brother Daniel/but it was not expouded vnto him/ B for now I declare it vnto the. Beholde/ the dayes come/that there shall ryse vp a kyngdome vpon earth/& it shalbe feared aboue al the kyngdomes that were before it. In the same kyngdome shall. xij. kynges raygne/ one after another. For the seconde shall begynne to raygne/ and shall haue more tyme then the other/& this do the. xij. wynges signyfye/which thou sawest. As for the voyce ỹ spake/& ỹ thou sawest go out frõ the heades but not frõ the body/ it betokeneth/that after the tyme of that Kyngdome there shall aryse greate stryuynges / & it shall stande in parell of fallyng: neuertheles it shall not yet fall/but shalbe set in to his beginninge. And the eight vnderwynges whych thou sawest hange vnto the wynges of him/betokẽ/that in hym there shall aryse eyght Kyngꝭ/ whose tyme shalbe but small/& their yeares swyft/ & two of thẽ shall beare. But when the myddest tyme commeth/there shalbe foure kepte in ỹ tyme/when his tyme begynneth to come that it maye be ended/ but two shalbe kepte vnto the ende.

And where as thou sawest thre heades re- ¶ stynge/this is the interpretacyõ: In his last shall the Hyest rayse vp thre Kyngdomes/ & call many agayne into thẽ/& they shall haue the domynyon of the earth/and of those that dwell therin/wt moch labour aboue all those ỹ were before thẽ. Therfore are they called ỹ heades of the Aegle: for it is they that shall brynge forth hys wyckednes agayne/ and that shall perfourme & fynysh hys last. And where as thou sawest / that the greate head appeared nomore/it signyfyeth/that one of them shal dye vpõ his bed/& yet with payne/ for the two that remayne/ shalbe slayne with the swerde. For the swerde of ỹ one shall deuoure the other / but at the last shall he fall thorow the swerde hym selfe.

And where as thou sawest two vnderwinges vpõ the head that is on the ryght syde/ it signyfyeth that it is they/ whome the Hyest hath kepte vnto their ende: thys is a small Kingdome/& full of trouble. The Lyon whõ thou sawest rysinge vp out of the wodd/and roarynge/& speakynge vnto the Aegle / and rebukynge hym for his vnryghtuousnesse/is the wynde / whych the Hyest hath kepte for them & for their wyckednesse vnto the ende: he shall reproue them/& rente them asunder before them. For he shall set them lyuynge before the iudgement / & shall rebuke them: for the residue of my people shall he delyuer wt trouble/those ỹ be preserued ouer myne endes: and he shall make them ioyfull vntyll the commyng of the daye of iudgemẽt/ wher of I haue spokẽ vnto the frõ the begynnyng. This is the dreame that thou sawest/& thys is the interpretacyon. Thou only hast bene mete to knowe the secrete of the Hyest.

Therfore write all these thinges that thou hast sene in a boke/and hyde them/and teach thẽ the wyse in ỹ people/ whose hertes thou knowest knowest maye cõprehende and kepe these se-D cretes. But wayte thou here thy selfe yet seuen dayes moo/ that it maye be shewed the/whatsoeuer it pleaseth the Hyest to declare vnto the/ and with that he went his waye.

And whẽ all the people perceaued/ ẏ the seuen dayes were past/ & I not come agayne in to ẏ cytie/ they gathered them alltogether frõ the least vnto the most/ & came vnto me/and sayde: what haue we offended the? and what euell haue we done agagnst the/ ẏ thou forsakest vs/ & syttest here in this place? For of all people thou only art left vs/ as a grape of the vyne/ and as a candell in a darcke place/ and as an hauẽ & shyppe preserued from ẏ tẽpest. Haue we not els aduersite ynough/but thou must forsake vs? Were it not better for vs/ that we had bene brẽt with Sion?
For we are no better/ then they ẏ dyed there:
and they wepte wyth loude voyce. Then answered I thẽ & sayde: Be of good cõforte O Israel/ & be not heuy thou house of Jacob:
for the Hyest hath you in remẽbraũce/ & the Myghtie hath not forgotten you in tempta-cion. As for me/ I haue not forsakẽ you/ nether am I departed from you: but am come in to this place to praye/ because of the my-sery of Israel/ that I myght seke mercy for ẏ lowe estate of youre Sanctuary. And now go youre waye home euery mã/ & after these dayes wyll I come vnto you. So the people went their waye in to the cytie/ lyke as I cõmaunded them: but I remayned styll in the felde seuen dayes/ as the Angell bad me: and I ate onely of the floures of the felde/ & had my meate of the herbes in those dayes.

The. xiij. Chapter.

A And it happened after ẏ seuẽ dayes/that I dreamed a dreame by night.
And beholde/ there arose a wynde from the see/ that it moued all the floudes therof. And I loked/ and beholde/ the mã was strõge & increased with the cloudes of heauẽ: & when he turned his coũtenaunce to consyder/ all the thinges trembled ẏ were sene vnder him: and when the voyce went out of his mouth/ all they brent that herde hym/
lyke as the earth when it seleth the fyre.

After these I sawe/ & beholde/ there was gathered together a multitude of men out of nombre from the foure windes of the heauẽ/to fyghte agaynst the man/ that came oute from the see. And I loked/ and beholde/ he graued him selfe a greate mountayne/ and flew vp vpon it. But I wolde haue sene the border or place/ wherout the hyll was grauen/ and I coude not.

I sawe after these/ ẏ all they which came to fyght agaynst hym/ were sore afrayed/ & yet durst they fyght. Neuertheles when he sawe the fearsnesse & violence of the people/he nether lyft vp his hande ner held swerde/ner eny weapẽ: but onely (As I sawe) he sent out of his mouth as it had bene a blast of fy-re/ and out of his lyppes the wynde of ẏ flãme: and out of his tonge he cast out sparkes and stormes/ and they were all myxte together: the blast of fyre/ the wynde of ẏ flãmes/and the greate storme/ and fell wyth a russhe vpon ẏ people/ which was prepared to fight and brent them vp euerychone: so that of the innumerable multitude there was nothinge sene; but onely dust and smoke. When I saw this/ I was afrayed.

Afterwarde sawe I the same man come B downe from the mountayne/ and callyng vn to him another peaceable people: and there came moch people vnto him: some were glad some were sory/ some of them were bounde/so that they were caried & brought forth.

Then was I sycke thorow greate feare/ &
I awaked/ and sayde: thou hast shewed thy seruaunt all thy wõders frõ the begynnyng/& hast counted me worthy/ ẏ thou myghtest receaue my prayer: shewe me now yet the interpretacion of this dreame. For thus I cõsyder in my vnderstandyng: Wo vnto them ẏ shall be left in those dayes: & moch more wo vnto thẽ that are not left behynde: for they ẏ were not left/ were in heuynes.

Now vnderstande I the thynges that are layed vp in the latter dayes/ which shall happen vnto them/ and to those that are not left behynde. Therfore are they come in to great parelles/ and many necessities/ lyke as these dreames declare. Yet is it easier/ ẏ he which suffreth hurte come in these/ then to passe awaye as a cloude out of the worlde/ and now to se the thynges ẏ shall happẽ in the last.

Then answered he me/ and sayde: The interpretacyon of the syght shall I shewe the/and I wyll open vnto the/ the thynge ẏ thou hast requyred. For thou hast spoken of them that are left behynde/ and thys is the interpretacyon. He that taketh awaye the parell in that tyme/ hath kepte him selfe. They that be fallen in to harme/ are such as haue wor-kes & fayth vnto the Most mighty. Knowe this therfore/ that they which be left behynde/ are more blessed/ then they that be deed.
This is the meanynge of the vysyon. Where as thou sawest a man commynge vp from the depe of the see/ the same is he whom God the Hyest hath kepte a greate season/ which by his awne selfe shall delyuer his creature/& he shall order thẽ that are left behynde. And where as thou sawest/ ẏ oute of hys mouth there came a blast of wynde/ fyre & storme/ & how

how that he lyft vp nether swerde nor weapen/but ỹ the rushynge in of hym destroyed ỹ whole multitude/ỹ came to fyght agaynst him:it signyfyeth/that the dayes come/whan ¶ God wyll delyuer thē that are vpon earth/& in a traūce of mynde shall he come vpō thē/ ỹ dwell in ỹ earth. And one shall vndertake to fyght agaynst another/one cite agaynst another/one place agaynst another/one people agaynst another/& one realme agaynst another. When this commeth to passe/then shall the tokens come/that I shewed the before:& then shall my sonne be declared/whō thou sawest clymme vp as a man. And when all ỹ people heare his voyce euery man shall in their awne lande leaue the battayll ỹ they haue one against another/& an innumerable multytude shalbe gathered together/as they that be wyllinge to come & to ouercome him by fyghtinge. But he shall stande vpon the toppe of the mount Sion. Neuertheles Sion shall come/& shalbe shewed/beinge prepared & buylded for all men/lyke as thou sawest the hill grauē forth without any handes. But my sonne shall rebuke the people ỹ are come for their wyckednes/with the tempest/and for their euell ymagynacyons:and their paynes wherwith they shalbe punyshed/are lyckened vnto the flamme:and without any laboure/shall he destroye them/euen by the lawe/which is cōpared vnto the fyre.

And where as thou sawest/that he gathered another peaceable people vnto hī: those are the ten tribes/which were caried awaye prysoners out of their awne lande/in ỹ tyme of Oseas the Kynge/whom Salmanasar the Kynge of Assiria toke prysoner/& caryed them ouer the water/and so came they into another lande.

But they gaue them this councell/ỹ they shulde leaue the multitude of the Heathen/& to go forth into a farther countre/where neuer mankynde dwelt: that they myght there kepe their statutes/which they neuer kepte in their awne lande. And so they entred in at ¶ the narow passages of the water of Euphrates/and God shewed tokēs for them/& held styll the floude tyll they were passed ouer: for thorow ỹ countre there was a greate waye/ namely of a yeare and a halfe yourney/for ỹ same regyon is called Asareth. Then dwelt they there vnto the latter tyme: & when they come forth agayne/the Hyest shall holde styl the sprynges of the streame agayne/ỹ they may go thorow/therfore sawest thou ỹ multitude with peace. And they that be left behynde of thy people/are those that be founde within my border. Now when he destroyeth the multytude that is gathered together/he shall defende hys people that remayne/and then shall he shew them greate wonders.

Then sayde I: O Lorde Lorde/shewe me this:wherfore haue I sene the man comming vp frō the depe of the see? And he sayde vnto me: Like as thou canst nether seke out nor knowe these thinges that are in the depe of ỹ see/euē so mayest thou not se my sonne/ or those that be with him/but in the tyme of the daye. Thys is the interpretacyon of the dreame which thou sawest/therfore thou only art here lyghtened: for thou hast forsaken thyne awne lawe/& applyed thy diligēce vnto myne/& sought it. Thy lyfe hast thou ordred in wisdome/& hast called vnderstanding thy mother/& therfore haue I shewed ỹ the treasure of the Hyest. After thre dayes I will shew the more/& talke wt the at more large/ yee heuy and wonderous thinges wyll I declare vnto the.

Then went I forth into the felde/geuyng prayse & thankes greatly vnto God/because of his wonders which he dyd in tyme/and because he gouerneth the same/and soche as is in tyme/and there I satt thre dayes.

¶ God appeareth vnto Esdras in the bush/& sheweth hym what he shall do.

¶ The.xiiij.Chapter.

A Vpon the thyrd daye I sat vnder an oke tree/then came there a voyce vnto me out of the bush/& sayde: Esdras/Esdras? And I sayde:here am I Lorde/& stode vp vpon my fete. Then spake he vnto me:In the bush dyd I appeare vnto Moses/and talked with him/when my people serued in Egypte/& I sent hym/& led my people out of Egypt/& brought him vpō the mount Sion/where I helde him by me a longe season/& tolde hym my wonderous worckes/and shewed him the secretes of the tymes & the ende/& cōmaunded him/saying: These wordes shalt thou declare/& not hyde thē. And now I saye vnto the/that thou laye vp in thyne herte the dreames that thou hast sene/and the interpretacyons which I haue shewed the:for thou shalt be receaued of all/ thou shalt be turned & remayne with my coūcell/& with soch as be lyke the/vntyll the tymes be ended. For the worlde hath lost hys youth/and the tymes begynne to waxe olde. For the tyme is deuyded into twelue partes/ and ten partes of it are gone all ready/and halfe of the tenth parte: yet remayneth there that/which is after ỹ halfe of the tenth parte.

Therfore prepare & ordre thy house/and reforme thy people: comforte soch of them ¶ B as be in trouble: and tell now of the destrucyon:let go from the mortall thoughtes:cast awaye the burthēs of man:put of the weake nature:laye vp in some places ỹ thoughtes that are most heuy vnto the/and haste the to flye fayt frō these tymes: for soch euell & wyckednesse as thou hast now sene happē / shal they do yet moch worse. For the weaker that the worlde and the tyme is / the more shall synne & wickednesse increase / in thē that dwell vpō earth. For the trueth is fled farre awaye / & lesynge is hard at hande. For now hasteth ꝑ vision to come / that thou hast sene.

Then answered I & sayde: Beholde Lord / I will go as thou hast commaunded me / and reboure me the people which are present. But they ꝑ shall be borne afterwarde / who wyll exhorte or rebuke them? Thus the worlde is set in darcknes / & they that dwell therin / are without lyght: for thy lawe is kyndled / because no man knoweth the thynges that are done of the / or ꝑ shalbe done. If I haue foūde grace before the / sende ꝑ holy goost in to me / and I shall wryte all that hath bene done in the worlde sens the begynnynge / which was wrytten in thy lawe / that men maye fynde ꝑ path / and that they which wyll lyue in the latter dayes / maye lyue.

¶ And he answered me / sayīg: Go thy waye / gather thy people together / & saye vnto thē / that they seke the not for .xl. dayes / but loke thou gather the many bore trees / & take wt the Sarea / Dabria / Selemia / Echanus & Asiail / these fyue / which are ready to wryte swyftly / and come hither / and I shall lyght a candle of vnderstāding in thine hert which shall not be put out / tyll the thynges be performed which thou shalt begynne to wryte And then shalt thou declare some thynges openly vnto the perfecte / & some thinges shalt thou shew secretly vnto ꝑ wyse. To morow this houre shalt thou begynne to wryte.

Then wente I forth (as he cōmaūded me) and gathered all the people together / & sayd: Heare these wordes O Israel: Oure fathers from the begynnynge were straunges in Egypte / from whence they were delyuered / & receaued the lawe of lyfe / whych they kepte not / which ye also haue trāsgressed after thē. Then was this lande and the lande of Sion parted amonge you by lott to possesse. But your fathers & ye your selues also haue done vnryghtuousnes / & haue not kepte ꝑ wayes which the Hyest cōmaunded you. And for so moch as he is a righteous iudge / he toke frō you in tyme the thynge ꝑ he had geuen you. And now are ye here & youre brethrē amōge you. Therfore yf so be ꝑ ye wyll subdue your awne vnderstandynge / and reboure youre herte / ye shall be kepte alyue / & after death shall ye opteyne mercy. For after death shall ꝑ iudgmēt come / whē we shall lyue agayne: and then shall the names of the righteous be manifest / and ꝑ names of the vngodly with their workes shall be declared. Let no man therfore come now vnto me / ner aske eny question at me these .xl. dayes.

So I toke the fyue men (as he cōmaunded me) and we wente in to the felde / and remayned there. The next daye a voyce called me sayīg: Esdras / open thy mouth / & drynke ꝑ I geue the. Then opened I my mouth / & behold / he reached me a full cuppe / which was full a water / but the colour of it was lyke fyre. And I toke it & dranke. And when I had dronkē it / my hert had vnderstādyng / & wysdome grewe in my brest: for my spyrite was kepte in remembraunce / and my mouth was opened & shut nomore. The Hyest gaue vnderstandyng vnto the fyue men / that they wrote the hye thynges of the nyght / whych they vnderstode not. But in ꝑ nyght they ate bred: as for me / I spake in the daye / & helde not my tonge by nyght. In .xl. dayes / they wrote two hundred and foure bokes.

And it happened when the .xl. dayes were fulfylled / that the Hyest spake / sayīg: The first that thou hast wryttē / speake openly / ꝑ the worthy and vnworthy maye rede it. But kepe the .lxx. last / ꝑ thou mayest shew it onely to soch as be wyse amonge thy people For in them is the spryng of vnderstandyng / the fountayne of wysdome / and the streame of knowledge. And I dyd so.

¶ The punyshmēt that euell people shal haue / which God commaundeth Esdras to shew vnto them.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

Beholde / speake thou in the eares of my people ꝑ wordes of prophecie / which I will put in thy mouth / sayeth the Lorde: and cause thē to be wrytte in a letter / for it is the trueth. Feare not the ymaginacions agaynst the / lett not the vnfaythfulnes of them trouble the / that speake agaynst the. For all the vnfaythfull shall dye in their vnfaythfulnes. Beholde sayeth the Lorde / I wyll bryng plages vpō the worlde / the swerde honger / death & destruccyon / for wyckednes hath the vpper hād in all the earth / and their shamefull workes are fulfylled.

Therfore sayeth the Lorde: I wyll holde my tonge nomore vnto their wyckednesse / which they do so vngodly: nether wyll I suffre thē in the thynges / that they deale wyth all so wickedly. Beholde / the innocent bloud of the troubled cryeth vnto me / and ꝑ soules of the ryghtuous complayne cōtynually: & therfore (sayeth ꝑ Lord) I will surely auēge / and receaue vnto me all the innocent bloude from amonge them.

Beholde / my people / is led as a flock of shepe to be slayne / I wyll not suffre thē now to dwell in Egypte / but wyll bryng thē out with a mightie hand & a stretched out arme / and smyte it with plages as a foze / and wyll destroye all ỹ land of it. Egypt shall mourne / & the foundacions of it shalbe smytten with the plage and punyshment / that God shall bzynge vpon it.

They ỹ tyll the grounde / shall mourne: C foz their sedes shall be destroyed thozow the blasting and hayle / & an hozryble starre. Wo wozth the wozlde & them that dwell therin / foz the swerde & their destruccyon dzaweth nye / & one people shall stande vp to fyght agaynst another / & swerdes in their hãdz. Foz men shall be vnstedfast / & some shall do vyolence vnto other: they shall not regarde their kyng & pzynces / the wayes of their doynges & handelynges in their power. A man shall desyze to go in to ỹ cytie / & shall not be able. Foz because of their pzyde the cyties shalbe bzought in feare / the houses shal shake / and men shalbe afrayed. A man shall haue no pytie vpõ his neyghbour / but one shall pzouoke another vnto battayll to spoyle their goodes because of the hõger of bzed / and because of the greate trouble.

Beholde / I gather & call together all the kynges of the earth which are from the vpry syng / from the South / frõ the East & Lybanus to turne vnto thẽ / & restoze the thynges that they haue geuen them. Lyke as they do yet this daye vnto my cholen / so will I do also / & recompense thẽ in their bosome. Thus sayeth the Lozde God: My pryght hand shall not spare the synners / & my swerde shall not ceasse ouer them / that shed the innocẽt bloud vpon earth. The feare is gone out from hys wzath / and hath consumed the foundacyons of the earth / and the synners lyke the strawe that is kyndled. Wo wozth them that synne / & kepe not my cõmaundementes / sayeth the Lozde. I wyll not spare thẽ. Go youre waye ye childzen frõ violence / defyle not my Sanctuary: foz the Lozde knoweth all them that synne agaynst him / & therfoze delyuereth he them vnto death & destruccyon: Foz now are the plages come vpon the wozlde / & ye shall remayne in them. Foz God shall not delyuer you / because ye haue synned agaynst him.

C Beholde / an hozryble bisyon cõmeth frõ the East / where generaciõs of Dzagõs shal come out / and the people of ỹ Arabes wyth many charettes / and the multytude of them shalbe as the wynde vpõ earth / that all they which heare them ragynge in their wzath / maye feare and be afrayed: and as the wylde bozes oute of the wod / so shall they go out / & with greate power shall they come / & stande fyghtynge with them / and shall waste ỹ pozcyon of the lande of the Assyzians.

And then shall the Dzagons haue the vpper hande / not remembzynge their byzth / & shall turne aboute swearynge together in greate power / to persecute them. But these shalbe afrayed / & kepe sylence at their power / & shall fle: & one out of the lande of the Assyzians shal belege thẽ / & consume one of them / & in their hoost shall be feare & dzede / and stryke amonge their kynges.

Beholde cloudes from the East / and from F the Nozth vnto the South / & they are very hozryble to loke vpõ / full of wzath & stozme. They shall smyte one vpõ another / and they shall smyte at the greate starre vpon earth & their starre / and the bloude shalbe from the swerde vnto the bely / and the smoke of man vnto the Camels lytter: And there shalbe great fearfulnes and tremblyng vpõ earth / & they that se the wrath / shal be afrayed / and a tremblynge shall come vpon them.

And then shall there come greate raynes from the South & from the Nozth / & parte from the West / and from the stozmy wynde from the East / and shall shut thẽ vp agayne / and the cloude which he rayled vp in wzath / and the starre to cause feare towarde ỹ East & West wynde / shalbe destroyed: & the great cloudes shalbe lyft vp / & the myghtie cloudz full of wzath / and the starre / that they maye make all the earth afrayed & thẽ that dwell therin / and that they maye poure oute ouer all places an hozryble starre / fyze & hayle & flyenge swerdes / and many waters: that all feldes maye be full / and all ryuers / and they shall bzeake downe ỹ cities & walles / mountaynes and hylles / all trees / wod / & the grasse of ỹ medowes / and all their frute. And they shall go stedfast vnto Babilon / & make her afrayed / they shall come to her & belege her: the starre and all wzath shall they poure out vpon her.

Then shall the duste and smoke go vp vnto G the heauen / and all they that be aboute her / shall bewayle her: and they that remayne vnder her / shall do seruyce vnto thẽ that haue put her in feare. And thou Asia ỹ comfozteste thy selfe also vpon the hope of Babilon / and art a wozshippe of her personne: Wo be vnto the thou wzetch / because thou hast made thy selfe lyke vnto her / & hast decked thy daughters in whozdome / that they might triumphe and please thy louers / which haue allwaye desyzed to cõmitte whozdome with the: thou hast folowed ỹ abhominable cytie in all her wozckes and inuencions.

Therfoze sayeth God: I wyll sende plages vpõ the / wyddowhode / pouerte / hõger / warres / and pestilence / to waste thy houses with destruccyon and death / and the glozye of thy power shall be dzyed vp as a floure / when ỹ heate aryseth ỹ is sent ouer the. Thou shalt be syck as a pooze wyfe ỹ is plaged & beaten of wemen:

of wemen: so that the myghtye & louer shall not be able to receaue the. Wolde I so hate the sayeth the Lorde: If thou haddest not alwaye slayne my chosen/exaltynge the stroke of thy handes/& sayde ouer their death/ whē thou wast droncken: sett forth the bewtye of thy countenaunce.

The rewarde of thy whordome shalbe recompensed the in thy bosome/ therfore shalt thou receaue* rewarde.

* Some reade: no rewarde.

℣ Lyke as thou hast done vnto my chosen (sayeth the Lorde) euen so shall God do vnto the/and shall deliuer the into the plage. Thy chyldren shall dye of honger / and thou shalt fall thorow ỹ swerde. Thy cyties shalbe broken downe/and all thyne shall perish with ỹ swerde in the feld. They that be in the mountaynes shall dye of honger/ & eate their awne flesh/and dryncke their awne bloud for very hōger of bred and thyrst of water. Thou vnhappye shalt come thorow the see/& receaue plages agayne.

In the passage the shall cast downe the slayne cytie/& shall rote one parte of thy lande/& consume the porcion of thy glorye. They shall treade ỹ downe like stubble/and they shall be thy fyre and shall consume the: thy cytyes and thy lande/thy wod & thy frutefull trees shall they burne vp with ỹ fyre. Thy chyldrē shall they cary awaye captyue/ & loke what thou hast/ they shall spoyle it/& marre the bewtye of thy face.

¶ The heathen shall be punyshed.

¶ The .xvj. Chapter.

A WO be vnto the Babilon & Asia/wo be vnto the Egypt & Syria: gyrde your selues with cloth of sack & hearre/& mourne for youre chyldren/ be sorye/for your destruccion is at hand. A swerde is sent vpō you/& who will turne it back? A fyre is kyndled amōge you/ and who will quench it? Plages are sent vnto you/& what is he that will dryue thē awaye? Maye eny man dryue awaye an hōgrie lyō in the wod? Or maye eny man quench ỹ fyre in the stubble/whan it hath begonne to burne? Maye one turne agayne the arowe/that is shot of a stronge archer? The mighty Lorde sendeth the plages / & what is he that will dryue thē awaye? The fyre is kyndled & gone forth in his wrath/& what is he that will quench it? He shall cast lightenynges / & who shall not feare? He shall thonder/and who shall not be afrayed? The Lorde shall threaten/and who shall not vtterly be beaten to poulder at his presence? The earth quaketh/& the foundacions therof: the see aryseth vp with waues frō the depe/& the floudes of it are vnquyete and the fyshes therof also before the Lorde/ and before the glory of his power. For strōge is his right hande that holdeth the bowe/ his arowes that he shuteth / are sharpe/ and shall not mysse / when they begynne to be shot in to the endes of the worlde.

Sagitte dñi acute

Beholde/the plages are sent / & shall not turne agayne/tyll they come vpō earth. The fyre is kyndled/& shall not be put oute/ tyll it cōsume the foundacions of the earth. Like as an arowe which is shot of a myghtye archer/returneth not backwarde: euen so the plages that shall be sent vpon earth / shall not turne agayne. Woo is me/woo is me/who wyll delyuer me in those dayes? The beginnynge of sorowes & greate mournynge: the begynnynge of darth & greate death: the begynnynge of warres / and the powers shall stande in feare: the begynnynge of euels / & they shall tremble euery one. What shall I do in these thynges/when the plages come? Beholde/honger/and plage/ trouble & anguysh are sent/as scourges for amendemēt. But for all these thyngs they shall not turne from their wyckednesses / ner be allwaye myndefull of the scourges.

Beholde/vytayles shalbe so good cheape vpon earth/ ỹ they shall thynke them selues to be in good case: & euē then shall myschefe growe vpon earth/warres/darth and great disquyetnes. For many of thē that dwell vpō earth shall perish of honger/& the other that escape the honger/shall the swerde destroye: & the deed shalbe cast oute as donge/& there shalbe no man to cōforte them. For ỹ earth shalbe wasted/ and the cytyes shalbe cast downe: there shalbe no man left to tyll the earth & to sowe it. The trees shall geue frute/& who shall plucke thē of & gather them? The grape shall be rype/ & who shall treade them? For all places shalbe desolate of men/ so ỹ one man shall desyre to se another/or to heare his voyce. For of one whole cytie there shalbe ten left/& two in ỹ felde/which shall hyde thē selues in the thycke bushes/ and in the clyfes of stones: lyke as when there remayne three or foure olyues vpon the olyue tre/or as whē a vineyarde is gathered/there are left some grapes/of them that diligently sought thorow the vyneyarde.

Euen so in those dayes there shalbe three or foure left/for thē that search their houses with the swerde. And the earth shalbe left waste/& the feldes therof shall waxe olde: & her wayes & all her pathes shall growe full of thornes/ because no man shall trauayle there thorow. The daughters shall mourne/ hauing no brydegromes: ỹ wemē shall make lamentacyon/hauynge no housbādes/ their daughters shall mourne/ hauynge no helpe of their brydegrome. In ỹ warres shall they be destroyed/& their housbandes shal perish ofhonger. ¶ ye seruauntes of the Lorde/ heare these thynges/ & marck thē. Beholde/ the worde of ỹ Lorde/ ¶ receaue it: beholde/ the plages drawnye and are not slack in tarienge. Lyke as a trauayling womā/ which after the .ix. moneth bryngeth forth a sonne/ when the houre of ỹ byrth is come/ an houre two or thre afore that the paynes come upō her body/ & when the chylde cōmeth to the byrth/ they tary not the twynclynge of an eye: Euen so shall not the plages be slack to come upon earth/ & the world shall mourne/ & sorowes shall come upon it on euery syde.

¶ my people/ heare my worde/ make you redy to the battayll: & in all euell be euen as pylgrems upon earth. He ỹ selleth/ lett him be as he that flyeth hys waye: & he ỹ byeth/ as one that will lese. ¶ holso occupieth marchaundies/ as he that wynneth not: & he that buyldeth/ as he that shall not dwell therin: he that soweth/ as one that shall not reape: he ỹ twysteth the vyneyarde/ as he that shall not gather the grapes: they that mary/ as they that shall get no chyldren: and they that mary not/ as the wyddowes: & therfore they ỹ laboure/ labour in vayne. For straungers shal reape their frutes/ & spoyle their goods/ ouerthrowe their houses/ & take their chyldren captyue/ for in captiuite & honger shall they get chyldrē. And they that occupie their marchaundyes w robbery/ how longe decke they their cytyes/ their houses/ their possessyons/ & persones: the more wyll I punysh them for their synnes/ sayeth the Lord. Like as an whore enuyeth an honest woman/ so shall ryghtuousnes hate iniquyte/ when she decketh her selfe/ and shall accuse her to her face/ when he cōmeth that defendeth/ whych shall make inquisycyon for all synne upon earth. And therfore be not ye like therunto/ ner to the worckes therof: for or euer it be longe/ iniquite shalbe taken awaye out of ỹ earth/ & righteousnes shall raygne amonge you.

Let not the synner saye/ that he hath not synned: for coles of fyre shall burne upon his head/ which sayeth before the Lord God and his glory: I haue not synned. Beholde/ the Lorde knoweth all ỹ worckes of men/ their ymaginacyōs/ their thoughtes & their hertz. For he spake but the worde: lett the earth be made/ & it was made: let the heauē be made/ & it was made. In his worde were ỹ starres made/ & he knoweth the nombre of them. He searcheth the grounde of the depe/ & the treasures therof: he hath measured ỹ see/ & what it conteyneth. He hath shut the see in ỹ myddest of the waters/ & with his worde hath he hanged the earth upon ỹ waters. He spredeth out the heauen lyke a bawte/ upon ỹ waters hath he founded it. In the deserte & dyre wyldernes hath he made springes of water/ and poles upon the toppe of the mountaynes/ ỹ the floudes might poure downe frō the stony rockes to water the earth. He made mā/ and put his herte in the myddest of the body/ and gaue hym breth/ lyfe and vnderstandyng/ yee and the spyrete of the Almyghtie God/ whych made all thynges/ and hath searched ỹ groūd of all the secretes of the earth.

He knoweth youre ymaginacyons & inuencions/ & what ye thynke when ye synne/ & wolde hyde youre synnes. Therfore hath ỹ Lord searched & sought out all your worckes/ and he shall bewraye you all. And whē your synnes are brought forth/ ye shalbe ashamed before men/ and youre awne synnes shalbe youre accusers in that daye. ¶ What wyll ye do? Or how wyll ye hyde your synnes before God & his Aungels? Beholde/ God him selfe is the iudge/ feare hym/ leaue of from youre synnes/ & forget youre vnryghtuousnesses/ and medle nomore wyth them: so shall God leade you forth/ & deliuer you frō all trouble For beholde/ the heate of a greate multitude is kyndled ouer you/ & they shall take awaye certayne of you/ & fede the ydle wyth Idols: and they that consent vnto them/ shalbe had in derisyon/ laughed to scorne/ and trodē vnder fote.

For vnto the places there shalbe a place/ and in the next cyties a greate insurrecyon upon those that feare the Lorde. They shall be lyke madmen/ they shall spare no mā: they shall spoyle & waste soch as feare the Lorde/ their goodes shall they take from them/ and shutte them out of their houses. Then shal it be knowne who are my chosen/ & they shalbe tryed as the golde in the fyre. Heare O ye my beloued/ sayeth the Lorde: beholde/ the dayes of trouble are at hande/ but I wyll delyuer you from the same. Be not ye afrayed/ dyspayre not/ for God is youre captayne.

Who so kepeth my cōmaundementes and preceptes (sayeth the Lord God) let not your synnes weye you downe/ and lett not youre vnryghtuousnesses be lyft vp. Wo be vnto them that are subdued vnto their synnes/ and tangled in their wyckednesses: lyke as a feld is hedged in wyth bulshes/ & the path therof couered with thornes/ that no mā maye trauayle thorow: and so is he taken/ and cast in the fyre/ and brent.

¶ The ende of the .iiij. boke of Esdras.

¶ The boke of Tobiah.

¶ Tobiah beynge taken pryſoner / forſaketh not the lawe of trueth. The mercy and charitye of Tobiah / and the maners of him in his youthe. He taketh Hannah to wyfe / by whome he hath a ſonne named Tobiah. He ſuccoureth Gabell for moneye. He and his are fayne to flye / but after the deeth of Sennaherib they retourne agayne.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

TObiah was of the trybe and cytie of Nephtali / whych lyeth in the hye countrees of Galile aboue Naalon ẏ waye to warde the Weſt / haueynge the cytie of Sephet vpon the left ſyde.

Though he was taken pryſonner in the dayes of Salmanaſar kyng of the Aſſirias / neuertheles beynge in captiuite / he forſoke not the waye of trueth: In ſo moch ẏ whatſoeuer he myght get / he parted it dayly with his felowpryſoners & brethren / that were of his kynred. And though he were yonger then all in the trybe of Nephtali / yet dyd not he behaue him ſelfe chyldiſhly in his worckes. And when all the other wente to the golden calues / which Jeroboam the kyng of Iſrael had made / he him ſelfe alone fled all their cõpanies / & gat him to Jeruſalem vnto ẏ tẽple of the Lorde / & there worſhypped the Lorde God of Iſrael / faythfully offeryng of all his firſt frutes and tythes / ſo that in the thyrde yeare he mynyſtred all the tythes vnto the ſtraungers & conuertes. Theſe and ſoch lyke thynges dyd he accordyng to ẏ lawe of God / when he was yet but yonge.

B But when he was a man / he toke oute of his awne trybe a wyfe called Anna / & of her he begat a ſonne / whome he called after hys awne name / and taught him from his youth vp / to feare God / & to refrayne frõ all ſynne.

Now when he with his wyfe / hys ſonne & with all his kynred was come in captiuite vnto Ninyue / what tyme as they all ate of ẏ meates of the Heathen / he kepte his ſoule / & was neuer defyled in their meates. And for ſo moch as he was myndefull of the Lorde in all his hert / God gaue him fauoure in ẏ preſence of Salmanaſar ẏ kyng / whych gaue him power to go where he wolde / and ſo had he lyberte to do what him lyſt.

¶ So wente Tobiah vnto all them ẏ were in preſon / and comforted them / & gaue them wholſome exortacyons. And when he came to Rages a cytie of the Medes / hauyng *ten talentes of ſyluer (of the thynges wherwyth the kyng had honoured him) & ſawe amõge a greate company of people of hys kynred / one Gabelus (which was of his awne trybe) beynge in neceſſyte / he gaue hym the ſayde weight of ſyluer vnder an handwrytynge.

* Some reade / ten talentes of golde.

After a longe ſeaſon when Salmanaſar the kynge was deed / and Sennaherib hys ſonne reigned in his ſteade / whych hated the childrẽ of Iſrael. Tobiah wẽt dayly thorow out all his kynred / and comforted them / and gaue of his goodes to euery one of them / as moch as he might: he fed the hongrie / clothed the naked / and buried the deed and ſlayne / & that diligently.

D And when Sennaherib the kynge came agayne and fled out of Jewry (what tyme as God puniſhed him for his blaſphemy) and in his wrath ſlew many of the chyldrẽ of Iſrael Tobiah buried their bodies. But whẽ it was tolde the kynge / he cõmaunded to ſlaye him / and toke awaye all his goodes. Neuertheles Tobiah with his ſonne & with hys wyfe fled his waye / & was hyd naked / for there were many that loued him. But after .xlv. dayes ẏ kynge was ſlayne of his awne ſonnes. Then came Tobiah agayne to his houſe / & all hys goodes reſtored vnto him.

¶ Tobiah byddeth ſoche of his frynds as feare God / to a bãcquet or feaſt. He is reproued of his frynds. He feareth God moare then the kynge. He becommeth blynde by the permiſſyon & ſuffraunce of God. Hys kynſfolckes mocke hym.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

AFter theſe thynges vpõ a ſolempne daye of the Lorde Tobiah made a good feaſt in hys houſe / & ſayde vnto his ſonne: Goo thy waye and bryng hither ſome of oure trybe / ſoch as feare God / that they maye make mery with vs. And when he was gone / he came agayne / & tolde his father / that one of the chyldrẽ of Iſrael laye ſlayne vpon the ſtrete. And immediatly he leape from his table / left the feaſt / came faſtynge to the deed coarſe / toke him & bare him preuely in to his houſe / that when ẏ Sunne was downe / he myght ſafely burye him. And when he had hyd the coarſe / he ate hys meate with mournynge & feare / remembrynge the wordes / that the Lord ſayeth by the prophet Amos: youre hye feaſtes ſhalbe turned to ſorowe and heuynes.

But whẽ ẏ Sunne was downe / he went his waye & buryed hym. Then all his neyghbours reproued him / ſaying: It is not lõge / ſens it was cõmaunded to ſlaye the becauſe of this matter / & haſt ſcarce eſcaped ẏ daunger of death / & buriеſt thou the deed agayne? Neuertheles Tobiah fearynge God moare then the kynge / toke the bodyes of ẏ ſlayne / hyd thẽ in his houſe / & buried thẽ at midnight.

B

It happened vpon a daye / that he had buried ẏ deed / & was weery / cam home / & layed

him downe by the wal & slepte. And whyle he was a slepe, there fell downe vpon hys eyes warme dōge out of the swalowes nest, so ꝑ he was blynde. This tēptacion did God suffre to happen vnto him, ꝑ they which came after, myght haue an example of his pacīēce, like as of holy Job. For in so moch as he euer feared God frō his youth vp, & kepte his cōmaundementes, he was not heuy agaynst God, ꝑ the plage of blyndnes chaunsed vnto him, but remayned stedfast in ꝑ feare of God, and thanked God all the dayes of his lyfe.

For lyke as blessed Job was had in derysyon of kynges, euen so was he laughed to scorne of his elders & kinsfolkes, which sayd vnto hym: where is thy hope, for the whych thou hast done almes and buryed the dead? But Tobiah rebuked them, & spake: Saye not so, for we are the chyldren of holy men, & loke for the lyfe, which God shall geue vnto thē, ꝑ neuer turne their beleue frō him. Anna hys wyfe went dayly to the weeuynge worcke, & loke what lyuynge she coulde get with the labour of her handes, she brought it. And it happened that she toke a kyd and brought it home.

And when her housbande herde it crye, he sayde: loke ꝑ it be not stollē, restore it agayne to the awners: for it is not lawfull for vs, to eate or to touch eny thynge of theft. Then was his wyfe angrie, and sayde: Now is thy hope be come vayne openly, & thy almes dedes are manyfest. With these and soch lyke wordes dyd she cast him in the tethe.

¶ The prayer of Tobiah. Sara the daughter of Raguell is sclaundred of her fathers seruaunte. The prayer and fastyng of Sara: And also the innocency & chastytie of her. The prayers of Tobiah and of Sara are hearde.

¶ The. iij. Chapter

THen Tobiah toke it heuely, & with teares begāne to make his prayer sayenge: O Lorde thou art ryghtuous, & all thy iudgmentes are true, yee all thy wayes are mercy, faythfulnes & iudgmēt. And now O Lord be myndefull of me, & take no vengeaūce of my synne, nether remēbre my myldedes, nether ꝑ myldedes of my elders. For we haue not bene obedient vnto thy cōmaundemētes, therfore are we spoyled, brought in to captyuyte, in to death, in to derisiō & shame vnto all naciōs, amōge whō thou hast scatred vs. And now O Lord, thy iudgmētes are great, for we haue not done accordyng to thy cōmaundemētes, nether haue we walked innocently before the. And now O Lord, deale with me accordynge to thy wyll, & cōmaunde my spyrete to be receaued in peace, for more expediēt were it for me to dye, then to lyue.

At the same tyme it happened, that Sara the daughter of Raguel at Rages a cytie of the medes was sclaundred of one of her fathers handmaydes, namely, that she shulde haue had seuen housbandes, which as soone as they were gone in vnto her, were slayne of ꝑ deuell called Asmodeus. Therfore whē she reproued the maydē for her faute, she answerde her, sayenge: God lett vs neuer se sonne ner daughter of the more vpō earth, thou kyller of thy housbādes. Wylt thou slay me also, as thou hast slayne seuen men? At this voyce wente Sara in to an hye chāber of her house, and thre dayes & thre nyghtes she nether ate ner dranke, but contynued in prayer, and besought God with teares, that he wolde delyuer her from this rebuke.

Upon the thyrde daye it chaunced, ꝑ whē she had made an end of her prayer, she prayed the Lorde sayeng: Blessed be thy name O God of oure fathers, whych when thou art wroth, shewest mercy, & in ꝑ tyme of trouble thou forgeuest the synnes of them, that call vpō the. Unto the O Lord turne I my face, vnto ꝑ lyft I vp myne eyes. I beseche the O Lorde, lowse me out of the bondes of this rebuke, or els take me vtterly awaye from of the earth. Thou knowest Lorde, ꝑ I neuer had delyre vnto man, and that I haue kepte my soule cleane frō all vnclenly lust. I haue not kepte cōpany with those that passe their tyme in sporte, nether haue I made my selfe partaker wyth them that walcke in lyghte behauoure. Neuertheles an housband haue I consented to take, not for my pleasure, but in thy feare.

Now peraduēture ether I haue bene vnworthy of them, or els were they vnmete for me, for thou happly hast kepte me to another housband. For why? thy councell is not in the power of man. But whosoeuer loueth the & serueth the a right, is sure, that yf his lyfe be tempted & proued, it standeth in the tryenge: & yf he endure in pacience, he shall haue a rewarde & be hylye crowned: & yf he be in trouble, that God (no doute) shall delyuer him: & yf his lyfe be in chastenynge, that he shall haue leaue to come vnto thy mercy.

For thou hast no pleasure in oure dampnacyon: & why? after a storme thou makest the wether fayre and styll: after wepyng and heuynes thou geuest greate ioye. Thy name O God of Israel, be prayed for euer. At the same tyme were both their prayers hearde in the sight of ꝑ magestye of the Hyest God. And Raphael the holy Aungell of the Lorde was sent to helpe thē both, whose prayers came together before God.

¶ Tobiah thinckyng to dye geueth a godly exhortaciō and monycyon to his sonne.

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

So

¶ The obedyence of younge Tobiah to hys father/ which is sent in to Rages. An Aungell accompanieth with him in his iourney.

¶ The.b. Chapter.

A SO whē Tobiah thought his prayer to be herde/ that he myght dye / he called vnto him his sonne Tobiah/ & sayde vnto him: My sonne/ heare the wordes of my mouth / and laye them in thyne herte as a foundacion. When God taketh awaye my soule/ burye thou my body/ and holde thy mother in honoure all ỹ dayes of her lyfe. For thou oughtest to remembre/ what and how greate parels she suffred for the in her wombe. And whē she also hath fulfylled the tyme of her lyfe / bury her beside me. Haue God in thy thought all the dayes of thy lyfe: & bewarre / lest at eny tyme thou consent vnto synne / and lest thou lett slyppe the cōmaundemētes of the Lorde oure God.

B Geue allmes of thy goodes/ and turne neuer thy face from ỹ poore: & so shall it come to passe/ that the face of the Lorde shall not be turned awaye from the. Be mercyfull after thy power. If thou hast moch/ geue plenteously: yf thou hast lytle / do thy dyligence/ gladly to geue of that lytle. For so gatherest thou thy selfe a good rewarde in the daye of necessyte. For allmes delyuereth* frō death/ & suffreth not the soule to come in darcknes. A greate comforte is allmes before the hye God/ vnto all them that do it.

* Some rede: frō all synne and from death.

C My sonne / kepe the well from all whoredome/ and (beside thy wyfe) se that no faute be knowne of the. Let neuer pryde haue rule in thy mynde ner in thy worde / for in pryde began all destruccyon.

Whosoeuer worketh eny thynge for the/ immediatly geue him his hyre/ and loke that thy hyred seruaunte wagies remayne not by the ouer nyght. Loke that thou neuer do vnto another man / the thynge that thou woldest not another mā shulde do vnto the. Eate thy bred wyth the hōgrye and poore/ & couer the naked with thy clothes. Set thy bred and wyne vpon the buryall of the ryghtuous / & do not thou eate and drincke therof wyth the synners. Alke euer councell at the wyse.

Be allwaye thanckfull vnto God/ and beseche him/ that he wyll ordre thy wayes/ and that whatsoeuer thou deuysest or takest in hande/ it maye remayne in him. I certifye ỹ also my sonne/ that (when thou wast yet but a babe) I deliuered ten talentes of syluer vnto Gabelus/ at Rages a cytie of the Medes/ & his handwrytynge haue I by me. And therfore seke some meanes/ how thou mayest come by hym/ & receaue of him ỹ sayde weight of syluer / and geue hym hys handwrytynge agayne.

My sonne/ be not afrayed: trueth it is/ we leade here a poore lyfe: but greate good shall we haue/ yf we feare God/ and departe from all synne/ and do well.

THen answered Tobiah his father/ and sayd: father/ all that thou hast commaunded me/ wyll I do/ and ỹ diligently. But how I shall require this money/ I can not tell. Nether doth he knowe me/ ner I hym. What token shall I geue him? And as for the waye thyther/ I neuer knew it. Then hys father answered him/ and sayde: I haue his handwrytynge by me/ which when thou shewest hym / immediatly he shall paye the. But goo thy waye now/ and get the some faythfull man to goo with the for an hyre/ that thou mayest receaue the money/ whyle I am yet lyuynge.

Then went Tobiah out/ and vpon the strete he founde a fayre yonge man standyng/ gyrded vp/ and as it were one ready to take hys iourney. And he knew not that it was an angell of God/ but saluted him/ and sayde: frō whence art thou/ thou good yonge man? He answered: Of the chyldren of Israel.

B And Tobiah sayd vnto him: knowest thou the waye/ that ledeth vnto the countre of the Medes? He answered: I knowe it well / and all those stretes haue I gone oft tymes / and haue lodged with oure brother Gabelus / ỹ dwelleth in Rages a cytye of the Medes/ which lyeth vpon the mounte Egabthanis. Tobiah sayde vnto him: I praye the/ tary for me/ tyll I haue tolde my father these thynges. Then wente Tobiah in/ and tolde his father all. At ỹ which his father marueled/ & prayed that he wolde come in vnto him.
